ALLIES ATTACK 'ENEMY SHIPPING OF ALL TYPES'

Direct Hits Scored On Light Cruiser And Destroyer

Bombers Encounter Enemy Warships Off Cap Bon and Leave Them in Flames

SIX OTHERS HIT

By EDWARD KENNEDY
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, May 1—(AP)—Allied troops both gained and lost ground in "exceptionally heavy fighting" in Tunisia yesterday, an Allied headquarters communique announced today, while African Allied air forces went all out in their most successful attack yet on Axis shipping.

Direct hits were scored on at least eight vessels, including a light cruiser and two destroyers.

Bombers encountered enemy warships off Cap Bon yesterday. They raked the cruiser with hits forward, amidships and astern and left it a mass of smoke and flame and apparently in sinking condition.

The bombers also hit and sank a destroyer and other planes set fire to a second destroyer which apparently sank.

Five Burning Hulks Seen

The desert air force of bomb-carrying fighters "put their full effort against enemy shipping and its heavy air cover," the communique said, and at sunset the sea off Cap Bon was dotted with five burning hulks—two merchant ships, one of 1,500 tons; a motor torpedo boat, a Siebel ferry (Siebel ferry is the German equivalent of a tank landing craft) and a large launch.

Escorted by Spitfires, Kittyhawks swept along the coast and spread further destruction among a concentration of ships of all varieties which the Axis had pressed into service in a desperate effort to get supplies to its Tunisian force.

(In addition, the British Admiralty announced the sinking of ten more Axis ships in the Mediterranean by submarines.)

Eight Nazi Planes Downed

The aerial attack, which took place over an area extending from Ras El Milan on the east coast of Cap Bon peninsula to Ras El Fortness on the Gulf of Tunis, encountered an air umbrella of Axis fighters, but the Allied airmen drove through it and shot down eight of the enemy planes and damaged 12 more. Five Allied planes were lost.

Six Messerschmitts also went at the bombers after the attacks on the destroyers and cruiser and another German plane was shot down.

As a finishing touch the Allied bombers blew up Kelibia Jetty near the tip of Cap Bon and an R.A.F. Beaufighter made its own individual raid on Axis air communications, intercepting five Junkers-52 transports and shooting down all five.

These operations absorbed the attention of enemy fighters to such an extent that British and American planes which supported the ground troops by knocking out several gun positions in the area southeast, of Medjez-El-Bab and raided the Tunis and Sidi Ahmed airfields with blockbusters and incendiaries encountered hardly any opposition.

Desert air force heavy bombers pounded at the Sicilian harbor of Messina yesterday, causing one huge explosion and large fires near the power station and ferry terminal.

The British 1st Army was forced to give ground in one sector of the Medjez-El-Bab front before heavy German counter-attacks, while maintaining the rest of its previously-won positions. Fighting on this front was extremely heavy, the communique said.

Japanese Able To Muster 1,500 Planes in Few Days

New York, May 1 (AP)—Francis Forde, Australian army minister, was quoted in an Australian broadcast recorded by CBS today as saying that the Japanese would be able to muster 1,500 planes "in a few days" on newly-constructed air bases on the island Periphery, north of Australia.

He repeated the warning of Gen. Sir Thomas Blamey that 200,000 enemy troops already are concentrated in the island arc. He called for a bold Allied offensive "as soon as the United Nations decide on that strategy."

JAPANESE LAUNCH SUB THREAT

Activity Reported in Some Force in Waters East of Australia

Allied Headquarters, Australia, May 1 —(CP)— With Allied air action limited for the moment to relatively light blows at the familiar island targets northeast of Australia, the Allied Southwest Pacific Command centered attention today on an undersea threat developing suddenly in the waters below these Japanese bases.

"The enemy has launched a submarine attack of some force in the waters east of Australia," an Allied communique disclosed.

Details of the nature, effect and exact location of this new Japanese activity were withheld temporarily, lest the knowledge assist the enemy in his operations.

But there was general conjecture that Japan, intent on reducing the flow of war supplies into this theatre of war, had enlarged its hit-and-miss submarine tactics of the past to the scope of a co-ordinated campaign by a fleet of underseas craft.

Ottawa, May 1 (CP).—Subscriptions during the first five days of the three-week Fourth Victory Loan campaign — up to Friday night — totalled $312,759,350, it was announced today by national headquarters of the drive, which has a minimum objective of $1,100,000,000.

Friday's subscriptions were $70,351,600 from 88,518 subscribers — a record for any day since the Fourth Victory Loan campaign began and close to the record day of the Third Victory Loan last autumn, $70,672,850.

On the first Friday of the Third Victory Loan, 75,673 subscribers bought bonds worth $62,085,450 and the cumulative total had reached $258,768,050.

The daily average subscribed over the first five days of the current campaign was $62,551,870, while the corresponding figure for the preceding drive was $51,753,610.

Units Over Objective.

Training camps and active establishments of the armed services across Canada reported rising totals of subscriptions by officers and men. A number of units had gone well over their quotas. Employee groups, also subscribing through the payroll savings plan, were close rivals to men in uniform.

In four days of canvassing, army establishments throughout Ontario took bonds worth $1,445,850, or nearly three times their total for the whole of the last loan. The four-day figure for the army in Canada, announced previously, was $3,398,950, or 64.5 per cent of its initial quota of $5,265,000. Several districts and camps passed their quotas by wide margins.

Navy personnel of Atlantic Command had subscribed a cumulative total of more than $750,000, or 75 per cent of their quota, up to Friday night. Thirty ships had passed their minimum objectives.

At the Canadian Army Trades School in Hamilton, subscriptions total more than $45,000, compared with an initial quota of $15,000.

Corporate subscriptions announced today included the following: Northern Life Assurance Co., London, Ont., $1,000,000; Independent Order of Foresters, Toronto, $620,000; Equitable Life Insurance Co., Waterloo, Ont., $600,000.

'HEAVY ATTACK' IS CARRIED OUT AGAINST ESSEN

13 PLANES MISSING

London, May 1. — (CP) — The R.A.F. smashed again at Essen and other objectives in the Ruhr Valley last night in what the Air Ministry termed "a heavy attack" which cost 13 bombers in the fourth raid on the German industrial centre during April.

Halifax squadrons of the R.C.A.F. took part in the attack, R.C.A.F. headquarters announced. One of the 13 bombers missing is a Canadian craft.

The German communique, recorded from Berlin broadcasts, said considerable damage was caused at Essen and other places in Western Germany.

Continental weather conditions probably caused the raiders to scatter over several targets instead of loosing one saturation raid, observers said. The other objectives were not immediately identified.

The most recent visit to the much-bombed Ruhr area was Monday night when the R.A.F. battered Duisburg, 12 miles west of Essen, in the second raid on that river port in a month.

Essen itself has been bombed 55 times since the beginning of the war and 900 tons of block-busters were dropped on it in the last previous raid April 3.

Last night's losses brought the toll of R.A.F. bombers to 602 since the beginning of the year. The losses were not unexpected considering the fact that the weight of bombs delivered on each mission has tripled since last year.

Indicative of the new tempo of the air offensive is the rise in monthly losses: 75 in January, 104 in February, 158 in March and 264 in April.

The R.A.F. had a lull in its bombings of Germany after hitting the naval base at Wilhelmshaven and heavily mining Baltic waters Wednesday night.

Spitfires damaged an enemy minelayer off the Coast of Brittany yesterday and Mustangs of the army co-operation command, including Canadians, attacked Axis transport in northern France.

HARASS GROUND POSITIONS

New Delhi, India, May 1 (CP) — R.A.F. bomber and fighter planes continued to harass Japanese ground position in the Mayu Peninsula area of Burma yesterday, a British headquarters communique said today.

There was patrol action on the Arakan front but the general situation was reported unchanged.

British bombers set fire to a factory in a raid on Myingyan, on the Irrawaddy River southwest of Mandalay, the communique said.

Ten More Enemy Ships Sunk in Mediterranean By British Submarines

London, May 1. (CP)—Ten more enemy ships have been sunk in the Mediterranean by British submarines, the Admiralty announced today.

Among the ships sunk said the communique, was a large tanker torpedoed near Marittimo Island "while west-bound on a course for Tunis. She was escorted by an unusually large number of surface craft and aircraft".

Another tanker was sunk by gunfire off Italy's west coast and a large ammunition ship was blown up off the Island of Monte Cristo, between Italy and Corsica.

Other sinkings were off the East Coast of Corsica, northwest of Sicily and off the northern tip of Tunisia. One vessel apparently had been previously damaged by air attack, the Admiralty said.

The attacks were carried out by five submarines. While their names were not announced, their commanders were identified as: Lt.-Cmdr. M. R. G. Wingfield, D.S.O. and Lieuts. A. R. Daniell, D.S.C., H. B. Turner, M. G. R. Lumby, D.S.C. and and M. L. C. Crawford, D.S.C.

CANADA ASSUMES NEW ATLANTIC CONVOY DUTIES

Every Mile From America to Europe Will be Protected

NEW COMMANDER

Ottawa, May 1 (CP).—The navies of Canada and Great Britain were ready today, with aerial co-operation to put into effect new measures for dealing with the submarine menace in the North Atlantic, involving protection of "every mile of the route from North America to Europe".

The new measures — announced late yesterday in a joint statement by Navy Minister Macdonald and Air Minister Power—are designed to offset an anticipated intensification of U-boat warfare by Germany in the Atlantic this summer.

Canada and Britain share responsibility for British convoys under the new set-up. The United States, while co-operating with ships and aircraft will retain "strategic responsibility" for the Western Atlantic, including escort operations for non-British convoys.

Added Responsibilities.

The new streamlined convoy protection involves added responsibilities for two senior officers of Canada's fighting services.

Rear-Admiral L. W. Murray, R. C. N., 47, commanding officer, Atlantic coast, for the navy since September, 1942, has been appointed commander in chief, Canadian Northwest Atlantic.

Air Vice-Marshal George Johnson, Air Officer Commanding, Eastern Air Command, becomes Air Officer Commanding-in-chief, Eastern Air Command, and will direct anti-submarine operations of new long range Canadian and American machines patrolling to mid-Atlantic.

British bombers will take over in mid-Atlantic, thus establishing an air "umbrella" over the entire Atlantic route, co-operating with naval escorts.

Conference Held.

A single naval control, like that exercised by Rear-Admiral Murray, will be operated by the Royal Navy, with air co-operation, covering the western approaches to Europe.

The new anti-submarine measures are the outcome of a recent conference between British, Canadian and American naval and air authorities.

It was assumed that under the new plan while the trade convoy route across the North Atlantic would be a joint Canadian-British responsibility, the United States would direct any strategic operations made necessary by enemy naval thrusts in the western Atlantic and by local American convoys.

Little change is anticipated in the duties of Canadian naval units, which already are bearing approximately 40 per cent of the Atlantic escort task. But the ministers said it is intended that the efforts of Canadian warships will be more efficiently applied and that there are more of them available for this work.

Now Producing Frigates.

(Canada now is producing frigates, similar in design to but larger and more powerful than the sturdy corvettes which have borne much of the convoy burden.)

United States escort vessels will continue to share in the task, under direction of Rear-Admiral Murray, and United States air units stationed in Newfoundland will continue to carry on their anti-submarine tasks under direction of Air Vice-Marshal Johnson.

STALIN DEMANDS UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER OF AXIS

MAY DAY ORDER

Moscow, May 1—(AP)—Premier Joseph Stalin hailed the British-American aerial blows at Europe today as foreshadowing a second front when all the Allied armies "will break the backbone of the Fascist beast" with joint smashes from east and west, and called for the "utter routing" and "unconditional surrender" of Hitler's Germany.

In a May day order of the day to his nation and its army, Stalin echoed the "unconditional surrender" keynote struck by Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt at their Casa Blanca conference.

He praised the Allies' campaign on the North Africa front which, together with the air war, the Russian successes and the failure of the German counter-offensive in the Kharkov region, Stalin said, had caused a great Axis crisis which resulted in a German "babble about peace."

Decrys German Propaganda

Decrying German propaganda attempts to split the Russian-British-American coalition, he threw off German peace talk with the statement: "But of what kind of peace can one talk with the imperialist bandits from the German Fascist camp who have drowned Europe in blood and studded it with gallows?

". . . It is now clear that only the utter routing of the Hitlerite armies and the unconditional surrender of Hitlerite Germany can bring peace to Europe. . .

"The German-Italian Fascist camp is experiencing a great crisis and facing catastrophe. This does not mean, of course, that the catastrophe of Hitlerite Germany has already come . .

"Another two or three powerful blows from the west and east are needed such as that dealt to the Hitlerite army in the past five or six months, for the catastrophe of Hitlerite Germany to become an accomplished fact. For this reason the people of the Soviet Union and their Red Army as well as our Allies and their armies still face a stern and hard struggle for complete victory over the Hitlerite fiends.

"This struggle will demand of them great sacrifices, enormous staying power and iron staunchness."

Offensive Power Grows

The Russian winter campaign, Stalin said showed that the offensive power of the Red Army had grown and he enjoined upon it improvement in its strategy and fighting power.

" . . The Red Army must strike at the enemy still stronger and exterminate mercilessly the German invaders and drive them incessantly out of the Soviet land," Stalin charged his troops.

The Germans, smarting under their reverses, have quit talking about lightning war, Stalin pointed out.

" . . The German Fascists boast no more that they have effected or intend to effect a lightning offensive but that they managed to slip away deftly from a flanking blow by British troops in North Africa or from encirclement by Soviet troops in the area of Demyanks," he scoffed.

Stalin thus derided the attempt to split the United Nations: "Treacherous to the marrow themselves, the German imperialists have the nerve to apply their own yardstick to the Allies, expecting that one or another of them will swallow the bait."

U.M.W. IGNORE EXECUTIVE ORDER TO RESUME WORK

REFUSES TO COMMENT

Washington, May 1. (AP)—President Roosevelt today directed Secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes to take immediate possession of all United States coal mines in which a strike or work stoppage has occurred, or is threatened.

New York, May 1 (AP) — The 10 o'clock deadline set by President Roosevelt for full-scale resumption of coal mining in the United States came and passed today with the United Mine Workers following instead the advice of their union president, John L. Lewis, "not to trespass" on their places of work.

Instead of digging coal, and without resorting to a general strike which the President has said might be as crippling as a military defeat in the field, they simply stayed away from work by the tens of thousands, and next move was up to the White House.

What that step might be went undisclosed for the moment, and Lewis who says it is unfair to the miners to have their wage dispute left up to the War Labor Board, was likewise silent.

At 10 a.m., Lewis was closeted with several mine union representatives in the United Mine Workers office in New York. When he entered the offices half an hour earlier he had refused all comment, but his office said he intended to attend negotiations between hard coal miners and operators scheduled today.

At 10.08, Lewis left the U. M. W. office to go to the anthracite conference. As he strode down a hotel corridor he was asked if he had any comment on the passing of the 10 a.m. deadline or other phases of the work stoppage.

"Gentlemen," he said to the newsmen, "I have no comment this morning. Thank you."

Asked if he had heard from Washington, he said, "I have nothing at all to say."

85% Production Halted

Production in 85 per cent of the bituminous mines and all the anthracite pits was reported halted shortly after the "no trespassing" edict of the United Mine Workers' president took effect at midnight, E.D.T. Some 500,000 miners were engaged in the stoppage, biggest in the country since the United States entered the war.

The situation was tense as the hour approached for the climactic decision by President Roosevelt as to how he would use his power as President and commander-in-chief "to protect the national interest and to prevent further interference with the successful prosecution of the war" if the miners had not returned to their jobs by 10 a.m. E.D.T. today

President Gives No Hint.

Mr. Roosevelt gave no hint in his appeal to the miners Thursday as to what course he would follow. There were at least three open to him—he could turn the operation of the mines over to the armed forces, provide military protection for those wishing to work or declare martial law in the coal areas. But none of

Member for Brant Choice of Liberals On First Ballot

Leader Formerly Held Position of Provincial Sec'y In Hepburn Cabinet

A PRACTICAL FARMER

Toronto, May 1. (CP)—Ontario Liberals today looked to Harry Corwin Nixon as their Standard-Bearer in the political life of the province.

The 43-year-old Brant County farmer was selected party leader on the first ballot yesterday as the Liberal Provincial convention closed its two-day gathering. The balloting gave the former provincial secretary a clear-cut majority over his three opponents—418 of a possible 582 votes.

Coupled with the leadership election were exhortations by party stalwarts for unity of thought and action with Federal Liberalism and an end to internal differences.

Former Premier Mitchell Hepburn, who long ago broke with the Federal administration of Prime Minister Mackenzie King, was not present at the convention. It was Mr. Hepburn's resignation as Premier last October—when Hon. Gordon Conant took over the government leadership—that ultimately brought about the party convention.

Three Opponents

Mr. Nixon's opponents in the voting were Arthur Roebuck, former Ontario Attorney-General and now member of the Federal House for Toronto Trinity; Hon. T. B. McQuesten, minister of Highways; and Walter Thomson of Toronto, making his first bid for high political office.

The Canadian Press unofficial count of the vote showed: Nixon, 418; Roebuck, 85; McQuesten, 49; Thomson, 22.

Premier Conant, who was to have been nominated following an active campaign, became ill yesterday and was taken to hospital suffering from what was described as "nervous and physical exhaustion". Early today his condition was reported satisfactory and "quite comfortable".

The convention passed a resolution of regret at the Premier's illness and expressed hope for his recovery. It likewise went on record with the hope that Mr. Nixon, now party leader, could make an early entry into the premiership.

A Practical Farmer

The new Liberal leader was born on the farm and is a practical farmer. He studied scientific agriculture at the Ontario Agricultural College and entered politics in the upsurge of the farmer political movement that followed the First Great War. Mr. Nixon served in the government that called itself United Farmer, and later, Progressive.

He sat as a member of the opposition but was consistently re-elected to the Provincial House, eventually becoming progressive leader. He became the most forceful critic of the incumbent Conservative government.

In 1933, when another Western Ontario farmer, Mitchell Hepburn, became Ontario Liberal leader, Mr. Nixon led the Progressive group into the Liberal ranks and became Mr. Hepburn's first lieutenant.

At yesterday's convention gathering Mr. Hepburn's brief letter of resignation from the leadership was read shortly before voting began.

U.S. Bombers Raid Messina

Cairo, May 1 (AP)—United States bombers attacked the harbor of Messina, Sicily, in daylight yesterday, causing a "tremendous explosion and large fires in the vicinity of the port's power station," a communique said today.

Hits also were observed on a ferry terminal and installations, the war bulletin said.

Several enemy fighters were damaged in an attack on the U.S. bombers, the communique reported and added that one of the bombers has not returned.

Genelco and CIO Sign Agreement

Toronto, May 1 (CP).—The United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America (C.I.O.) today announced a collective bargaining agreement has been signed by its Loc. 524 with the Genelco Ltd., Peterborough, Ont., employing 1,600 workers, a subsidiary of the Canadian General Electric Company.

The union said the agreement designates the union as exclusive bargaining agent for production employees, provides for seniority protection, grievance procedure and vacations with pay. The union first applied for a contract in October last year and a board of conciliation was held after which a government-supervised vote was taken in January, in which the union polled 1,138 votes to 263 for the employees' council.

Major Air Battles Continue Up And Down Long Russian Front

(By EDDY GILMORE)
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Moscow, May 1. (AP)—Major air battles continued up and down the long Russian front today with the sharpest fights above the narrow Kuban bridgehead the Germans hold in the Western Caucasus, while on the Donets River front a company of Nazi automatic riflemen who forged the river were exterminated or forced to swim back to safety through the icy waters.

The Donets action was south of Izyum in the sector 70 miles southeast of Kharkov. The noon communique said the greater part of the Germans who crossed were wiped out and "only a few managed to swim back to the right bank". A company nominally numbers 250 men.

The latest communique and dispatches told of no renewed land activity in the Kuban, but there was no reason to believe the Red Army was not still driving against the foe deployed between Novorossisk and the Taman Peninsula leading to the Crimea.

Russian Stormovik planes were credited with destroying "dozens of enemy guns while assisting land troops". Contained raids were made on railroad stations and other communications, day and night.

The incessant pounding of German communication lines was interrupted as meaning that the Russians were well aware the enemy was trying to wheel up reserves and very kind of war material for an offensive.

On the northwestern front south of Leningrad, Russian scouts were said to have crossed a river (possibly the Volkhov) and penetrated German defences.

APRIL COLDEST MONTH FOR YEARS

Taken all the way around the month of April, 1943, will go down as rather a dark month in history's weather records.

Official statistics released from the records of the Belleville Water Filtration Plant today revealed that at no time during the month did the thermometer get above the 63 mark, it rained or snowed on 17 days of the month and on the first day of May the water temperature in the Bay of Quinte was still a cold 45 degrees.

Rainfall during the month totalled 1.51 inches while there was 8.7 inches of snow for a total precipitation of 2.38 inches. For the same period last year there was .77 inches of rain, 6.9 inches of snow and a total precipitation of 1.46 inches.

By comparison April of last year was really a balmy month, it was indicated by temperature records. Residents basked in temperatures ranging up to 81 degrees one year ago as compared to 63.3 for the highest reading last month, while the minimum reached last year was 28 degrees as compared to a chilly 12 degrees in April, 1943. One year ago today the temperature of the bay water was 60 degrees.

District followers of Isaac Walton will get their initial try at the elusive speckled beauties of the northern country creeks on Saturday, May 1st., when the trout season opens. Local anglers contacted by the Ontario Intelligencer this morning would not prophesy as to the results fishermen might expect over the weekend, but intimated creeks were still high and sideroads still soft as the result of the late spring. A number of rod and line enthusiasts were expected to make the trip to the northern creeks, however.

Score Board Ad Presents Picture Of Pay-Roll Canvass

Presenting a comprehensive picture of payroll savings and group payroll subscriptions to the Fourth Victory Loan from plants in the Hastings district, a score board advertisement in today's issue of the Ontario Intelligencer gives its readers at first glance the progress being made toward bond sales objectives in the various industries.

Canvassing in the majority of the plants is well under way and in some instances completed with subscriptions in some instances having already far surpassed the original objectives. However, in some cases, plant canvassing will not commence until May 3rd and rather than omit such industries from the list the plant names will all appear in the advertisement with a blank space to follow the name in cases where canvassing has not yet commenced.

Three industries in the Payroll Savings section, Crosse and Blackwell, Downs Coulter and Trent Cotton, and one in the group payroll division, the Redi-Heat Company of Deseronto, have not yet commenced their canvass.

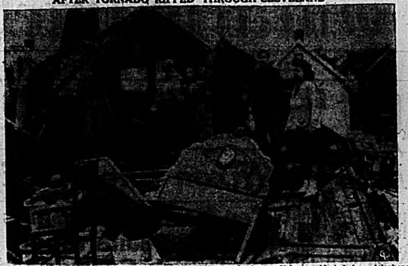
SEVERAL DEGREES FROST DURING NIGHT

With the mercury dropping to a low of 14 degrees reported in some sections close to the city, even tender plants in district greenhouses were touched with frost Friday night as residents experienced really winter-like conditions.

Puddles of water lying about streets were covered with a liberal thickness of ice this morning, a brief but heavy fall of soft snow was reported shortly after midnight.

Market gardeners today stated they thought greenhouse plants which felt the affects of the frost would recover from their setback.

AFTER TORNADO RIPPED THROUGH CLEVELAND



Householders are surveying the wreckage of their home on Cleveland, Ohio's west side, after a tornado had ripped through the city and northeastern Ohio, doing a terrific amount of property damage. Between 50 and 70 persons were injured in the city and several were reported killed in other parts of the state. The twister tore roofs off homes, blasted down telephone and electric power lines and overturned automobiles on the highways. It was said to be the most severe disturbance since the Loraine tornado of 1924.

"Freezes" Soft Coal in Transit

Ottawa, May 1 —(CP)— In an effort to prevent excessive purchases by any individual or industry during the coal strike in the United States, Coal Controller J. McG. Stewart has ordered the freezing of all bituminous coal in transit from the United States, and put into effect measures regulating deliveries from stockpiles to the consumers in Ontario and Quebec.

The order, announced last night, applies only to bituminous or soft coal — not anthracite — and does not affect the purchase of coal by householders anywhere in Canada. It will have little effect, the Munitions Department said, upon larger consumers outside Ontario and Quebec, since these provinces are the only ones importing substantial amounts of American bituminous.

Consumers in Ontario and Quebec who use 25 tons or less of bituminous coal annually may, under the order, continue to obtain deliveries without restrictions.

Ontario and Quebec consumers using more than 25 tons of bituminous annually and with less than 10 days' supply may obtain deliveries under permit, and, in emergency cases, supplies without permit to maintain heating services or plant operations.

Consumers in Ontario and Quebec having more than 100 tons of coal, however, may not sell it without a permit from the Controller. To meet the temporary crisis caused by the strike, the Controller is empowered to divert and allocate the existing stocks according to the needs of the public and industry.

Roosevelt to Make Important Statement On Strike Situation

Washington, May 1. (AP) — President Roosevelt will go on the radio at 10 p.m. E.D.T. tomorrow to make a brief but "very important statement" on the work stoppage in the coal mines.

White House Secretary Stephen Early made this announcement today and refused to predict whether any governmental action was contemplated before the speech, which will be carried on all radio networks.

As the 10 a.m. Presidential return-to-work deadline passed today with more than 165,000 miners out in a wage dispute, some action from the President was looked for in some quarters immediately. But the White House let the hour go by only with Early's statement.

The Secretary had no comment on a published report that an order had been prepared directing the army to move into the coal fields. He did say that no formal statement was in preparation at the White House at the time he talked to reporters.

Sgt. 'Bill' McQuaid Presumed Dead

Missing since July 30th, 1942, following air operations over enemy territory, Sergeant Bill McQuaid, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bert W. McQuaid, 50 Geddes Street, Belleville, is now for official purposes presumed dead, according to official notification received by his parents.

Well-known in sporting circles here, Sgt. McQuaid was born in Belleville and attended St. Michael's School. He played baseball for the local Kiwanis nine and for the Belleville Intermediates. He enlisted in the Royal Canadian Air Force in October, 1940 and after graduating as an air gunner proceeded overseas in September, 1941.

Fowl Prices Increase Sharply

Fowl prices sharply increased on the local produce market here Saturday and, as the result of limited quantities being offered, sold up to 45 cents the pound for January broilers. Mature fowl sold up to 43 cents the pound with available supplies being quickly bought up by anxious customers.

Potatoes for table use brought $2.12 per bushel while certified seed potatoes, large variety, sold at $3.35 per bag. Smaller size sold at $3.15 per bag. There was an eager demand for what was offered.

As a whole the market was quite slimly attended by vendors with winter apples bringing 75 cents the peck. Starks sold at $2.25 per bushel and Spys and Delicious up to $3 per bushel.

Winter onions sold at 10 cents the bunch as did new carrots. Last season's vegetables such as carrots and turnips brought 40 cents peck.

Grade "A" eggs sold generally at 38 cents the dozen with mediums bringing 35 cents. Dairy butter brought the usual 40 cents the pound.

Fresh mudcats saw brisk demand at 25 cents the pound, while suckers and eels, the only other type of fish offered brought 10 cents the pound.

A few young pigs were offered at from $7 to $8 each.

High School Students May Accept Work In Cheese Factories

Ontario high school students attaining the necessary academic standing may leave school to accept work in cheese factories for the summer months, it has been indicated to the Central Ontario Cheesemakers' Association.

C. E. Lackner, Director of Dairying for Ontario, conveyed this information to the Association in a recent letter addressed to J. L. Irwin, Chief Dairy Grader, here. High school students accepting work in cheese factories for the summer would be granted the same privileges as though working on farms, it was indicated.

This gesture on the part of provincial educational authorities may considerably help the cheese factory labor shortage in this district, it was thought by cheese officials. Factory operators acquiring the services of high school students as helpers must forward names and addresses of such helpers to the Ontario Farm Service Force offices, Parliament Buildings, Toronto. The name of the high school such helpers ordinarily attend must also be noted, it was stated.

This is a genuine episode in the bloody fighting that is still raging in the northern part of the Caucasus. Red Army men have dislodged the enemy from a populated place and at the LEFT are working as a unit using three kinds of guns including the long-barrelled anti-tank rifle. The officer near the wall uses a pistol and the rifleman nearest the camera is about to toss a grenade. At the RIGHT a wounded Red Army man is aided through the door of an all but wall-less house by a stretcher-bearer.

Belleville Boys Receive Regular Shipments of Canadian Cigarettes Through Cooperation of Contributions

HIGHLY APPRECIATED

With the exception of letters from home, perhaps nothing is more welcome to the men of the armed services overseas than a good Canadian cigarette.

That is why in October 1941 the Kinsmen Club of Belleville commenced a project for the provision of cigarettes for Belleville boys serving overseas. Today that rather original small item has grown steadily until it is with pride the Kinsmen Club of this city announced that over ONE MILLION cigarettes have already been sent to Belleville boys serving overseas.

To practically every war theatre in the world cigarettes have been received from Belleville and the replies received by Chairman Matt Currie are so gratifying that despite the fact the call for more and more cigarettes is daily being received from overseas the fund has blossomed beyond the furthest imagination of even its creator, Kin. Matt Currie.

Letters Tell Story.

Letters of appreciation are received by air mail, airgraph, cable and conventional mail daily from grateful Belleville boys who to a man urge the continuance of sending Canadian "fags" overseas to alleviate somewhat the homesickness and the dreariness that oftimes become the the lot of our fighting men.

For instance last week Pte. R. Bridge wrote back: "Just to show my appreciation for your sending me cigarettes regularly I will send this card of thanks by air mail, as you can't realize just what satisfaction it is to receive shipments of Canadian smokes."

Sgt. Allan Dempsey wrote last week to say: "I am sending this airgraph to tell you just how much we boys look forward to and appreciate the great work of the Kinsmen in providing us with Canadian cigarettes. Thanks to those responsible for this splendid work and keep it up, thanks."

Daily such letters are received by the Kinsmen Fag Fund, letters that speak for themselves.

Thanks For Help.

Naturally the Kinsmen feel proud of the fact that they were instrumental in the sending of over 1,000,000 cigarettes to Belleville boys serving overseas, but they also appreciate the fine co-operation that has been afforded them in the raising of money for this worthy effort at the hands of the citizens of Belleville. However, the assured provision of individual bi-monthly shipments of 300 cigarettes to each of the 512 names on the list is no easy task and naturally the Kinsmen look to the public for voluntary contributions to help in the assurance of cigarettes for our city boys overseas. This fund is authorized under the War Charities Act.

If the assurance of these smokes monthly will make 512 Belleville boys serving overseas happy, then it is as little as we at home can do to contribute our mite weekly to assure the successful continuance of the flow of Canadian cigarettes overseas.

Appeal Is Made.

There is an old saying: "The first million is the hardest". Well, the Kinsmen Fag Fund has shipped its first 1,000,000 cigarettes to Belleville boys overseas with the co-operation and voluntary contributions of the citizens. Now comes the second million and it's only with additional efforts and co-operation that this figure can be assured within the next year. Already there are those helping with the second million and any Kinsmen will gladly accept donations while there are collection boxes placed in numerous local places of business downtown to receive your contributions, as well as at the Bank of Montreal. Elsewhere in today's issue is a full page advertisement worthy of your attention.

Those boys shipped individual packets of 300 cigarettes each this week include:

D. C. Alexander, F. P. Archer, Geo. E. Baldwin, D. H. Barnhart, J. A. Calcutt, William R. A. Carter, M P. Cooney, C. Cunningham, R. F. Daley, Fred M. Day, L. S. Denyer, W. H. Dix, Walter A. Japan's Depravity

Japan stands condemned before the bar of humanity for some of the worst atrocities ever enacted in all history, not only for the execution of American fliers who were taken in the raid over Tokyo a year ago but for the mass slaughter of every man, woman and child in the coastal areas of China where these fliers landed.

The Western World could not have imagined such terrible deeds, but these monstrous acts are proven. Now the West knows what Japanese aggression means, complete in its utter depravity.

But China knows what brutalities the Japanese have committed. She has battled the cruel tyranny of Japan for more than ten years and still carries on. Chinese people have endured the worst that the men of Nippon could invent and devise in horrors and cruelties. Japan is barbarous. There may have been a veneer of civilization which did not mean anything to the selfish savage heart beneath.

Japan is an example of the ultimate in savagery of a people led by men who recognize no law but that of selfishness and of the delight in making human beings suffer. By such events as these the world has had its eyes opened to the gigantic menace to life and liberty which had been developing in Nippon. It is the same spirit as that of the gangster, it is bloodlust for the mere delight in cruelty and to aid and abet selfish aims. It is the lust of power and wealth working in a savage, uncivilized people.

The brutal Nipponese responsible for Japan's savage and treacherous attack on western civilization and on Chinese civilization have painted for the world for all time henceforth to see how gross and terrible is the spirit of man that is not guided by moral law and how fiendish even a nation may be when her leaders and people admit and permit such gross deeds.

But all Japan's cruelties only determine still more the democratic nations to strengthen their resolution that the evil doers must be punished and to strike a blow which will utterly crush Japanese fascism and imperialism.

As the sordid acts of Japan are revealed in their nauseating horror, China stands revealed in the pure light of democracy, the admiration of the world. China has endured atrocities from Japan and she has not weakened. She is a standing lesson to the rest of the United Nations to carry on this struggle until Japan is smashed to her knees and the guilty punished.

This age has been called upon to bear a heavy task, to cleanse the world of the unclean and foul manifestations of depravity of the fascist and nazi nations and of peoples under the influence of evil leaders.

Staggered Holidays

The appeal that summer holidays be begun in midweek instead of at the beginning of the week has merit which everyone realizes who has paid the slightest attention to the heavy passenger traffic which has surged down upon railway trains and coaches and buses on Saturdays and resumed on Mondays, with a result that the railways are taxed to the utmost to handle the crowds of both civilians and members of the armed forces.

The weekend travel under the proposal would be reduced considerably and travel would be levelled off across the week. Weekend congestion has one result, an abnormal condition with far more equipment demanded for the two to four days than for the balance of the week. If travel could be evened up through the week, it is easy to see that the strain on equipment and on labor for crews would be lessened and would help in relieving the manpower as well as the equipment problem.

The weekend for the start and end of holidays has the sanction of tradition and provides an extra day or two Sundays about the holidays but those on vacation can surely forego that extra day for the duration, start in midweek and come back in midweek and leave the weekend travel for the boys in the navy, army and air force, the women in the military services and those travelling on government business.

Such would be a better solution than restriction on travel. It would ease the strain on train personnel and on railway equipment, and it would make travel more comfortable for all.

Life of the Indians

(Winnipeg Free Press)

Canada has always done her utmost for her Indians. At least she always meant well. All she has overlooked is Indian psychology, and the Indian's own preferred ways of life.

After all, long before vitamins were talked of, Indians made pemmican which beat the fresh fruit into the buffalo meat, and had all the nutritional points for which we now labor. Indians do not hone for agriculture, and the vast majority of our efforts in that direction have been a waste of seed, and the waste of such reluctant effort as the Indians have, under supervision, made. Our most successful enterprise, by all odds, among the Indians, is the one now under way in this province and being undertaken in others, that is fur farming. That fits in with the Indian's own ideas.

The Indian has always been willing to go to war. That is another activity of the white man which has his approval.

Before New Design

I like to watch a placid cow
A chewing her eternal chow
And giving forth that vital fluid
Milk, as white as beard of Druid.
I like to watch that placid cow
And wonder
"How."

I hate to watch a little hen
Sit frowning in her whitewashed den
She has no heart to cluck or sing
She knows she'll soon be a la king.
I hate to watch that little hen
A wondering
"When."

But most of all I look at I —
My uniform, it makes me cry
The cow and hen are both productive
While I don't even look seductive.
So most of all I look at I
And wonder
"Why."

Encyclopaedia 175 Years Old

The Encyclopaedia Britannica, which in 1768 termed flying a "childish invention," celebrated its 175th birthday the other day with the knowledge that its nearly two-century-old definition was in a spin.

The encyclopaedia was founded by a "society of gentlemen in Scotland." Its first editor, William Smellie, a "scholar of convivial habits" and close friend of Robert Burns, resigned because his associates had too many "new-fangled ideas," including the use of biographies of prominent persons.

There is no action of man in this life which is not the beginning of so long a chain of consequences, as that no human providence can tell what the end will be.
—Thomas of Malmesbury.

ADVICE TO NEW GARDENERS

If you've never had a garden, but are starting one today,
Let an old-time fellow tell you what he's learned along the way:
You must keep for late September the desire of early May.

To begin is very easy. When the catalogues appear
The pictured flowers are pretty and the skies above are clear,
And little there informs you of the heartaches you must fear.

But a garden asks for patience and persistence and for pluck
And a constant state of warfare against foes which chew and suck,
And you'll reap no fruit or blossom if you leave it all to luck.

The weeds are quick in growing and they thrive upon neglect.
One must brave the sun all summer to keep slug and beetle checked.
The gardener who turns lazy soon will find his garden wrecked.

Let an old-time fellow tell it:
You must work from day to day.
To the glory of a garden there exists no easy way.
You must carry through September the devotion shown in May.

Sir Basil Brooke Prime Minister Of North Ireland

Belfast, May 1 (CP).—Appointment of Sir Basil Brooke, Conservative, as prime minister of Northern Ireland was announced today in an official statement from Government House.

He succeeds John Miller Andrews, Conservative, who has resigned.

Sir Basil, for many years deputy prime minister, is a nephew of Sir Alan Brooke, Chief of the Imperial General Staff at London.

His appointment was announced after a conference he held at Baron's Court, County Tyrone, home of the Governor, the Duke of Abercorn. Presumably they discussed the formation of Sir Basil's government.

He was expected to announce the composition of his cabinet before the Northern Ireland Parliament reconvenes Tuesday. He is understood to favor a more compact organization than that headed by his predecessor.

Washington, May 1 (AP).—President Roosevelt's suggestion for a post-war year of partial military service for young men injected new life today into controversial legislation to compel peacetime training of 18-year-olds in the United States. Possibility that a universal training bill, dormant in the Senate Military Committee for two months, would be dusted off for another scrutiny, was foreseen by several senators as a result of the President's recommendation.

Leaflets on the Loan

By Stephen Leacock

Will It Bust the Country?

WILL IT BUST THE etc .. ..

Got a rather bad jolt about the Loan yesterday evening. I was afraid I should have to wire to Mr. Ilsley to have it called off. The reason was that I learned, on what seemed the best authority, that if we didn't call it off it would bust the country.

Stephen Laycock

Yes,—that's what the old feller said, in my hearing, in the barber's chair right here in Mariposa, —"bust the country." I was sitting there in the barber shop waiting my turn, —or, well I won't say waiting my turn" but waiting till I, had, in fairness, to accept my turn. You see, here in Mariposa it's not like in the City. The barber shop, —I always go to Jeff's, — is a comfortable place to sit in with as good conversation and as much information as you get in any first class club. So each one likes to sit as long as he can till Jeff nominates him to a chair. When he says, "You're next," you have to take your place. You've read about the guillotine.

Anyway, the other evening there was an old feller there getting his hair cut, — or no I won't say "cut," —call it "distributed." He was pretty near bald, with a little straggling white hair and it's wonderful what a barber can do to spread it out and stand it, and make the most of it.

So he was talking.

"It'll bust the country," he said. "You can't take a total of four or five billion dollars out of this country without busting it."

The old feller developed his argument and the "boys" sat and listened and the two barbers, at the two other chairs, quit shaving and leaned over their customers' faces and whispered "get this."

"Five billion dollars among ten million people is five hundred dollars each. And have they got it? Has the average man got five hundred dollars? How old do you think the average man in this country is? —and, mind you, for this you must count every man, woman and child, —he's fifteen years old! Has a boy of fifteen got five hundred dollars? No, well, that means it'll break the country.

The barber let him out of the chair, I watched him closely, because you can't really tell what a man is like till he gets out from under the towels and dusters.

But the old feller looked all right, — neat, well-dressed in a light grey suit, — quite a dossy old feller and pink as a Peterborough ham.

He went out.

Then the talk broke and I heard the verdict and I knew it was all right. "You don't know him?" They said, "Yes, you must. That's old Oliver Croke, the retired lawyer, — Pshaw! he's had the country bust about twenty times already. He had it bust over the women's vote and the Trent Valley Canal, and the Income Tax and the Algoma Central Railway Why of course, old Oliver would say the Loan will break us. What else would you expect?"

One of the Mariposa bank managers who was being shaved in one of the chairs, rolled over sideways in the soap-suds and said:

"I'll tell you more, boys, though of course it's confidential and I wouldn't want it to go outside of this barber shop. The old feller's all right. He came into the bank today and took up ten thousand dollars of the Loan" . . .

So it's all right, Mr. Ilsley.

Stephen Leacock.

All Pale People Are Not Anemic

While it is known that all anemic or thin blooded people are pale, it is equally well known that all pale people are not anemic. A physician examining the boys in a residential preparatory school made a habit of testing the hemoglobin (iron) in the boys who were pale. When he was asked why he occasionally did not test the hemoglobin in a pale boy, he pointed out that the boy was alert, and bright-eyed, and that his pale skin was likely a family characteristic. When the blood was thin, the boy would have a tired or listless appearance.

Thus Dr. M. E. Shaw in the British Medical Journal points out that a white skin may be nourished by blood rich in iron and in the number of red blood corpuscles yet may be paler than that of a patient with a definite anemia.

On the other hand, besides pale skin, those with definite anemia—blood low in iron or in red corpuscles or both—will usually show other symptoms such as tiredness, shortness of breath, swelling of ankles, and a trace of albumin in the urine. That is, the patient and his family may suspect that the tiredness and pale skin are due to tuberculosis, the shortness of breath due to heart disease, and the swollen ankles and albumin in urine as due to heart and kidney disease.

In anemia, in addition to pallor, shortness of breath and tiredness, there are nervous symptoms such as sleeplessness, sometimes drowsiness, neuralgia, headache, nausea, and sore tongue. Infection of teeth, gums, and tonsils is a frequent cause of anemia.

In simple anemia, the iron (hemoglobin) in the red blood cells is reduced but the number of red cells is up to normal. In pernicious anemia, the iron in the red blood cells is reduced and the number of red cells is reduced also.

Treatment of simple anemia is iron in capsule or pill form taken by mouth or injections of iron into the skin and eating foods rich in iron—liver, red meats, eggs, leafy vegetables and whole cereals.

Treatment of pernicious anemia is by the use of liver taken by mouth, about one-quarter pound daily, or by injection of liver extract. The latest form of concentrated liver extract is so effective that injections are necessary only once or twice a month.

"Chevaux-de-Frise" is an old military term that was formerly common but which is now seldom heard. It is a French phrase literally meaning "horses of Friesland." Chevaux-de-Frise, pronounced "she-VO-de-FREEZ," originated during the Dutch War of Independence in the latter part of the 16th century and originally consisted of beams containing spikes, spears and sword-blades. They were used chiefly as an artificial obstacle to cavalry. The Germans called Chevaus-de-Frise "Spanish horsemen." They were referred to as horsemen because they were a defensive substitute for horsemen by the Netherlanders, who had few cavalrymen.

YOU ____ CITIZENS OF BELLEVILLE AND DISTRICT

HAVE MADE IT POSSIBLE FOR THE

KINSMEN CLUB OF BELLEVILLE

TO SUPPLY THE BELLEVILLE BOYS OVERSEAS WITH

1,007,700 CIGARETTES

AND BOMBED-OUT KIDDIES OF BRITAIN WITH - - -

51,300 QUARTS OF MILK

TO THE CITIZENS OF BELLEVILLE AND DISTRICT:

It gives me a great deal of pleasure to thank you one and all, the citizens of Belleville and District, for your fine support in helping us to build our Club into the most energetic and youngest service organization in the City of Belleville.

Our record of war and Community Service Work for the year 1942 appears below, of which we are justly proud and which was only made possible by you, the citizens of our community. I would like to outline to you the meaning of our two major War Service enterprises.

WHAT MILK-FOR-BRITAIN REALLY MEANS!

Even in peacetime much of Britain's milk supply was imported. With the coming of war the imports from the dairy countries of Europe were gradually cut off and although home production was stepped up it could never meet the needs of the ten million or more children who must have milk EVERY DAY. In June, 1941 Lord Woolton of the British Ministry of Food, made an urgent radio appeal to Canada for milk. Described as Hitler's greatest weapon, malnutrition faced the future citizens of Britain and threatened the morale of the parents of these little ones. "Britain's children need MILK, will you help them?" said that voice appealing to Canadian parents.

In August 1941, was born the Kinsmen "Milk-for-Britain" Campaign. Since that time, regularly every month, large shipments of from 120,000 to 150,000 quarts of milk, in powdered form, leave Canadian ports for British kiddies. Powdered "whole milk" (28% butter fat) is sent overseas by the Kinsmen because this is the purest, safest and most economical form in which milk can be purchased and handled. One pound of powdered milk is the equivalent of four quarts of fluid milk.

WHAT THE KINSMEN FAG FUND REALLY MEANS!

Shortly after the outbreak of the present conflict one of our valued members, namely Kin. Matt Currie, realised the need and the comfort to be received from Canadian cigarettes for our boys overseas. Our club immediately adopted this plan and at the present time we are shipping 300 cigarettes weekly to sixty Belleville boys overseas. Our list of names to whom we are now sending cigarettes now numbers 512 and we are receiving new names weekly. We are asking you to co-operate by notifying us of any Belleville boy who may not be receiving the cigarettes from our club. Please donate generously to our Fag Fund Boxes.

In closing I would like to appeal to the citizens, social clubs and societies of the district to help us in every way possible to expand our service program for 1943 by donations to a very worthy cause.

Sincerely yours,
ORLIFF A. LLOYD, President.

You Have Made It Possible for the Kinsmen of Belleville to Carry on the Services Listed Below this Last Year—We Urgently Appeal to You for Further Support That We May Continue with the Work.

ROADS TO TAP WEALTH

To open new sources of metals, minerals, lumber and other products, Peru is devoting much attention to the building of highways. Motor vehicle transport is attaining greater importance as new roads are opened, but it is admitted in Lima that to date trucks have not been able to compete with railways except on cargo of limited volume. Operators have not met freight rates established by the railroads. One company was obliged to curtail operations because of shortage of equipment. The projected Pan-American Highways will provide facilities to reach localities not accessible by other forms of transport.

SUSPICIONS AROUSED

Johnstown, Pa., May 1. (AP)—A 53-year-old man, accused of writing to men in the service for the past 18 months under the name of "Betty", was arrested yesterday and charged with disorderly conduct. "I've just been trying to give the boys a thrill", a detective quoted the man as saying. A Marine Corps Sergeant wrote police his suspicions has been aroused because "Betty" told him too much about his having such "sweet charm".

Mentality a Beauty Factor

Marina, Waldorf songstress, has both charm and beauty

By HELEN FOLLETT

WE ALL know the girl who has a gardenia-and-rose complexion, a heavenly mop of hair, the svelte figure and a head full ofg nothin. She's easy on the eye, but a strain on the ear. She has plenty to say, but never says anything. She has centered her mind on external loveliness, forgetting that it is not altogether how you look that makes for charm and popularity, but what you are.

Beauty has many elements. Intelligence is one of them. If a girl won't take the trouble to make herself interesting she might as well chuck the make-up kit out of the window and start all over again.

Learn To Be Agreeable

To this type of young lady we would suggest that she be observing, listen to the conversation of attractive girls who are popular no matter where they chance to be, among friends or strangers. They make an effort to be agreeable. It's as easy as pie. Just find out the interests of the other fellow and play them up.

Cultivating a taste for good books will educate a girl.

The brain, like the body, should be exercised. It is the only way to keep it alert and active. Good conservation and good books are wonderful stimulants.

Without wit and intelligence no woman can be charming.

Too Self-Centered

Many a pretty-pretty is self-centered and vain, fancies that good looks are the whole story. She adores the reflection in the mirror, thinks she can get by. Well, there are nit-wit boys who admire that type, like to drag a pretty girl from place to place and show her off. But she doesn't wear well. Even they lose interest, seek a snappier young lady who will make herself bright and entertaining.

Our pretty one will be better company for herself if she endeavors to cultivate mental gifts, builds a personality that is more compelling.

Badly Fitted Shoes Chief Cause Of Foot Disorders

Anyone who suffers from foot disorders would pay a high price to get relief and comfort. It is a sad fact that many such disorders might have been prevented if the person had given careful attention to the fit of his shoes.

There are several kinds of pain of the foot. One type is that in which the discomfort is located in the front part of the foot, passing into the tip of one of the middle toes. This condition is known as metatarsalgia, or Morton's toe. It probably is due to pressure on a nerve by the head of one of the metatarsal bones. These bones are located just behind the toes. The pain in the foot is brought on by walking and is relieved by rest and taking off of the shoe. Frequently, a patient will move his toes to obtain relief from the short, cutting pain.

To relieve this pain it is necessary to remove the pressure from the metatarsal bones. This is done by wearing a pad of felt or sponge rubber just behind the part of the metatarsal bones where the pressure occurs. This pad is fastened inside the shoe. In addition, a curved or slanting piece of leather three-sixteenths of an inch high is nailed to the sole of the shoe just behind the location of the front part of the metatarsal bones.

As a general rule these methods will relieve the pain due to metatarsalgia. However, in some instance more radical treatment is required. This may consist of wearing a cast for about a month with the toes kept in a bent position. In some cases an operation is needed.

A painful and disabling disorder of foot is what is known as claw toes, in which the toe is bent instead of straight. This condition is disabling, first because it is difficult to find shoes which will properly fit the feet and, secondly, because of pressure on the tops of the toes corns develop.

Dr. William R. Hamsa of Nebraska thinks that claw toes develop chiefly because shoes that are too short are worn at some time during the growing period. In some cases, however, the condition may be brought about by arthritis. If only one toe is affected by this condition it is usually the second toe, because it is sometimes longer than the first toe, and the chief sypmtom consists of the corn which develops on top of the toe. If all of the toes are deformed usually a great deal of callus also forms on the foot.

As a general rule, an operation is needed to correct this condition. In occasional instances when the disorder is mild a simple appliance to put pressure on the top of the toe may prove curative.

YANKS GIVE BIG TIPS

American servicemen are handing out big tips in New Zealand and giving a decided impetus to what is described in Auckland as "a typical overseas custom that has been only slightly developed here." A survey shows that the Americans have carried the tipping habit to extremes of generosity. A tobacconist with a large barbering salon said that all the Americans with whom he had come in contact gave tips, and in the most generous fashion, New Zealanders, he added, were distinctly sparing. A woman street car conductor said that she was constantly obliged to refuse American offers to "keep the change" from a fare. Others who told of liberal tips were taxi men, hotel porters and waitresses, and bar tenders.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

He's Tired of Being the Goat

Dear Miss Fairfax:

We have a friend and her husband living in this city. They have no car, and always have a hard luck story, but they say if they had a car they would be glad to ask people to go with them, and they can't understand how anyone can be selfish and want to go out alone.

For several years we have always taken their whole family out and they promise to pay half the gas, but never have done it to this day. We are working people, the same as they are, and I'm getting tired of being the goat. My wife has also let this woman have some of her clothes, for which the other woman promised to pay, but like the gas, we're just living on promises.

What do you think of people like this and how can we stop this "sponging" on us?

E. and E. J. O.

When one has had an experience of this kind, the best thing to do is to charge it up to profit and loss. In your case, it seems to be loss from beginning to end. Why take these selfish people out in your car any more, particularly when gas conservation is a duty? And your wife would do better if she sent her outgrown clothes to some organization which undertakes to supply needy people with such garments. There are such organizations in every city.

Babies for Adoption Hard to Find

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My husband and I would like to adopt a baby. We have tried a couple of places but haven't had much luck. We can furnish good references and my husband has an excellent paying position so could give a child advantages. Our home is large and includes grounds, and we would also guarantee plenty of love.

We have no children and I've been told I cannot have any. As we are both devoted to children we feel we would be happier and more contented if we had a little one growing up in our household.

If we cannot adopt a child from a family unable to care for it, we will be glad to accept one from an orphanage. Can you help us, Miss Fairfax? Thank you for your trouble.

J. G. and M. R. T.

To adopt a baby seems one of the most difficult things to accomplish. Childless couples, who seem to have every qualification as ideal parents and are able to give a child a good home, and are people of evident irreproachable character and financial trustworthiness, have been turned down by institutions and prospective associations to which they have applied.

I am unwilling to credit the charge that has been made that cities, churches and other agencies pay so much to institutions for the support of babies and young children, that such places are unwilling to reduce their income by giving up their little charges. I prefer to believe that there aren't enough orphan children to go around among all the couples who want to adopt one now.

GIRLS CUT RED TAPE

Efficiency girls of the A. T. S. are cutting red tape in a British ordnance factory, it is reported in London. Knowing the "target figure" for every branch they devised a system to save time, manpower and paper work. As a result supplies of motor transport parts flow more swiftly to the army. The major in charge says the girls' efficiency has enabled 90 per cent of the soldiers to be released from the depot for overseas service. In the efficiency squad are Private Nora Bremner, "scrapper of forms" Private Ethel Ainsworth, checker of target figures and Private Sheila McKay, smoother-out of bottlenecks. Lance Corporal Mary Hudge saver-of-words, designs new economy forms.

Soldier Who Forgot The Girl He Left Behind Quickly Has Reason To Regret The Fact

Let me say in advance I don't agree with a woman who writes that there's "too much fun and frolic whopped up for men in the services."

Men who are about to be sent overseas are entitled to the lift of spirits that comes with music and the twinkling patter of feet on the dance floor. But it would be well for them to stop, look and listen before these casual joys make them utterly forget the girls they left behind them. Unfortunately they do forget sometimes, and reap their own little private whirlwind.

For example, the soldier who writes me!

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"I was inducted into service more than a year ago. Before that I had been going steadily with a girl, over a period of five years. We were happy together, and in all that time never disagreed. She was very considerate about financial matters, even helping out when my funds were low. She had a substantial position.

"Before going into the service I asked her to wait until I came back from the war and then we planned to marry at once. But I hadn't been in the Army very long before I met what I thought was a sweet little girl and I fell in love.

"This girl wanted to marry me immediately, but I held off for two months, and then we took the vows, which has just about ruined my future. She's a spendthrift, and all she wanted was my insurance and the allowance. She's untrue to me, and she's everything which makes for an unhappy married life.

"I know I'm not worthy of the first girl, who is heartbroken because I married. Do you think I'd be doing right if I would apply for a divorce from my faithless wife and try to win back my old sweetheart? I haven't lived with my wife very much due to Army Regulations, and now I never want to see her again. I wish you would print this, so other soldiers may be warned not to be taken in by these deceitful girls whom we meet daily around camps.

An Unfortunate Soldier Boy."

I replied to him:

How do you know your former fiance would agree to take you back? Very likely she might consider you are fickle and lack responsibility. However, there's no law against trying.

Your letter does not state whether you took out any insurance for your wife. It's not compulsory to take out insurance. If you have applied for the monthly allowance for your wife, she will continue to receive it until a divorce is granted, if divorce is your intention. Then she will receive only the amount of alimony decreed by the court.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

Variety in Wives

Monogamy is unsatisfactory," says Dr. C. E. M. Joad, professor at the University of London, thereby echoing the secret thoughts of many a husband, who is tired of wiping his feet on the same old doormat, every morning.

The harem-idea, with a variety of wives—one for dinner, one for church, one for bridge, gin rummy and golf etc—he thinks might be ideal for the men, and, at the same time, absorb Britain's preponderence of women.

Every now and then, some male philosopher rises and applauds the harem-idea and the advantages of variety in spouses. It is seldom that a woman cheers for it. Yet, you'd think it might appeal to the wife who is a one-woman harem-cook, nurse, valet and chauffeur in the daytime, and glamour-girl and dance-partner in the evening.

Surely, it would be a relief for her, to have only one-quarter or one-tenth of a man's whims, appetite and headaches to cater to. One wife to send his clothes to the cleaner's and tell him when to get a haircut, another to keep his dinner hot, and another to dress up like a houri and rush to the door and greet him with a glad cry when he comes home. Oh joy!

But all this is a Utopian dream. The average man can hardly afford to buy enough beefsteak and butter for ONE wife, these days! The only way he could manage a harem would be for each of them to bring her own ration-card and get a war-job. Think of having five or six badly-riveters around the house, 24 hours a day!

No, that would be going to extremes! Yet, almost every man seems to think that he needs at least two women in his life. One to keep him busy—and one to keep him amused. One to pep him up and one to hold him down. One to lure him—and one to save him. One for week days—and one for holidays.

That's why it is so hard for him to decide which one. He is like a small boy, trying to decide between a big bag of lollipops and a small dish of ice-cream. He is always wandering in search of his "Lilith", for diversion; but he usually returns to his "Eve", for repentance and consolation.

When he is with "Lilith", the glamour-girl, he prays for strength and longs for the steadying hand of "Eve". But, when he is with "Eve', he dreams of "Lilith", the glamorous and diverting.

When he's weary of dancing and kisses and laughter, he yearns for the woman who will set his alarm-clock, put cold presses on his head and get him to the office on time. But when he's tired from overwork and his feet are stiff from following the rocky path o duty, he sighs or the light and carefree damsel, who seems like a cool drink in the midst of the desert.

Not all of a man's life can be one long Monday morning—but either can it all be one long Saturday night. That's why the American man looks for a one-woman harem—and usually finds it, in the America girl!

FOR WOMEN ONLY!

Don't let anyone fool you any longer. Don't let anyone tell you any more that you women are the weaker sex. You're not! Not by a long shot!

There are hundreds of men in Belleville and its vicinity that are a lot weaker than any woman ever thought of being. This must be true or the situation that exists would never prevail.

Ladies! Do you know that there are only 300 men in Belleville and vicinity that are willing to prepare themselves to defend their own homes and families? Do you know that these are all that are willing, out of the entire male population of eligible men, to turn out two nights a week—two hours each night—to be taught what to do and how to do it?

Would it give you any sense a security if you knew that your Husband, Brother, or Boy-Friend was one of the hundreds of men around here that just couldn't be bothered? Would it gladden your heart very much if you came to realize that your Husband, Brother, or Boy-Friend was one of those so-called "men" who is just as satisfied to "Let George do it."

Can it possibly be true that the man in your life has got to thinking that it can't happen here? Well, Ladies, it's about high time that you spoke to him and told him how you'd feel if anything happened in Canada—yes, right here in Belleville—and he wasn't able to step up and take his place amongst those men who would be able to protect you. Your children, and your home.

Remember, Ladies, nothing is sure in this day of modern warfare. The Axis COULD win! And surely, you know by now that the Nazi hordes, or even their cohorts and sympathizers, are no respecters of persons, male or female—adult or child. They certainly are no respecters of property.

So—forego that extra night of light diversion or entertainment. Urge your man to step right up and join Canada's Reserve Army. Send him down to the Armouries two nights each week—tell him you'd like to feel that he, too, feels a sense of responsibility! Tell him to join now! It's his war, too.

And it may be that you ain't.
Today is the test of merit
By which we stand or fall,
In what you are prepared to do
To heed your country's call.

You may live in a castle,
You may live in a town,
Your name may have a handle
Or it may be Jones or Brown;
High birth or low condition,
Don't count a row of pins,
Your country's sweating in a fight,
You've got to see she wins.

Now Canadians all together
Without delay or halt,
A sturdy stock we come from
Let's show our worth in salt,
And since our country needs us
All thoughts of self must cease,
Let's all unite and win the fight
And pave the way for peace.

Kingston. — One soldier at the Canadian Ordinance Corps Training Centre at Barriefield on the outskirts of this city rather surprised officers with the nonchalant way he bought a bond today.

"Give me a $50 bond," he asked the officer in charge of Victory Loan bond purchases at the army centre.

"$50," was the officer's reply, hoping for a larger investment.

"Oh you had better give me a $100 bond."

"$100," said the officer with pen poised to fill out an application bond form.

"Well make it $150."

"Aw hell, make it $2,000."

The purchaser of the bond, who did not want his name mentioned, is a 23-year-old farmer of the Peterborough area.

THE WAR TODAY

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press War Analyst)

President Roosevelt says that one of the things which impressed him on his 20-state tour was the benefit in physical condition and mental alertness that men and women in United States service and war-workers uniforms have realized.

He thinks the camps and industrial plants ought to be put to good use after the war, possibly by requiring youth to give a year's service to the country.

A lot of people, especially parents of boys under military age, have been doing a deal of thinking along that line lately. They're interested in the physical and mental training, and the character building, but it cuts deeper than that.

Despite the fact that their children may not be called for duty in the present conflict, these parents have reached the conclusion that they don't want their lads to have to go into some future war without thorough training. Of course, the hope is that there won't be any further wars, but if the present conflagration has taught us anything it is that security depends on preparedness.

Preparedness of the individual means security not only for him but for his countrry. Green troops which go into battle will suffer terrible casualties until they've learned the tricks of war in the hard and bloody way. And while they are learning, they may have lost the war to experienced forces.

Things Have Changed.

The well-trainede, well-armed man is the one who will live the longest. The well-trained, well-armed army is the one which will render the best service to its countrty.

A generation ago compulsory military service didn't suit Northt America. As a matter of fact we didn't need it, because we were safe behind our ocean barriers. But things have changed.

The other day the Royal Air Force announced at Montreal that an aviator had made a record North Atlantic flight—a landfall-to-landfall trip from Newfoundland to the United Kingdom—in six hours and 20 minutes. When the ocean can be spanned that quickly, it means there is no security in isolation.

We don't need to think of military training in terms of any such arduous and time consuming process as is seen in militaristic Germany. That represents an extreme which, of course, is abhorrent.

German boys serve in the Hitler youth movement between the ages of 10 and 18. Then they do three years compulsory military service, after which they are in the reserve for 14 years and in the Landwehr, or home defence, for nine years more.

The thing that has interested me most about the Nazi training has been that devoted to the youth movement. I was in Germany not long before the war and must admit that never have I seen finer physical specimens than one encountered in the 'teen age lads who were undergoing intensive exercise in the labor groups and other corps.

Heaven forbid that we emulate the Bouche, but after all they have demonstrated what physical training can do.

All Cheese Made After May 10 Must Be White, Unwaxed

Ottawa, May 1—(CP)—On and after May 10 all Cheddar cheese manufactured in Ontario and Quebec must be white and unwaxed, not less than 14½ inches in diameter and 75 pounds in weight, under an order of the Dairy Products Board announced yesterday by the Agriculture Department.

Th order is similar to one made effective in 1941 and retained for some months in that year. The purpose is to ensure that cheese produced is in line with British requirements for white, unwaxed cheese.

Canada plans to supply 150,000,000 pounds of cheese to the United Kingdom in the year ending March 31, 1944.

RATTLESNAKE PEN

Hitler's main hopes of forestalling an invasion of Europe have been staked upon his fleet of U-boats. He has always believed that if he could sufficiently hamper the movement of men and materials from the New World to the Old he might be able to sit behind his fortifications and hold out against the United Nations until they had bled themselves white in an effort to muster a great army transported across thousands of miles of ocean. Shown here is one of the few photographs made of the famous bomb-proof U-boat pens the Germans have built in an effort to escape the might of our air force. A sub-commander stands on his bridge as the craft noses into its berth. The roofs are constructed of steel and concrete many feet thick. The scene is from "Invasion of Europe," the latest National Film Board release in the World in Action Series. The new documentary film weighs the chances of invasion at various points along the continent's great coastline.

Amount of Sugar To Be Allotted Depends On The Shipping Situation

Pointing out that the amount of sugar that will be allotted those who have applied for it for home canning this year will depend altogether upon the supply that is available in the Dominion, the Wartime Prices and Trade Board draws attention to the fact that it is necessary for Canada to import almost 80 per cent. of the sugar that she consumes annually and that, in consequence, sugar supply is closely bound up with the amount of ocean shipping that may be utilized. The loss through enemy action of one or two cargoes of sugar bound for Canada, it says, may radically affect the entire situation. The remaining 20 per cent. of Canada's sugar consumption comes from our own sugar-beet crop.

In view of the necessity of such a large proportion of Canada's sugar supply being imported by the use of shipping that is none too plentiful and that must pass through waters where enemy submarines have frequently operated, the Prices Board urges that all consumers be as sparing as possible in the use of sugar as well as of other imported commodities, such as tea and coffee. It feels that they should conscientiously endeavor at all times to keep well within their ration allowances and not to make demands for additional uses of these commodities which will impose unnecessary strain upon scarce ocean-going shipping and possibly lead to loss of life on the part of merchant sailors.

Questions and Answers

This column is sponsored by the Regional Office Wartime Prices and Trade Board. Questions on price control, ration regulations and other Wartime Prices and Trade Board rulings should be mailed to the Information Branch, Wartime Prices and Trade Board, Victoria Building, Brockville, Ontario:—

Q.—In our household tea is largely consumed, while our next-door neighbors favor coffee. Can we legally exchange our supplies of these rationed goods?

A.—The rationing regulations specifically forbid any exchange of rationed commodities. Is it worth the risk of prosecution to do so?

Q.—Can you tell me, as a landlord, how much notice I am required to give a tenant who does not pay his rent?

A.—The rentals regulations do not protect any tenant in default of his rent. If the landlord wishes to do so, he may take steps under the law of the province to have the tenant evicted.

Q.—I have heard quite a lot about re-make demonstrations sponsored by your Board. What is their purpose and why are they considered necessary?

A.—These demonstrations are designed to familiarize housewives with methods under which used and perhaps discarded garments and other materials may be made over into useful and fashionable articles of clothing. This forms part of the Board's conservation program which has as its object the removal of strain upon wartime supply by making articles already in the possession of consumers do as far as possible for the duration of the war.

Q.—I have to enter hospital to undergo an operation. Must I take my ration book with me?

A.—Yes, the regulations require that patients in hospital for a week or longer must surrender their ration books to the management. At the end of a week one valid butter coupon will be detached and after 14 days, coupons for sugar and tea or coffee will also be detached.

Q.—My husband has just passed away. What will I do with his ration book?

A.—Please surrender it to your Local Ration Board without delay.

Q.—I have just rented an apartment and think that my landlord should have given me some form or other showing the rent. Is that not correct?

A.—Yes, your landlord must give you a completed form R.C.—40 within ten days of the lease (written or oral) being contracted. If he fails to do so, notify the nearest office of this Board immediately.

GOOD POULTRY DEMAND

oronto, April 30.— (CP) — The dressed poultry market shows very little change. Slight storage stocks consist of Grade B and C fowl, light weight birds. Quotations are at ceiling levels. A shipment of 1,200 broilers, live, arrived Thursday costing 30 cents lb. demand for poultry meat continued good.

Hitler's Fortress of Europe Cannot Prevent German Defeat

(A New York Times Editorial)

The Germans boast that their line of defence for the "impregnable" Fortress of Europe is now 125 miles longer than the Great Wall of China. If this propaganda could be accepted at its face value it would betray a curiously subdued mentality in the conquerors of the Maginot Line Perhaps it helps to lift the flagging spirit of the German people. More probably it is intended to produce the same effect as firecrackers set off by ancient Chinese armies to scare the enemy. Certainly the German General Staff can be counted upon to know that the only line of defence which can hope to halt an invasion is the line of German soldiers mustered to meet the shock.

No Chinese Wall illusion can save Germany. Too many nations in this war have succumbed to similar illusions. In large measure France fell because of her Maginot Line illusion. The Mannerheim Line illusion betrayed Finland. England realized the emptiness of her long-cherished Channel illusion when the Luftwaffe began dropping bombs on London. A fleet of German U-boats thoroughly smashed our own Atlantic Ocean illusion. The Germans themselves have lost some illusions since the Russians overran their invincible hedgehog positions and the British turned the Mareth Line in Tunisia. Any German general who still places his faith in fortifications is ripe for retirement.

In all history no fortress has ever been stronger than its defending army. No army was able to defend the length of the Chinese Wall, one of the most stupendously useless structures ever erected. No army would be able to man a wall 125 miles longer, provided it existed. It does not exist. The Germans have built a system of defences along their exposed coasts, ingeniously disposed and linked to interior strong points. But it not continuous except for the waters which the Allies control. It can be breached in many places and may be breached in many places at once.

Steel, concrete and fire are not pleasant to face and no doubt the loss of life among the invaders will be heavy. But they will have the initiative. They will decide where and under what conditions the Axis must fight. The only dependable defence the Axis will have is the German army.

Christening of Ships

(Stratford Beacon-Herald)

Ships are being launched every day for the Allies from Canadian United States and British yards, and on each occasion some favored person, usually a girl or woman, is given the privilege of dashing a bottle of water or wine against the prow of the vessel as it begins to move down the slip.

The custom is so old that it may be said to be lost in the mists of antiquity. The ancients consecrated their ships to the god whose image was borne on the prow. Hundreds of years back the monks of St. Denys, near Southampton, England, an Order founded eight centuries ago, made a special wine for christening ships; but the practice is much older than that. The ceremony is believed to have originated with human sacrifice, when the ancients filled a bottle with the blood of their enemies and broke it against their boats. Until the Nineteenth Century the christening ceremony was performed by men, usually priests, who gave the ship their blessing as she got under way. Up to about that time red wine was used; a survival of the blood ceremony. In later years when ladies took over the job champagne was substituted. Champagne is regarded as wasteful these days, and in many yards the bottle is filled with water.

Apropos the christening of ships, we like the story that is being told about Henry Kaiser, the American shipbuilding wizard. He invited a woman friend to christen a ship. She mounted the platform, and taking hold of the ribbons into which the bottle is threaded, she cried: "But there is no ship here yet." "Never mind," replied Henry. "Start swing and you will just be in time to hit it."

Progress

(A Christian Science Monitor Editorial)

One sure sign of progress in the democracies since the first world war is the absence of hysteria concerning literature and the fine arts. German music continues to hold its proper place on our concert programs. Japanese painting and sculpture retain their merited esteem in museum collections.

The British Royal Family's decision that Princess Elizabeth should continue studying "the language of Schiller and Goethe" is the only one to be expected during this period of development. That type of national hatred which from 1914 to 1918, deprived the Allied publics of much that was enriching and elevating, is as stupid as Nazi racial hallucinations.

The more languages our children learn the better for them. Translations of literature are never quite the same as the original. Poetry in particular undergoes a change. The metrical structures of one language can seldom be duplicated in another, even if a precise literal conversion is achieved.

Apart from the cultural advantage of tongues there is a practical side to the subject. If more English and American visitors to the Continent, in the years between wars, had been familiar with such languages as German, they might have become far better informed than they were of what was going on. The children of tomorrow will be making weekend Atlantic flights and linguistic knowledge will more and more serve as passport and protection.

Those Poor Dear Italians!

(Ottawa Journal)

Mr. Richard J. Needham, columnist for the Calgary Herald, in that newspaper scolds The Journal because in a headline we used the word "Wops," referring to our enemies the Italians. It was, says Needham, a "beer-parlor epithet," and he doubts that Ottawa can produce a culture to match an Italian culture which has given the world Da Vincy, Marconi, Dante, Verdi and Michelangelo. What that has to do with the argument is not clear, but Needham says he proposes to think of the Italians as Italians, not as Wops — and presumably it is his conviction that they are decent, kindly people misled by the wicked Mussolini.

There is, of course, the practical fact that "Wop," like "Hun" and "Jap," is perfect for newspaper headlines, but that in itself is not sufficient to justify its use. On the other hand, the fact that Italy in the distant past produced great poets and painters seems hardly enough to bar us from using for the Italians, now our mortal enemies, a name which undoubtedly does indicate a certain contempt.

We are not fighting Verdi and Michelangelo and Da Vincy. We are fighting the generation of Italians which permitted the gangster Mussolini to take over the country. These are the Italians who cheered Mussolini and urged him on when he was taunting the world with his seven million bayonets, when he was slaughtering helpless Ethiopians, making a deal with Hitler for the division of the world. These are the Italians who let Mussolini take them into war who helped him to stab France in the back, who made a treacherous attack on Greece in the best Axis manner, who sent their aircraft to bomb England, who have done their poor best to destroy Britain and the Empire.

Why we should be expected to be full of sympathy for the poor Italians we do not know — a jackal is not an admirable creature, even when backed into a corner and facing defeat, crying plaintively about his misfortunes and telling the world he never did want this fight! And if our telegraph editor wants to call the Italians Wops we shall not remind him that Da Vincy was an Italian. We are dealing with another day and quite another kind of bird.

Petain Ordered Surrender of French Fleet, But Orders Were Undelivered

The Nazis failed to get the 70 units of the French fleet in the Toulon Harbor, one of the richest prizes of the war, because they out-smarted themselves by cutting telephone wires and jamming radio transmission between German - dominated Vichy and French naval officers at Toulon.

J. C. Fernand-Laurent, former Paris editor and political leader who escaped from Nazi tyranny last December gives the first detailed story of the sinking of the fleet in a signed article in the current issue of Collier's Weekly.

Fernand-Laurent was near Toulon at the time the fleet was sunk. As a former member of the Chamber of Deputies and editor of La Jour of Paris, he got details of the sinking from a French naval captain, who took part in sabotaging the fleet, and political officials.

When the Nazis broke up the French-German armistice by undertaking the occupation of France last November 11, Hitler assured Marshal Petain that the Nazis would not occupy the port or fortified positions at Toulon, Fernand-Laurent reports.

This statement, designed to permit the Nazi forces to get to Toulon before the fleet escaped, was accepted by Petain. In the meantime, Fernand-Laurent declares, the Germans mined the Toulon Harbor entrance, sewing up the fleet, and placed great siege guns about the city.

On the night of November 26, just 15 days after they began marching into Unoccupied France the Nazis were ready to occupy Toulon and force the fleet to surrender. "This plan came within only a few minutes of succeeding," says the former French editor.

In the early morning of November 27, Petain was handed a message from General Field Marshal Karl von Rundstedt, the German commander, ordering the immediate surrender of the French fleet, Fernand-Laurent reports. At the same time, Admiral de Laborde, in charge of the Toulon fleet, was given a harsh message saying the fleet must be surrendered on "orders of the government of Vichy."

Admiral de Laborde only had one set of Vichy orders — those dating from the armistice and commanding him to "resist all aggression from whatever source and to sabotage the fleet rather than surrender it," Fernand-Laurent relates. To the German ultimatum, he replied that he would open fire on any armed force approaching his ships.

In the meantime, the aged Marshal Petain acceded to the German commander's demands and gave instructions to order Admiral de Laborde to surrender the fleet.

These orders were never given to Admiral de Laborde, Fernand-Laurent reports, because the German commanders at Toulon cut every telephone wire on the night of the 26th and jammed all radio transmission in order to isolate the naval base from the rest of France — including Vichy."

As a result, as the Germans filtered into sleeping Toulon, a gun on Admiral de Laborde's flagship boomed.

"It was the signal — the order to sabotage all ships, to destroy port installations, to spike the guns of the coastal batteries," Fernand-Laurent reports. "Soon the old dock, the water front, the harbor and the roadstead—the anchorage where our ships had lived, were no more than cemeteries."

He claims that according to competent authorities, the French did their job so well that not one of the units of the Toulon fleet, including all but four escaped submarines, can be floated and repaired by the Germans soon enough to see service in this war.

"CRASH ACTION"
FOR THE CANADIAN ARTILLERY
ONE OF A SERIES OF "ACTION PICTURES" WITH CANADA'S MECHANIZED ARMY

"ENEMY TANKS ON RIGHT FLANK!" It's Crash Action for a Canadian gun crew. That means they've got to "draw quick" and shoot fast.

As the Field Artillery Tractor grinds to a two-wheel stop, the crew scrambles out and goes into action like the crack of a six-tongued whip. Down goes the platform. Gun and trailer swing into firing position. One man races to remove breech and muzzle covers, as another sets the dial sight and depresses the gun. At the same instant, Number Four heaves the hand spike in place and swings the trail into position. While the auxiliary Tractor thunders up with reserve ammunition trailers, Gunners Five and Six prepare shells for the hungry breech of the big field piece. Smoothly the muzzle comes to bear on the target.

Less than 60 seconds after the Artillery Tractor's wheels skid to a stop, the gun is hurling 25-pound shells at enemy tanks. That's the kind of split-second timing and smooth teamwork which is winning world-wide respect for Canada's mechanized army.

Ford of Canada's 16,000 workers are proud to be represented on Canadian gun teams. The military vehicles which roll, by the thousand, from Final Testing Grounds at Windsor, Ontario, are the finest, sturdiest products which modern craftsmanship can provide. The Field Artillery Tractor is one of more than forty types of battle vehicles produced by Ford of Canada.

Rated by experts among the best-trained, best-equipped striking forces in all history —Canada can well be proud of the army representing her in the world-wide fight for freedom. Proud indeed is Ford of Canada that sturdy, Canadian-made vehicles carry these modern warriors into battle.

ROOKIE HURLER MAKING GOOD WITH THE ORIOLES

Appears in Half the Games Played by Baltimore This Season

HAS TWO WINS

(By The Associated Press)

Not too highly regarded when Baltimore Orioles opened their Spring training grind, rookie pitcher Roland Van Slate now is almost in a position to demand overtime pay from Manager Tommy Thomas.

The right hander, who side-armed his way to a 17-8 record at Charleston, S.C., last year, has appeared in exactly half of the eight games the Orioles have been able to play this season.

Neither the Orioles nor any other club in the International League was able to play yesterday, all games being postponed.

Although the Baltimore mound staff lists two members of the 1942 squad and numerous rookies who came to the club with fancier records, the 27-year-old twirler was Manager Thomas' choice for the opening-day assignment against Toronto but needed help from Burton Swift in the ninth frame for a 4-3 victory.

Three days later he was in action again in the record breaking 2-2 21-inning deadlock with the Leafs, hurling three frames; and after a two day rest he hurled the Orioles to a 3-1 triumph over Montreal. He made another appearance in a relief role Thursday.

He thus has participated in half the Orioles' games and been involved in their only two triumphs.

Today Van Slate will warm up his good right arm in case he is needed for action against the Buffalo Bisons, leaders of the second division.

New York, May 1. (AP)— All three players who won the most valuable player awards in the "AA" minor leagues last year are playing for National League clubs this season and their contest for big league laurels ought to provide one of the more interesting sidelights of the pennant race.

Right now you can have your choice between the American Association—Eddie Stanky is hitting .323 for the Cubs—or the International League—Red Barrett won his first start for the Braves with a six hitter . . . .The Reds' Ray Mueller, who won the Pacific Coast League award, has made a start toward last year's iron man catching stunt by working every game so far but is hitting only .100.

Sportpourri

Manager Eddie Walker promises to put up a genuine non-elastic $1,000 cheque to get his fighter, Chalky Wright, a chance to regain the New York model featherweight championship from Willie Pep. Eddie says he neglected to get a return-bout clause in the contract for their first fight because he was so sure The Chalk would win.

Last Word.

In case you're still doubtful about the deadness of the balata-baloney baseball, observations in an experiment conducted in the materials testing laboratory at Cooper Union showed that the 1943 model bounced an average of 25.9 per cent lower than the 1942 ball. . . . The scientists didn't get a basehit with either kind.

Toronto, May 1—(CP)—It's all for the war effort so none will complain but it will be a blow to Hamilton, Ont., sport if the proposal to cut the cricket grounds there into victory gardens is carried out. None would suspect it from the name, but the cricket grounds' claim to fame was chiefly as the home of Hamilton's great football teams There the mighty Tigers ranted and roared to rugby glory. There, too, the Tiger stripes were trampled on that memorable December Day in 1935 when Fritz Hanson won the west's first Grey Cup for Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

Possibility this storied playing field may become a potato patch has started Claude Kewley of the Sarnia observer into sympathy for the Hamilton Spectator sport scribes, Walter McMullen and Tommy Moore. "If the present trend continues in Hamilton," writes Kewley, "McMullen may well be forced to change the name of his daily column, the sports trail. Almost any day, it may appear under the heading of "the man with the hoe." Right now it is more than likely, are thumbing through the seed catalogues and pricing the more potent brands of fertilizer."

Hockey Clean-up:

Now that Winnipeg Rangers have proved Oshawa Generals actually can be beaten, Ontario Junior Hockey clubs are showing more enthusiasm in their organization for next winter. Galt has broken out with announcement it will have a team, husbanded by Detroit Red Wings and coached by Al Murray, former New York Americans defenceman who coached Brantford Lions the past season. There are even rumors that St. Catharines and Niagara Falls might enter the Junior "A" series. . .Rivals in the Allan Cup final, Neil Colville of Ottawa Commandos and Bill Carse of Victoria Army are reported due to train together at Gordon Head, B. C., for their army commissions. . . The least known member of Chicago Black Hawks famous brother line, Reg Bentley didn't return to his Delisle, Sask., home after touring the Pacific Coast with Montreal Canadiens. Reg may spend the summer in Vancouver and play ball with St. Regis team there.

Round and About:

Sgt. Gerard Cote, French-Canadian winner of the Boston marathon, started running because he wanted to be a boxer. He used to do about five to 10 miles of roadwork a day and finally got to like running better than boxing. . . W. D. (Sojer) Nichol, 56 star of New Westminster Royals soccer teams 15 years ago, died suddenly last week at the coast. He played with Glasgow Celtics in Scotland before the first great war.

Whenever he wants a rest, a businessman of Houston, Texas, goes to the headwaters of the Nueces River, where lives an isolated rancher friend. "I always make it a point to bring along a little snakebite medicine," he says. "My friend doesn't drink often, and he only takes one. He pours a tumbler full. And as he raises it to his lips, he shuts his eyes and holds his nose because, he explains, 'If I either see it or smell it, my mouth will water and dilute it.'"

This and That

Congratulations to Art Duncan, editor if the recently published "Bata Bugle," a monthly periodical containing newsy items from in and around Batawa. . . The conventional blue of the baseball umpire has been ruled non-essential for the duration" by the WPB in the United States. . . 'Umpires can wear their street clothes on the ball field," ruled the WPB.

Here We Go Again

Hockey is all over for another year insofar as the playing of the game is concerned. However, the junior hockey pot is boiling hotter than ever in centre executive rooms and the conventional spring hi-jacking has started already.

Take for instance the management of the Hamilton Majors. It's no secret the ambitious city junior puck moguls are out to build a strong junior "A" squad for the 1943-'44 season and as a matter of fact so is Galt. One report has already been heard to the effect that no less than three of the champion Winnipeg Rangers have accepted invitations to move to Hamilton, while earlier this week the Majors' management was inquiring as to the status of two Kingston juniors. However, we doubt if any of the Ranger players will be seen in a Hamilton livery next season, at least not the top-ranking stars. The reason being is that the Winnipeg champions have a tie-up with Lester Patrick and the New York Rangers.

Dice Tricks Exposed

"The war may be going along all right on the battlefields, but a lot of our boys are taking a terrific trimming right here in Army barracks from Maine to California at the hands of crooked crap shooters," writes Buster Miller in his "Time Out" column in the New York Age, Negro paper. "Rookies are being rolled, corporals are clipped and even sergeants sustain a hefty slug in their bankrolls come payday. It's getting so bad the chicks are squawking that their soldiers are clipped before they can get to them.

"The full story is disclosed in the current issue of Yank, the Army weekly, which narrates the findings of John Scarne, a dice detective who made a tour of army camps recently. Scarne was looking for crooked craps and he found as many of them as there are Japs.

"That old relic of World War I, the blanket roll, is still being played on unsuspecting soldiers, with fat dividends being reaped by expert pad rollers. Another group practices the newspaper slide in which the dice don't even turn over. This works equally well on oilcloth. So if you must risk all or any part of $50 a month, don't shoot craps with anybody on a blanket, newspaper or oilcloth covered surfaces.

"But even without phony dice, the average soldier faces a trimming by not knowing the correct odds. In a game with everything on the level, the odds against passing on six and eight should be 6-5; 3-2 against passing on five or nine; 2-1 against passing on four or ten; and 8-1 against throwing a double two, three, four, five or six.

Each Muscle Bender Secures One Fall Within the Time Limit

GOOD PRELIMS

The "whip" won two falls last night in the season's opening wrestling bouts at the Hume Arena. First and foremost Danno O'Mahoney, former world's champion "whipped" Billie Watson into submission and later Watson reversed matters to "whip" the Irishman into the "uncle" business. From then on the two "whip" exponents delighted a crowd of less than 800 with their ring antics until the final toll called the bout "all even and quits".

Originally the printed programs stated that the main bout was a battle between the originator and the modern exponent of the "whip" hold would attempt to prove their prowess, but little came from their ultimate efforts. Actually the busiest man in the ring was Referee Phil Lawson who was kept busy prying the gladiators apart in their respective efforts to gain positions for their attempts of the odd "whip" hold.

Two or three times during the rough house Mister O'Mahoney appeared to be in agony, but "Whipper" Watson wasn't to be deprived and went on to squirm and kicked out of trouble.

Frankly, the most fun of the night was seen in the preliminaries when caution was tossed to the wild winds and hilariousness enjoyed by the side-benchers.

In the preliminary go "Irish Pat" Flannagan and Al (Rubber Belly) Dunlop hauled and pulled for a full 30 minutes without a decision as Referee Cliff Fox was the most attacked person in the ring.

Then came the semi-final go that saw the former hooded horror, Jerry Monnahan, triumph over Jan Gotch, an un-too-willing victim. Much to the satisfaction of the patrons both applied unorthodox methods of attack, but Monnahan finally triumphed with a series of torrid body slams after about 20 minutes of hauling and pulling on both sides of the fence. The strangest part of this bout came before the scrap when the patrons lauded Monnahan upon his entrance which left the former masked gent rather laissez-faire.

Wrestling will continue at the Hume Arena next Wednesday.

WASHINGTON IS MUCH IMPROVED BASEBALL CLUB

Senators Now Third Due to Fine Pitching of Dutch Leonard

BEAT YANKEES

By ORLO ROBERTSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

The 1943 baseball season still is in the toddling stage but there's a sneaking suspicion that Ossie Bluege has a team in Washington that is better than the one that ended last season buried in seventh place in the American League.

Today's standings show the Senators nursing the pace setting New York Yankees and Cleveland Indians as the result of their 2-1 10-inning victory over the Yanks yesterday. It's probably too much to expect the Senators to be in third place come world series time. But if Emil (Dutch) Leonard maintains his early season form, Bluege's first year as a manager is likely to be a happy one.

The veteran knuckle ball hurler failed to go the route against the Athletics in the season's inaugural but came back last Sunday to throttle the same team and yesterday hurled four-hit ball as his mates bunched two of their seven hits off Hank Borowy to score one run in the second and then, after the Yanks had squared accounts in the fourth, put together two more blows for the deciding tally in the first extra frame.

Ellis Clary, third baseman, and Bob Johnson, hard-hitting outfielder, combined to produce the winning tally. Clary led off the 10th with a double, his second hit of the game. A fly ball and an international pass got him no closer to home but Johnson crashed through with a single and that was the ball game.

The defeat dropped the Yankees into a tie for first place with the Indians who, like all the other teams in the American League, were kept idle by the weather. Each has won five and lost two as compared to the Senators' six and three.

The only two National League games scheduled also were postponed and New York Giants and Brooklyn Dodgers turned their contest into a doubleheader today at the Polo Grounds. They also will play a twin bill tomorrow along with all the major league outfits.

50,000 EXPECTED AT LOUISVILLE TO WATCH DERBY

Count Fleet Pronounced Favorite to Take All the Marbles in Classic

ELEVEN TO START

By SID FEDER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Louisville, Ky., May 1 (AP). — Minus much of its face paint and its fireworks the Kentucky Derby will be unfolded for the 69th time today, and derbytown is convinced it's a cake-walk for Count Fleet.

In fact, the expected 50,000 fans who are riding the street cars, the "A" cards and "Shank's Mare" to picturesque Churchill Downs, because of war-time travel restrictions, are so sure "the Fleet's in" that many are wondering why the eleven other three-year-olds who entered will even bother to show up.

Only one of these 11—Ocean Wave, stablemate of Whirlaway in Warren Wright's barn—is being given even the faintest chance of sinking the Fleet and thereby spoiling the rosy hopes of Mrs. John D. Hertz of Chicago for her second Derby triumph.

But the Wave walked home with a cracked left fore-heel last Tuesday, and it wasn't until this morning that his trainer, Plain Ben Jones could even decide about sending the husky son of Blenheim to the post.

The rest of the field, in which there is a total of 11 colts and one gelding—the high-speed Gold Shower, owned by Mrs. Vera S. Bragg of Greenwich, Conn.—appears to be able only to give it the good old college try for second or third place.

Allen Simmons' Blue Swords, who gets the Akron (Ohio) vote, and W. E. Boeing's Slide Rule, are given some slight consideration by the long-shot plungers.

There is a derby in which war has been an added starter from the word go, and which threatened, for a time to end the continuous run for Col. Matt Winn's colorful May-day merry-go-round.

You notice immediately that while Louisville is loaded for its annual rip-snorting party, it's not the usual derby mob. The streets late at night aren't jammed as in past years with celebrants. The decorations around town, the "Welcome Derby Visitors" banners—the icing on the cake—just isn't here.

But the race itself is. And while the Count is definitely the Mr. Big, stranger derby things have happened in this 1¼-miles than for him to chase some oat-burner home.

He's learning about women from me

The boss knows a lot about women. He ought to . . . he's been serving them here in his store for years. But since the war made him put women like me to work behind his counters, I've been helping him learn a lot more.

1. Take, for instance, the sort of questions women are asking about products . . . and about things like point rationing. "How can I stretch it farther?" "Will it save me money . . . and ration points?" Being new on the job, I find 'em pretty hard to answer.

2. But what a big help it is when the manufacturer tells our customers all about it . . . explains complicated things like rationing . . . in our newspaper. That way our customers . . . and my boss and I, too . . . all find out. It makes our jobs a lot easier.

3. One thing I learned right away. Nearly always, the brands women ask for first . . . especially among things that are rationed . . . are the ones they've read about in the local newspaper. War keeps women busier . . . but they read the papers more than ever.

4. "You know," I tell the boss, "we ought to be mighty glad so many manufacturers keep behind us with ads right here in our own newspapers." "I'm realizing that, more and more," he comes back. "That's the kind of advertising that really helps these days."

Thousands of other women who've gone to work as "men behind the counter" are finding out what a help it is when manufacturers support their retailers with advertising in newspapers . . . the place where women look first these days for the answers to their wartime shopping problems.

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 42

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

After all is said and done, bridge is just a lot of fun. Some enjoy it nowing naught. Some, by learning hat they ought. Let your conscience be your guide. Choose the ind that fits your pride.

This column is about to enter he second phase of Horse Sense bidding. That is, we are going to discuss fuller needs for certain bids. Meantime, take this hand for a little practice:

♥K J 8 4
♠A K 10 9
♣Q 9 5

If you are the first to say, you start with an opening bid of one spade. Your opening bid of one says you have at least five tricks. Your bid in spades says you have a biddable spade suit.

How did you decide your number of tricks? By counting one for each ace, each king, each queen, each short card. You have a short card in diamonds. With your four big cards, you have five tricks.

How did you decide your spade suit was biddable? Because it is at least as good as Q J 3 2. So you knew you also had a biddable suit in hearts. Which you have not had a chance to show.

How did you decide to bid spades before hearts? Because with two equal length suits, you first bid the higher rank. A lower ranking suit is bid first only when it is longer than the other.

But suppose your partner was the first to say and he started with an opening bid of one spade. With the above hand, what would be your first response Two hearts. Why?

With more than two tricks, you respond with a bid. Follow the order of preference of bids in T-A-N; takeout, assist, no-trump. A takeout shows a biddable suit. An assist shows adequate support.

Adequate support for partner's biddable suit is not less than Q 3 2. You have adequate support. But you also have a biddable suit of your own. And a takeout comes before an assist in T-A-N.

Take that as a foundation. Build your house of cards on it. Let Horse Sense help you construct a sound system you will enjoy.

MEMBERS

The three leading candidates for the leadership, in their nomination speeches, promised, directly or by implication, no more of the clashes between the Ontario and Federal Liberal regimes that marked Mr. Hepburn's premiership.

The choice of the convention went to the man who took immediate issue with Mr. Hepburn's designation of Mr. Conant as premier by resigning from the cabinet. Mr. Nixon also was on record as having taken issue with Premier Conant and the majority of Liberal members who voted at the recently-ended session to extend the life of the legislature another year.

Mr. Nixon told the convention, however, that after becoming premier he would seek the advice of those best qualified to give it before dissolving the legislature.

Happy in Victory

"I had expected a first ballot victory", Mr. Nixon said in a post-victory interview as he shook hands with happy supporters.

"I had had continuous reports during the last week from various parts of the province which indicated a sweep", he said.

Asked if he thought his support came mainly from rural areas, the new leader said his votes had come from all over the province and his support had been general.

In answer to another question he said he had no specific policy or program to announce at present.

In thanking the delegates at the convention following his victory, Mr. Nixon said.

"I accept humbly the honor of leadership bestowed upon me and appreciate the responsibilities that go with it. I pledge now that if the time comes if some one better can carry on I will return it to you, unsullied I trust".

King Send Message

Prime Minister Mackenzie King sent a telegram to Mr. Nixon saying the election showed Ontario Liberals appreciated Mr. Nixon's "steadfast advocacy of the principles of responsible government" and the new leader's "desire to effect the closest possible co-operation on the part of the government of Ontario with the government at Ottawa in its administration of the country's affairs at this time of war".

Mr. King said: "A new charter in the history of Liberalism in Ontario has begun today".

Split is Closed

The Nixon victory, achieved by a man who entered politics as a United Farmer candidate and not as a Liberal, was regarded as bringing to a close the split in the party in Ontario which resulted from former Premier Mitchell Hepburn's opposition to the Federal Liberal Government in Ottawa.

When Mr. Hepburn attacked the federal administration and Prime Minister Mackenzie King on the eve of the 1940 federal election Mr. Nixon resigned from the cabinet.

His resignation was not accepted but Mr. Hepburn did not follow up his attacks on the federal government by taking an active stand against it in the election. Two years later when the King government's position was challenged in several by-elections Mr. Nixon stood with it while his leader, Mr. Hepburn, actively supported opposition candidates.

Mr. Nixon's resignation from the Ontario cabinet, however, came only after Mr. Hepburn resigned as premier and recommended the appointment of Gordon Conant of Oshawa as his successor.

Five Nominated

Five candidates were nominated, but one, Charles Cox, member of the legislature for Port Arthur, promptly withdrew. They were allotted 20 minutes each to speak to the convention. Mr. Nixon, from the start, drew most of the cheers. The counting of the ballots took an hour and a half during which time close to 600 delegates and about half as many spectators waited impatiently and milled about the convention hall.

Mr. Thomson's was the first name drawn from the hat by Chairman Hamilton. He described himself as "an outsider" who had been looking in and who proposed to speak for himself after many years of speaking on behalf of Liberal candidates. He said the farmers of Ontario should be enabled to emerge from the war in an affluent condition so that they could furnish food and stock for the stricken countries.

Adopted New Constitution

Mr. Roebuck, the second candidate to speak, said "bad manners and bad tempers in inter-government relations" would come to an end if he became leader.

Mr. McQuesten urged the delegates to consider which man would have the widest appeal to the people at the next election. He said he had twice voted to extend the life of the legislature.

"You say that is not democratic", he said. "My reply is that we are not living under democratic conditions".

He said the thousands of soldiers, sailors and airmen serving abroad would be disfranchised and have no say in an election now.

Apart from the selection of a leader the convention adopted a new constitution for an Ontario Liberal Association, designed, its sponsors said, to make sure that annual meetings will be held and that there will not be a repetition of the ten years just past without a meeting of the association.

Col. Hamilton was elected president, suceeding Mr McQuesten, and Daniel Lang of Toronto, was elected treasurer. Selection of a secretary is left to the executive and it is expected Harry Johnson will continue in that office.

Expect Showdown On Martinque In Near Future

Washington, May 1—(AP)—The long-awaited showdown on Martinique—problem child of the Caribbean since the fall of France in 1940—appeared at hand today.

Only segment of the French colonial empire neither occupied by the Axis nor at war with it, the island territory administered by Admiral Georges Robert was cut off from informal relations with Secretary Cordell Hull but kept under closest surveillance by the U.S. Navy.

Both navy and state departments awaited "further developments," without indicating what they might be. But Fighting French Headquarters here regarded Robert as caught between Washington's official disavowal and the rebellious discontent of hungry islanders, and predicted this discontent would soon fix expression in action.

A headquarters spokesman said the number of Frenchmen leaving Robert's domain to join the Fighting French here had been increasing in recent weeks. Previous recruits from Martinique included more than 1,000 soldiers, among them Maj. Jean Sarrat, who was Robert's island commander of ground forces.

Navy Secretary Frank Knox yesterday said no reply had yet been received to the note in which Hull informed Robert the United States could no longer "recognize or negotiate with any French representative in the Antilles who remains subservient or maintains contact with the Vichy regime," which he denounced as "not an integral part of the Nazi system."

AT THE CAPITOL

"I'll Wait For You"
(First Belleville Showing)

Night clubs and chicken houses, thrills of a big city's underworld and pastoral comedy among the people of a simple farm district blend in a dramatic story in "I'll Wait For You," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's story of loyalty and regeneration which comes Sunday midnight to the Capitol Theatre. Romantically teaming Robert Sterling and beautiful Marsha Hunt, who recently scored in "The Penalty," the new picture also provides one of the best roles in her career for Virginia Weidler, famed as Hollywood's youngest character actress.

"I'll Wait For You" tells a dramatic tale of a racketeer who, cornered by the police, stages a sensational escape, and through an accident finds himself on a down-East farm which he discovers to be an ideal hiding place. Among the simple folk of the country he finds a new viewpoint on life, and through love of a farm girl, the path to a new life: . . .

The supporting cast includes Paul Kelly, Fay Holden, Mickey Rooney's mother in Judge Hardy Family pictures, Henry Travers, Don Costello, Reed Hadley, Theodor von Eltz, Veda Ann Borg, Carol Hughes and others. Locales range from swank night clubs and underworld "hangouts" to picturesque spots in the countryside and an old-fashioned farmhouse.

"Lady of the Tropics"

Taylor appears in the new picture after co-starring roles with several of the screen's most glamorous women and Miss Lamarr makes her long-awaited debut for M-G-M following her sensational triumph in "Algiers."

Against the Oriental setting, Taylor plays the role of a young, penniless American who, arriving in Saigon, meets and falls in love with Manon, the beautiful Eurasian played by Miss Lamarr.

AT THE BELLE

"Ramdom Harvest"

A lost memory and a woman's devotion form the basis for haunting romance, deep human interest and thrilling drama in "Random Harvest", dramatic story of the love of an amnesia victim, starring Ronald Colman and Greer Garson, and coming today to the Belle Theatre.

Adapted from the best selling novel by James Hilton, "Random Harvest" was directed by Mervyn LeRoy, who directed "Blossoms in The Dust", and produced by Sidney Franklin who gave the screen "Mrs. Miniver". Among the players are Susan Peters, Edmund Gwenn, Philip Doran, Una O'Connor and others.

Continuous shows will be presented to-day.

British Destroyer Beverley Is Lost

London, May 1. (CP)—The Admiralty announced that the British destroyer Beverley has been lost. No details were given.

The Beverley, a 24-year-old veteran of long, tough assignments in the North Atlantic and on the Russian convoy route to Murmansk was one of the 50 destroyers traded to Britain by the United States in 1940. She was built in 1919 and displaced 1,190 tons. As a unit of the American fleet she was known as the branch.

Last year on the Murmansk run the Beverley fought through an engagement with two newer German destroyers and crippled one of them.

PASSING DREAM

by MARGARET GORMAN NICHOLS

CHAPTER 4

"Why, that's lovely! Yes, that is lovely. Every child is a temple of pride—to his or her mother of course. I like to think about that, a child as a temple. Yes, I like that very much. Well, Temple, if some night you are lonely and there's nothing to do and if everything goes wrong and you want someone to talk to, call me. I'll try to make you glad that you sat next to me rather than next to some man who snored or 'looked' improper advances. We're coming into Baltimore. You must visit here too. The countryside is particularly lovely, but it isn't to me as lovely as the Virginia country. I have a little farm in a most unfashionable section of Virginia."

In the confusion of some passengers getting off and others coming on she did not look at Paula Wayne until the train started again. Then she saw that her eyes were closed, her face like a mask, the skin tightly drawn, the mouth grim. She made Temple feel young and gauche and unfinished, a mere fledgling. Her mother would probably not approve of Mrs. Wayne. But must she, Temple, judge the people she met by her mother's standards and the standards of their conventional little town?

Harry sprang to her mind and she saw him as liking Paula Wayne and being amused by her and talking her urbane language. Why had he said he feared her more than any girl he had ever known?

When Temple reached for her coat, Paula opened her eyes. A few minutes later they were standing in the aisle and Paula was saying over her shoulder, "Good-bye, dear." Then the train jerked to a stop and they were stepping off. Temple saw Paula Wayne walking beside her chauffeur.

"Are you Temple?" someone asked.

She turned quickly. In the strange cold station where other people seemed to know where they were going it was wonderful to hear her name spoken.

"Why, yes."

"Hello, I'm Abby Booth," a girl in black said. "You said you'd be wearing a beaver jacket." She held out her hand and Temple felt her firm handclasp. "I'm very glad to know you, Temple, and I hope you will like it."

In her mind she had seen Abby Booth as a tall efficient-looking person who would welcome her formally, talk about the weather and the Senator as they rode to the boarding house where she, Abby, would disappear from Temple's life forever. Instead Abby was a small girl with dark eyes and dark hair and a gracious even docile manner. Her black coat was too large for her and her black oxfords and black hat had been bought for comfort rather than style. Yet there was dignity about her and a kindness and gentleness not to be disputed even on such short acquaintance.

In the taxi Abby said, "I know you are anxious to see the city and I'll borrow a car this weekend and take you around. It's too bad you had to leave the day after Christmas, but it's wiser to get settled and know your way around a little before starting a job. I thought I'd never adjust myself. I was terribly homesick. I'll have to leave you at the house and get back to the office. But I'll see you tonight at dinner and introduce you to the other people." She smiled. "I have most of my evenings free now. You see, the boy I'm engaged to is in the service. Luckily, he stationed rather close by and can get leave most weekends."

Temple said, "A good many engaged couples are getting married now." She wondered whether the boy had told Abby that she had beautiful teeth and eyes.

Abby nodded gravely. "Yes, I know. But I think it is harder to give up a husband than a sweetheart. That's why Miles and I are waiting."

The boarding house was like no other Temple had ever seen or imagined. It was a fine old town house with a broad staircase and crystal chandeliers and richly carpeted floors. The sitting-room, which she passed on the second floor as she followed Mrs. Benson, the "hostess" to the third floor, was huge and handsomely furnished, with deep divans, a piano, several tables and lamps and heavy silk draperies at the broad windows.

"Your room," Mrs. Benson said in a brisk, professional manner and opened a door.

Temple entered, feeling instantly the warmth and light and cheerfulness of the room. Bright chintz covered the daybed and draped the one long window. An old dresser had been painted white, and a clear round mirror had been placed above it. There was also a reading lamp over a deep comfortable-looking chair. White bookcases had been built along one side of the wall. On closer inspection she would know that the room held only a collection of old odd pieces made cheerful with paint and chintz; but in this moment of feeling cold and strange nothing was better than a room she could call her own again.

Mrs. Benson smiled her professional smile which did not linger a moment longer than was necessary. "Your breakfast and dinner are included in the fee. You understand that. And now I believe that's all."

Temple looked at the closed door. "No, that's not all," she thought as she pulled off her brown hat slowly, her thick dark hair falling into its accustomed wave. "It hasn't even begun." All at once she was afraid that she was going to cry, not from fear or loneliness, but from sheer anger at circumstances that had thrust her hundreds of miles from faces and things familiar and dear. She thought, "I'm glad I didn't leave a boy I was in love with. I wouldn't be like Abby Booth. I'd have married him."

For the next three days she met the people in the house and saw Washington. On the first evening when she had gone down to dinner with Abby, she had met Marjorie Keefer and Merritt Brown who sat at the table where, from that night on, Temple would have a place. They were both government employes and their cordiality was only slightly less than Abby's.

She began to learn the tempo of the house, the rise and ebb of voices as the people went down to breakfast and left for the day and their return in the evening and the quiet after they left for the evening's relaxation. After two days of idleness except for sightseeing she felt herself growing anxious to be among those going out in the morning and returning in the evening.

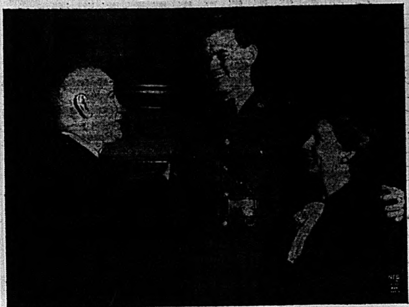
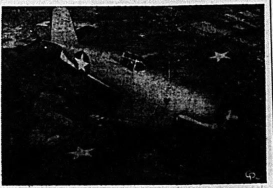
LIKE FATHER LIKE SON



Fully aware that he has a difficult path marked out for him, twenty-year-old Lt. Francois Richer LaFleche is off to the wars to follow in the footsteps of his soldier father, Major General the Hon. L. R. LaFleche, D.S.O., Minister of National War Services. Word of his safe arrival in England has just been received by General LaFleche who is himself one of Canada's outstanding soldiers of the last war. The young officer will serve in his father's old regiment, the famed "Van-Doos," officially known as the Royal 22nd Regiment. Lt. LaFleche is shown here with his proud parents shortly before he sailed from Canada. Starting his military training at the age of sixteen with the University of Ottawa C.O.T.C., he enlisted a year ago and was top man in his class when he graduated from the Brockville Officers' Training School.

NEW CARRIER FIGHTER



The U. S. Navy's newest fighter, the Brewster F3A, is pictured on its first test flight at Brewster airport, Johnsville, Pa., where it completed the rigid test with flying colors. It is designed for carrier operation with the fleet. It is a gull-winged single seat monoplane with a rated speed of 400 miles per hour and is powered by a 2,000 h.p. Pratt and Whitney air cooled engine.

Renewed Rejection Of Polish Gov't In London Sounded

Washington, May 1—(AP)—Renewed Russian rejection of the Polish Government in London headed by Gen. Wladislaw Sikorski was sounded here today—but the door was left wide open for the Poles to form a new, Soviet-supported regime which need not be in Moscow.

The Soviet embassy's information bulletin published full texts of recent Moscow assertions that the Sikorski group in London is unauthorized to speak for the Polish people. But an embassy spokesman simultaneously warned against speculation that a substitute Russian-recognized regime would soon be set up in the shadow of the Kremlin.

The texts, however, left no doubt that Moscow would not recognize any regime it regarded as "reactionary" and representing the interests of "magnates and landowners."

NEW CARRIER LAUNCHED

Something unusual in the manner of launching is pictured here as the Intrepid third giant U. S. aircraft carrier built at Newport News, Va., since Pearl Harbor, is "floated off" her drydock building ways. The sponsor, Mrs. John Howard Hoover, wife of Vice Admiral Hoover, smashed a bottle of champagne against the carrier's hull from a floating platform mounted on a small barge.

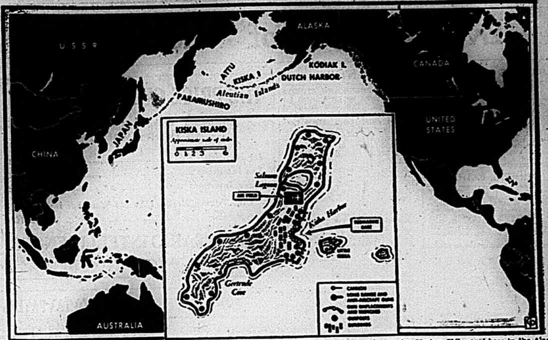
SHOWING KISKA, JAP THREAT TO ALASKA AND CANADA



This map, INSET, shows you what the Japs have accomplished on the Aleutian Island of Kiska since they occupied it last June. Despite repeated bombings by Allied air forces the Nips have succeeded in installing formidable military establishments on the island with a view to future operations against Dutch Harbor, U.S. naval base in the Alaska area, and against Alaska itself. Proximity of the major enemy base at Paramushiro makes it possible for Kiska to be reinforced with comparative ease. A threat to Canada as well as Alaska.

Washington Spotlight

By J. F. SANDERSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Washington, April 30—(CP)—The belief is held in many quarters here that the United Nations will adopt the principle of mass migrations as one means of settling boundary questions after the war, particularly in Europe. Hitler has ruthlessly shifted populations many times in the war, but it is held that the process can be humane and constructive just as easily is inhuman and barbaric, depending on who operates it.

Exit the tank: The decline of the tank as an irresistible offensive weapon, demonstrated in Russia and North Africa, has started to be reflected in United States ordnance factories. One tank plant recently laid off 9,000 workers. The army has ordered production of light tanks to taper off, perhaps eventually to stop. Medium tank production is being slowed down.

The reasons for this are not all clear but one factor is that tank-destroying artillery has outstripped the tank in the ever-changing flow of tactical advantage in war. The Russians first demonstrated it when they used massed artillery to destroy Hitler's tanks before Moscow and the African campaign has given it emphasis.

Accuracy Made Easy

The six-pounder and the American 75 MM. tank guns are so simple to aim that a novice, after 15 minutes instruction, can score direct hits at 1,000 yards. They are the guns that blasted Rommel's defences at El Alamein and at the Mareth Line.

As an experiment, two British officers who had never been in a tank, fired artillery before were given 15 mins'. instruction recently. in Africa. Then they fired at a six-foot target 1,000 yards away.

Of the four shells from the six-pounder, mounted in a crusader tank, one missed, one hit high on the target and the other two pierced the two-foot bullseye. The other officer, firing the 75 MM. from a Sherman tank, made exactly the same score.

Unimpressed, two instructors showed them how it should be done. Taking a new position, they fired 24 shots of which 22 hit the target.

A Chinese Problem

A House of representatives committee will start hearings May 5 on proposed modifications of the Chinese exclusion act, passed in 1924, which closed the United States to Chinese immigrants.

Several church organizations, including the National Catholic Welfare Council, have come out in favor of repeal of the exclusion law. Labor spokesmen, traditionally in favor of the barrier, have indicated they favor placing the Chinese on same quota basis as other immigrants.

What happens will be of interest to Canada because semi-official requests from Chungking have been made that the Dominion also lower immigration barriers.

Japan Vs. Russia: The suggestion has been made here that one of the reasons for the appointment of Mamuro Shigemitsu as Foreign Minister in the reshuffled Japanese cabinet of Premier Tojo may be that Japan is anxious to appease Russia. Shigemitsu is a former Japanese Ambassador to Moscow and made the famous truce of 1938 over border clashes in Siberia.

Serious Quinine Shortage

Malaria takes a bigger toll of Allied troops in the southwest Pacific than Japanese bullets—five times bigger, in fact. The reason is a lack of quinine.

When the Japanese conquered Java they gained practically a monopoly of the world's supply of quinine although it originated in South America.

The United States government now has signed agreements with Latin American Nations, chiefly Peru and Bolivia, to buy their entire crops of cinchona bark, from which quinine is made. In addition, synthetic production is being increased rapidly, largely through German patents made available by court actions against international cartels.

Argentina, the only Nation in the Western Hemisphere that has not broken relations with the Axis partners or declared war against them, is getting the silent treatment these days. Vice President Henry A. Wallace, on his recent trip to Latin America, pointedly passed up Argentina.

But more significant than that, Argentina has not been invited to the Food Production Conference scheduled for mid-May when the United Nations and many associated powers will draw up plans for production and distribution of food after the war. Argentina is the only major food-producting Nation—outside of the Axis Nations—not invited and what she will do with her large surpluses of wheat, meat and other commodities is something that no one seems to care about.

Ottawa, May 1—(CP)—The appearance of the court may change but the tradition of the law goes on.

The National Labor Board is, in the words of Mr. Justice C. P. McTague, its chairman, a "labor court." It hears evidence from employers and employees in cases of dispute and gives decisions. The three board members examine the evidence with judicial care and bring to bear on the question brought before them their wide knowledge of labor affairs.

But, while it is a court, it does not look like one. No one wears a lawyer's gown. Seldom does the chairman receive the greeting "my Lord," or "your honor." If someone wants to smoke, he smokes, and the Board members look well-pleased.

Nevertheless, the law is unchanging.

At a recent hearing, an employer's representative heard his opponent's rebuttal to his argument. He wished to rebutt the rebuttal.

"But, no," said Justice McTague.

"This surely is something new," said the representative.

"No," said Justice McTague. "I believe this court procedure goes back to the 12th century."

Anglo-celt is being suggested as a substitute for Anglo-Saxon. The "Saxon" part has fallen into disrupte because of the German war cruelties, and the addition of "celt" to "Anglo" is advocated as giving a better description of the ancestry of those coming from the United Kingdom.

House of Commons, who write their ancestral stories for the parliamentary guide, should be interested. What trace of Saxon is there, for instance, in resources Minister Crerar? He was the son of a Scotch-Canadian father and a Scotch-Irish-Canadian mother. And yet, by the broad interpretation of races, Mr. Crerar might be considered a senior Anglo-Saxon member of the Canadian cabinet.

In the way of politics, Sir John A. MacDonald, the famous conservative Prime Minister, still is looked on by many as the daddy of them all.

Down in the archives building is a letter from him to a friend, showing he was a politican to the last. Written in the year of his death, it says:-

"I am seriously unwell but I don't want the grits to know it as it would raise the value of their stock."

The archives are a storehouse of Canadian history and knowledge, where Dr. Gustave Lanctot, Dominion Archivist, and Norman Fee, his assistant, keep watch and ward over the recorded traditions of a Nation.

History here was strange twists, and sobering mementoes:

A grant of land in Nova Scotia signed by Oliver Cromwell. . .Gen. Wolfe's baby shoes. . .The last letters of Wolfe and Montcalm laid side by side. . .Sitting Bull's moccasins. . .A 1672 map of new Amsterdam (New York) with Quebec on a hill apparently only a few miles away. . .Sir John A.'s letter-weighing machine he carried in his pocket. . ."In Flander's Fields" written in McRae's own hand. . . Gen. Brock's assumption sash given him by Tecumseh and his scarf with a bullet hole. . .Scraps of paper that passed for money in the old, dim days.

Progressive conservation and C. C. F. members of parliament say they want a House discussion in the Dieppe said, and government spokesmen have indicated an opportunity may be granted, either in open or secret session.

Above all, members, like other Canadians, live in the expectation that the United Nations' assault on Germany in Europe will be launched by land forces this year. When that assault comes they expect the Canadians to be in the van, and they will want to know, from day to day and from hour to hour, what the government has heard from the forefront of the fight.

When will the session end?

"We'll go home when we're through," said one member. "June, maybe July."

Mrs. Cora M. Casselman (Lib. Edmonton East), the first woman to sit as chairman of the House in committee, brought a new burst of applause at this session. She gave part of a speech in French, an unusual display of linguistic skill for a member form an English-speaking province. A quick survey of French-Canadian members indicated that all of them can address in House in English, most of them fluently.

ALLIES CAPTURE MATEUR SAYS ALGIERS RADIO

Lull Developing After Two Weeks Of Heavy Battles

Both Allied, Axis Forces Left Spent And Suffering From Heavy Losses

ENEMY SUFFERS MORE

London, May 3 —(CP)— The Algiers radio said tonight the Allies had captured Mateur, key highway junction 19 miles southwest of Bizerte and 34 northwest of Tunis. The broadcast, heard by the Associated Press, was not confirmed from other sources.

(By EDWARD KENNEDY)
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Allied Headquarters, North Africa May 3 (AP)—United States and French troops occupied a group of hills 12 miles northwest of Mateur yesterday even while a lull was developing over most of the Tunisian front after two weeks of battle which has left both Allied and Axis forces spent and suffering from heavy losses.

The enemy appeared to have suffered the more, for French detachments and forward units of the 2nd. U.S. Army Corps drove yesterday to the ridges known as Kef Rdjal Touila to tighten the pressure upon Mateur and Bizerte.

The hills are about four miles west of Lake Achkel, along the eastern shore of which runs the 18-mile highway linking Mateur and the Bizerte naval base. Col.-Gen. Jurden Von Arnim was reported withdrawing his advanced units in that region as a result of the pounding they have received from planes, field batteries and infantrymen in the Allied offensive.

At some other points also there was a slight withdrawal of enemy forces to more convenient or better-defended positions. However, the Germans are still far from cracking in their main endeavour. This is to hold their strong points in the Medjerda River valley and adjacent heights to prevent Allied tanks from getting through it into the fan-like plain of Tunis and thus bringing about the final debacle, which Gen. Henri Giraud said would come this month.

Repulse Counter Attack

General Sir Bernard Montgomery's British 8th. Army, which is finding the fight in the rugged hills of the southern front harder than in the desert, repulsed a small enemy counter-attack yesterday in the coastal area northeast of Enfidaville. Otherwise, its activity was limited to patrols.

Four miles southwest of Pont Du Fahs, at the "hinge" between the British 1st. and 8th. Armies, two enemy attacks compelled units of Gen. Marie Louis Keltz' 19th. French Corps to draw back for some hours, but at the end of the day they had re-established themselves in their morning positions.

"There is no doubt that both sides are licking their wounds," a headquarters spokesman said.

Both Gen. Sir Harold Alexander's offensive and the Axis counter-attacks have been conducted day after day over difficult terrain and in bad weather, fog and frequent showers. But a resumption of heavy action was expected soon.

Short Communique

The Monday communique summed up ground operations yesterday in three sentences: "There was a lull on the Tunisian front yesterday. Our patrols were active and two local attacks by the enemy were repulsed. Some prisoners were taken."

The total of prisoners taken by the Americans and the French in the Kef Rdjal Touila sector and by other American units to the south of it Saturday was officially listed as 641, of which 66 were Germans and the remainder Italians.

Heavy Penalties For Pilfering Rationed Goods

Ottawa, May 3—(CP)—F. A. McGregor, enforcement administrator for the Prices Board, warned today in a board statement that persons found pilfering rationed foods will be charged with "receiving rationed goods withous coupons," the maximum penalty for which is $5,000 and two years' imprisonment.

Reports reaching the enforcement administrator show that the theft of raioned goods from store counters and shelves has increased "to a very serious extend," the statement said.

TRAIN DERAILMENT IS UNDER PROBE

Troops Aboard Escape Injury But 3 Crewmen Are Injured

Passed by Censor

Winnipeg, May 3 — (CP) — Royal Canadian Mounted Police, military authorities and railway investigators today were at Arnaud, Man., investigating the derailment of a special Canadian Pacific Railway Soo line train.

A large number of troops aboard the train escaped injury but three members of the crew were hurt, Saturday night.

The Winnipeg Tribune said today: "Indications of sabotage appeared in the official investigation...suspicion that sabotage might lie behind the accident arose when the first reports indicated the train was not scheduled to stop at Arnaud.

"Immediate investigation revealed the train ran into an open switch leading to a siding. Later reports indicated the switch had been tampered with."

The Tribune added that Supt. P. H. Tucker of the R.C.M.P. in Winnipeg, had been informed by C. P. R. officials of the possibility of "dirty work" at the derailment scene.

Conductor E. H. Moulton, 54, of Winnipeg, suffered fractured ribs and shock. He was brought to hospital here where his condition was reported "fairly good." Engineer W. J. Yarde and fireman Joseph Ceilen, both of Winnipeg, also received hospital treatment but were not detained.

London, May 3 (C.P. Cable) — Royal Canadian Air Force bombers joined in some of the heaviest attacks of the war on enemy targets last month while the Canadian fighter wing which frequently forms part of the flying screen around the U.S.A.A.F. daylight bombers knocked down 17 enemy aircraft, it was disclosed today.

Halifaxes and Wellingtons of the Canadian bomber group participated in ten major raids on objectives in Germany and occupied territory and Canadians flying with R.A.F. Lancaster squadrons operated in two additional raids.

Washington, May 3—(AP)—The second War Loan drive in the United States brought in about $17,000,000,000 or around $4,000,000,000 more than the goal, and most of it came from non-banking sources.

The treasury expects to announce the final total about May 10. Banking houses were limited to $5,000,000,000 participation.

Treasury Secretary Henry Morgenthau expressed satisfaction at the success of the drive, which ended at midnight Saturday, and at the same time served notice of even greater goals for future campaigns.

Says Russia to Receive War Materiel Via Alaska, Northwest Passage

Stockholm, May 3 — (AP) — The Berlin correspondent of the Stockholm Tidningen cabled through the German censorship today that Russia would receive a steady stream of war material via Alaska and the Arctic Ocean during the summer months along a route free from the menace of German submarines and planes.

The report said the convoys would leave Canadian and United States west coast ports and travel more than 6,000 miles to Khabarovo on the Kara Sea and "will not lose one small thing."

The Russians were said to be pushing completion of a 200-mile railroad line from Kharbarovo to Vorkuta to complete a connection with the supply line from Archangel, which now is served by convoy routes which sail past the Norwegian coast.

The report added that the northwest passage from North America might prove more successful this year because of the mild winter and early spring.

The fact that the story was permitted to pass through German censorship was interpreted in some quarters here as evidence that Nazi leaders were laying a propaganda groundwork for excuses should the German campaign in Russia bog down this summer.

500,000 Miners Back To Work Under 15-Day Truce

BRITISH MOTOR TORPEDO BOATS IN DARING FORAY

Rip Along Tunisian Coast Sinking Four Axis Vessels and Destroying Planes

WORK CLOSE TO SHORE

(By GEORGE TUCKER)
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

With the British Mediterranean Fleet, April 29. (Delayed) — (AP) —In a daring daylight foray a flotilla of British motor torpedo boats ripped 600 miles along the enemy held Tunisian Coast yesterday to sink four Axis vessels—including a 3,000-ton merchant ship—and shoot up transport planes caught on landing fields near the beaches.

The flotilla swept up and down the coast from Ras Mahmur to Zembretta Island, actually penetrating the Gulf of Tunis and operating at times no more than 300 yards off shore and always under the fire of coastal batteries.

The raiders darted into coves and small harbors, basting away at everything that come within range of their guns.

The enemy merchantman was torpedoed and sunk under the very noses of two escorting German destroyers while preceding northward two miles off Kebilia Roadstead, which is at the eastern tip of Cape Bon Peninsula northeast of Tunis.

Race at High Speed

Shore batteries opened up a murderous fire and enemy fighter craft swarmed overhead as the torpedoboats closed in on their quarry at high speed. One of the raiders, which had expended its torpedoes the previous night in a successful attack on two enemy lighters loaded with fuel and ammunition, launched a diversionary attack on the leading destroyer.

The other raiders made straight for the target, loosed their torpedoes from a 2,000-yard range and then made their getaway through a smokescreen laid down by the enemy vessels.

Other Axis craft sunk by the torpedoboats during their foray along the coast included two Italian minesweepers and a German "R-boat", or large motor torpedoboat.

Never before had the swift but tiny British craft penetrated enemy waters in the Mediterranan so deeply or operated so openly in daylight. They paid for the foray, however, witn the loss of one torpedoboat and Flotilla Leader Stewart Gould, hero of 37 Royal Navy actions and wearer of the D.S.C. with bar.

Gould fell on the bridge of his vessel while leading the attack on the enemy merchant ship off Cape Bon Peninsula, but he lived long enough to direct the launching of the torpedoes which broke the ship in half.

Jap-American Soldiers Entertain Young Women Of Japanese Ancestry

Camp Shelby, Miss., May 3—(AP) —Japanese-American soldiers, volunteers from the Hawaiian Islands and the United States, entertained 100 young American women of Japanese ancestry here yesterday. The chaperoned feminine contingent came from the Rohwer, Ark., Japanese re-location centre. The Japanese-American soldiers contributed six dollars apiece to provide transportation, food and entertainment for the young women.

Crewmen Sit on Wing To Prevent Overturn In Landing on Ocean

Ottawa, May 3 (CP)—Members of a Sunderland flying boat crew, including PO. James M. L. Wilson of Orillia, Ont., and Ottawa, and Flt. Sgt. Wilson-Dujay of Joggins, N.S., had to sit on one wing to keep the machine from turning over after it made a forced landing 200 miles off the west coast of Africa.

The story was told in an R.C.A.F. press release based on an interview with Wilson after his recent return to London. He will take a captain's course at a flying boat operational training unit.

PO. Wilson was second pilot of the Sunderland when it landed on the sea during convoy work. The captain made "a brilliant landing," said Wilson, and the aircraft was subsequently towed 200 miles to port.

"We were accompanying a convoy, flying low, when one of our engines suddenly packed up, with the result that we swung in," said Wilson. "Our captain had to act fast," and try to land, but one wing struck a cross swell and ripped off a float. Under the circumstances it was a very good bit of handling."

"In the meantime our rigger had been doing a very fast job in jettisoning our depth charges, which went off at once as we were skimming the waves. They were nice to be without.

"Everybody was doing things in a hurry, as one wing was in the water, the other one, and float, well out. There was a danger of the aircraft rolling right over.

"There was no panic, but the boys were working at top speed, getting out the dinghy and inflating it on the wing. The skipper and I were passing out rations, oars, pyrotechnics, and other emergency gear, in anticipation of spending some time in the dinghy. The rest of the crew were sitting well out on the wing to keep the boat from tipping."

Shortly afterwards the Corvette Cowslip sent over a boat.

"They gave us some weights for our port wing, which put the port float in the water again, and gave us better balance," said Wilson. "The corvette took us in tow, and for 36 hours we were at the end of a towline. A tug later taking over to get us safely into port."

DELAYED-ACTION BOMBS UNLOADED FROM LOW LEVELS

LITTLE OPPOSITION

London, May 3. (CP)—R.A.F. bombers and fighters fought their way through German fighter plane opposition to attack industrial targets in The Netherlands coastal city of Ijmuiden yesterday and follow up a heavy attack Saturday by big American bombers on the German submarine base at St. Nazaire, France.

Mosquito bombers sped across France virtually without opposition late Sunday and unloaded delayed-action bombs from rooftop level upon railroad shops at Thionville, a centre of the Lorraine iron ore and coal transport network and junction of the main Rhine Valley Paris line and the Brussels-Saarbruecken line. Pilots said their cargoes crashed through the main shop buildings.

R.C.A.F. Spitfire squadrons also were in action Saturday, sweeping over the Ushant area of Northern France. A few Focke-Wulf 190s were sighted, but the Nazis offered no fight.

Sqdn. Ldr. C. M. Magwood, Toronto, Sqdn. Ldr. Lloyd Chadburn, Aurora, Ont., and FO. Ken Marshall, Hilton, Ont., threw bursts of cannon and machine-gun fire at the fleeing German planes, but were not able to observe results.

One R.C.A.F. plane was lost while on ship reconnaissance duty. Six Nazi Planes Downed.

The British raiders shot down six of the enemy planes but lost four of their own fighters.

Seven of the American bombers were lost in the smash at St. Nazaire, which was carried out in heavy weather and against determined resistance by squadrons of German Focke-Wulf planes.

The weather forced the American aircraft to separate on the return flight and made it difficult to determine immediately the number of German planes destroyed.

The German radio claimed that 11 four-engined bombers were destroyed. It was the first announced raid by U.S. bombers based in Britain since the attack on Bremen April 17, in which 16 planes were lost.

Colin Bednall, London Daily Mail air correspondent, rode with the American bombers to St. Nazaire and returned with this enthusiastic comment: "Now that I have been in action with the United States heavy bombardment squadrons I am more convinced than ever that they have one of the really great answers of the war".

Kiska Jap Base Bombed 13 Times

Washington, May 3 (AP) — United States fliers bombed Japan's Aleutians base at Kiska 13 times on Saturday, the Navy Department reported today, causing a heavy explosion at North Head, the mouth of Kiska harbor, setting several fires and damaging the airplane runway.

OVER ONE-THIRD LOAN SUBSCRIBED IN FIRST WEEK

Ottawa, May 3 — (CP) — The Fourth Victory Loan swung into the second week of the three-week campaign today with a total of $372,544,900 subscribed—slightly more than one-third of the minimum objective of $1,100,000,000.

Subscriptions on Saturday, final day of the first week, totalled $59,785,550, keeping the average daily figure just above $60,000,000.

The first week of the Third Victory Loan drive rolled up a total of $312,410,900 but the objective then was $750,000,000. The corresponding day's total in the last loan was $53,642,850.

The National War Finance Committee said that the aim of obtaining $500,000,000 from the General Public Canvass and the payroll division meant a 33 per cent increase in dollars and a sharp decrease in the number of subscribers.

Analysis of the first week's records showed that the increase in dollars so far was 19 per cent and in numbers 13 per cent. Officials described this as "promising but only moderately so." General canvass yielded a cumulative total of $83,574,650 in the first week, compared with $70,018,800 in the last loan. Payroll has accounted for $6,597,400 compared with $5,130,000.

Not Doing Well Enough

G. W. Spinney, Chairman of the National War Finance Committee, commenting on this analysis, said: "Canada as a whole is doing better than in any previous loan, but is not doing well enough yet. The success of this loan cannot be measured only by dollars subscribed but also and principally by the vast number of people of moderate means and moderate income who make it their special business to back up our fighting men by buying these bonds."

He paid tribute to the record of the armed forces, particularly the army which had subscribed $5,335,000, compared with $2,700,000 in the entire Third Victory Loan.

"We cannot be satisfied with our present advance over Third Victory Loan," said Mr. Spinney. "We must march forward strongly to higher ground and greater increases. It has been well said that this is the people's war. I should like to paraphrase it and say. "this is the people's loan.' "

It was announced at Toronto that R. C. A. F. No. 1 Training Command has subscribed $1,000,000 in bonds. Manning Depot at Toronto is only $10,000 short of its $200,000 objective.

Summerside, P. E. I., over the weekend became the second city to reach its objective. Officials announced the community had hit 101 per cent. Fredericton was the first to attain it quota.

JAP AIR FLEET HITS AT DROME NEAR DARWIN

18 JAP PLANES LOST

Allied Headquarters, Australia, May 3—(CP)—A powerful fleet of Japanese warplanes — 21 bombers and 30 fighters—struck savagely at the Allied airdrome near Darwin, Australia, Sunday and inflicted heavy losses on Allied fighters in a fierce air battle.

Spitfires, manned by Australian and British pilots, rose in forces to intercept. The ensuing battle raged over the Darwin area and the Arafura Sea to the north. Thirteen enemy planes were destroyed or damaged, the noon communique said.

"Our own losses were heavy," it added.

There was no elaboration. It was the first time in a year of aerial warfare in the Southwest Pacific that a communique had referred to Allied air losses as heavy.

(A Japanese communique, broadcast by Berlin and recorded by The Associated Press, claimed the attacking Japanese destroyed 21 Allied fighters without loss and severely damaged important war installations.)

Five Enemy Planes On Allied Convoy Destroyed in Attack

Cairo, May 3 — (AP) — Allied fighter planes escorting a convoy in the Eastern Mediterranean shot down four enemy bombers which tried to attack the convoy Saturday and a fifth was brought down by anti-aircraft fire, a British communique said today.

Shifting Sands Wiping Out Traces Of Many Soldiers' Graves in Desert

By EDWARD KENNEDY
Associated Press Staff Writer

On the Edge of the Libyan Desert, (Delayed)—(AP)—The thousands of soldiers' graves strung from El Alamein to the borders of Tripolitania are slowly but surely being wiped out by the shifting sands which are erasing one by one the marks of the terrific struggle that surged over the face of the desert for more than two years.

Another "desert victory" is following hard behind the victorious British 8th Army which has pushed Axis Marshal Erwin Rommel's Africa Corps westward across half the margin of Northern Africa.

The desert is peaceful again and traces of most of the great tented towns which were air bases and camps have been wiped out by the winds and dust. Supply and maintenance depots have disappeared as the army moved forward.

The graves are still marked by white crosses, but even many of these have been almost buried by the swirling sands.

Without effort, the desert has filled up the slit trenches dug by soldiers in hours of gruelling labor under a sweltering sun. Bomb craters are losing their form under the ever-thickening blankets of loose sand.

The Bedouins, who had to move nimbly to avoid the fighting, are beginning to sift back to their accustomed haunts, enriched by an occasional windfall of foods and clothing which includes British jackets, German caps, Italian trousers, and prized tins of sardines.

The desert natives still have to contend with mines left by the retreating Germans and Italians, and may have the problem for years to come as their camels walk into Axis mine fields which have not been completely removed by the Allied troops.

Warns That Victory Chance Would Be Jeopardized by Lengthy Strike

ICKES AS REFEREE

By J. F. SANDERSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Washington, May 3—(CP)—John L. Lewis said coal production would be resumed Tuesday, but thousands of American miners went back to the pits today in compliance with the demand of President Roosevelt.

Eight major mines in Ohio, operating under the flag of the United States, had nearly normal complements of workers.

"The men are going back as fast as they can be notified," said Adolph Pacifico, District United Mine Workers leaders, in Eastern Ohio. "I expect that the afternoon shift will be normal."

Had Deep Effect

Kentucky and Pennsylvania miners went back today at a slower pace but it was evident from reports coming from the fields, taken over by the government Saturday, that Mr. Roosevelt's radio speech last night had a deep effect on the miners.

The percentage who work today without waiting for the Lewis deadline of Tuesday may be small, but it is considered significant of a desire by the men to heed the president's warning that nothing must hinder production of coal for the war effort.

The president said a stoppage of production would involve a "terribly dangerous gamble" with the chances of victory in the war.

During the next 15 days, Harold L. Ickes will seek to settle the wage contract dispute between the miners and operators.

There seemed no question but that Tuesday's shifts—at the very latest—would find the industry operating full blast again. The president appealed to the miners last night to go back to work for their country—literally, with the government operating more than 3,850 mines—and cease "obstructing our war effort".

Mr. Roosevelt did not mention Lewis by name, but his appeal to the miners—whose full scale walkout followed the latter's call not to "trespass" on company property without a contract—came just 20 minutes after the U.M.W. chieftain had announced the truce in New York.

Lewis said the Union's policy committee had voted unanimously "to restore all mines to immediate operation for a period of 15 days beginning Tuesday". He said the truce time will be spent in seeking to work out new contracts to replace those which have expired in the hard and soft coal industries.

Ickes to Direct Operations

Labor Secretary Frances Perkins said fuel administrator Ickes, picked by the President to direct operation of the mines for the government, would confer with the disputants during the 15-day period and try to bring them together.

The decision was made after Lewis and other leaders had conferred with Ickes during a sudden Sunday trip here from New York, where the contract negotiations had been in progress.

The general back-to-work movement swept the mine fields even as reaction to President Roosevelt's plea varied last night. Some spokesmen of idle union members said they were ready to resume work today, as the president asked, but others made it plain they considered Lewis the man to mind where coal mining was concerned.

The president's speech left no doubt that he considered striking the same as deserting the ranks of the military services.

Announcement of Ickes in the role of referee, as well as manager of the government-operated mines, spurred speculation concerning the future of the war labor board whose jurisdiction was challenged by the mine leaders.

The president had insisted that only the W.L.B. could settle the contract dispute, but the U.M.W. refused to do business with it, charging it with prejudice, and a spreading wave of walkouts was climaxed by virtual shutdown of the industry Saturday when a contract extension expired. The President promptly ordered federal seizure and operation of the mines, but stood pat in his support of the Board's jurisdiction.

Mines Fly U. S. Flags

However, Ickes' assignment caused observers to wonder if this meant the board had been by-passed.

The principal issues in both the hard and soft coal controversies are for $2-a-day wage increases, underground travel pay and unionization of minor bosses.

Prior to the truce announcement there had been no definite indication of how the miners would react to the president's previous call for a return to their jobs. The operators were called upon to fly the United States flag over their properties Monday and re-open the mines — regardless of whether the workers appeared — but while some union locals voted to return to work others decided to stand pat pending word from Lewis.

When the word came from New York, cheers echoed generally from the coal fields at the back-to-work call and reports from union meetings said both cheers and tears were noted when the President said:

Appeals to Patriotism

"I believe the coal miners will not continue the strike against the government. I believe that the coal miners themselves as Americans will not fail to heed the clear call to duty. Like all good Americans they will march shoulder to shoulder with their armed forces to victory."

Meanwhile, Ickes swung swiftly into the mammoth job of putting the government's latest business acquisition into operation. Through a busy weekend he and his staff set up regional offices for managing the new properties and accepted telegraphed oaths of office from the operators — now public servants.

If any of them request troops, the regional managers will check the situation and recommend to Ickes whether soldiers should be moved into the mines to protect life or property — but Ickes stressed doubt that troops would be needed.

TRAIN PARTIALLY DERAILED

North Bay, Ont., May 3 (CP)—A partial derailment of an eastbound freight train at Yellek, a few miles west of here early yesterday caused a four hour delay to two sections of the westbound C.P.R. passenger trains, railroad officials said today. RECEIVES WIRELESS AIR GUNNER'S WING AT MOUNTAIN VIEW

Maxwell R. Scott, 22, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Scott, 27 Victoria Avenue, city, was among the group of graduates who received their wireless air gunners' wing at graduation ceremonies at the Mountain View R.C.A.F. Bombing and Gunnery School today.

Sgt. Scott is a native Belleville boy and attended Queen Mary School and Belleville Collegiate. Formerly with the Canadian Army, prior to his enlistment he was employed at the local A. & P. store. One year ago he transferred into the R.C.A.F. and trained as a wireless operator at Montreal and Guelph, graduating from the latter school before taking his gunnery training at Mountain View.

SELLS REVOLVER USED IN LAST WAR AND BUYS VICTORY BOND

How an antiquated weapon of a previous world war has now gone back to fight again both in the capacity of a service weapon and in monetary form has been revealed by a Victory Loan salesman from Sidney Township.

Answering a recent government appeal for the return of former service weapons, Col. W. G. Ketcheson, 5th concession of Sidney, sold his officer's revolver to army headquarters for $40. When the Fourth Victory Loan opened last week another $10 was added to the price received for the revolver and a $50 bond was purchased for a grandson, Douglas Ketcheson.

MEAD JOHNSON CO. WAS OMITTED FROM SCORE BOARD AD

Through some error, the name of a Belleville firm, Mead Johnson and Company, of Canada, was left off the Hastings County Fourth Victory Loan campaign payroll savings score board which was published in The Ontario Intelligencer on Saturday. Local loan headquarters committeemen are happy to make the correction and intimate that already the firm whose name was omitted from the list, has over-subscribed its original objective.

SIX ARE QUALIFIED AS LIFE SAVERS

Six junior members of the Y. M. C. A. who have been taking a course in life saving for the past three months, passed their final examination with honors last week, and are now qualified to wear the Y.M.C.A. Life Saver badge on their swimming costumes. The course deals with methods of releasing oneself from the various grasps of drowning persons, methods of towing them to shore, resuscitation of the unconscious person and restoring natural breathing and warmth. The physiology of breathing and circulation are also taught so that the rescuers may know not only how to perform these things but also why each stage of the work is essential.

It is surprising how few people know how to perform rescues in the water, and the knowledge is valuable to those who possess it, and their possibilities for public service are greatly enhanced by the ability gained in such a course as this.

DRIVER HITS TREE IN AVOIDING GIRL

Avoiding a small girl who had previously alighted from the city bus on Dundas St. over the weekend, an automobile driven by William Guay, Point Anne, crashed into a boulevard tree. Mr. Guay reported the incident to police stating the little girl had apparently got off the bus and without looking ran around in front of it as Mr. Guay was driving past. Fortunately the driver was able to avoid striking the little lass by serving his motor car sharply to the left and in doing so drove over the curb into a boulevard tree. Slight damage resulted to the vehicle, but as Mr. Guay pointed out he was pleased to be able to evade what might have been a much more serious accident.

IOOF, Rebekahs Hold Annual Church Service

LARGE TURNOUT

The Independent Order of Oddfellows and Rebekah Lodges held their annual church service at Victoria Avenue Baptist Church on Sunday morning. The pastor, Rev. H. O. Eastman, speaking on the subject "Four Scenes on the Jericho Road", based his sermon on the story of the Good Samaritan. The pastor drew a graphic parallel between scenes on the Jericho Road and the scenes that are encountered on the road of life.

"The road between Jericho and Jerusalem was a rough, rocky road," stated the preacher. "It was a common highway and everyone had a right to travel on it; but it was known as "the bloody way" because it was infested with bands of robbers and murderers. The road of life also has its rough aspects. Though everyone has a right to go about his business and to worship God according to the dictates of his own conscience, free and unmolested, there are robbers seeking to lure the unwary traveller and despoil him in order to satisfy their own greed.

Selfishness Seen

"So in the first scene on the Jericho Road we see selfishness, heartlessness and cruelty. We see a traveller stripped of his raiment, beaten and left dead on the side of the road.

"In the second instance we have the scene of piety, the piety of indifference. A priest by chance came that way but when he saw the victim he passed by on the other side. He was too busy being religious to care or to help. After all, this thing did not concern him. There are likewise those in our day who are too good to be any good. They know all about the awful things going on, the sin, the legalized traffic for profit that degrades men and women and drags down our youth. But they consider it none of their business.

"In the third scene we see compassion and tenderness, not just pity, but compassion that led a man to make it his business to do something about it. The Good Samaritan went out of his way to rescue and care for the victim. It is time we concerned ourselves about the sin and heartache and tragedy all about us, not just talk about it and whisper behind the hand. The Oddfellows Order has helped to lighten the burdens, to comfort, and to alleviate suffering along the road of life. There will always be suffering here and there, but we should help to relieve the suffering where we find it.

All Must Make Decision

"Then in the fourth scene we have the picture of Jesus on the Jericho Road. This is a scene of decision and absolute consecration. Knowing that He was to be made a sacrifice for the sins of the world, nevertheless He had set His face to go to Jerusalem to do the will of God.

"In each of the scenes we have considered a decision had to be made, to do wrong or to do right. Each of us has a decision to make on the road of life. If we make a wrong decision we make the road of life a more dangerous way for others. If we make a right decision we make life easier and more pleasant for our fellowmen."

The anthem "Hosanna", by Granier, was sung by the choir with Mrs. D. Smith heard in the solo parts. Mr. James Bankier sang very beautifully "Come Ye Blessed". During the offertory Miss L. Lavoie and Miss Phyllis May rendered "Alleluia" in an organ and piano duo.

Bill Wesley, 13, Represents County In Quiz Contest

Queen Alexandra School Pupil Well Informed on Matters of Interest

GOES TO PETERBORO

Bill Wesley, 13-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wesley, 132 Bleecker Avenue, and pupil of Queen Alexandra School, will represent Hastings County in the divisional school quiz elimination contest to be held at Peterborough later in the week.

In a field of 37 other contestants, school winners from various parts of the county, Bill on Sunday evening at the McCarthy Theatre won the approval of the judges and confounded his questioner with his knowledge on matters of national interests. The contest was held in conjunction with the Fourth Victory Loan Campaign.

School winners were divided into three classes for the contest with three winners in each class being decided. Winners in the respective classes were awarded $10 war savings certificates, while second place winners were presented with $5 certificates with third prizes being $2 in stamps.

Although given the nod by judges in the final contest in "A" group, Bill Wesley was closely followed by two district girls, Rose Marie Lamorre of Trenton and Sheila Rashotte of Tweed. Only after a series of difficult questions were the judges able to decide on the winner.

Winners of Other Groups.

Winners in the other two groups were as follows: Group "B"— Lois Bradshaw S.S. No. 1 Thurlow, Marilyn Payne of Point Anne and Jack LeSage of Tweed. Group "C" winners were Mary Boldrick of Plainfield, Lois Elvins of Prince of Wales School, Thurlow and Dorothy Benedict of Trenton.

Harold Carruthers in the role of questioner, carried off a really difficult job extremely well and after judges realized that surprise questions compiled by Victory Loan headquarters were too difficult for the junior pupils, the contestants were given impromptu problems of more local interest. Judges for the evening were J. Owen Herity, Rev. Dr. Bert Howard and Mr. W. J. Morrison.

Impromptu Entertainment.

The non-appearance of the Trenton R.C.A.F. band as advertised proved a disappointment to the overflow crowd at the theatre, but this soon wore off when local entertainers graciously volunteered their services. Mr. John Deacon, with Mrs. Deacon as accompanist, rendered two well-appreciated solos, while Miss Ethel Smith, after singing at the Y.M.C.A. held her audience enthralled as she sang "Three Little Sisters", and a composition of her own, "That Airman with the Skyblue Eyes", as an encore. Her mother, Mrs. J. C. Smith, acted as accompanist.

Mr. J. J. Trudeau, general sales chairman for the Hastings County Fourth Victory Loan campaign, distributed the prizes to the winning pupils and complimented them on their knowledge of matters pertaining to the Victory Loan and Canada's war effort.

A silver collection taken at the door to help defray costs of prizes to the children and other expenses, amounted to approximately $100. School children taking part in the contest were:

Thousands Witness Colorful Military Parade Thru Streets And Service at Fair Grounds

WREATHS DEPOSITED

Splendid tribute to the memory of fallen heroes from Hastings and Prince Edward counties, who have made the supreme sacrifice in the present Great War was paid here Sunday afternoon as thousands of people lined Belleville streets and congregated at the fair grounds to witness a colorful military parade and memorial service held in connection with the Fourth Victory Loan Campaign.

Eighteen hundred men and women of Canada's fighting services wearing the airforce blue, the darker hue of naval uniforms and the khaki of local reserve units, paraded the route of march from the Belleville Collegiate campus to the fair grounds. Included in the parade were local veterans of the First Great War, the municipal and kilties band from Belleville and the women of the St. John Ambulance Brigade.

Headed by the Trenton R.C.A.F. band and 800 personnel from No. 5 Initial Training School and Trenton Air Station, the parade was easily the largest and most colorful ever to be staged in the city. The picture presented by the contrasting colors of the various unit uniforms and the trim marching of hundreds of feet may never be equalled in this district.

Cenotaph Erected for Ceremony.

At the agricultural park the hundreds of men and women of the services were drawn up in an open three-sided square facing the grandstand and an imposing cenotaph specially erected for the occasion. Here with bowed heads they stood at attention on honor of brothers and sisters, who have paid the supreme sacrifice.

Four thousand civilian spectators in silent tribute as the bugle notes of 'Reveille' and 'Last Post' were sounded and three volleys crashed through the stillness of the afternoon air. Speeding trainer planes from the Trenton R.C.A.F. station dipped their wings in salute.

Although delayed from the opening of the current drive, yesterday's military parade and drumhead service was a truly fitting starting gun for the Fourth Victory Loan Campaign. The symbol of the campaign was ever present in word and action and residents were exhorted to "Back the Attack" and thus make certain county heroes had not died in vain.

"We are here today to pay tribute to our county heroes, to those heroes, who when their country called, were ready, and did, give the supreme sacrifice," stated Major the Rev. A. Beauchamp Payne, Padre of the Argyll Light Infantry, as he addressed civilians and men and women of the forces during the memorial service.

"But," he continued, "to sacrifice was their right and their duty, just as it is right and duty as civilians to not forget that we also are on the front line and engaged in actual warfare."

"It is up to us as individuals to realize that in view of our heroes' sacrifice, that which we are asked to do is not too great. We are asked to cut down on luxuries, maybe stint a bit here or there, but Canada has called and Hastings has called. Our boys have done a wonderful job. Is it too much to ask that we sacrifice that our boys overseas may be supplied with the materials of war?"

Rev. Dr. Bert Howard, principal of Albert College, re-echoed Major Payne's word in appeal for the support of the Fourth Victory Loan. Following the laying of a wreath by Mayor Harry Rollins on the cenotaph in honor of present war heroes, Dr. Howard urged that residents must not feel that in paying tribute they have accomplished all that is asked.

"The laying of a wreath on this cenotaph is merely a symbol," stated Dr. Howard, "a fitting tribute to our war dead. But surely to God if they were willing to offer their lives, we, in answering our country's call at this time, must see that they did not give their lives in vain.

"This, our country's call, is our challenge," he concluded.

Enthusiasm Not Dampened

Threatening skies failed to dampen the enthusiasm of the thousands of Belleville and district residents who were on hand to witness the military spectacle a full hour before the parade was scheduled to pass any designated point. From the collegiate campus down Victoria Avenue and Front Street and up Bridge Street to the fairground the curbs were lined two and three deep. A great many watched the assembly of the various units at the Armouries and at the collegiate and then hurried for a point of vantage to watch the parade proper.

Parade Moves Promptly

Promptly at two o'clock the assembled parade left the collegiate campus with Parade Commander, Wing Commander A. J. Snetsinger officer commanding No. 5 Initial Training School at Belleville, and Captain K. R. Holmes, Adjutant Argyll Light Infantry, following the provincial police cruiser and an auto bearing officials of the local Victory Loan committee.

The Trenton R.C.A.F. band followed with a smart flight of R.C.A.F. (Women's Division) from Trenton, under the command of Flight Officer J. L. Wright, being next in line. The Trenton girls were especially smart in their new dress uniforms and caps. Reversing previous military custom, No. 5 I.T.S. flights, as an active service unit, were next in line and preceded district reserve military units.

Following the airmen was the 34th Field Battery, R.C.A. under the command of Captain Steve Sword. Then the regimental band of the 2nd Battalion Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, with the regiment proper, commanded by Lt. Col. A. V. Yates following. The boys from Belleville's sister regiment with headquarters in Trenton, looked especially trim and vied for smartness with Belleville units.

Veterans Proudly March

Undaunted by the long route of march, which took them up Bridge Street hill, the Army and Navy Veterans, Unit 201, under President Thos. York and the C.N.R. Veterans under Albert Jones, did themselves proud and kept pace with their younger brothers. The "Vets" in passing were cheered by the curbstanders as they passed, visibly envious, that this is a young man's war.

Belleville's Municipal Band under Lt. Fred Jobson and the Pipe Band under Pipe Major Jimmie Clark, marched together with all parade bands playing alternately from front to rear as the march progressed. At full strength, the 1st Reserve Battalion of the Argyll Light Infantry (Tank) under the command of Major B. C. Sisler, took a central part in the parade being followed by local cadet units and the C.W.S.F.

The Canadian Women's Service Force, organized here last Spring, repeated its former fine parade performance and under Captain Marion Harden were favorably commented upon all along the route. The Belleville Sea Cadets, headed by their own unit band, marched under Captain Wesley and represented the only naval unit in the parade. The Belleville Air Cadets, under Air Cadet Flying Officer Dawson Boyd, also were especially smart. Nurses of the local St. John Ambulance Brigade, under Mrs. W. N. Ponton, are to be especially complimented on their fine marching exhibition. Without the advantage of drill, the nurses in their crisp white uniforms and contrasting cloaks, presented a really fine picture.

Mechanized Equipment Seen

Mechanized equipment of the local reserve units brought up the rear of the parade, with 25-pounder and 75-millimetre gun carriages and their tractors being seen, while universal carriers and other motorized equipment was seen, indicating that even reserve army units are now 'on wheels."

The Belleville Municipal Band acted as duty band for the memorial service in front of the grandstand, which included the playing of well-known hymns, prayers by Major Payne and the National Anthem. Assisting Major Payne in the service were Flight Lieut. S. M. Inman, Padre of Trenton Air Station and Flight Lieut. Scott, Padre of I.T.S. Lieut.-Col. B. C. Donnan, officer commanding the Argyll Light Infantry, acted as commentator and described the order of ceremony to the civilian audience.

A firing party furnished by the 34th. Battery fired a salute of three guns as the various units of the parade were being drawn up in open square formation in front of the grandstand, while at the conclusion of the service a fire party from the Argyll Light Infantry fired three volleys.

Tribute to the war dead was paid by committeemen of the Hastings County Fourth Victory Loan campaign, when Mayor Harry Rollins laid a wreath on the cenotaph as loan chairman Mr. Bert Boyce and W. H. Ireland of Trenton, looked on.

Group Capt. McBurney Takes Salute

Impressive, however, as was the military parade and memorial service, the outstanding point of interest of the afternoon's program was the military march past staged at the conclusion of the service with Group Capt. H. E. McBurney, officer commanding Trenton Air Station, taking the salute. With the Trenton R.C.A.F. Band acting as duty band all units of the parade marched past the reviewing stand in column of route. With Group Capt. McBurney were Group Captain Keddy of No. 6 A.R.D. and Wing Commander Ripley of Mountain View.

Much of the credit for the success of the military parade and smooth running of the ceremonial service at the Fair Grounds must go to Wing Commander Snetsinger, and to Lieut.-Col. B. C. Donnan, who with Captain K. R. Holmes cooperated with the local Victory Loan committeemen in planning the program.

Members of the local Ontario Volunteer Constabulary co-operated with city police and Provincial police in directing traffic along the route of parade, and at the Fair Grounds.

NORTH PILOTS' COUNTRY CLUB FRIGID OASIS

Fliers Can Get Hot Shower and Some of Comforts of Home in Far Northwest Canadian Airport

(By SAM JACKSON)
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

An Airport in the Canadian Northwest, May 3 (CP)—Because you can get a hot shower here, and because there's quite a neat little group of buildings, this airfield has become known as "the country club of the Yukon." Its purpose is a good deal grimmer. Through here go the giant bombers and transport planes of the Alaska wing of the United States Air Transport Command, bound northwest on mysterious missions that the pilots don't talk about.

But every flier and every traveller on the long Alaska road likes to stop here if he can. He doesn't have to unroll his sleeping bag because giant spruce timbers in a hot air furnace keep the big bunkroom warm all night.

Like a good many installations in the northwest, the airport was built up by Canadians with help from the Americans and although Canadian sovereignty is acknowledged the use of the field is largely American.

The first Americans flew in here only last June in a pontoon plane and landed on a lake. They found only a radio shack and a half-completed airport building.

Rapid Construction

The building of the "country club" is another epic of quick construction. Some material was flown in but most of it, during the short northern summer, was landed from steamers on the Alaska coast, then transported by river boats up a lonely river to a trading post 160 miles northeast.

From there to an isolated lake, a distance of 75 miles, was the shadow of an old road of gold mining days and this was repaired at an expense of $19,000. On the lake a fleet of barges was constructed from local timber at a cost of $250,000.

They carried many tons of freight each, and could cross the lake and go up another river to within 26 miles of this new airdrome. For that last stretch, a regular road was constructed.

J. D. Smith, resident engineer for the Canadian government, took an artistic pride in his buildings and went far afield to get good-looking logs which were slabbed for the exteriors. Freight brought by the river-lake route today costs $256.20 a ton, from Vancouver.

Lieut. R. W. Love, commanding officer, always has cots and food ready for visitors because of the great uncertainty of the Yukon weather. The rates are 50 cents for a bed and 50 cents a meal—the latter being served in the rough and ready style of any new army camp. Gasoline, for the rare civilian customer, costs $2.85 a gallon.

Canadian Barracks

The Canadians have their own barracks and dining hall and eat with considerably more decorum. You sit down at the sound of a bell, talk softly or not at all, and do not smoke at the table.

Among the guests is a radio expert trying to figure out the occasional "blackouts" that occur in the north; a Catholic missionary who came into the wilderness long before he dreamed civilization would catch up with him; Sir Hubert Wilkins, the Arctic explorer, numerous fliers grounded for the time, and several mysterious civilians who revealed their mission only to the commanding officer. They call it the "Yukon country club" but in cross-section it is more like Grand Hotel.

Birdseye War

(New York Times)

With the increase in long-distance flying above mountains and oceans there has been a good deal of speculation, especially among civilian passengers, as to how great a distance one can see from high altitudes. The Clipper captains of Pan American Airways have been asked this question a good many times. Recently they worked out a "vision-range" formula which reveals some surprising facts. At eye level on the surface of the sea you can see for only 2.9 miles. From an altitude of 1,000 feet the range of vision is extended to 39 miles. Much of this war's fighting and bombing is done at altitudes of 25,000 feet or more. At this height of approximately five miles above the surface the range of sight is 194 miles. It is a little startling for us in America, with the guardian major oceans on either flank and peaceful neighbors to the north and south, to realize what this means in the terms of European or African air war. For example, on a relatively cloudless day the pilot of a Flying Fortress can see into Germany before he is out of sight of the English coast. German bombers, unfortunately, can enjoy a birdseye view of Britain when they gain the upper airs from their French bases. Major Gen. Doolittle's fighters in Tunisia practically have a ringside seat for the boot of Italy. No wonder Il Duce's followers appear to be trembling somewhat in that boot. Air power is not only transforming geography to a study of time rather than space, but it lays enemies some 200 miles apart open to the theoretical, and on good days practical, inspection of each other.

TIME OFF SOON FOR HUSKY DOG

For Past Five Months Furry Canines Have Drawn Many Tons Along Northwestern Trails

Edmonton, May 3 (CP)—They say it's a mechanical war, but in the vast, untamed wilderness of the Canadian northwest the lowly sledge dog remains unchallenged in piercing the snow-choked hinterland.

Furry huskies have been trained at a "dog-farm" at Edmonton for work in the far north. Several teams have been straining at their traces, for the past five months in the north, blazing a trail for mechanical equipment which will come later to complete wartime projects.

The five-dog teams, capable of carrying 1,000 pounds of men and equipment through snowbound wasteland, have been transporting surveyors and engineers beyond the regions of civilization. The dogs were purchased last fall by the dog-ranch from Chipiwan Indians at Cold Lake, 125 miles north of here. They were trained, outfitted with harness and sleds and sent into the Arctic regions to transport men and equipment where no other mode of transportation could endure.

Fred Martial, Chipiwan Indian, was in charge of training the huskies and their mongrel cousins. "We Chipiwans are proud of the part we are playing in Canada's war effort," Martial said. "Our dogs are good dogs. They are huskies, police dogs, collies, mongrels, but they're good dogs." He told how in the north the dogs are fed, getting two pounds of meat each after a day's trek during which they average 10 miles an hour.

More than 50 kennels have been constructed at the dog farm, but only about 25 are now in use. But soon the dogs now at work will be coming south to spend the summer for there will be no use for them in the north when the snow goes. "When the snow goes, the dogs will spend the summer loafing," Martial said. "They'll get fat and lazy . . . But next Winter, they'll be 'down north' again, aiding in the war."

QUAKE BACKS APPEAL

Once yearly worshippers in the Anglican Church at Port Shepstone, South Africa, hear an appeal for special offerings for a new church structure. This year early church goers were startled when a light earthquake shook the structure, causing slight damage. During the prayer of consecration, came a second quake, raining plaster from the roof on the congregation as if to prove the need of a substantial building fund.

BUILDING BOOM COMING

London (CP)—More than 4,000,000 houses will have to be built in Britain after the war to replace those destroyed by enemy action and to clear slums. London needs 100,000 dwellings, Manchester 70,000 and Glasgow 50,000.

BLACK MARKETS IN SWEETMEATS

Maritime Youngsters do Big Business Along Railway Lines Among Incomers

Halifax, May 3 (CP)—Canada's newest black market is flourishing in Nova Scotia under the direction of a group of money-minded youngsters who have as yet not reached their 'teens.

Spurred on by an inherent instinct and an early born knowledge of the value of a dollar—or a nickel—these buccaneers in short pants are taking full advantage of shortages to bolster their meagre allowances.

Their racket is simple but effective. During the last three years they have come to realize that those long strings of trains that run thru' their home-towns at odd hours are not regular passenger trains, but troop-loaded extras.

They have also learned that the ones coming from the coast, headed for Central Canada, are bringing men from England, the land where war has robbed life of many little luxuries. The miniature merchants, therefore, lay in wait for these trains. As soon as they pull into the station, for a brief check-up and refueling, the boys swing into action.

With Confections

Like magic they appear around the cars, bearing carefully hoarded supplies of chocolate bars, ice cream cones and other edibles they think the men have been denied during long months of soldiering in Britain.

They figure correctly, too, and their nickel wares sell easily for a quarter apiece as the men have come straight from the boats to the trains and have not had an opportunity to get them at the regular stores.

The profits really mount up. One budding Morgan with a dirty face claims he can make a couple of dollars profit any day the troop trains move. His only sorrow is that chocolate bars and other such goods are also becoming scarce in these parts and increasing difficulty is experienced getting supplies.

But the life of these black market operators is not an easy one. Many a time a troop train has pulled up beside an urchin who has nothing to offer but a woe-begone expression. The temptation was just too much, and he ate his stock before the train arrived.

POLISH ACE KILLED

London (CP)—Last man to leave free Warsaw, Flt. Lt. Stanislaus Riess, 34 year old Polish flying ace, has been killed in a flying accident in England where he was a test pilot. He took medical supplies to Warsaw a few hours before the city surrendered to the Germans.

FRENCH BORN CURE FROM FAR NORTH

Adds New Duties as U. S. Army Chaplain to his Indian Work.

Edmonton, May 3 (CP)—The "outside" looked pretty good to Rev. Father Pierre Poullet, 30 year old French-born priest when he visited Edmonton recently but he prefers his life among Indians, traders and trappers at the remote trading centre of Lower Post on the Liard River in the north.

His visit was the first "outside" since he went to Lower Post six years ago. He has built a mission there and worked among the Sikanni Indians who at one time practised witchcraft. The war has brought added duties for he has been appointed auxiliary chaplain with the U.S. Army to work among soldiers in the area.

Father Poullet's home is near Lille, France. He has two brothers who are prisoners of the war in Germany. His parental home is near Lille.

Choice of Mr. Nixon Expected

Choice of Harry Corwin Nixon as the leader of the Liberal Party in Ontario was confidently expected by the majority of Liberals. He has had a long Parliamentary career since he first came into the Legislature 24 years ago, served as cabinet minister in Premier Drury's U. F. O. Government and later under the Hepburn Government. He had been offered the premiership twice by Mr. Hepburn.

Mr. Nixon possesses experience of almost a quarter of a century in public life in times of more than ordinary stress. That he has the Liberal Party in Ontario with him is proven as he was chosen by 418 out of a possible 582 votes on the first ballot. He has promised close co-operation with the Federal regime.

The Liberal convention deplored the illness of Premier Conant and Mr. Nixon the new leader at once said he desired to express his sympathy to Mr. Conant on his illness. As to when Mr. Nixon will assume the premiership, he is not making any statement on policy or procedure for the present at least. After becoming Premier the question of dissolving the Legislature will be decided only after he has consulted those best qualified to give advice on the subject.

The leader comes of Loyalist descent, he is a graduate in agriculture and is a practical farmer. He is an out-and-out supporter of the Federal Government in the prosecution of the war. His eldest son was killed in the early autumn of 1941 while serving over Germany with the R.C.A.F. and a daughter is with the R.C.A.F. (W.D.) and his daughters-in-law are overseas with women's organizations.

Mr. Nixon has a very engaging personality and is popular.

Stalin Confident of Victory

Premier Stalin of Russia on May Day gave the Red Army high praise for its success of the past two years in the defence of Russia and the Allied armies in Tunisia and North Africa on their great achievement. At the same time he spoke in the warmest terms of "the valiant Anglo-American air force" which "strikes shattering blows at military and industrial centres of Germany, foreshadowing the formation of a second front in Europe against the Italo-German Fascists."

He sees the war emerging into one terrific blow against the Hitlerite armies. The German war machine has been shaken to its foundations, The United Nations' successes have changed the course of the global war and created the military prerequisite for victory over Nazi Germany. Fascism has had to give up its plan of lightning war and refers with grievous lamentations to the inevitability of a long-drawn out struggle. The Russian leader shrewedly pointed out that whereas the Germans had formerly boasted of lightning blows now they were boasting of being able to slip away from encirclement in Africa and in Russia and to avoid another Stalingrad, a queer sort of boast for the Hitlerites. Stalin says it was probably the last thing the Germans could boast about.

The Russian leader warned about German babbling about peace because things were passing through a crisis in Germany. In reference to peace talk, Stalin pointed out Russia's resolute attitude that "only the utter routing of the Hitlerite armies and the unconditional surrender of Hitlerite Germany can bring peace to Europe."

Stalin explained that what was needed to smash Germany is another two or three powerful blows from the west and east for the catastrophe of Nazi Germany to become an accomplished fact. Therefore he sees a stern and hard struggle ahead for the Russian people and the Red Army and the Allies "for complete victory over the Hitlerite fiends." He has called for a demonstration of still greater strength by the Russian workers and farmers to supply Russia with more guns, tanks, aircraft, machine guns, mortars, ammunition, equipment and provisions. "In return for the confidence and solicitude of its people the Red Army must strike at the enemy still more strongly and exterminate mercilessly the German invaders and drive them incessantly out of the Soviet land."

It was a powerful speech by a great leader who sees victory ahead for he knows what his army has given and will give to crush what he calls "the Hitlerite fiends," and he also knows what Russia's allies will contribute towards the destruction of Hitlerism and Fascism.

Shorts for Civilians

(New York Herald Tribune)

The fact that the War Department, after long demur, on the ground that they were unmanly has sanctioned khaki shorts for United States troops in the tropics, brings it into line with other countries which have had more experience in compaigning in hot zones. The suggestion that Australians, New Zealanders, South Africans, Scottish or English who have carried on for decades in abbreviated service uniforms, lack military quality would be a bitter joke to those they have met and vanquished.

This great advance encourages a Southern newspaper, the Memphis Commercial Appeal, to predict that before long shorts will be generally worn in regions where par for summer temperature is often 100. It is suggested that men who have known the comparative comfort of shorts in the desert's fiery blasts will insist on wearing them when they come home, irrespective of the opinion of the neighbors.

Men's styles, therefore, after the war, may undergo changes which will be an improvement in common sense, even if some artistic sensibilities are damaged. Innumerable forms of insect life, which abound where weather is warm and moist probably will welcome the change too, as simplifying their subsistence problem. We hope it gets a trial, in any event.

Eighth Army

"One of the outstanding armies of all time" is the compliment given Montgomery's Eighth by Ernie Pyle, war correspondent in Tunisia for The New York World-Telegram. He says:

"Since Montgomery has chased Rommel all the way from Egypt in one of the great military achievements of history, it is only right that the British should have the kill.

"The Eighth Army is a magnificent organization. We correspondents have been thrilled by its perfection. So have our troops. It surely must be one of the outstanding armies of all time. We trailed it several days up the Tunisian coast, and we came to look upon it almost with awe.

"Its organization for continuous movement is so perfect that it seems more like a big business firm than a destructive army. The men of the Eighth are brown-skinned and white-eyebrowed from the desert sun. Most of them are in shorts and they are a healthy-looking lot. Their spirit is like a tonic. The spirit of our own troops is good, but these boys from the burning sands are throbbing with the vitality of conquerors.

"They are friendly, cocky and confident. They've been three years in the desert, and now they wear the expression of victory on their faces. We envy them and are proud of them."

War Frees Whales

Whales in the Antarctic are enjoying one of the four freedoms, freedom from fear, it is reported in Capetown, South Africa. Giant animals, of 400 tons weight, may have to fear the probing fingers of asdic devices — submarine detecting apparatus — as warships nose into icefloes, but they no longer fear the harpoons of whalers. In pre-war years perhaps 20 big whale factory ships would catch as many as 45,000 whales, yielding millions of barrels of precious oil. Last season saw possibly the last of this kind of whaling for the duration. Naval escorts cannot be spared.

JAPS' HYMN OF HATE

"The Japanese propaganda ministry is offering a prize for the best song of hate against the United States and Great Britain.—Tokyo dispatch."

A song of hate for Britain's King!
A song of hate for F.D.R.!
Well, Hirohito, here you are!

Sing it Nippon as you should:
Japs hate men whose word is good.
Japs hate Churchill's black cigar,
Japs have hate for F.D.R.

Japs hate smiling Yankee chaps
Who brought food to hungry Japs;
Rebuilt houses 'quake laid flat.
Japs hate Yankee boys for that!

Japs have hatred very deep.
Japs kill sailor boys asleep!
Japs hate open, brave attack.
Japs stick knife in old friend's back.

Leaflets on the Loan

By Stephen Leacock

The Happy Warrior

He came out to my house beside the lake — the most pleasant cheery man I ever saw. I knew him just a little bit, but I couldn't recall his name.

Stephen Leacock

"Canvassing for the Loan," he said, as he shook hands, "pretty strenuous going."

"Sit down," I said and showed him an easy chair on the verandah.

"A great spot you have here," he remarked, — "that's a pretty little bay."

"Yes," I said, "they call it The Old Brewery Bay."

"Well, well, The Old Brewery Bay!" he repeated, — that's a beautiful name! poetic, isn't it?"

That's what I judge my visitors by.

If they like the name Old Brewery Bay, they're all right. They can have anything on the place. Once a woman,—I won't say, a lady,—exclaimed, "Can't you change it? . . . . She got hers.

As a matter of fact I have known that name, The Old Brewery Bay, to make people feel thirsty by correspondence as far away as Nevada.

"Pretty strenuous business," repeated my friend the canvasser, as he sat comfortably down. But he didn't look strenuous either.

"Will you have a cigar?," I said.

"I certainly will," he answered, and then as he lit it,—

"Any fish in the bay?

Well, of course, that started us. We got talking of bass being right in the bay and out on the shoals in July, but always moving on in August. I told him there were lots of young pickerel in June, close in along shore, but you could never make them bite and he asked me if I'd ever tried a very small gilt and silver spinner for pickerel, and I asked him if he ever took Scotch whiskey.

That led to the question of trout fishing. If you don't see the connection it doesn't matter. But I agreed with him that now-a-days if you go trout fishing on the streams you've got to carry soda. You can't any longer drink the water in the creeks.

That led to the discussion of the way the fish are disappearing in the older settled parts of Ontario and that you have to go north now. So we went north, taking another cigar and another Scotch with us, —all the way up to Central Algoma.

Anyway, we spent a most pleasant hour or so. As my friend rose to go I suddenly remembered the Loan.

"You're canvassing for the Loan," I said.

"Yes," he answered, "from a special list. You're on it."

"That's all right," I said, "I took up my subscription yesterday at the bank."

"So they told me," he said.

These For Hitler

(New York Times)

The giant block-buster bomb is a black and ugly object, eight feet, four inches long, two feet, one inch thick. About 2,200 of its 4,000 pounds are TNT and newer, secret explosives, the rest are shell and fuses. Dropped from 20,000 feet it hits the ground at a speed of almost 600 miles an hour. It pulverizes whatever it strikes and buries itself deep.

Then it explodes. The blast lasts three one-hundredths of a second. First there is a tremendous outward pressure of hot gas, expanding at almost seven times the 1,089 feet a second sound travels. That lasts five one-thousands of a second. Then the gas cools, contracts, sucks everything back. That lasts twenty-five one-thousandths of a second.

The bomb case shatters into more than 6,000 fragments that fly at 4,000 to 7,000 feet a second, may spray for 7,000 feet. The explosion itself will smash everything within 120 feet of the bomb. Ground tremors may cause brick walls blocks away to collapse.

Hungarian Army Returns Home

New York, May 3 — (AP) — The Hungarian second army and its comander, Col.-Gen. Gustave Jany, arrived in Budapest Saturday from the Russian front at a time when Hitler has been demanding even more war aid from his Balkan partners.

A Budapest domestic broadcast reported by the Federal Communications Comission said Jany declared upon his return that his troops had served as "the rearguard of the rearguards" for the Germans during the winter retreat in Russia.

An indication of the number of Hungarians being withdrawn from Russia also was given by Premier Nocholas Kallay who, in greting the general and his troops, promised that the welfare of the returning army of "some 100,000" would have a first claim on the government because the soldiers had been "through hell."

LULL DEVELOPING

(The fact Italians were among the prisoners suggested that Fascist units had been returned to the west front to supplement Nazi lines after a brief rest, since it was announced at headquarters Thursday that enemy troops facing the British 1st. Army and the Americans at that time were composed entirely of Germans).

Although the Germans are in overwhelming majority in the area and are putting up most of the resistance, Italians are still being left behind to be rounded up.

American bombers assaulted an enemy tank formation on the Tunis road east of Medjez-El-Bab and the pilots said they observed four explosions. British artillery collaborated with the airmen, shelling the enemy column as it manoeuvred four miles west of Massicault.

R.A.F. Hurribombers dumped explosives on enemy troops three miles west of Tebourba, itself 18 miles west of Tunis, and army officers who observed the attack sent the airmen compliments on their accuracy.

Despite bad weather, a few attacks were made on other targets. Three enemy planes were shot down through Saturday night and yesterday. Two Allied aircraft failed to return.

You're Not The Only One With Troubles

(Montreal Herald)

It might be best to count ten before starting to complain of the inconveniences war has brought to civilians in Canada.

Our soldiers, sailors and airmen experience inconveniences, too, and danger that most of us have never known and never will know.

Certain foods are rationed here, but right now the Greeks are getting but 250 calories a day (we plan on something over 3,000) . . . there's a one-egg-a-month allotment in Paris . . . in Norway some have actually had to resort to eating tree bark . . . Bread made of chaff and cornmeal sells for $22.60 a loaf in Greece.

And there are some of us who complain of having to carry ration books to a store, where food can actually be bought at comparatively reasonable prices.

Perhaps we do have to stand and wait for a tram or a bus, but at least we do have trams and busses.

In occupied Europe there is little if any transportation for civilians . . . Most Hollanders have been deprived of their bicycles to meet the Nazi need for metal, rubber. Every man is his own transportation system if his shoes are hp to it.

And yet we hear people bickering about standing on trains, being crowded on busses, complaining because a butcher cannot give them a desired cut of meat or all the butter they ask for.

Around the globe everyone has troubles these days. Most of them are real troubles. Having a little problem doesn't make one unique. Making the best of it does.

The Coal Crisis

New York, May 3—John L. Lewis did not call a strike of the coal miners. The miners, who are 100 per cent organized, have always refused to work without a contract. Their contract expired at midnight on Friday, April 30, and, unless a new one has been negotiated before this article appears, they will have quit work automatically.

John L. Lewis has not refused to negotiate. He opened negotiations with the operators weeks ago. Unable to come to an agreement with them, he refused to submit the case to the War Labor Board. The operators, on the contrary, insisted that it be submitted to the W. L. B., and have made no proposals of counter-proposals to the United Mine Workers. In this particular case, it is Mr. Lewis who is standing for agreement between workers and employers with no "Government interference."

So together Mr. Lewis and the operators collaborated to bring about drastic Government interference.

Mr. Lewis was an initiator of the War Labor Board. But later he split the U. M. W. from the C. I. O., and since then has considered the board prejudiced because of C. I. O. members on it. Mr. Lewis's hates are notorious. When the split came he expelled from the U. M. W. Messrs. Murray, Bittner, and Brophy, all of whom are on the board. Mr. Kennedy, secretary-treasurer of the U. M. W., who was also on the board, resigned, as directed by Mr. Lewis.

Agreement Signed in 1941.

There is no reason to think the miners would not get a break from the W. L. B. Mr. Kennedy, when he sat on the board, often passed on cases involving rival unions, and there was no complaint. The coal miners have a case, and it is probable that an impartial board would give them concessions.

The agreement, signed in 1941 and now expired, called for a five-day week in the mines. In normal times, the problem of the miners is to distribute enough work. It is rare that they get a five-day week the year around. Late this fall, Mr. Ickes found he needed increased coal production, and asked the miners to agree to a six-day week. They did, with time and a half for the sixth day. The operators agreed, with the proviso that O.P.A. lift the ceiling price on coal to cover the increased labor costs. This was done, adding 13.5 cents per ton to the consumer's price in the biggest coal district.

This price increase was specifically granted for labor costs, but the miners complain that some mines are being worked six days without the workers getting six days' work through a system of shifts. This gives the increase, they say, to the operators, not the workers.

The proposal for portal to portal pay has difficulties recognized by both miners and operators. Some men spend an hour or more getting to and from their work. Others do not. In some mines the time is much longer than in others.

Question of Showdown.

Mr. Lewis wants the six-hour day with time and a half for the sixth put into the new contract. The operators had not accepted this—as of Friday. Apparently the operators want the matter to be settled by W.L.B. because a ruling of W.L.B. as an authoritative Government agency will give them a basis to negotiate for another price rise. Maybe, also, they want the Government forced to a showdown with John L. Lewis. In fact, I think this is the point.

A standing commission, if acceptable to Mr. Lewis, and the operators might be created to keep the coal situation stabilized. There are precedents for such commissions, for instance in shipbuilding.

Basic Wage $1 An Hour.

The basic wage of the miners is $1 an hour. Some fall over or under this level. Coal mining is skilled work, and miners do not shift from one industry to another. Under the expired contract the miners' wages amounted to about $50 a week. The miners' discontent is not wholly due to increased cost of living. Their youthful sons and daughters, without any skills, are going off to defence plants and coming home with $70 to $80 dollars weekly. They think it's a strange world where a man who has spent his life acquiring a skill, and working in a dangerous trade under bad conditions of dampness and dark cannot earn what a youngster blithely collects in another trade.

The United Miners contracts all contain a no-strike clause. They never strike during the life of a contract. They simply stop working until they get one.

Between John L. Lewis' obstinacy and overweening vanity, and the operators' aloof intention to force the W.L.B. to settle the matter, we have a menace to the whole war effort. The President, who God knows has enough on his mind, has to intervene and settle it. I am sure he will bear in mind the miners themselves, who are soldiers of industry risking their lives even in time of peace.

QUARANTINE

Quarantine is derived from Italian "quaranta," meaning simply "forty."

The term became associated with health regulations requiring isolation in the 12th century when Venice compelled ships suspected of being infected with contagious diseases to lie off port for 40 days to prevent communication of the disease to the people of the city.

The idea of quarantine in the sense of isolating persons suspected of having a communicable disease is very ancient. The laws of Moses, for instance, required that a person suspected of having leprosy should be shut up seven days and examined at seven-day intervals by the priests until the suspect was pronounced clean or unclean.

At first applied to the detention of ships, "quarantine" was next applied to the detention and isolation of travellers suspected of having the plague.

Today the quarantine of cases of contagious diseases is one of the important principles of preventive medicine.

The time of quarantine varies with conditions, diseases and local health regulations and laws.

Placards warning others and the disinfection of the quarters occupied by those under quarantine are required in many cases.

Quarantine regulations come under the police powers of the state and are now often applied to animals, plants and even goods to prevent the spread of disease and pests.

What Americans call an "isolation ward" in a hospital is called a "quarantine ward" by the British.

In the early church a penance or fast of 40 days was known as quarantine, and an indulgence corresponding to such a penance is still called quarantine in the Roman Catholic Church.

According to the English common law, quarantine was a period of 40 days during which a widow entitled to a dower could continue to live in her deceased husband's chief mansion house. For instance, Sir Edward Coke wrote: "If she (the widow) marry within the forty days she loseth her quarantine."

$1,500 Damage Caused by Fire In George St. Home

Believed to have started as the result of a defective chimney, fire which had gained a considerable start before the fire department were called, caused approximately $1,500 damage at 59 South George Street shortly after the noon hour on Saturday.

Walls and partitions in the lower storey of the frame dwelling were seriously gutted by the flames while furniture in the lower part of the house was also considerably damaged by fire and water. The house was owned by Mrs. Annie Jenner who, with an aged lady, was living on the ground floor. Household contents upstairs were not damaged by fire but received slight water damage, it was reported.

Practically the whole lower floor of the dwelling was on fire upon the arrival of the fire department, according to Fire Chief William Lynch. The blaze had gained egress between the partitions and had spread to all parts of the lower floor. Heat had become so intense that windows were cracking when firemen arrived at the scene. The same house was damaged to the extent of $700 when fire broke out last Autumn, it was stated.

The house owned by Mrs. Jenner, and the downstairs contents were covered by insurance, while there was no insurance on upstairs contents.

Australia May Cut Wheat Acreage

Sydney, May 3 — (CP Cable) — Reduced supplies of superphosphates and lack of manpower may lead to a federal decision to order a reduction in the acreage to be sown for wheat in Australia this season, it was learned today.

Probably local wheat committees will be consulted on the best means of effecting a reduction. Last year's reduction in wheat sowings was on a voluntary basis except in Western Australia where an all-round 30 per cent reduction was fixed.

One of the determining factors in the new proposed reduction will be Australia's large wheat holdover, amounting to 207,000,000 bushels.

Eight varied compositions were played on the church organ by Mr. Gordon, recognized locally as being an outstanding organist in the district, while Mrs. Phyllis Barkley, well-known Belleville vocalist favored with a number of delightful solos.

Staged in aid of the Chinese War Relief Fund, the vocal renditions by Mrs. Barkley were in keeping with the occasion with several songs and melodies of Chinese origin being sung by Mrs. Barkley. Included were the nursery rhymes, "Lady Bug." "The Mouse" and "The Old Woman," while other numbers sung by Mrs. Barkley were "Oh, That We Two Were Maying," by Nevin and "Morning."

Proceeds from a silver collection taken during the recital were $91.85 with other contributions on behalf of the fund being made directly to Mr. Gordon.

Charges U.S. Censorship Obscures Truth About War From Americans

San Francisco, May 3 (AP) — Father Bernard R. Hubbard, Arctic explorer on leave from the staff of Santa Clara University, charged United States censorship "has totally obscured the truth about this war from the American people," in a speech before the All Year Explorers' Club last night.

He said that because of this the American people had failed to see the seriousness of the war against Japan, and "announcement of the Germany-first policy amounted to an invitation to the Japs to go ahead and do what they liked."

In fact, "if the Japs stay in the Aleutians much longer they'll be able to take out first citizenship papers," he declared.

Coast Guard Cutter Destroys U-Boat

Washington, May 3 (AP). — A United States Coast Guard cutter sank a German U-boat off the Carolina coast several months ago, the navy reported today, and captured 33 members of the crew, including the commanding officer.

Another officer and 31 men made up the group captured. The prisoners were taken to Charleston, S.C., and presumably now are being held in a United States prison camp although the navy did not comment on their present disposition.

Destruction of the U-boat and the capture of the prisoners was achieved by the 165-foot cutter Icarus which depth-charged the sub and then raked its deck with gunfire when it was forced to the surface.

Immediately afterward the undersea raider began to sink and members of its crew who had sought to man a deck gun jumped into the sea.

These were the men picked up by the Icarus. The rest went down with their ship.

The cutter was on routine run southward from New York when the sub was detected prowling along under the sea.

This was the first time the navy has announced the capture of prisoners from a German submarine.

PRODUCTION LOSS IS 'UNNECESSARY'

Louis Fine, Conciliation Officer, Hands Down Decision at Ford Plant

Windsor, Ont., May 3 (CP)—Loss of production at the Ford Motor Company's plant here during a work stoppage April 23 and 24 was described as "unnecessary" in an arbitration decision in the dispute, made public today.

The decision accepted yesterday by the United Automobile Workers of America (C.I.O.), dealt with two points at issue in the dispute. It was made by Louis Fine, chief conciliation officer of the Ontario Department of Labor.

Mr. Fine ruled that with hoisting equipment now installed in one section of Ford plant No. 2, one operator can work two machines. The Union had protestedp asking one man to do the work formerly done by two on the grounds it was too heavy for one man. He also ruled that Jack Empey, a foreman in plant No. 4 who had been booed by workers, should not be dismissed or disciplined but that grievances in his department should be considered by some other individual.

Nixon Denies Paper Report

Toronto, May 3. (CP)—Harry C. Nixon, newly-elected leader of the Liberal Party in Ontario, said today he "will consult with friendly sources of information" before reaching a decision on a general election in the province.

The former provincial secretary, who was elected leader at a convention of the Ontario Liberal Association last week, denied a report that he would call a caucus of Liberal M.P.P.'s shortly to discuss an election.

"I'm in no position yet to make up my mind on the question of an election but I certainly will consult with friendly sources of information before anything is done at all," said Mr. Nixon. "But it must be remembered that we have not come to that point yet. Mr. Conant is still Premier".

Boeing Aircraft Employees to Vote

Vancouver, May 3 —(CP)— Employees of Boeing Aircraft of Canada Ltd., idle since last Wednesday morning because of a dispute over rest periods, will be asked at a mass meeting today to vote on a proposal to return to work.

A policy embodying a "back to work" suggestion was drawn up at a meeting of shop stewards and executive of Aeronautical Mechanics Lodge No. 756 (A.F.L.) which met last night and continued deliberations almost until dawn.

Other points in the program suggested the accumulation of additional information for a royal commission which the Union has requested be appointed to investigate conditions at the plants, and the sending of a delegation to Ottawa to press for establishment of a commission.

Both were none the worse for their experience.

MAN-POWER DRIVE BY NAZIS FAILS

Germans Reported as Trying to Raise Army Among Russian Prisoners

Stockholm, May 3 (AP)—The German High Command, according to reports from usually trustworthy sources, is so pressed for men that it is now trying to raise an army of 300,000 to 500,000 among captured Russian soldiers and civilians in the occupied Baltic states under a former Soviet general now in Nazi hands.

The proposed force, it was said, would include only those "thought to be reliable from the Nazi point of view."

German reports indicated the Nazi drive for total mobilization of the Reich has failed to provide as much man-power as had been expected.

Disappointing Step

The Frankfurter Zeitung said the closing of stores, business houses, small workshops and restaurants in Germany "did not free as many workers for the armament industry as was at first thought possible."

The captured Russian General, Andreia A. Vlasov, who was taken prisoner by the Germans at Kiev early in the war, was said by reports reaching here to have "shown an inclination to talk business" after two interviews with Hitler, who persuaded him that the sole aim of the Nazis was to "free Russia of Stalin."

Say Only Few Respond

Meanwhile Gen. Just, former military attache at Kaunas, was reported to have asked for Lithuanian volunteers for the German army, but it was said that only a few had responded thus far to the appeal for a force to be used against Soviet Russia.

A scant 150 Lithuanians were reported to have paraded in a special review of "volunteers" before Hitler despite the fact that Gestapo Chief Henrich Himmler instituted "stern measures," including the closing of the university at Kaunas, on March 16, to whip up the total.

Nazi attempts to raise fighting men for the Axis forces in neighboring Estonia has had "some success," the reports reaching here said.

Nazi Commission Now Makes Claim Berlin Asserts

New York, May 3. (AP)—A German commission reputed to have been drawn from 12 countries—all but one conquered or dominated by the Axis—was reported by the Berlin radio today to have claimed that Polish officers, who the Nazis alleged were killed by the Russians and buried near Smolensk, were shot in March and April of 1940, more than a year before Germany invaded Russia.

"Seven of the mass graves have been opened and from them 982 corpses were recovered and examined", the broadcast, recorded by The Associated Press said. "An inquest was held on the part of the bodies, 70 per cent of which were identified. The cause of death was due to shooting in the nape of the neck".

The German propaganda agencies played the story with all stops, continuing to exploit the rupture of relations with the London Polish government by Russia.

Moscow has charged that the Germans killed the Polish officers after they captured the Smolensk area in 1941. It was presumably to answer this Moscow charge that the Germans today came through with the claim that the deaths had occurred in 1940. It was not stated how the commission could establish the date of death so long afterwards. Nor did the Germans explain why the graves were discovered so recently.

The German-selected commission was announced after the International Red Cross refused German and Polish requests to investigate the alleged mass murders.

The Berlin radio claimed the commission was composed of "leading representatives of the judiciary, medical and criminal board from European universities, and other famous medical men".

Only one of the 12 countries from which the Germans asserted the board was drawn was neutral. That country was Switzerland, but other sources said the Swiss on the commission was a resident of Germany.

The other countries are under German domination or outright occupation Belgium, Denmark, Bulgaria, Finland, Italy, Croatia, The Netherlands, the Protectorate of Bohemia and Moravia, Rumania, Slovakia and Hungary.

Their findings were read to newspaper reporters at the German foreign office.

Increases were recorded in the three Southern Ontario systems and the Northern Ontario properties, while the Thunder Bay system dropped slightly. The total primary load demand on all four H. E. P. C. systems and the northern properties during March was 2,250,946 horsepower.

93,300 Tons Lost By Jap Shipping To Allies in April

Somewhere in New Guinea, May 2—(Delayed) (AP)—Allied bombers sank, otherwise destroyed or damaged 93,300 tons of Japanese shipping during April—a month marked by almost incessant bad weather prohibiting large-scale attacks.

Allied air officers, making this report today, disclosed additionally that heavy bombers, fighter planes and anti-aircraft batteries destroyed 68 enemy planes during the month and probably destroyed 28 more.

Of the 93,300 tons of shipping lost by the enemy, 27,500 tons were sunk or destroyed and 65,800 damaged to bring the grand total of Japanese vessels sunk, destroyed or damaged in this sector to 654,980 tons since last August, which marked the start of air operations from the New Guinea area.

The Japanese ship losses for April included vessels of all classes, but the large majority were merchantmen. No Allied heavy bombers was lost in combat during the month.

In Japan's heavy April raids against Port Moresby, Oro Bay and Milne Bay, New Guinea, and through Allied attacks on enemy bases, 26 bombers, 36 fighters and six dive-bombers were destroyed.

Ottawa, May 3 —(CP)— Army subscriptions to the Fourth Victory Loan during the first week of the three-week campaign ending May 15 totalled $5,397,150 — 103 per cent of the army's minimum objective of $5,265,000 in the $1,100,000,000 campaign, Defence Headquarters announced today.

"The committee extends its hearty congratulations to the soldiers from coast to coast, said J. H. Crang, chairman of the army's loan committee. "Doubling the total of the third loan is a real achievement, and we are confident the army will continue its fine work during the remaining two weeks."

Fitzgerald, to Richard Leo McAvoy, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Jas. McAvoy, Stirling. Rev. Father Brady officiated. Miss Anita Buckley played the wedding music and Miss Mary Calver assisted the choir.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was gowned in an ivory satin frock fashioned with long sleeves and sweetheart neckline. A tiny white flowered hat and veil completed her ensemble. She carried a cascade of Johanna Hill roses.

Miss Bessie Fitzgerald, Belleville, was her sister's bridesmaid, wearing Queen blue taffeta made on bouffant style and a small pink hat and veil. Her flowers were a cascade of pink roses. Mr. Bernard Bond, Picton was groomsman.

LEE—PECK

Calla lilies formed the lovely background for the marriage in the Church of St. Michael the Archangel this morning at nine o'clock, of Dorothy Jean Peck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Peck, Carrying Place, to Staff Sergeant Joseph I. Lee, R.O.O.C., Kingston, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. O. Lee, of this city, with the Rev. Monsignor Nicholson, performing the ceremony. Mrs. Grant presided at the console of the organ.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attractively attired in aqua green with corsage of Talisman roses, while Miss Ethel Lee, sister of the groom and the only attendant, was in gold with corsage of Briarcliffe roses. Carl J. Casey was groomsman and Elmer G. LaBarr, brother-in-law of the bride, acted as usher.

Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was held at the bride's home in Carrying Place. The bride's mother received the guests gowned in black and white matlese crepe with corsage of Better Times roses, assisted by the groom's mother in a black and white ensemble with corsage of Briarcliffe roses.

For the wedding trip to Toronto and western points the bride donned a blue wool jersey frock with beige coat and brown accessories. On their return they will reside in Kingston.

Ladies Auxiliary Of Sons of Jacob Hostesses at "Y"

Members of the Women's Auxiliary to the Sons of Jacob Synagogue were charming hostesses to the Armed Forces yesterday in connection with the "Y" Open House Program. Under the convenership of Mrs. Ted Schwab, President, they served delicious refreshments both at the tea hour and following the evening concert.

About 150 participated in the afternoon activities of games, bowling, swimming etc, with both men and women of the Air Force and Army, and men of the Navy present. About 50 young ladies, members of the "Y" Hospitality Club acted as partners for the guests.

The evening concert was well attended, the gymnasium being filled to enjoy one of the best programs presented this season. The arrangements for the program were in the hands of Mr. Ted Schwab, and included song and dance numbers by Joyce Cooper, sleight of hand tricks, and electric guitar selections by "Danny Boy" Smith, readings from George Cornish, trumpet quartettes by four pupils of Jack Green — Billy Shaw, John Fenn, David Lockyer, and Douglas Barlow, and selections on the piano by a young Englishman, who formerly played the organ in a moving picture house in England and who is in Canada for training in the Air Force, Don Hill. Mrs. Plumpton and Mrs. Smith conducted the sing song in their usual high class manner.

The devotion period to close the evening was taken by Rev. Ralph Spencer of Tabernacle Church, with Mrs. Duff at the piano. His talk was appropriate to the spring season and effective in its presentation. The thanks of the Association to all who assisted in making the day a success was expressed by Ed. Shortt, Program Secretary.

A duet was enjoyed by Helen and Irene Hall with guitar accompaniment. The topic entitled "Opportunity Avenue" was given by Mary Emmerson. Guitar and mouth-organ music was given by Ralph Wilder and a reading by Ileen Carleton brought the meeting to a close. A flower contest and a quiz was then enjoyed and the hostess served candy.

Shorts Are Poor Taste on the Street

If these two girls could only see themselves as other people see them—walking down the street with shorts on. Such apparel worn on public streets is considered poor taste by those who always know the correct thing to do.

Shorts are fine, perfectly all right, but at the beach or resort, and there only—never on a downtown street.

Remember your manners are all that strangers can see.

You make such a poor impression, out with a party, if you attempt to hail taxis or open doors yourself—but such a good impression if you let the men in the group do those things for you.

Then, knowing what's correct on special occasions you receive special invitations; At a formal affair you precede your beau in the reception line; with a theatre party you wait for your host to suggest your place.

Our 32-page booklet has all the important Do's and Don'ts for graceful social life. Tells how to date, behave at dances, games, the theatre; what to say at introductions, invitations.

COUNTRY GALS even more than city children need a useful all-around coat. Plain beige and brown wool is used for a beautifully tailored, fitted coat with a detachable hood lined in brown.

Breadner, Anderson Visit Pacific Coast

Ottawa, May 3 — (CP) — Air Marshal L. S. Breadner, Chief of the Air Staff, and Air Vice-Marshal N. R. Anderson, who, as air member for Air Staff, is responsible for the Dominion's air defences, returned over the week-end from a two-week tour of the Pacific Coast, which included a visit to R. C. A. F. units serving with the United States Army Air Force in Alaska, Air Force Headquarters announced last night.

"There is no one who can say that any force is competent to meet any threat," said Air Marshal Breadner, "but it can be said that our forces on the Pacific Coast are adequate to meet the presently apprehended scales of enemy operations."

The Chief of the Air Staff went as far as Kodiak, Alaska, but weather conditions prevented scheduled visits farther along the Aleutian chain.

Units Highly Regarded

Air Marshal Breadner declared: "Despite the fact that some of the personnel, because of the difficulties of travel, have not had leave for almost a year, they are happy, fit, efficient and ready to take on anything that may come their way.

"Our units, operating under the Commanding General of the United States Army Air Forces in that area, are competently carrying out any tasks assigned to them and they are very highly regarded by the U.S. Command."

Throughout the entire Pacific coast area, he said, there has been considerable improvement in defences. New equipment was moving in steadily and there was a high number of fully-trained crews ready for the newer and larger aircraft continually coming to them.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Widow's Letters Addressed as if Husband is Alive

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am making out my list of relatives and friends to whom I am going to send some birth-announcements.

1. How is an envelope addressed to a widow?

2. In cases where the husband is serving with the armed forces should the envelope be addressed to the wife only?

T. A.

1. To a widow the envelope should be addressed as it was when her husband was living . . . Mrs. John Robinson. (It should never be addressed to Mrs. Mary Robinson.)

2. Even if the husband is stationed far-away in the Service, I would, if I were you, address the announcement envelope to both him and his wife. The omission of his name would not give the proper impression of courtesy on your part, and I am sure the wife would be pleased to have his name included. Also she might include in her next letter to him both the announcement-card and envelope. Then he would be pleased and proud that you "remembered" him.

Dressing for 5 p.m. Wedding

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My son, who is in the Army, is to be married in a church on some Sunday soon. The ceremony is to be at 5 p.m. and a reception is to follow. The bride's mother and I are uncertain as to whether we should wear long or street-length dresses. Will you tell us, please?

J.N.

You and the bride's mother may wear floor-length dresses if the wedding is to be on the formal side and if you find it convenient. But if the wedding is to be rather informal, as most weddings are today, or if there is any question of convenience transportation and so forth, street-length dresses or ensembles will be proper. But choose your accessories carefully . . . hat, gloves, shoes, purse and so forth . . . for they are especially in the limelight with today's street-length dresses for the "mothers."

Proper Return Address

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please give me the correct form of name for a married woman to use when she writes her name and return-address on an envelope?

N. A.

Since this name written on the envelope is for information and identification, she should use her formal name . . . Mrs. John Smith.

Tip on Letter-Writing

It's too easy to fall into the habit of writing postscripts to letters . . . in fact some people whose minds haven't the pleasant characteristic of orderliness depend on postscripts to say perhaps the most important thing that they "meant to say" in their letters. How much more all of us appreciate the letter that shows evidence composition — a graceful compliment to us.

LOVE ACROSS THE SEA

The Army's 69-cent cable messages, which can be sent to any soldier overseas by the mere transmission of a code number, have some interesting gradations on love notes. The scale runs like this:

26.	Greetings.
29.	Love.
31.	All my love.
32.	All my love dearest.
42.	Kisses.
43.	Love and kisses.
44.	Fondest love and kisses.
45.	Well.

Items of Interest For Women

If you use a clothes-horse for drying small articles, it is especially important in these days to remember to go over it every now and then with sandpaper to remove possible splinters. Even though you faithfully daily dip your sheer rayon stockings and fine undies to keep them new-looking longer, one small splinter can do them desperate damage. To make the clothes-horse exceptionally safe, the next time you sandpaper it give it a glossy finish afterwards with the remains of one of those old tins of shiny paint that most households possess. It will look much smarter and you need no longer fear dangerous rough patches.

Summer Fashion Reminders

When you are planning your summer wardrobe, you'll find it worth remembering:

That modern rayons drape and hang just as well as silk, are perfect for afternoon-into-evening dresses.

That in hot weather in town thin dark fabrics look cooler and smarter than bright colours, but that nothing looks quite as cool and charming as pale grey.

That on the beach, or in strong sunlight anywhere, plain clear colours are smarter and more effective than prints.

That for work in offices or indoors, prints are good because they show creases less.

That white accessories will make your whole wardrobe hang together, that plain white shoes are less trouble to clean than white-and-coloured ones, that white handbags are useless unless they are "spongeable."

That tailored styles are smarter than frilly ones for printed silks and rayons.

That frocks buttoning all the way down the front will be the joy of your life.

That the popular pastel shades depend on spotless freshness for their charm, must be dipped frequently in gentle fine-fabric "suds that are safe for anything safe in water alone."

That pleats are apt to be troublesome, gored or flared skirts more practical.

That stockingless feet are more comfortable in fabric shoes.

That very short gloves look charming with very short sleeves.

That white woollen sweaters, widely ribbed, look wonderful on tanned skin.

That wide-brimmed hats are becoming, save you from eyestrain and are popular with the men.

Handkerchief Washing

What with the present variable Spring weather, and any number of colds floating around, this seems the right time of year to remind you that washing handkerchiefs is much less unpleasant and laborious if they are soaked beforehand in a solution of common salt and cold water. This dissolves the mucus and it is then only necessary to pop them into some rich suds that give the "whitest wash" and float the dirt away without hard rubbing or scrubbing. When soaking, use two ounces of salt to a quart of water.

Binding Ends Sweater Gaps

Cardigan sweaters that are developing gap-itis down the front can be fixed up with satin blanket binding. Use it to rebind the neck and front. Make buttonholes in the binding on one side and sew the buttons on the other; the added width will relieve the strain on the sweater. This sort of binding comes in a wide variety of colours, but if you can't find an exact match, use a binding that contrasts with the colour of the sweater. Be sure, of course, to test it for colourfastness before sewing it on the sweater, so that you will have no cause to worry about the colours running when the times comes to dip it in mild, safe suds that "won't shrink woollens."

WEEKLY WARTIME NUTRITION HINTS

by Martha Logan

Stew Can be Glorified

Delicious and nutritionally tops, stew is economical in its use of cheaper meat cuts

It's such a pity that some people still don't appreciate stew! And such a mistake! At its best, stew is a dish for a king, besides which it has an important niche in the patriotic housewife's wartime menu, both because it uses the thriftier cuts, (not to mention leftovers), and because it offers a good way of meeting her family meat and vegetable requirements in one succulent dish. So, here we give four basic rules which will help you turn your stews into the family's favourite dinner.

FIRST—Brown the meat. Cut it into serving portions or cubes and brown in hot lard or beef dripping.

THIRD—Don't overcook vegetables. Add the potatoes, the diced carrots and turnips, which are so good in stew, and the onions after the meat has simmered well. The vegetables will be nutritionally more valuable if the stew is served as soon as they are cooked. And don't hesitate to add celery, peas, string beans, mushrooms and other interesting vegetables that are on hand.

FOURTH—Experiment with flavourings. A bay leaf or a pinch of sage or thyme or a teaspoonful of Worcester sauce or ketchup : : : any of these can go a long way toward transforming plain stew into a culinary triumph.

BUY THESE THRIFTY MEATS FOR STEW
LAMB: Neck and Shank . . . VEAL: Shoulder and Neck . . : BEEF: Flank, Shank, Chuck, Rump and Brisket.

And now, let's see where stew stands nutritionally. A good lamb, beef or veal stew made as above, with potatoes, diced carrots and turnips added, will take care of our minimum daily requirement of meat and part of our vegetable requirement. The other yellow or green leafy vegetable might be served at the same meal as a salad.

Then, with a slice or two of Canada Approved bread each, to soak up the gravy, and a glass of milk, you will have a meal that supplies so much of your family's basic needs that the balance (citrus or tomato juices—more bread—whole grain cereal—one other fruit) can safely be left to the other two meals.

NAZIS ABANDON EFFORT TO EXPAND THEIR BRIDGEHEAD

Six-Day Drive in Kuban Sector Said to Have Cost 7,000 Nazis

NO FRONT CHANGES

Moscow, May 3—(AP)—Red Army artillery raked German positions in the Kuban sector of the Western Caucasus throughout the night although the Soviet midnight communique announced that German efforts to expand their bridgehead in that region had been abandoned after a six-day drive in which the Nazis lost 7,000 men.

The mid-day communique said the Russian shellfire killed 200 more of the enemy, and that 16 mortar and artillery batteries were silenced and 10 German blockhouses were destroyed.

A violent spring air struggle continued along the entire Russian front as Soviet bombers and fighters sought to disrupt any German plans for an offensive.

While announcing that there were "no significant changes" on the front, the Russian noon communique did report that a battalion of German infantry attempted to storm the Soviet defence line south of Chuguev on the Donets River front, southeast of Kharkov.

However, Soviet infantrymen met the attack firmly and with the aid of artillery beat back the Germans to their original positions, the bulletin said.

A skirmish was reported on the northwestern front, where Soviet troops were said to have thrown back numerically superior forces, otherwise little action was reported in the communique.

Order Is Revoked "Freezing" Coal

Ottawa, May 3—(CP) — Shortly after John L. Lewis, United Mine Workers President, announced in New York last night that a two-week agreement has been made with the government ending the work stoppage in the United States anthracite and bituminous coal fields, the Munitions Department announced it had revoked an order issued previously Sunday freezing all anthracite coal in transit from the United States or in stockpiles in Canada.

There was no immediate announcement regarding the order of last Friday, freezing all bituminous coal in transit from the United States and regulating deliveries in Ontario and Quebec.

Both orders had been issued by J. McG. Stewart, coal controller.

Reported Nixon May Call Caucus Over Election

'Strong Exception' Taken to Calling of Election at This Time

CLOSED MEETING

Toronto, May 3. (CP)—The Globe and Mail said in a newspage story today that Harry C. Nixon, newly-chosen Ontario Liberal Party leader, told his followers at a dinner Saturday that he "will shortly call a caucus of legislature members to discuss the holding of a general provincial election."

The paper said the dinner, closed to the Press, was attended by 50 members of the Ontario Legislature and Hon. W. P. Mulock, postmaster-general. One of those in attendance was Hon. T. B. McQuesten, provincial highways minister, who was an opponent of Mr. Nixon's in Friday's balloting for leadership at the Liberal Convention here.

The Globe and Mail said it was learned that "strong exception" was taken at the meeting to the calling of an election at this time. It adds Thomas Blakelock (Lib. Halton) said he had two sons on active service and "could not go across the province campaigning for election with their lives endangered when the invasion (of Europe) took place".

King Sends Message

The paper added:

"A telegram of good wishes was read to the meeting from Prime Minister King addressed to Mr. Nixon, in which the Ottawa Liberal leader expressed his pleasure at the closing party ranks and indicated that there ought to be an election soon. It was the reading of the telegram that evoked the speech from Mr. Blakelock. . .

"There was little formal discussion on the question of an election that it was made clear to those assembled, it was learned, that Prime Minister King advised an election within three months.

"Members of the legislature who had voted for a further extension for another year, it was learned, still have no wish to have an election called. Since they are on record as favoring an extension, they are bound to continue their opposition to an election, one member told this newspaper.

"Another member of the legislature revealed that the plan was to have an election in Ontario and then, if Mr. Nixon were successful, have a general election for the Dominion.

"'I am against us being a trial balloon for King', that member told this newspaper".

QUAKE LOSER SUES

Miranda Gomez, manager of Gomez Brothers, has brought the first earthquake suit ever filed in Mexico City. He contends that faulty construction caused a wall of an adjoining building to crash against his company's warehouse during the quake that shook the city for five minutes. Merchandise was damaged to the extent of $1,800, he avers. The building owner argues that the crash, like the earthquake, was "an act of God."

Drink Fish to Survive

(By J. P. McEvoy in The Reader's Digest)

It is hard to believe now that old sea dogs never suspected that fish are both food and drink. Indeed, it's hard to believe that, with the sea teeming with fish, people adrift in lifeboats have starved just because nobody ever thought of making compact and practical fishing tackle standard equipment for lifeboats. It remained for Gifford Pinchot, former governor of Pennsylvania, to tell the army, the navy and the merchant marine about fish and fishing tackle.

In 1942 Pinchot read about three navy fliers who drifted for 34 days in the Pacific on a rubber raft. They survived principally because they caught two birds and three fish.

"The story set me thinking," said Pinchot. "I have done a lot of deep sea fishing and I know that small fish gather for food or shelter under any floating object like a boat, a patch of seaweed or any kind of wreckage. Big fish follow after their little brothers to eat them up. With proper fishing tackle these men could have taken fish in plenty. Why shouldn't all lifeboats carry fishing tackle?"

Pinchot talked with survivors from torpedoed ships. Their experiences varied, but on one point all were agreed: It wasn't the exposure or hunger that was so terrible—it was the agonizing thirst.

Pinchot knew that a fish's body is composed largely of water. Why shouldn't this water, or juice, be good to drink? Raw fish is not salty and is good to eat. He had eaten it himself in the south seas.

Pinchot went shopping for a fresh water fish.

"We cut off a slab," says Pinchot, "riced it and wrapped some of the fish rice in cheesecloth. We took hold of the ends and twisted. A slightly pinkish liquid began to drip out. We tasted it. It was sweet, with only the faintest suggestion of fish about it. Even by this crude method 12 per cent of the weight of the fish was turned into juice. Using a small hand press, we got twice that much."

Pinchot carried his fish juice to Capt. (now Admiral) C. S. Stephenson, of the naval bureau of medicine and surgery. This old salt was willing to be convinced. So was Secretary of the Navy Knox. Many government organizations now started investigating fish juice.

Two seamen from a United States cruiser volunteered to drink no water for ten days and live for that time on the equivalent of ordinary "abandon ship" rations and fish juice. The two seamen came through the ten day test in perfect health.

But how Pinchot wondered, could castaways in lifeboats squeeze the juice from fish? You couldn't equip every boat with a fish press. Pinchot wrote to Charles Nordhoff of "Mutiny on the Bounty" fame. Had the native Tahitians ever used fish juice Nordhoff replied, "The Polynesians say that a man can get along for a good while without water by chewing the flesh of fish and spitting out most of the solid matter."

"So," says Pinchot, "no press is needed to squeeze the fish; every man has his own fish water press. Before long I hope every seaman will know that, in a pinch, he can 'drink' raw fish—and eat it, also."

Pinchot was now determined that adequate tackle should be provided for every one of our men who might at any time be cast adrift on the sea. The navy aeronautical bureau ordered 50,000 sets of fishing tackle, made up according to Pinchot's suggestions, for the collapsible rubber boats carried on planes. A special naval board designated to investigate lifeboat equipment recommended that 33,000 more sets of fishing tackle be supplied immediately for lifeboats and life rafts on naval vessels.

Several deep sea fishing experts worked with Pinchot in devising a compact, all-around deep sea fishing kit that weighs less than five pounds for lifeboats and liferafts and half of that for the collapsible rubber boats on over water planes. There are twelve items in the larger kit—ranging from hooks and line and leads, and specially processed pork rind bait that won't spoil, to feather jigs, a grapple for snagging fish and a small harpoon head which can be attached to an oar and used to spear sharks, turtles and birds that come near the boat. There are also a dip net to catch small fish for bait or food and a knife with a small blade and a big wooden handle, that floats.

With each kit is a little handbook, printed on waterproof paper, which is a compressed masterpiece of deep sea lore, with a chapter on how to survive on an uninhabited island. By following simple instructions, shipwrecked men can, among other things, catch fish with a button off an undershirt; they learn that the tender spot in a shark is the end of its nose, and it'll go away if you sock it there with an oar; that you shouldn't fish when sharks are around—they may cut your line; that practically everything about a turtle except the shell is good to eat; and that—ominous note—after a turtle's head is cut off the head may bite and the claws may scratch. They are told how to eat seaweed, how to distinguish eels from sea snakes, what fish are poisonous; told also not to eat sharks unless plenty of water is available. They are told that all birds are good to eat, cooked or raw; and that you should save the feathers to make fishing jigs or to stuff inside your shirt to keep warm.

Of the smaller kits that Pinchot first suggested 83,000 have been put in fliers' collapsible boats and in rafts and lifeboats. Of the larger kits a quarter of a million or so will be required. It is planned to have one in every lifeboat and raft under the jurisdiction of the United States, and Pinchot has brought his plan to the attention of all the United Nations.

4 Persons Meet Violent Deaths

(By The Canadian Press)

Four persons died violent deaths in Eastern Canada during the weekend. Two were killed in traffic accidents, one died in a level crossing accident and another in a lumbering accident.

Both the traffic accidents were in Western Ontario. Johnny Haskett, seven-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Haskett, Simcoe, succumbed in hospital there from injuries after being hit by a car. At Windsor, Alfred Lappan, 40, suffered fatal injuries Saturday night, also when hit by an automobile.

The level crossing fatality also was in Western Ontario, Jesse E. Winger, 61, being killed Sunday when his car collided with a Canadian National Railways train.

The other death was at Hull, Que., where Camile Drouin, 47, employed at the E. B. Eddy Co. plant, died of a fractured skull suffered when a pulp log fell on him Saturday while he was working on a log pile beneath an overhead conveyer.

Fighting Fears and Fables

Fancy can spin a delightful web, but when superstition coarsens the thread, and fear knots it, it no longer entertains, but enmeshes. Amusing at first were tales of the gremlins—those pranksters, who, while supposedly hitchhiking through the clouds on airplane wings, were charged with icing propellers, drinking up petrol, blocking fuel lines, jamming guns, and like mischief. Gradually, however, to some thoughts made fertile by war and flying tension, the heretofore purely fanciful gremlins have become invisible, malevolent actualities.

An English paper relates the story of five men in a bomber returning from the Ruhr over the North Sea through hail, rain, and terrific winds, feeling "helplessly tossed about by unseen hands," and sensing a "malign presence inside as well as outside the aircraft." Unaccountably running out of gas, the fliers bailed out. Later a fighter patrol was sent to shoot down the ship to prevent its getting into enemy hands, and the pilot, despite the fact that the doomed plane was empty, swore he got return fire from the tail guns. Subsequently four of the bomber crew were killed in a crash. The fifth, enclosing the story in his letter home, wrote:

I don't absolutely believe in gremlins, but sometimes I wonder. Some boys swear by them and it is no silly dream to them when engines cut in the air or guns are fired from an empty turret. You think!

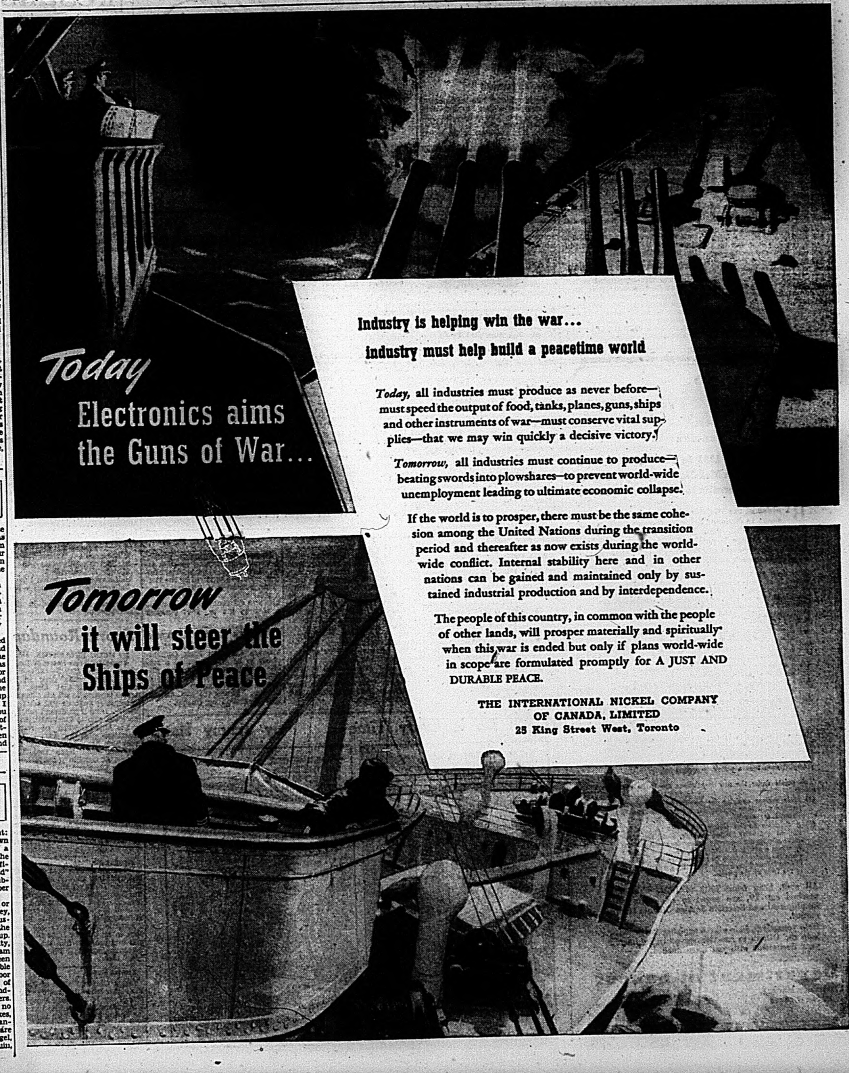
Thinking is just what is needed—clear thinking which exposes and disposes of the gremlin fancies, the fears and superstitions such as rode the bomber to its doom. For the only real unseen hands and Presence are those of which the Psalmist declared: "If I ascend up into heaven, Thou art there: if I make my bed in hell, behold, Thou art there. If I take the wings of the morning, and dwell in the uttermost parts of the sea; Even there shall Thy hand lead me, and Thy right hand shall hold me."—Christian Science Monitor.

Hoard of Silver Pennies

In Ireland the other day a child of 6, poking under a stone, is said to have found a thousand silver pennies, says the New York Times. Their date is not given. The last English silver pence was issued in 1661, or 1662. The first ones were coined in the reign of the Saxon King Offa, in 700 and something. The youthful investigator seems to have run across a good thing. The long degradation of the penny to baser metals makes "silver penny" seem absurd; but it circulates in the English and Scotch ballads. The chap running away with the girl offers a silver penny to the boatman to take him o'er the ferry.

In his imitation, "Lord Ullin's Daughter," Tom Campbell, forgetting his Scots prudence, promises the ferryman "a silver pound." Known or unknown, the old poets stick to gold and silver. Susie Pye "Bribed the proud warder Wi' mickle gold and white monie." If silver is white, gold is red. The bankrupt says to the steward: "My gold is gone, my money is spent: Good John o' the Scales tell down the red gold." Supposed to be a devil-may-care lot, none the less the poets seem to have had sound financial ideas. So the "fairy gold" of folklore turns to leaves or rubbish, a satire on unlimited paper money.

Some persons dream with more or less frequency of finding money, not under stones or in caverns usually, but on the surface of the ground, convenient for picking up. On account of its high visibility, silver is perhaps the favorite dream metal. Gold being so seldom seen may have passed out of recoverable memory. Many of us were poor boys. We must have dreamed of new nickels or cents as our grandfathers dreamed of bright coppers. It's wrong to love money, and no use in the present state of taxes, but there are long dethroned ancients of coinage whose names are a brightness in the mind: Angel, noble, rose noble, bezant, sequin, mancus, all kinds of gold.



Today
Electronics aims the Guns of War...
Tomorrow
it will steer the Ships of Peace

Industry is helping win the war... industry must help build a peacetime world

Today, all industries must produce as never before—must speed the output of food, tanks, planes, guns, ships and other instruments of war—must conserve vital supplies—that we may win quickly a decisive victory.

Tomorrow, all industries must continue to produce—beating swords into plowshares—to prevent world-wide unemployment leading to ultimate economic collapse.

If the world is to prosper, there must be the same cohesion among the United Nations during the transition period and thereafter as now exists during the world-wide conflict. Internal stability here and in other nations can be gained and maintained only by sustained industrial production and by interdependence.

The people of this country, in common with the people of other lands, will prosper materially and spiritually when this war is ended but only if plans world-wide in scope are formulated promptly for A JUST AND DURABLE PEACE.

Major League Fans on Sunday Turn Out in Droves for First Full Set of Doubleheaders

Total Attendance of 165,189 Registered at Eight Parks

TIGHT PITCHING

By JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Staff Writer

Like the weather, the fans have taken their time to warm up to baseball this season, but yesterday they turned out in great throngs all around the major leagues.

The first full wave of doubleheaders scheduled at eight parks attracted a total attendance of 165,189 with New York having 47,066 at the Polo Grounds to see the Giants battle Brooklyn Dodgers.

There also was a virtual capacity turnout of 32,000 at Washington's Griffith Stadium to see the much improved Senators scrap with New York Yankees.

Yesterday's big show provided plenty of baseball thrills—a mixed assortment of good pitching, good hitting and tight struggles.

The crowd in New York saw the Giants and Dodgers divide a doubleheader in which each game was decided by one run. Dodgers took the first 3-2 to hike their winning streak to six games. Relief pitcher Johnny Allen hit a double and a single to lead Brooklyn's offensive. Giants bagged the nightcap 2-1 with Buster Maynard hitting a first-inning homer and bringing in New York's other run with a long fly in the second inning.

St. Louis Cardinals swept a doubleheader from Cincinnati Reds 7-6 and 6-3. Rookie Lou Klein drove in three runs to set the pace in the first game and Lefty Howie Pollet kept seven hits spaced to win the second session.

Pirates Win Two

Pittsburgh cleaned up on Chicago Cubs 3-0 and 1-0, as Wally Hebert pitched a three-hitter and Bob Klinger a four-hitter. Both were tough for Chicago hurlers to lose.

Boston Braves and Phillies split. Boston won the first 3-1, Ray Barrett pitched a seven hitter and missed a shutout when Danny Litwhiler hit his third homer of the spring. Phillies took the second 6-5 in 12 innings with Litwhiler doubling with the bases loaded for two runs after Boston had tallied in the top half of the 12th. Schoolboy Rowe appeared as a pinchhitter for the Phils in the sixth and hit a grand slam homer to tie the score.

In the American League New York Yankees divided a doubleheader at Washington. They won the first 11-3 as Ernie Bonham kept nine hits scattered and Charley (King Kong) Keller smashed a three-run homer. Then Ewald Pyle stopped them in the second 4-1 with six-hit hurling.

Weather Cut Bill

Weather cut Cleveland's double bill at Detroit to one game, but the Indians won it 5-2 to take charge of second place. Ray Mack's first hit of the season was a fifth-inning homer that put Cleveland in front.

St. Louis Browns swept two at Chicago 5-1 and 3-2 in 11 innings. Steve Sundra pitched seven-hit ball in the first affair and Chet Laabs decided the second with a homer in the 11th.

Boston Red Sox and Philadelphia Athletics halved their program, the Red Sox squeezing through in the first 7-6 after Tex Hughson had been manhandled in trying for his third victory and Athletics annexed the nightcap, 8-1, on Roger Wolff's seven-hit knuckleballing.

Yesterday's Stars

By the Associated Press

Wally Hebert and Bob Klinger, Pirates — Each pitched shutouts against Cubs, allowing three and four hits, respectively.

Chet Laabs and Steve Sundra, Browns—former hit home run in 11th inning to beat White Sox in first game and latter kept seven hits scattered to take nightcap.

Ray Mack, Indians—Hit first hit of 1943 season and home run that decided tussle with Tigers.

Charley Keller, Yankees, and Ewald Pyle, Senators—former hit three-run homer to show way to victory in first game of doubleheader and latter pitched six-hitter in second session.

Johnny Allen, Dodgers, and Buster Maynard, Giants—Allen's double and single brought triumph over Giants in first game; Maynard hit homer and drove in another run with long fly to decide second game.

Lou Klein and Howie Pollet, Cardinals—Former drove in three runs with two doubles and single in opener and latter pitched seven-hit ball in nightcap against Reds.

NATIONAL SELECTIVE SERVICE

Men Born From 1902 to 1924 Must Prove Compliance With Mobilization Regulations When Asking Permits to Seek Employment

BY order of the Minister of Labour issued pursuant to National Selective Service Civilian Regulations, (P.C. 246, January 19, 1943) an important change is now made in regard to the issue by Employment and Selective Service Offices, of permits to seek employment.

After April 30, 1943, a permit to seek employment may be refused to any male person born in any of the years from 1902 to 1924, inclusive, who has reached age 19, unless such person presents satisfactory evidence that he has not contravened the provisions of National Selective Service Mobilization Regulations (that is, Military Call-up Regulations). Evidence required is to be in one of the following forms:

(a) A certificate of discharge from His Majesty's Forces after service during the present war; or
(b) a rejection slip issued by the Army on application for enlistment; or
(c) a certificate of medical examination issued by the Registrar of a Mobilization Board; or
(d) a postponement order certificate issued by the Registrar of a Mobilization Board; or
(e) in the case of a male person born in any of the years from 1902 to 1916 inclusive, a statutory declaration on a form available in the employment office, that he is not a "single person" under Mobilization Regulations.

Documents referred to in (a), (b) and (e) above need be presented only the first time a permit is sought after April 30, 1943, unless subsequently asked for by a Selective Service Officer. Documents referred to in (c) and (d) above must be presented each time a permit is applied for.

Two points under the new Regulations are to be specially noted:

(2) A Selective Service Officer MAY furnish a permit without first being handed evidence, where the applicant's services are required for immediate employment, or where a permit is asked for by mail, but in these cases the evidence must be presented to the Selective Service Officer later, usually WITHIN THREE DAYS of the issue of the permit.

All men, born from 1902 to 1924, who have reached age 19, are urged to co-operate with Employment and Selective Service Officers in this matter.

Help yourselves, help others applying for permits, help the Offices to function smoothly, by having your documents with you when needed.

TORONTO LEAFS IN SECOND PLACE AFTER TWIN LOSS

Jersey City Giants Win First 7-6 in 10 Innings and Second by Shutout

NEWARK ON TOP

By The Associated Press

Every good thing must come to an end, Toronto Maple Leafs learned Sunday after Jersey City Giants tied a double knot in their victory string and pushed the Canadians off the International League perch.

Jersey City smashed its own losing streak that had run to four games by taking the opener, 7-6, in 10 innings behind the effective pitching of Hugh East. Seven Little Giant errors caused East considerable discomfort but he allowed only six hits.

Bill Voiselle pitched his second shutout, 2-0, to give the Jersey nine a start on a winning streak of his own in the nightcap.

The double defeat tumbled the Leafs to second place in the standings, a half game behind Newark Bears, last year's champions, while Syracuse climbed to third.

The Bears benefited by stout pitching, defeated Montreal twice, 3-1, and 2-1. Ken Holcombe, young righthander, allowed only four hits in the opener as he hurled his third triumph of the season while Frank Hiller, Lafayette College athlete who turned pro last week, scattered five singles effectively for the second victory.

Bisons in Basement

Buffalo skidded into the basement by dropping a pair to Baltimore, 7-5, and 4-0. The Orioles ran wild on the bases, swiping three sacks in the first and four in the second game.

Roland Van Slate, side arm flinger who is making a reputation as a work horse, hurled the first game for Baltimore and young Steve Gromek was credited with the victory in the second.

The only divided twin bill of the day was the bargain bill put on by Rochester and Syracuse, the Chiefs helping Tom Delacruz to his second verdict in the opener but then bowing to the southpaw slants of Kemp Wicker in the nightcap, 7-1. Delacruz' triumph was by a 4-1 edge.

Pepper Martin, boss of the Red Wings, was ejected from the park during the first game for disputing umpire Chester Swanson's decision on balls and strikes.

By CHARLES EDWARDS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Toronto, May 3 — (CP) — The other day Baz O'Meara of the Montreal Star suggested in his sports column that Fred (Cyclone) Taylor of Vancouver would be an ideal man to succeed Frank Calder as president of the National Hockey League. Now there is a suggestion that hits the nail squarely on the head.

Taylor was one of the greatest hockey players who ever lived — some claim the greatest. In recent talk of a hockey hall of fame, the Cyclone's name was most prominent. He played with two Stanley Cup teams, the Ottawa Silver Seven in 1909 and Vancouver Millionaires in 1915. He scored 148 goals in 126 games in seven seasons with Vancouver.

Yet Taylor was not only a great player. He is a fine organizer and a successful business man. He was president of the now-defunct Pacific Coast hockey league. He is district superintendent of immigration, Pacific division.

It is doubtful whether Taylor could be induced to leave his present position to become N.H.L. president. Andy Lytle of the Toronto Star says Cyclone is too fine a man to be burdened with the headaches of N.H.L.'s highest position.

Yet Lytle sees Taylor as a great man for the position. He writes: "If I had a vote for this hockey office, Fred Taylor would never get it. He is a man who has moulded his life on the principle of the Golden Rule...I do not think he has ever thrown a foul, or dirty punch, in sport or in business, in his life...

"But if the governors wanted a gentleman, a scholar and a man in whom there isn't a trace of political guile to succeed Calder; if they preferred to give him full authority and scope to make friends for hockey, influence people toward it, they couldn't find a more solid man, or one that would be more universally popular with newspapermen, than Fred Taylor, though they searched the length and breadth of this Dominion."

PROXY MARRIAGE URGED

Following the first marriage by proxy on British territory, which took place in Malta recently, legislation to make proxy marriages legal in Britain has obtained backing. The Malta ceremony united Edan Pullicinio, daughter of Sir Phillip Pullicino, Attorney General of the island, and Flight Lieutenant J. H. O'Connor, of Newcastle, Northern Ireland. This was revealed in London by Miss Jennie Adamson, Parliamentary Secretary to the Ministry of Pensions, who supports similar legislation for Britain. She has collected complete data on laws relating to marriages by proxy. They are legal in many countries but are forbidden to U.S. soldiers in Britain.

New York, May 3—(AP)—Sales talk: Latest "inside" dope in pro football circles is that Lieut. Dan Reeves is ready to sell his Cleveland franchise if anybody will meet his price. . .And if he doesn't sell, he'll move the club to Cincinnati, Boston or Los Angeles when he resumes operations after the war. . .Looks from here like a good buy for anybody who could learn that Larry Atkins, Al Sutphin formula for attracting Cleveland hockey fans. . . Bill McKechnie, Jr., the Ol' Deacon's son, has been promoted from the Birmingham Barons to the front office of the Syracuse International League Club. . .When Lieut. Ted Lyons of the Marines saw his old No. 16 uniforms hanging in the White Sox club house, he remarked: "Looks like a fellow going to his own funeral standing up."

When the Phillies beat Curt Davis last week they showed, at least, that they can shake off the jinxes from the Gerry Nugent era. They hadn't done the trick since 1933 and only once in 16 decisions since Curt left Philadelphia for Chicago in 1934. . . Atlantic would like to see Beau Jack in an outdoor fight this summer and promises him the biggest welcome since Tiger Flowers had a "day" there.

CASUAL COMMENT by K.J.C.

A hungry Irishman went to a restaurant on Friday and said to the waiter:

Irishman—Have you any whale?
Waiter—No.
Irishman—Have you any swordfish?
Waiter—No, sir. I'm sorry but we don't carry that kind of fish.
Irishman—All right, my son. Then bring me ham and eggs and a steak smothered with onions. The Lord knows I asked for fish.

(The Count is King.)

As was predicted, Count Fleet, one of the great 3-year-olds to race on the American turf in the past decade, won the 69th running of the Kentucky Derby and in a breeze. Jockey Longden could have stood up and read the "best seller of the month" and still come in front with plenty to spare. As it was the Count won for better than three lengths over Blue Sword, the second place horse. Count Fleet won for his owner, Mrs. John D. Hertz, a neat $60,725 purse, which ain't hay. Eddie (Rochester of radio and movie fame) Anderson's Burnt Cork ran tenth and last.

Saturday's price on Count Fleet equalled the Derby record as the shortest price to which a horse ever was backed in the Blue Grass classic. In 1940 Col. E. R. Bradley's Bimelech went to the post at the same odds as Count Fleet, namely 40 cents to the dollar. However, "Big Bim" didn't win and therefore Count Fleet at $2.80 was the shortest price winner of the Kentucky Derby. Gallahadion a 36 to 1 starter beat Bimelech.

Although Count Fleet was never pressed he turned the track in 2.04 as compared with the Derby record of 2.01 2-5 set by Whirlaway in 1941. Now Count Fleet will head for the Preakness next and should just about canter in to the 1943 triple winner honors without breaking into a sweat. The field was no match for the Count once jockey Longden shook up his mount at the half-mile post.

A total of $537,392 was bet on Saturday's Derby running. A year ago the handle was $631,198, while in 1941 an aggregate of $654,353 was bet on the Churchill Downs classic. With only 65,000 on hand Saturday's figures topped the wagering of 1940 when only $465,149 was laid on the line when Gallahadion surprised all to beat Bimelech.

(Remember when—)

Eleven years ago tonight Lionel Conacher—now Sqdn. Ldr. Conacher, director of recreation in the R.C.A.F.—won his first professional wrestling match in Toronto. Rated as Canada's greatest all-around athlete, "Connie" used some of his rugby tricks to pin Carl Pospeshil in two straight falls. The "Big Train" afterwards concentrated on major league hockey as his wrestling career was short to say the least.

(This may be better.)

Getting a suitable opponent for "Irish Jerry" Monahan, the former Pacific Coast grid star and more recently wearer of the wrestling mask, isn't altogether an easy proposition. However, Promoter Frank Tunney thinks he signed the proper person to tame "Irish Jerry" in Earl McCready, the Aurora farmer. Incidentally the former British Empire champion isnt too much outweighed by the pugnacious Monahan, which in itself can be taken into consideration when these two pachyderms clash at the Hume Arena Wednesday night. Jerry says he weighs a mere 253 pounds, while McCready weighed in at 239 the last time he wrestled in Toronto. Promoter Tunney is trying to lineup a better pair of preliminaries for this week's card, he says.

SHIP OUTPUT ENLARGED

To assist the United States forces in the South Pacific areas, New Zealand has enlarged its shipbuilding program. Notable results had been achieved in naval construction in the last three years, chiefly for New Zealand's own requirements. The new program, is outlined by D. G. Sullivan, Minister of Supply, in Auckland, calls for a special modern shipbuilding yard for steel ships and another for wooden vessels. Pre-fabricated work will occupy existing shipyards. Facilities at several ports will be used to the full. Already a full program of minesweeper construction is in progress and, in addition to the building of a steel minesweeper, steel oil barges will be turned out for New Zealand Navy purposes.

The Kibitzer

How did playing cards get their names? Why were they placed in their present order of rank. There is a job for somebody with time and a flair for historical facts.

Cards were intended for the amusement of nobility in the days of long ago. What could be funnier than a king hunting for a snack at midnight while brandishing a breadknife. And in a zoot bathrobe.

The court jester must have had something to do with it. He was the one who originated the jokes you now hear over the radio. And anybody like that could get away with anything.

In earlier games of cards, what card was more important than any other? The jester, of course. The card we know as the joker. In most card games, the joker is still the all-powerful card.

While all other cards had some restrictions, the joker could do almost anything. He was, in fact, wild. Only a jester would dare call himself better than the king.

The ace and king and queen and jack have often been called court cards. The assumption was that they were members of the king's court. Sounds reasonable, too.

But court cards are not their correct name. They were coat cards. The coats they wore showed their rank of nobility. Like a comic strip way of telling the boss from the foreman.

The coat cards, including the aces, are known as faces. Without the jack, they are known as high cards. With the ten, they are known as honors.

Thus, in each suit, the three highest cards are high cards; the four highest are faces; the five highest are honors. All cards lower than the ten are known as small cards.

Look at this hand:

♠K 10 6 4
♦Q J
♣J 10 7

There are three high cards; an ace, a king, a queen. There are five faces; three high cards and two jacks. There are seven honors; five faces and two tens.

The high cards help to determine in advance how many tricks may be taken. The faces help decide what suits are biddable. The honors help decide when suits are rebiddable.

These terms will help you to follow my daily Horse Sense Bridge column. If you can read, you can learn bridge that way.

LESSON NO. 44

This is no quiz contest. But what do we mean by honor cards, face cards, high cards; sure tricks, quick tricks, honor tricks? We must use such terms in bridge. So, let's understand each other.

The five highest cards in each suit are ace, king, queen, jack, ten. They are called honor cards, or honors. An honor is any card higher than a nine.

Of these five honors, the four highest (all but the ten) are called face cards, or faces. A face is any card higher than a ten.

Of these four faces, the three highest (all but the jack) are called high cards. A high card is any card higher than a jack.

A sure trick is any card or combination of cards that is quite sure of taking a trick. No matter what may be the final trump suit, if any, it is reasonably sure of taking a trick.

In Horse Sense Bridge, the only ones we consider like that are: An ace, one sure trick; K Q in the same suit, one sure trick; A K in the same suit, two sure tricks. No others.

Maybe you prefer to call a sure trick a quick trick. Maybe a sure trick or a quick trick is better known to you as an honor trick. By any other names, they are just as sweet.

Cast your peepers over this hand:

♥A K Q J 10
♠K Q 10 5
♣Q 4

In the spade suit, there are five honors, four faces, three high cards, two sure tricks. In hearts you see three honors, two faces, two high cards, one sure trick.

The ace of diamonds is an honor a face, a high card, a sure trick. The queen of clubs is an honor, a face, a high card. But it is not a sure trick.

This hand contains a total of ten honors, eight faces, seven high cards, four sure tricks. The spade queen is not a sure trick.

One of my students refuses to believes an ace is a sure trick. She had an ace trumped on her three years ago. Life is like that.

The War Today—
30 Years' War Which Began in 1914 Will Be Ended Victoriously in 1944
—Gen. Giraud

By DeWITT MacKENZIE
(Associated Press War Analyst)

Gen. Henri Giraud's prediction that "this month of May will see the complete defeat of the Boche in Tunisia" seems a reasonable speculation as things now stand.

The Allies forces have done a workmanlike job in driving wedges into vital sectors of the mountain arc of Axis defences. It has been a tough and bloody business, for the enemy has been putting up a determined last-ditch stand, but day by day the Allies have tightened the iron ring which they have thrown about the powerful fortifications among the craggy heights.

Latest reports indicate a slackening off in the fighting but this doesn't indicate any weakening of our attack. It means that the Allies have reached that point at which any force inevitably must arrive in a furious, all-out drive—a period of consolidation of gains and preparation for further assaults.

The lull isn't likely to last long for time is an important element. The Allies are straining every nerve for a quick kill and will give the enemy little chance to repair the damage to his defences and perhaps get a few more supplies from Italy to help him hang on.

No Doubt of Outcome in Tunisia

There is no longer any doubt as to the ultimate outcome of the battle of Tunisia. So far as the time of its achievement is concerned, it's essential that the job be cleared up as quickly as possible so as to permit operations in Europe.

Good fighting weather has arrived in many sectors, and by the first of June weather and ground will be prime for invasion. If by any chance that invasion should be across the English Channel, then it should be got under way in early summer in order really to put the screws on Hitler before the rains and mud of fall arrive to save him.

That would be equally true if the Allied assault should be made through the Balkans, for the bad autumn weather starts early there. Invasion of Italy isn't so dependent on the weather and presumably could be undertaken whenever the Tunisian show is ended.

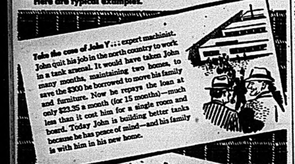
Any delay is bad for the Allies, of course, for it gives the Axis just so much more time to prepre for the onslaught. That is the point of the sacrifice being demanded of the German and Italian troops in Tunisia—to hold the Allies so as to give Hitler a chance to get ready.

Giraud Sees End in 1944

Gen. Giraud also predicted that "the 30-years war which began in 1914 will be ended victoriously in 1944." It could be, all right. Maybe he has a lot of inside information. However, it looks from here as though the duration of the Hitlerian war depends largely on when the Allies are able to invade western Europe from Britain. We must wait and see.

IS LENDING MONEY A WAR INDUSTRY?

While Campbell loans are not as important as ships or planes, in many instances they have helped the men who build the weapons of war. Here are typical examples.



Take the case of John Y... expert machinist. John quit his job in the north country to work in a tank arsenal. It would have taken John many months, maintaining two homes, to save the $300 he borrowed to move his family and furniture. Now he repays the loan at only $23.35 a month (for 15 months)—much less than it cost him for a single room and board. Today John is building better tanks because he has peace of mind—and his family is with him in his new home.

Peter A—, contractor, had an accident with his truck while engaged on an important war construction job. A Campbell loan helped him get a new truck immediately. The job was not delayed. Peter kept the contract and is repaying the loan in easy monthly installments. Campbell loans are confidential, friendly and quick.

● These are typical of the loans Campbell Finance men are making every day. Loans that free important war workers from worry — that ease their minds and help them work for Victory. Here are but a few amounts and terms from which they choose:→

$105.75 cash and make 12 monthly payments of $10
$309.38 cash and make 15 monthly payments of $24
$438.27 cash and make 15 monthly payments of $38

With Monthly Repayments in Odd Amounts, Typical Loans are as Follows:

Cash You Get	Monthly Payments
	4	6	12	15	18
$ 25	$ 6.25
50	13.13	$ 8.93	$ 4.72
150	39.39	26.78	14.18	$11.67

AT THE BELLE

"Random Harvest"

One of the strangest love stories in years is enacted on the screen by Ronald Colman and Greer Garson in "Random Harvest," romance of an amnesia victim and a woman whose devotion finally unravels the tangled skein of his memory. Adapted from the best-selling novel by James Hilton the picture is now delighting large audiences at the Belle theatre.

The production unites the stars of two notable successes based on Hilton stories. Colman starred in "Lost Horizon," Miss Garson in "Goodbye Mr. Chipps."

The feature attraction is preceded by the Belle latest news events and a very funny color cartoon "Sufferin' Cats."

AT THE CAPITOL

"I'll Wait For You"
(First Belleville showing)

Every now and then a picture comes along that is so enthrallingly interesting that audiences sit oblivious of everything else, so poignant, so human is its story.

Such a picture is "I'll Wait For You", Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's gripping story of loyalty and regeneration, now showing at the Capitol theatre. It owes its appeal to its sheer humanness. Its characters are vital, living people; people we all know. This is the secret of many outstanding hits of today, such as the Hardy Family series.

"I'll Wait For You reunites a leading man and woman who scored recently in "The Penalty," and who in their second picture together make a strong bid for stardom. They are Robert Sterling and Marsha Hunt, the principal love interest in the story of racketeer who, in hiding on a farm in the country, finds a path to a new life.

Hedy Lamarr

The widely-awaited appearance of Robert Taylor and the sensational Hedy Lamarr in "Lady of the Tropics," a languorous drama of smouldering passions laid against an exotic background of Indo-China, occurs as the added hit at the Capitol Theatre in what is heralded as the most fascinating romance of the year.

A dramatic tale of an adventurous American and beauteous half-caste of the Orient, the picture surrounds Taylor and Miss Lamarr with lavish settings reminiscent of the mysticism and splendors of the Far East in a story written especially for the stars by Ben Hecht.

JAP AIR FLEET

Three enemy fighters were destroyed; one bomber and nine fighters were damaged.

Allies Attack Jap Targets

Even as the Japanese appeared above Darwin airdrome, Allied airmen ranged over enemy targets from New Britain to Timor. The Mubo area, 15 miles south of the Japanese base of Salamaua, New Guinea, came in for a particularly concentrated attack. A medium force of bombers made 42 bombing and strafing runs over the Green's Hill area in support of Allied ground forces.

Medium bombers, raiding the Kai islands, sighted a small enemy cargo ship and chased it aground on a reef. Another formation made a night attack on Penfoei airdrome at Kupang, Timor. Numerous fires were started.

A lone heavy bomber on reconnaissance over New Britain drove off seven intercepting zeros after damaging two.

54th Raid on Darwin Area

The raid on Darwin was the 54th on that area. The latest previous one was March 15 when the Japanese sent in 25 medium bombers and 24 fighters. Other recent large-scale Japanese attacks in the southwest Pacific area were a 100-plane raid on Port Moresby April 12 and an assault by 75 to 100 planes on Milne Bay two days later. Japanese losses in these raids were heavy.

Meanwhile, a spokesman at Allied headquarters, replying to a question, declared that the Japanese submarine campaign in the southwest Pacific is about as efficient as the Germans' in the Atlantic.

He commented that Allied shipping losses of less than 1,000,000 tons in the southwest Pacific is approximately a two per cent loss, as compared to the 2 1-2 per cent loss of a much greater shipping total in the Atlantic.

"Our naval forces have been very sucessful in protecting traffic within this area," he said.

Toronto, May 3 — (CP) — Burglars who broke into the office of the Bell Publishing Company on York Street in downtown Toronto over the week-end, had a lot of trouble for nothing. They climbed up a fire escape to gain entrance to the building from a fourth-floor window, walked down to the Bell office on the main floor and then tackled a safe which they were unable to open although they broke off the handle and the combination with a cold chisel.

PASSING DREAM

by MARGARET GORMAN NICHOLS

CHAPTER 5

On Saturday evening she met Miles Campbell who was the sort of boy she had suspected Abby was in love with—tall and thin and dark, quiet-looking and undistinguished in his uniform.

"Abby has been wonderful to me," Temple told him.

He said self-consciously, "Abby is wonderful to everybody."

The house was alive with activity then—people coming and going and meeting, their voices mingling. Half an hour later it was quiet.

On Monday morning she was only one among thousands reporting for work, only one among thousands glimpsed briefly on the street before a white building received her. She went in alone, presented a letter and found herself some minutes later sitting at a desk in a huge room filled with desks and people.

A girl no older than she gave her typing to do and explained some figures. "This is business," she thought as her fingers, numb at first began to move quickly over the keys. "This is business, this typing and these figures that mean nothing to me. I hate it."

Only once during that morning did she glance up and look around. A girl smiled at her.

That noon she went out and had luncheon at a drug store counter and decided that she had been too courteous in not speaking up and saying she was next in line to be served.

She came into the house with the others that night and left in the morning with them. She was one of them now.

Temple had been in Washington two weeks when Paula Wayne telephoned her. The telephone, an old-fashioned one attached to the wall in the hall, was a subject of much derision and scorn, since even the most personal conversations could be heard in every room on the floor.

"Temple?" Paul Wayne asked in her deep, nervous voice. "Hello, dear! My secretary has been searching Washington for you. I'm glad you gave me a slight hint as to the sort of house you're living in. I've been thinking about you and wondering how you are getting on."

Temple said, "Well, I hope I'm going to like it." That, at least was true.

"Of course you will. But the reason why I'm calling. . . There will be some people here Saturday afternoon. Not a party, but a few people and a few young people. It all came about on New Year's Eve, but I won't go into that. Will you come?"

"Why, yes, I'd love to come."

Paula laughed her short, brittle laugh. "Your hesitancy. . . The Puritan upbringing, I suspect, which makes you suspicious of chance acquaintances. Keep on being like that! I'm probably a nuisance in your young life, but I like to look at you and my unused maternal instinct has been bothering me when I thought of you." She laughed again. "Don't pay any attention to me. Come on Saturday around 5:30 and have fun. Good night, my dear."

"She leaves you breathless." Temple thought. She was smiling when she went back to her room where Abby was waiting for her.

"I heard." Abby said. "I couldn't help it, Mrs. Wayne . . ."

Temple had told Abby about Paula Wayne and Abby had said that Paula was one of the most famous hostesses in the Capitol.

"That will be fun," Abby said, referring to the invitation. "But don't you wonder about women like that—women who live in expensive apartments and entertain constantly and dress beautifully? Their beginnings are obscure; they are obviously married, but there are no husbands about. They are rich, but you never know the source of their money. I've seen lots of them. They are not beautiful women usually."

She shook her head. She looked tired and sensible and pitifully plain.

"They used to say that anything could happen in New York. Now they say it about Washington. The life here gets in your blood, too. You probably won't have to worry about your social life after Saturday, Temple."

Temple smiled. "I could have stayed home a hundred years and never met anyone like her." She thought, "I hope I'm not being unfair, but I think I'm a novelty to Paula Wayne.'

Abby said, "She has a reputation for being a very generous woman, generous with herself, but not with her money. Oh, you know how those stories get around among the rank and file. Gossip only, probably. They say that Mrs. Wayne will never loan anyone money, that she's the stingiest woman in Washington."

Stretching her short arms over her head she laughed. "It will be all over some day, our little part in the Washington picture. We're nearly all transients here, you know. I'm so tired, I can close my eyes and still hear the telephone in the office. Everyone who comes in wants something."

At the door she paused, glanced back and smiled, "You told Mrs. Wayne you hoped to like it here, Temple. Don't you? Is it really that bad?"

Temple looked at Abby and said: "I think . . . I'm beginning to think I'm just a poor loser. For the past year, I've been tied in knots. I had a plan, too, just as you have in your plan to marry Miles when the war is over. I wanted to finish college and work at chemistry for a few years and save my money and travel. Then I wanted the biggest and best love affair that ever happened to anybody. It's perfect, isn't it? The fault here is with me and not with my job and certainly not with the people who've been kind to me. I'm trying to untie the knots and live away the dream. I'm trying to—grow up."

"You will. What is happening in the world today will make girls women and boys men overnight. But I'm afraid for some it will be a violent blossoming and for others a very tired one. Good night Temple."

When she left, Temple thought of Abby's life. She had been one of many daughters in a poor and crowded Brooklyn household. She had had no privileges and had worked since she was 16. In civilian life Miles had been an accountant and he was the oddest of people, a native Washingtonian.

The house was very quiet. By midnight its working people had returned to its rooms. Temple sat looking at the four walls, wondering why she could not be as simple and as uncomplicated as Abby, and why she did not make friends as easily as Abby and why the thought of Harry stung her pride . . . For he was gone, her mother had written. Her mother wrote faithfully, newsy letters of the family and the town. Frequently Allison wrote in the great round scrawl of the very young and Grandmother Hallett in the small illegible scrawl of the very old. Neither Ron nor Fran had written. Temple would have been very much surprised if they had.

On Saturday it was bitterly cold and the early January darkness had come when Temple arrived at the imposing hotel where Paula lived. Several times she had told herself that she would not come, but in the end her lack of any adequate explanation to Abby had sent her home from the office to put on a black dress and an absurd little black hat, with a misty veil, and into the street again in search of a taxi. She was afraid she would not know what to say in Paula's wordly setting; she was afraid that she would be conspicuously young.

Paula herself admitted her, Paula wearing a green hostess gown, and as Temple stepped over the threshhold into the crowded room she felt as though she was entering a new era.

"Hello, my dear, hello!" Paula greeted her with enthusiasm, taking her hand. "Poor child, you're almost frozen. You need a drink or do you—drink, I mean? You don't have to to please me."

"Oh, but won't you, please, to please me?" A man asked.

She did not see him, for Paula said, "Oh, go away, Jud. I'll bring her back in a minute . . . We'll go in my room, Temple."

Temple had only a glimpse of a spacious room with blond furniture and startling modern pictures as Paula led the way to her bedroom, also with blond furniture and startling modern pictures. Paula lighted a cigarette as Temple removed her jacket.

Then Paula said, smiling at her, her eyes small and dark and shrewd in a narrow animated face, "I want to hear all about what you've been doing . . . but later. You look lovely in black. Shall we go back to the party? It isn't a party at all, but these days when two or three people are gathered together with a bottle between them, it's a party. I'll never get over the feeling that a party means ice cream and cake."

Temple was smiling when she returned to the living-room. She was smiling when Paula introduced her to Jud. Later she always thought of it like that—simply when Paula introduced her to Jud—though at the moment his last name escaped her and he was only a tall, exceedingly good-looking young man who seemed to know all the amusing things that were to know and also that he had never had a lonely moment. He looked, as though he had always had his "pick" of the best; that he had not selected at random but with caution and good taste. For there was a slightly brooding quality in the dark eyes which seemed gay and reckless at first but, later made you think they were not gay or reckless at all. His hair was the blackest she had ever seen; his features were cleanly cut and regular save his mouth which was crooked when he smiled. He was smiling at her now and giving her a cocktail.

"A cocktail for your name," he said. "I didn't get it."

For Paula had moved away like quicksilver.

"It's Temple Graves. I didn't get yours either."

He laughed. It was a boyish laugh good to hear. "It's Judson Amory. Now we'll have to say how do you do all over again. Drink that fast and I'll get you another."

"I couldn't . . ."

"Do you know all of these people?"

"I don't know anyone except Mrs. Wayne."

PRAISES POLAND'S UNDYING SPIRIT

Ottawa, May 3 (CP)—Prime Minister Mackenzie King today sent "a message of friendship from the Canadian government and people" to Victor Podoski, Polish Minister to Canada, to mark the anniversary tomorrow of Poland's Independence Day, May 4, 1791.

"The courage with which the Polish people stood up to the first onslaught of Nazi invasion and the grim determination with which they have kept alive their will to be free despite unspeakable persecutions, command the respect and admiration of all free men", Mr. King wrote.

"Your universities have been disbanded, your libraries and museums looted and many of the outward evidences of a long and honorable contribution to European culture have been destroyed.

"But we in Canada are confident that the undying tenacity of spirit which has inspired the Polish people in their resistance to Nazi aggression will enable your country to rise again from the ashes when the victory of the United Nations has finally destroyed the Hitlerite Regime."

Machine-Gun Bullets From Unidentified Plane Rip House Tops

New York, May 3 (AP)—Machine-gun bullets ripped Brooklyn apartment house roofs yesterday shortly after a test air raid drill.

Four shots apparently were fired, police said, from an unidentified plane. Three struck only roofs. The other landed at a street intersection. No one was injured.

The first air force concluded an investigation today and formally reported that none of its planes aloft yesterday had fired.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, May 3 —(CP)— The market was dull on Toronto exchange this afternoon. Industrials were firm. Golds and Base Metals held steady, while Western Oils were quiet and softer.

Both Canada Steamships issues touched new highs for the year and Winnipeg Electric preferred advances 2 to 43. Brazilian held an early fractional gain.

Chemical Research jumped to a new high at 47 before dipping to 42 where it was ahead 2 for the day.

WALL STREET

New York, May 3. (AP)—Wall Street liked the coal labor truce but stock market customers today stemmed an early advance by cashing profits on the good news.

Steels and shares of other companies depending on fuel supplies for prosperity registered opening gains running to a point or so in active dealings. Top marks later were reduced in some cases and, near the fourth hour, a smattering of minus signs was in evidence. The pace slowed as the forward drive was interrupted.

War optimism and persistent investment demand agan served to cushion such selling as appeared.

Bonds and commodities held to a steady range.

Among Canadian issues, Dome Mines and Canadian Pacific each lost 1-4 and Hiram Walker gained 1-8.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

Toronto, May 3. (CP)—Livestock receipts: Cattle 2,300, calves 600, hogs 1,000, sheep and lambs 420. Unsold from last week was 100 head of cattle.

WOMEN DEMAND BETTER HOMES IN PEACETIME

British Housing Advisory Council Asks Improved Scheme of Post-War Conditions in General Reconstruction

(By DENISE DALTROFF)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, May 3 (CP)—A demand for a guarantee against "jerry-building" when reconstruction starts after the war has been submitted to the government by the Women's Advisory Housing Council in an ambitious plan for a perfect dwelling.

The council has submitted a series of important suggestions to the Ministry of Health and have urged that a prime condition of tenancy or purchase of a flat or house should be a certificate to ensure the buyer of "good quality and standard of material and design."

Numerous practical suggestions were put forward for the perfect dwelling, but the council stressed that it was of little use providing modern houses with up-to-date equipment unless the occupants knew how to make the best use of them.

Attitude of Mind

"A fresh attitude of mind is needed in regard to home-making and home-keeping," said the council. "It should be given a higher standard and a more inspiring appeal. The art and science of home making should be part of training in citizenship so that pride in the home may soon again become inherent in the nation."

The council argued that measures introduced by the State could not be a satisfactory substitute for the good home background and suggested more artistic liaison should be formed between housewives and local authorities.

It urged that rents for bigger families should be controlled so parents of more than two or three children were not penalized. Space should never be sacrificed as mean dimensions could never be remedied and were one of the basic factors of bad houses.

Sound Proofing

Other suggestions included:

Walls between houses and flats should be sound proof; staircases should be wider and more "easy-going"; larger larders with space for a refrigerator and more built-in cupboards, including a heated linen cupboard in every house, hot and cold water and at least a small pleasure garden with an allotment.

Count Fleet Romps To Easy Victory In Kentucky Derby

By SID FEDER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Louisville, Ky., May 3 — (AP)—The two trainers sat in the club car on the way back from the Kentucky Derby, talking about racing "freaks" and naturally they got around to Count Fleet.

They had just seen the Count pick up $60,725 so easy it was like finding it in an old pair of pants hanging up in a closet.

"So," said one trainer, "he's a freak, well, what is a race-horse supposed to be if not a good runner? And the Count can really ramble, can't he? Then, what is a freak?"

"Well," the other explained, "the Count's legs are too long and he runs with his head too high in the air for a real good racer. And while he's thick enough through the middle, he's very thin behind and his quarters tail off. That's not the way fine race-horses are supposed to be built."

But, whether or not the Count is a "freak," he now looms capable of becoming the sixth horse in all racing history to grab off the highly prized "triple crown" of Derby, Preakness and Belmont.

He proved that Saturday in the 69th of Matt Winn's run for the roses, simply coasting through the Downs' stretch to finish three lengths ahead of Blue Swords, owned by Allen Simmons, of Akron, O., in the milk-wagon time of 2:04 for the mile and a quarter journey. He picked up $75,000 added in duplicating the feat of his daddy, Reigh Count, performed in 1928 against the largest Derby field in history.

Blue Swords, always the Count's shadow, made one brief menacing gesture in the stretch run but Johnny Longden, the Taber, Alta., money rider, merely shook up the count and the race was over right there.

Six lengths behind came Slide Rule, one of W. E. Boeing's representatives. Even the fact that Slide Rule was blocked as he moved up approaching the homestretch failed to detract a particle from the one-sided nature of the victory by Mrs. John Hertz' rangy Standard-Bearer. Amber Light, ridden by Alfie Robertson, of Toronto, was fourth another six lengths back.

Ocean Wave, Calumet Farm's ailing hopeful who had been regarded as the Count's main threat, ducked the issue Saturday morning because of a leg injury.

Burnt Cork, carrying the hopes of Eddie (Rochester) Anderson, finished a burnt-out last, 36 lengths behind the Count in the field of 10 three-year-olds.

Ceiling Placed On New Potatoes 5½c Pd. in May

Ottawa, May 3—(CP)—The Prices Board last night announced it is establishing retail ceiling prices on new potatoes, soon to appear on Canadian markets, and that the maximum at any point in Canada is 5 1-2 cents a pound in May.

In June, July and August the maximum price anywhere in Canada will be five cents.

Ceiling prices apply both to imported and Canadian-grown new potatoes.

The order contains a number of technical provisions dealing with mark-ups and transportation costs. The wholesaler's mark-up is limited to the lesser of these bases, which are either 15 per cent of selling price, or one-half cent a pound, or one-third the difference between the wholesaler's laid-down cost and the retailer's maximum selling price.

Retail mark-ups are limited to 30 per cent of selling price or 1 1-4 cents a pound, whichever is the lesser amount, but in no case at higher than 5 1-2 cents a pound during May and five cents a pound during June, July and August.

Cost of Air War

Some people still ask why this war costs so much more than the war of 1914-1918. One answer is found in the trade journal Canadian Aviation:

"An elementary trainer is valued at about $12,000. A single-engined advanced trainer costs about $30,000. A twin-engined advanced trainer costs about $50,000. A bombing and gunnery trainer costs about $75,000. A single-engined transport costs about $40,000. A fighter costs from $35,000 to $50,000. A dive bomber costs from $50,000 to $75,000. An amphibian patrol bomber costs $200,000. A four-engined long-range bomber costs from $400,000 to $500,000.

That is, when 600 heavy bombers set out from Britain to attack German war plants in Europe the equipment actually put into the air has cost close to $300,000,000. More scores of millions have gone into airports, hangars and ground installation. By comparison aircraft used in the Great War were small, cheap, and of course not nearly so numerous.

And it is not only in the air that this war consumes money in such prodigious sums. All the appurtenances of battle are costly. Armies move nowadays by mechanized transport. Tanks are counted by thousands, guns by tens of thousands, shells by millions, ships by numbers that would have seemed incredible a few years ago. In such a war a billion dollars doesn't last very long—but when the alternative is subjection to the Huns money is a minor thing.

SCIENCE TAKES UP WHEAT SURPLUSES

New Wartime Uses for Wheat to Bring Down Grain Piles of West

Winnipeg, May 3 (CP) — The wheat surplus in North America may disappear as science discovers new wartime uses for it, says Cecil Lamont, of Winnipeg, vice-president of the North-West Line Elevators Association.

Mr. Lamont attended the annual conference of the National Farm Chemurgic Council at Chicago where 300 leading scientists, industrialists and agriculturists from the United States and Canada discussed possible industrial uses for wheat. "The United States is converting wheat into alcohol, motor fuels and synthetic rubber," Mr. Lamont said. "Manufacturers believe the American wheat surplus may soon be used up. This would open markets for Canadian wheat across the border."

In recent months processes of converting wheat into alcohol have been speeded up and cheapened and Canadian distilleries now use wheat instead of molasses, Mr. Lamont explained. The United States government has called upon American distilleries to produce 530,000,000 gallons of alcohol from wheat in 1943. This will require 212,000,000 bushels of wheat.

Canada plans to produce 14,000,000 gallons of alcohol from seven million bushels of wheat. War uses of alcohol include the manufacture of smokeless powder, synthetic rubber, torpedoes, mustard gas, medicines, ether and lacquer for camouflage.

British Ambush Japanese Unit

New Delhi, May 3 —(CP)—Sharp ground encounters were reported by a British communique today to have taken place on the east of the Mayu ridge and R. A. F. and Japanese planes exchanged fresh blows yesterday in the battle of Burma.

A British patrol in the Bayu ridge zone ambushed an enemy party and killed seven without loss to themselves, the communique said, while another enemy detachment was shelled by artillery.

R. A. F. Blenheims shattered buildings and cut an oil pipe line in an attack on Indaw, an oil town on a tributary of the Chindwin. River, raising smoke visible for 30 miles, it was announced, and Hurricanes shot up enemy objectives south of Buthidaung.

About 20 Japanese bombers, escorted by fighters, caused some damage and injured a few persons in a raid on an air field of southeast Bengal. R. A. F. fighters shot down one bomber in flames and damaged others. One British aircraft was lost during the day.

9 ARRESTS MADE

Toronto, May 3 — (CP)—Toronto police said they arrested nine persons at the week-end on charges involving theft of six automobiles. All of the cars were recovered although one was badly damaged when it ran into a ditch near Cobourg.

SQUIRRELS SHOVE CATS AROUND

5 Firemen Hurt In $150,000 Fire At Hamilton

Hamilton, Ont., May 3—(CP)—Damage estimated at $150,000 was caused Saturday by one of the worst fires in Hamilton's history.

Flames swept the east end of the city, destroying a large lumber yard and four houses and causing injury to five firemen and one civilian. The blaze raged for several hours and at one time endangered the whole district.

The outbreak started at the southwest corner of the Dominion Lumber and Coal Co., Ltd., property at Barton Street and Rosslyn Ave. and within minutes flames were licking across the block-wide yard and jumping the street to attack a row of houses on Rosslyn Ave. north and Cluny Ave.

At the height of the fire about 5 p. m., flames towered 75 feet and great billows of smoke rolled over the east end. Sparks showered down on the whole area, igniting roofs in neighboring streets. A general alarm brought firemen and apparatus from all Hamilton's 13 stations but even then the inferno threatened to get away and destroy whole streets of dwellings. At least six families were made homeless and one lost nearly everything.

One Burned Seriously

Five firemen were burned, one seriously. He was Lieut. Albert Rousseaux, 54, who suffered severe burns to the face, hands and feet and a back injury caused when a parked auto in the path of flames exploded, showering him and two other firefighters with blazing gasoline.

Lieut. Rousseaux was taken to hospital after first aid treatment. Firemen Jack Todd and Charles Hill, 43, suffered painful burns when the car blew up. They were sent home after emergency hospital treatment.

Other fire victims were Capt. Andrew R. Boyd, nose burns and fireman John Lyon, burns to the ear. The citizen injured was Charles Duncan, 79, taken to hospital with a broken right ankle, suffered when he became entangled in hose lines.

Much of the furniture and personal belongings was removed from four of the burned houses by volunteers but the home of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Gan on Rosslyn Ave., a three-storey frame structure, was burned down to the second floor and most of the furniture went up in the flames.

In the first platoon were 14 men who subscribed on the first day they were in uniform.

Maj.-Gen. Simonds To Succeed Salmon

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

London, May 3 (CP Cable)—Maj.-Gen. G. G. Simonds, Canada's youngest divisional commander, will succeed Maj.-Gen. H. L. N. Salmon of Toronto, killed last week in an airplane accident in England. It was reported unofficially here last night.

Originally, Gen. Simonds, recently returned from Tunisia where he was attached to the British 8th Army, was to have succeeded Maj.-Gen. J. H. Roberts, former commander of a division and leader of the Dieppe raid, who has been given command of all Canadian reinforcements overseas.

However, it is believed Simonds will be switched to Salmon's old division and that another appointment will have to be made to fill the command vacated with Roberts' new appointment, Army chiefs, it was said, are considering this.

Such a move probably would involve considerable shuffling of senior officers. Among brigadiers mentioned for the appointment as Major General are C. C. Mann o Toronto, Charles Foulke of Lon don, Ont., K. G. Blackader o Montreal and E. L. M. Burns Ottawa.

A military funeral will be hel "Somewhere in England" Tuesda for Salmon and Lt.-Col. C. F. Fin lay of Niagara Falls, Ont., killed i the same crash.

U.S. FORCES PUSH CLOSER TO BIZERTE, TEBOURBA

Nearing Ferryville 10 Miles From Dock Area of Naval Base

Axis Airfields Now Have Been Made Untenable by Heavy Shellfire

CROSS RIVER TINE

By WILLIAM B. KING

(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, May 4 —(AP)— United States troops, capitalizing on their middle position after the seizure of Mateur, moved forward today on the heels of retreating Germans toward Ferryville, which is 10 miles to the northeast and the dock area of the naval base of Bizerte.

At the same time other forces fanned out toward the southeast and smashed to a point eight miles south of Mateur toward the line of the Tine river, only six miles northwest of Tebourba, the gateway to Tunis.

(The BBC, in a broadcast recorded by CBS, said "long-range Allied guns now have Ferryville under fire and several Axis airfields in the area have now been made untenable by shellfire." Ferryville, on the southwest shore of Lake Bizerte, is about eight miles from the naval base which is situated on the northeast shore. The broadcast said the Americans had "come up against a new line of resistance" in the advance on Ferryville.)

In the northeastward push, the Americans crossed the river Tine, despite the destruction of a bridge by the withdrawing forces of Col.-Gen. Jurgen von Arnim, and shoved on toward Ferryville.

(The Tine, rising southwest of Mateur, flows northeastward a short distance east of Mateur and empties into the marshy land bordering Lake Achkel, one of the chain of lakes forming Bizerte's southern defences.)

Threaten to Flank Lakes

To the north of Lake Achkel the French African corps with its Moroccan Goumiers and American elements pressed in upon Bizerte's western hill defences threatening to flank the lakes.

This force reached a road junction at the northwest corner of Lake Achkel and continued to probe the thicket-covered highlands which cover the coastal belt of Bizerte only 15 miles away.

There was no indication as yet how far advance elements might be able to proceed toward Ferryville without meeting strong resistance. But high ground on the east side of the road a few miles from that objective afforded the Axis an opportunity to make a stand to protect the approaches to Bizerte.

The southern prong of the American offensive drove up the direct road from Beja to Mateur, then turned south and east toward the Tine river.

A ridge as well as a watercourse, however, intervened between the Americans and Tebourba, the objective of the British 1st Army which engaged in bloody fighting in the hills along the Medjerda Valley to the west in the past two weeks.

(The approach on Tebourba from the north threatened to outflank the Axis defences in the Medjerda Valley and open the way for a direct march by the British 1st Army on Tunis.)

The British 1st Army made a slight advance in the hills ten miles due north of Medjez-l-Bab on the flank of Medjerda Valley thrust.

The British Tommies swept to the summits of Hills 443 and 416 in the face of dogged Axis resistance, gaining about 1 1-2 miles in a northeasterly direction.

The remainder of the front, held by the British and French, was alive with artillery fire and patrolling, particularly in the 8th Army's sector in the south.

(The BBC, in a French-language broadcast recorded by the Federal communications commission, said the 8th Army had opened a new attack north of Takrouna, five miles northwest of Enfidaville on the east coast, with Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery signalling the offensive as usual by a violent artillery barrage.

Cover Many Miles

The communique issued from headquarters described the American and French advances as covering "many miles", and said the enemy had been forced to "evacuate all his forward positions" in the north after "10 days of relentless pressure and much heavy fighting".

The two drives of the Americans and the third thrust by the French and Americans along the Mediterranean coast left some enemy troops stranded.

Several hundred have been cap-strongholds in the Jefna area west of Mateur and an extensive round-up of prisoners was continuing.

200 Prisoners Captured

Two hundred were captured yesterday.

Outlining the developments which led to the swift break in the situation yesterday, a headquarters spokesman said the U. S. 2nd Army Corps was quick to see the significance of Axis withdrawals in the north.

By following rapidly behind the enemy rather than waiting to wipe out nests, the Americans probably avoided much hard fighting in the rugged mountains while the Germans consolidated their next positions, the spokesman pointed out.

The French and the Americans in the extreme north pressed on for four miles and attained a point on the northwest corner of Lake Achkel.

Despite a day of low clouds, dust haze and thunderstorms a "strong force" of heavy bombers escorted by fighters blasted a fleet of more than 100 barges lining the Bizerte quays where they could be used for evacuation of the enemy's forces.

Considerable damage was done when their bombs landed on jetties opposite the submarine base, on hangars at the naval base and in the town near the harbor mouth, pilots reported.

Majority of U.S. Lease-Lend Planes Sent to Russia

Moscow, May 4 —(CP)— The Moscow radio broadcast to the Russian people today the statement of Lease-Lend Administrator Edward R. Stettinius that more United States Lease-Lend planes have been sent to Russia than to any other military theatre.

The statement was heartily received in all quarters, especially in view of the large-scale aerial warfare now prevailing on the Russian front.

Also heartening to the Russians was Stettinius's disclosure concerning the large quantities of foodstuffs being sent to Russia and his assurance that food is going to keep pouring into the Soviet Union from the United States.

At the same time news of continued Allied successes in Tunisia was hailed by the Russian public, which is eagerly waiting for the end of the North African campaign in the expectation it will be followed by establishment of a second front in Europe.

World's Loneliest Travellers In War Are King's Messengers

By FOSTER BARCLAY

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, May 4 —(CP)— The world's loneliest travellers, in war or peace are the king's messengers, those men who are constantly on the move with secret documents for ambassadors or vital information for the British Government.

You won't find a king's messenger sitting beside you in a railway coach or rubbing elbows at the bar of a big passenger liner, even in peace. In war his movements are doubly clothed in secrecy. At sea he has a state cabin and on railways a private sleeping saloon. He won't leave his quarters until the journey is finished.

The war has brought radical changes. Messengers now are permitted to fly. So much of Europe and the Far East is in Axis hands that the risk must be taken. Yet, if a plane crashes on enemy territory and secret codes fall into unfriendly hands, it is costly business. A new code costs $100,000 and it has to be delivered personally to every British ambassador throughout the world.

Accidents have happened. A messenger, for instance, was travelling to Washington on the Titanic with code books in 1912 when the vessel hit an iceberg and sank. The messenger was drowned and although there was not doubt that the diplomatic bags were lost, the Foreign Office, in accordance with the rules, gave orders that all copies of the cipher were to be destroyed and a new set invented.

Nowadays diplomatic bags are weighted with lead rods to make sure they sink in event of a shipwreck. It is a precautionary measure arising out of an incident in the last war when a messenger's bag fell into German hands.

The messenger was bringing dispatches to the Foreign Office from the British ambassador at Athens when his ship was stopped by a U-boat in the Mediterranean. He threw his bag containing all his documents, overboard, but it floated and was picked up by a German vessel. Within 48 hours correspondence between Sir Edward Gray, then foreign secretary, and the British ambassador in Greece were published in full in Berlin newspapers.

A king's messenger has to be well-equipped for the job. He must be able to speak at least three languages, to ride, swim and shoot straight. He must be prepared to live within a three-mile radius of the Foreign Office.

It is on record that a messenger changing trains at a wayside railway station in a neutral country found that he had left two bags on the platform and there was not time to go back. Leaning from the window, he politely asked two German officers standing nearby to hand up the bags. They did—little knowing that they contained certain vital plans of a new campaign against their country.

Invasion Attempt Of Sicily, Sardinia Feared By Axis

AXIS SUBMARINE 'PROBABLY SUNK' BY R.C.N. CORVETTE

Credit for 'Probably Damaging' Second U-Boat Given Another Corvette

U-BOAT SITUATION

Ottawa, May 4 (CP)—Navy Minister Macdonald announced today that the Canadian corvette Woodstock has been credited with a U-boat "probably sunk" and the corvette Camrose with a U-boat "probably damaged" in recent actions.

At a press conference held in the Naval Board Room, Mr. Macdonald also announced awards of decorations to a number of Canadian naval personnel.

The Woodstock's attack on an enemy submarine was carried out in conjunction with two British trawlers and United States aircraft. The British Admiralty asserted the result as a probable sinking. The corvette was under command of Skipper-Lieut. J. M. Watson of Owen Sound, Ont.

The minister gave no particulars of the action in which the Camrose figured. The Admiralty assessment of the result was "probably damaged." The Camrose was under command of Lieut. Louis R. Pabillard of Halifax.

Mr. Macdonald said the Canadian navy's total of known submarine sinkings stands at eight, including sinkings in all waters, he said there were a great number of probable sinkings and cases of probable damage to submarines, but that he could not give a figure.

Ahead of the Game

"At the moment I should think we are ahead of the game," he said, speaking of the rate of construction of merchant ships in relation to the rate of sinkings.

The past six months had seen a great increase in the output of merchant tonnage which has put construction ahead of sinking, but over a 12-month period it was possible more shipping had been lost than was built.

Last March was a "very bad month" for sinkings, but January was an unusually good month.

Enemy submarine activity was increasing and there was a steady improvement in the type of U-boat employed. The ships were getting stronger and faster. They attacked in packs rather than as single ships.

The minister said the situation regarding the use of the St. Lawrence River for shipping during the summer had not changed. It would still depend on circumstances although he was hopeful more pro-

U.S. War Production Hits Record-Breaking Totals During March

Washington, May 4—(AP)—Record-breaking production totals in aircraft, warships and merchant vessels were rolled up in the United States in March, Donald M. Nelson reported today, but first-quarter arms output still fell far short of the rate needed to meet military plans for 1943.

Aircraft output to 6,200 planes and heavy four-engines bombers topped the 500-a-month rate for the first time, the War Production Board Chairman disclosed in his ninth and most detailed monthly production report.

45,000-Ton Battleship Completed

Naval and cargo ship construction was "the greatest on record," Nelson said, noting the completion of the 45,000-ton battleship Iowa in March and hinting, in these words, that more are coming:

"It is expected that from now on many of the larger warships started early in the war effort will be coming into active service."

A report of increased production came also from Navy Secretary Frank Knox, who told his Press Conference that the country has "arrived at the peak period" of war production and that navy plane and ship output in April set new records.

Combat aircraft delivered to the navy, Knox said, "ran to four figures for the first time."

Morever the number of new vessels of all classes except landing craft completed by the navy during the first four months of this year, the Secretary said, was equivalent "to a 25 per cent increase in the numerical strength of the fleet and its auxiliaries, over Jan. 1 of this year.

Ship Losses Lower

April was a good month in more ways than production, Knox reported. He said that merchant ship losses were down considerably as compared with March adding, "just why, and how long that will continue I do not know."

Taking the first three months together, Nelson was able to say:-

'In the first quarter of 1943 we produced almost 18,000 artillery pieces, including more than 7,000 anti-aircraft guns and more than 8,000 anti-tank guns. Our factories also turned out about 235,000 machine-guns and more than 1,000,000 rifles and sub-machine-guns."

Nevertheless Nelson warned that steel production is nearing its peak and that armament goals cannot be met unless the production pace is accelerated 50 per cent beyond the first-quarter records.

SOVIET AIRMEN SHOOT DOWN 54 PLANES IN 2 DAYS

Battle for Kuban Delta Marks Beginning of Summer Struggle

HUGE AIR BATTLES

(By EDDY GILMORE)

(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Moscow, May 4. (AP)—The battle for the Kuban delta, an area reaching roughly from Novorossisk on the Black Sea northward to the Sea of Azov, is in full swing and it is not unlikely this is the beginning of the great struggle of the summer.

Both sides apparently fought behind strong fortifications and managed to hold their ground positions without change in the last few days, but a Tass News Agency dispatch from the Kuban told of another gigantic air battle west of Krasnodar, with the Soviet airmen shooting down 54 German planes while losing 21 of their own in two days.

This was the second time that the Germans have attempted to strike in the Krasnodar region since the resumption of spirited warfare in the Kuban—and this campaign finds Soviet aviation able to meet every challenge of the German air force.

There was increased activity in other sectors of the front, with the Russian air force making itself felt by raids on German communications and airdromes.

900 Germans Slain

The Russian mid-day communique as recorded in London by the Soviet radio monitor from a Moscow broadcast did not mention any fighting in the Kuban during the night, although the midnight communique had told of 900 more Germans being slain in violent fighting, bringing their toll to nearly 8,000 in recent days.

The German counter-attacks, being matched by the Red Army in the Kuban, mark the third large-scale attempt of the Germans to get going on the Russian front after their disasters of last winter.

The first effort saw them shift more than 30 divisions into the Kharkov area to recapture the city and sweep on to the Donets River where the Red Army held.

The second ambitious plan was north of Zhisdra, which is 80 miles northwest of Orel. The Germans lost heavily in tanks and men then and had no gains to show for the campaign.

The third try was in the Kuban, and their attacks close to Novorossik, in the mud flats of the mid-delta, and near the sea of Azov all failed to shake the Russians.

With more men and more supplies they launched their current attempt.

ARMY PASSES QUOTA

Ottawa, May 4—(CP) — Monday bond sales in the $1,100,000,000 Fourth Victory Loan campaign totalled $63,800, 350, and the total for the first seven working days of the three-week campaign is $436,345,250, the National War Finance Committee announced today.

The cumulative total compares with $366,965,050 at the end of seven working days in last autumn's Third Victory Loan, an increase of $69,380,290—but the Third Victory Loan's objective was only $750,000,000.

Monday's total of $63,800,350 compares with $54,554,150 on the corresponding day in the last campaign.

"It is indicated that both general canvass and employees' subscriptions showed moderate improvement over the individual days of last week and this was officially regarded as encouraging," said today's statement from Loan Headquarters.

"An increasing focus of attention is being turned on the encouraging and steady expansion of subscription totals from the general canvass of citizens throughout Canada and from the payroll savings purchases of bonds by employee groups and members of the armed forces.

"The army has already passed its objective of $5,265,000 by about 20 per cent., the Air Force has a subscription total of approximately $4,000,000 already and navy units report a still-rising volume of support for the loan."

Coroporate subscriptions in the "special names" group include: North American Life Assurance Co. Toronto, $5,000,000; Canada Steamship Lines Ltd., Montreal, $1,000,000; Canadian International Paper Co. and affiliated companies, Montreal, $3,140,000; National Steel Car orp. Ltd., $2,500,000; Bronfman Interests and B. Aaron and Jos. E. Seagram and Sons, Ltd., $750,000.

Ontario Provincial Headquarters reported these large subscriptions: Lamaque Mining Co., $500,000; Teck Hughes Gold Mines, $500,000; Toronto Hydro-Electric Commissioners, $1,000,000; The Toronto Star, $1,000,000; Great Lakes Paper Co., $800,000.

THIEF WENT TOO FAR

Cornwall, Ont., May 4 (CP) — Major George Montgomery, of the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders (Reserve) band didn't mind so much last night when thieves stole his car, but when they stole his bagpipes, too—that was a different matter.

Police so far have been unable to locate either the car or the bagpipes and Major Montgomery is now on the lookout for another set of pipes, which aren't so easy to get, he said.

H. ICKES ORDERS SIX-DAY WEEK FOR COAL MINERS

War-Vital Coal Streams From Mines As Production Hits Its Full Stride

ORDER TELEGRAPHED

(By J. F. SANDERSON)

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Washington, May 4. (CP)—Harold Ickes, fuels administrator, today ordered a six-day week throughout the coal-mining industry of the United States as work was generally resumed after a week-end strike crisis.

The order was telegraphed to approximately 3,850 mine operators now running their properties as agents for the government.

Ickes said mines failing to operate six days weekly would suffer cancellation of the price ceiling increases granted them by the office of Price Administration to cover the added costs of overtime pay.

War-vital coal streamed from the pits today as the mines hit their full productino stride. Bpt troubling the two-week truce that ended the workers weekend walkout was the question of who will handle the permanent settlement of the wage dispute.

The fuel administrator's directive said:—

'Since maximum prices have recently been increased by the office of Price Administration to permit operations of mines on a six-day week work basis you are to afford miners an opportunity to work six days each week and are to operate mines under your charge on that basis and to pay time and one-half or rate and one-half for sixth day or work as heretofore agreed upon by Collective Bargaining and previously cleared by war labor board.

"The government is relying upon you and all miner employees to exercise utmost effort in maintaining and increasing production of coal so vital to the winning of the war.

"If for any justifiable physical or operating reason a six-day week basis is not feasible, timely application for exemption from this directive may be made together with full supporting statement with underlying reasons.

"I intend to recommend to the office of Price Administration that the increase in maximum prices for six-day week operation be rescinded as to any mine which fails to comply with this directive".

Both sides, the miners represented by John L. Lewis, United Mine Workers president, and the war labor board, were standing pat on the question of settlement of pay demands.

The W. L. B. expressed its confidence President Roosevelt fully supported its jurisdiction and that the case will be handled without any deviation from normal wartime procedure. And Lewis asserted the workers whom he ordered back in the pits today pending further negotiations during the 15-day armistice still refuse to refer the cast to the W. L. B.

Allied Movements At Gibraltar And Algeria Reported

Germany Suggests Campaign May Open Before Tunisian Battle Ends

DUCE SEEKS HELP

By E. C. DANIEL

(Associated Press Staff Writer),

London, May 4 —(AP)— The Vichy radio said today Allied movements reported simultaneously at Gibraltar and in Algerian waters may point to a large scale invasion attempt against Sicily and Sardinia, island stepping stones from North Africa to the European mainland.

The broadcast was recorded by Reuters.

Germany's chief military commentators suggested in a broadcast that major Allied forces might pounce immediately on the two islands without waiting for the end of the campaign to drive the Axis out of Tunisia.

The German fear of landings on these islands has been betrayed by numerous broadcasts recently, and Cap. Ludwig Sertorius said last night:

"It is possible that the Allied High Command has refrained from throwing in the mass of its reserves on the Tunisian front because it is planning a large-scale landing operation. It may be planning a landing on the Sicilian or Sardinian coast even before the Tunisian campaign comes to an end.

The German commentator's foreboding followed reports by the Nazi-controlled stations that a huge concentration of Allied shipping was being assembled at Gibraltar, including a number of landing barges.

Sertorius said the United States 5th Army being held in reserve in Algeria and Morocco under Lt.-Gen. Mark W. Clark was being trained as the nucleus of several Allied armies.

German Comments

Lt.-Gen. Kurt Dietmar, German High Command Radio Commentator, acknowledged that southern Europe affords "particularly favorable conditions for landing" but declared the construction of fortifications by the Axis on the invasion casts and "the nature of the country" would impede such operations.

Uneasiness of these German propaganda spokesmen coincided with a report by the Morocco radio that Mussolini had sent a new appeal to Hitler for aid in repelling a possible invasion of Italy from the south.

Sertorius acknowledged that the German submarine packs in the Mediterranean—a serious stumbling block to invasion whose elimination was given first priority in the plans Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt formulated at Casablanca—had lost 50 per cent of their effectiveness in April because of unfavorable weather.

A communique claimed 415,000 tons of Allied shipping were sunk last month compared with 851,600 tons in March.

No Debris or Crew Could Be Found After British Sub Sinks Axis U-Boat

Ottawa, May 4—(CP)—Lieut. Eric Forbes, 25, of Wolfville, N. S., has been serving on a British submarine for 2 1-2 years and has taken part in destruction of two enemy U-boats and thousands of tons of enemy shipping.

The Royal Canadian Navy had him tell of some of his experiences when he was in a British port recently and today issued a press release on the interview.

Forbes and his crewmates sank their first submarine off southern tip of Italy and took 14 prisoners. The enemy U-boat was on the surface—"and we weren't." The attack was made after they sighted the Italian craft about three miles away.

"At that distance it looked like a little tower jutting out of the water," said Lieut. Forbes. "We came within a mile and a half and fired four torpedoes. We hit it twice. Then we closed in and picked up some survivors.

"Italian coast defence guns opened on us but we submerged and got away as far as we could."

Their second U-boat sinking, however, was so thorough that no debris or crew could be found. They hit the ship from four miles in a rough and choppy sea—an exacting feat—just off Crete. There was a "terrific explosion," and "we were quite sure she sank immediately."

Attacks on German and Italian convoys were highlights of the submarine's achievements. One moment it was the attacker—the next it was the attacked.

"I can recall at least five times feeling depth charge explosions—and very close, too," he said. "They only scared us, though. Once we were badly shaken and a few instruments were broken but nothing serious."

Forbes is first lieutenant and works in the control room. He said "there's nothing like" living in a submarine but it isn't easy, the crew live, eat and sleep together underwater 90 per cent of the time. They seldom see daylight, coming up for fresh air only at night and then only long enough to recharge batteries.

"The most satisfying thing I ever saw," Forbes said, "was the sinking of an Italian cruiser by British bombers.

Akyab Pounded Day and Night

New Delhi, India, May 4—(CP)—Akyab, Japanese-held port on the western coast of Burma, was bombed day and night yesterday by the R.A.F., a British communique said today.

A number of fires were started in an early day raid, British Headquarters said, and another formation pounded the port, along with two other enemy-occupied villages on Akyab Island, with good results in the night raid.

Both sides maintained patrol activity in the Arakan area with no change in land positions, and R.A.F. bombers and fighters aided the ground troops by pounding the Japanese positions, the war bulletin declared.

MAY PUBLISH CASUALTIES

London, May 4 — (CP Cable) — Prime Minister Churchill announced in the House of Commons today that the government hopes to be in a position shortly to publish the casualties among the fighting services since the war started.

He said the statistics had been collected from all fighting forces in the Empire up to the close of last year but he was not sure whether the collated statement should be made and he felt such a statement should not be too much up to date.

County officials at Shire Hall are wearing their topcoats and wool sweaters these days, and all because the county seat cellar is flooded with three feet of water with the result that the furnace is out. To anyone who is skeptical that a cellar on the East Hill could be under two feet of water long after the flood season is over, the following explanation is passed along.

Trees facing on Church Street seem to thrive on sub-soil underlying county property and their roots have grown with the result sewers are being blocked back and water is creeping into the cellar.

The city engineer's department have promised action but in the meantime the county clerk's office staff is shivering because of the dampness and the county engineer has moved his office to his home.

LARGE FLOCKS WILD GEESE FLYING NORTH

Apparently aware that winter-like weather may still be encountered in their customary summer haunts in the northern part of Canada, numbers of wild geese are delaying their spring trek to the northern feeding grounds. That geese are still flying north was revealed this morning by Mr. Everett Hubble of Sidney township who reports that three unusually large flocks were seen on Monday as they winged their way northward. The three flocks covered the width of a one hundred acre farm, it was stated.

CHURCHILL GIVES HOUSE ASSURANCE

Britain Will Not Begin Gas Warfare Until Convinced Gas Used by Enemy

London, May 4 (CP) — Prime Minister Churchill assured the House of Commons today that Britain would not begin retaliatory gas warfare until the government is convinced gas has been used by the enemy.

At the same time he vetoed a suggestion that a neutral commission should be requested to ascertain facts regarding the use of gas by the enemy.

Rhys Davies, Labor, had asked that "before this hellish horror" is unloosed, the government take adequate precautions to make sure gas had been used. "Yes," Mr. Churchill replied, "but I've very good confidence that we shall receive true information from our Russian allies."

Over $1,000,000 Subscribed to Loan In County Up Until Monday Night

Hastings County passed the $1,000,000 mark in public subscriptions to the Fourth Victory Loan on Monday, it was announced today by County Loan Headquarters in Belleville. Total amount of money subscribed within the county up until Monday evening was $1,041,000, it was stated.

County air stations with cumulative subscriptions amounting to 75 per cent. of their objectives have been most responsive of any of the larger divisions into which the county has been divided for campaign purposes. No. 5 Initial Training School at Belleville leads the way in this respect with more than 200 per cent. of their initial objective raised.

Industrial workers in the county are also subscribing generously to the Victory Loan, it has been intimated, with the payroll savings division coming in for commendation from provincial loan headquarters. According to an announcement made yesterday employees of industrial firms in Hastings stand second in the province in percentage of their objectives raised.

As the result of Monday's canvass, it was expected by loan officials that the City of Belleville would pass the half-way mark toward their objective of $1,100,000 by nightfall on Tuesday. Percentage of the city's objective reached on Monday stood at 44.4.

Deloro Village has topped the 80 per cent. mark of its objective, while Stirling and district forged ahead to reach 38.1 per cent. of their goal, Sidney and Thurlow district is up to 36.3; Trenton and Deseronto, 30 per cent.; Tweed, 27 per cent.; Bancroft, 21 per cent. and Madoc, 16.4. Subscriptions in the special names division still remained at 10 per cent. of the objective.

Late Season Delays Many Students Leaving B.C.I. To Work on Farms

A great many district high school students intending to leave classes at Easter to assist on farms returned to school following holidays because of the abnormally late spring, it was stated this morning by W. S. Turner, principal of Belleville Collegiate.

With approximately 150 students having made application to leave classes in order that they may assist in agriculture for the summer months, only one third of this number remained away from school following Easter. With the planting season up to three weeks behind the normal year, there is still little work that students might do on farms, it was indicated.

At the present time the ratio of boys to girls already having left school to assist on the farms has been two to one, but when the planting season commences it is expected almost equal number of boys and girls will have left classes.

Pupils granted leave from class rooms to work on farms must be prepared to work at least thirteen weeks according to regulations of the Ontario Department of Education. Candidates must have completed to the satisfaction of the school principal the course of study in each subject for which he requires standing and shall have attained a mark of at least 50 percent in each paper.

Building Activity For April Shows Decided Upswing

A decided upswing in city building activity for the month of April as compared to the previous three months of the year was reported today by City Engineer Charles A. Mott. During the preceding 30-day period a total of 17 building permits, representing construction to the value of $19,440 were issued at the city hall.

Total permits for the first four months of the year stood at 42 and represented construction valued at $34,965. This is a decided increase over the corresponding period during 1942 when only 20 permits were issued representing construction valued at $25,380.

By far the greatest majority of the permits issued during April were for residential construction, it was revealed by the records. Several new residences were planned, while many others were for alterations or additions to existing structures, reflecting the need in Belleville for more housing accommodation.

Permits issued during the month included those to Mrs. Mildred Deline, two storey addition to present dwelling on Dundas St., $7500; Mrs. Kathleen Pack cottage on Wallbridge Road, $1,000; Mrs. Ida Devolin, cottage at 46 Henry Street, $1,000; Peter Lee, alterations to dwelling on Queen Street, $1,000; R. F. Hayward, two storey dwelling on Ridley Avenue, $1,600; Arthur Thompson, cottage on Jones Street, $1500; Rosarious Bourdatt, cottage on Frank Street, $1,500; and Bernard Bullock, local Grace Temple minister, alterations to former Burgess property on East Dundas Street, for meeting place, $500.

Other permits issued included that for a two storey addition and building of loading platform roof by A. W. Carmichael on Pinnacle Street, at $800; garage for Canadian Oil Company, $200; Mrs. Laurie Lewis, garage on Dunbar St., $250; J. Large, Murney Street chicken pen, $140; Alfred Lazier, garage on Hillcrest, $150; "Bud" Haines for addition to present park pavilion at the Fair Grounds for office space and wash rooms, $500; and to Wilfred Babcock, foundation under house on North Front St., $100.

POLICE COURT

"When in Rome, do as the Romans do," remarked Magistrate J. S. Garvin, of Kingston, when he sentenced one John Brewer, Belleville, to 14 days in the common jail after the man had pleaded guilty today to a charge of intoxication. Magistrate Garvin presided in Belleville today in a straight exchange of benches with Magistrate J. L. Lloyd, who was presiding over the Kingston court. In regard to His Worship's inference when sentencing Brewer it was later disclosed the jail term for intoxicants is only ten days in Kingston, thus the proverbial remark, while the customary term here is 14 days.

In the absence of a gallery Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C., read pleas of guilty from seven inebriates, five of whom paid the conventional "ten and costs," while the other was assessed $50 and costs after pleading guilty to a second offence of intoxication during the current year.

A charge of theft was dismissed against a woman after the accused had been declared mentally defective and is now in an institution. The charge originally came as the result of pilferings from letter boxes in the downtown area some months ago when letters were stolen which contained money orders and cheques, all of which were cashed by the accused. The accused woman has been under observation ever since being apprehended by Trenton police and is now confined to an institution, Chief Probert informed the court. Being acquainted with the case, Magistrate Garvin dismissed the charge and what restitution was possible was ordered.

A smash-and-grab jewelry robber looted McFee's Front St. store window of over $800 worth of watches and rings early Tuesday morning. The same method of breaking the store window and reaching inside to snatch what jewelry within reach was employed as happened on two other occasions to Belleville jewelry stores last year.

Seven valuable wrist watches and 16 rings, including a $100 diamond ring, were included in the loot, Edson Logan, manager of the store, informed Chief Probert later in the day.

Discovered by Airman

The robbery was discovered by Cpl. J. Tartaglia, of the Mountain View R.C.A.F. Bombing School shortly before five o'clock Tuesday morning and he immediately reported to police headquarters. Constables W. T. Evans and H. Taylor investigated the robbery and found a motor car axle in the doorway with the north side of the south window leading into the store doorway shattered at the base. A hole some two feet in diameter was made in the window giving sufficient size for the robber to reach in and snatch what jewelry was within reach. Police discovered blood on the shattered glass and also on the step leading into the store which indicated the robber had cut his hands in his hasty attempt to steal the jewelry.

Insurance Covers Loss

Police are thoroughly satisfied the robber had previously visited the scene of the robbery and after observing the position of the more valuable jewelry broke the window nearest to his subsequent loot. However, the McFee store policy is to remove the most valuable watches and rings from their display window before closing with the result the most valuable watch which was taken was priced at $75. The goods taken were covered by insurance, Mr. J. A. McFee informed police officials after taking full inventory.

Axle Used to Break Window

The motor car axle, found at the scene, was used to break the store window and then hastily dropped at the store door entrance. Across the street apartment residents and nearby restaurant employees stated they heard no undue noise. Police officers had patrolled the area and tried the McFee door at 4.30 a.m. in the second patrol beat of the night. The breaking of the window and stealing of the jewelry happened between 4.30 and 4.51 a.m., according to the information received when Cpl. Tartaglia reported the break-in. Cpl. Tartaglia was returning to his station at Mountain View when he happened to observe the broken window. The robbery is the third of its kind to occur in Belleville in the past eleven months. On the two previous occasions the culprit was apprehended and is now serving a jail term.

Letter To The Editor

SUGGESTS NEW QUIZ CONTEST

Belleville, May 3rd.

The Editor,
Belleville Intelligencer.

In all fairness to the contestants in Sunday night's Quiz Contest, held at the McCarthy Theatre, I would suggest a new Contest be held.

In Friday's Ontario Intelligencer it was stated that "Surprise questions pertaining to the Victory Loan Campaign, to the cost of Canada's War Effort and the men in public interest, would be asked the school winners, Sunday evening."

Very few of the questions, asked C and B groups, had any connection whatever with the headings stated in the paper.

The majority of the questions for C group, were far beyond the intelligence of most of the children, who were six and seven years of age. Mr. Jobson should be commended for his well-timed objection to these questions and also commendation to the other two gentlemen, whose names I do not know, who remarked the unfairness of the competition.

Many of the qnuestions were asked in such a manner, that the answer was suggested. For instance, the question, regarding the Four Freedoms. The first child, who couldn't answer, was asked "Where do you go on Sunday mornings? When he answered, "to church" that was taken as Freedom of Religion. The three following contestants had no such suggestions given them, which I thought very unfair.

When a child failed to answer a question, that same question was often given to four consecutive contestants. This gave the fourth child, sixty seconds in which to think of the answer, while the first child had only fifteen seconds. Another instance of unfairness.

Another example; the question of, which is the senior service The Army, Air Force or the Navy. The first answer given, was "The Army," the child was eliminated. The second answer was, "The Air Force," this child was eliminated. The third child had only one answer to give, The Navy, and was left in the contest.

It might be advisable to have a list of questions, suitable to the different age groups, submitted by teachers, to the committee in charge and give these contestants of Sunday evening last, a fair quiz contest.

I am sure the majority of the people present, Sunday evening, will agree with me, that another contest should be held.

Yours for FAIR PLAY
A Belleville Citizen.

AXIS SUBMARINE

tection could be afforded to shipping everywhere this summer.

Joint Command May Help

"I am hopeful the joint command, announced last week, will help with the St. Lawrence," he said. "We will have more ships and more planes and there has been some co-operative training between the Navy and the Air Force during the winter."

The new command is headed by Rear-Admiral Leonard Murray at Halifax, who will have charge of all British trade convoys from North American ports halfway to the United Kingdom and will have the close co-operation of Air Vice-Marshal G. O. Johnson, Officer Commanding-in-Chief, Eastern Air Command, and the Air Forces available for anti-submarine patrols.

While good progress was being made on the two Tribal class destroyers under construction at Halifax, they would not be commissioned this year, said the minister. As soon as they were off the ways two more would be started, to complete the present program which calls for eight of this type of ship.

Two, built in the United Kingdom, have already been commissioned, and two more are building there.

Some of the navy's new frigates, the lates and more powerful edition of the corvette, will be in action this summer, Mr. MacDonald said.

Total strength of the navy was passed 60,000 including some 2,100 women, said the minister. The strength in ships is over 500.

So far, he said, there has been no shortage of recruits.

The tremendous growth of The Navy League of Canada in the past five years, and especially since the outbreak of war, is evidenced by the 20 buildings which it now operates on behalf of Merchant Seamen, Naval Officers and ratings and also for soldiers and airmen and the women of the three services. Four buildings are shown in the above picture. From left to right they are (upper) the new Navy League Seamen's Club at Vancouver, the Forum skating rink at Halifax and (lower) the League's Merchant Officer's Club and Naval Officers' Club, also at Halifax.

The Forum was opened last December and is used by the men of all three services. Between them they had nearly 100 hockey teams during the winter and it was not unusual to see 7,500 men and women of the active forces lustily cheering at the evening hockey games. Skating periods were provided for all service men and women and their families were not overlooked.

The Vancouver and Halifax Clubs were opened within a few days of each other early this year. Those at Halifax are in addition to the Navy League Merchant Seamens' Club which has been in operation since December, 1941. Until recently, there was no provision for officers of the Merchant Navy or Navy at Halifax, but this need is now being met.

These developments, and the fulfillment of other heavy responsibilities, have taken place under the guidance of David H. Gibson, President of the Navy League of Canada.

Ottawa Eating Places Jammed To Overflowing

(By R. K. CARNEGIE)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, May 4. (CP) — The restaurant problem has assumed major proportions in Ottawa as it becomes increasingly difficult for persons to crowd their way into cafeterias and other eating places.

Before the war Ottawa was a tough place for restaurants to make ends meet because the civil servants with an hour-and-a-half lunch hour could go home for all their meals. However, when the thousands of new civil servants began to pour into the city, living mostly in rooming houses, the relatively few public eating houses became unequal to the task.

Then the public works department began building huge temporary office buildings in sections of the city where there were no restaurants.

To alleviate this situation the Red Cross and variou church organizations opened cafeterias in the temporary buildings and women gave their services free to add to the fun.s of the Red Cross and church undertakings.

One of the largest of these cafeterias was operated by the Red Cross for the employees housed in the office buildings on the experimental farm at the southwest border of the city. Last week Mrs. Donald Gordon, wife of the Prices Board chairman who had been largely instrumental in managing this cafeteria, resigned because of the complaints of some of the customers.

Noted British Conductor Dies at Birmingham

Birmingham, England, May 4 — (CP)—Leslie Hays Heward, 45, director of the Birmingham City Orchestra and one of England's outstanding conductors, died here yesterday.

A native of Littleton, Yorkshire, and the son of an organist, Heward embarked on a musical career at the age of eight when he began playing the organ in a local church. Later he taught music at Eton and subsequently became a conductor with the British National Opera Company. He had been director of the Birmingham Orchestra since 1930.

Next-of-Kin Can Give Information On Men Missing

Ottawa, May 4—(CP)—While the names of missing Canadian airmen still will not appear on official casualty lists until five weeks after the operation from which they failed to return, there is no objection to next-of-kin giving information to the newspapers, an R. C. A. F. spokesman said yesterday.

The aim in not publishing the names in the official lists immediately is to keep from the enemy complete information on the number of men missing as a result of a specific operation, this spokesman said.

However, there was no objection to the release of information by next-of-kin, since it was unlikely a complete list would thus be made available on any given day.

The five-week delay in publishing missing men's names in casualty lists follows the practice of the R. A. F., and the following paragraph from letters now being sent to next-of-kin after a man is reported missing is almost identical with a paragraph in R. A. F. letters:-

"Your son's (or husband's) name will not appear in the official casualty list for five weeks. You may, however, release to the press or radio the fact that he is reported missing, but not disclosing date, place, or his unit."

Some weeks ago the press censors removed a directive advising against publication of information about missing men until five weeks had elapsed, but change in practice of R. C. A. F. casualty branch was not put into effect until considerably later, after a check with the British Air Ministry on overseas procedure.

Until a few days ago next-of-kin of missing Canadian airmen were still being advised not to give information to newspapers or radio.

Civilians Can Help Balance Debt To Men in Services by Buying Bonds

R. A. Elliott, Manager of Deloro M. & S. Co., Speaks to Rotary Club in Interest of Victory Loan

MUST BE NO SHIRKING

Despite long hours put in by industrial workers and the heavy burden of income and nuisance taxes, civilian Canadians are not yet balancing the ledger when compared to what they are receiving through the sacrifice of those in the armed services, according to R. A. Elliott, general manager of the Deloro Smelting and Refining Company.

This is what Mr. Elliott told members of the Belleville Rotary Club here Monday when he spoke in the interest of the Fourth Victory Loan Campaign at their regular weekly luncheon at the Hotel Quinte.

Quoting Madame Chiang Kai-Shek's words that "it takes but little effort to watch the other fellow bear the burden", Mr. Elliott reminded that to put the Fourth Victory Loan "over the top" will take sweat on the part of all Canadians. "And in order to get sweat, we must work," he added.

The speaker recounted Canada's accomplishment in oversubscribing her previous two war loans and three Victory Loans and pointed out that the National objective in the Fourth Victory Loan is but $100,000,000 more than was realized last autumn.

"We have in Canada a potential 6,000,000 workers drawing regular wages, while in Hastings we have a potential 60,000 workers. This means that if all bought a $50 bond, Hastings would "go over the top," he said.

Canadians were in this war, he concluded, to win the right to live as they wish, and this can only be won by service above self.

Hastings County Victory Loan committee chairmen were guests of Rotarians at the luncheon, with County Chairman J. B. Boyce introducing officials to the members. Present at the meeting were J. J. Trudeau, W. H. Ireland, Bert Reid, Erle Denyes, Clarke Kinnear, Ted Woolley, Don Lee, Aubrey Coe and Arthur Francis.

"Sandy" Burrows introduced the guest speaker to Rotary members, while club appreciation was capably expressed by J. Owen Herity. President Lloyd Hicks was in the chair with John Deacon acting as song leader and Alec Gordon as piano accompanist.

A Victory Loan publicity film,—"We Also Serve", sponsored by the Coca-Cola Company Limited, was shown at the luncheon following Mr. Elliott's address.

Boeing Aircraft Plant Reopened

Vancouver, May 4 —(CP)— Gates at the four Vancouver plants of Boeing Aircraft Company of Canada, Limited, swung open today for some 8,000 workers after a six-day shutdown, ordered when employees defied a government ruling and took a 10-minute rest period last Wednesday morning.

After 90 per cent of the employees attending a mass meeting late yesterday voted to return to work "on the government's terms for the time being," it was announced the plants would reopen today.

Ralph P. Bell, National Director-General of Aircraft Production, authorized the re-opening following assurance of Union officials there would be no stoppage of work during regular work periods, it was announced.

Union officials, in a letter sent to Boeing Aircraft, said the employees "overwhelmingly" voted to return to their jobs under conditions of the current union agreement with the company. The agreement does not provide for rest periods during working hours.

Charles H. Whent, President of the Aeronautical Mechanic's Lodge 756, (A. F. L.), said that workers had been asked to vote in favor of resuming production while "continuing your efforts until your just demands are attained." It was estimated about 6,000 workers attended the meeting.

The two boys became Pilot Officers with this milestone in their progress in the air service of their country.

Dewan Advocates Price of Cheese Be Increased

Unionville, Ont., May 4 — (CP)—An increase of two cents a pound in the price of cheddar cheese would serve to increase output and bring it up to the 1943 quota set for Ontario, Hon. P. M. Dewan, provincial agricultural minister, told a junior farmers' club here last night.

Unionville is 10 miles north of Toronto.

All other quotas would be reached or nearly reached with the exception of cheddar cheese, Mr. Dewan said, adding he expected to discuss the cheese situation with the executive of the Ontario cheese producers who would be meeting in Toronto this week.

Mr. Dewan declared he was having an estimate made at present as to the actual farm situation with regard to the production of essential foodstuffs and with reference to farm labor supply.

"The farmer who has a fair supply of family help should emerge from the war in a fairly affluent position," said Mr. Dewan. "But the great question is how are we going to keep the farmers in this position in the postwar period when the wider markets at present enjoyed become restricted and when there is a lessening of demand for foodstuffs and resultant slump in prices."

Farm people must be better organized than ever before to meet the problems of the future, the minister said.

WIFE USED TO $50 MONTH NOT $75 SHE TELLS JUDGE

Chicago, May 4 (AP)—Circuit Judge Thomas J. Mrs. Hartman, 63, mother of four children and grandmother of 12, said: "Oh, that would be too much, make it $50. I'm used to that." The judge agreed.

Italians Realize Royal Navy 'Not Only For Garden Parties'

London, May 4 (CP Cable) — Maj.-Gen. Carleton Jones, 69, former Director General of the Canadian Medical Service who has reached Britain from Italy where he was caught by the war, has been quoted by William Hickey of the London Daily Express as saying Italians will fight hard and bravely if invaded, even though Hitler may abandon them and dig in in Central Europe.

Gen. Jones, a native of Halifax, told Hickey in an interview Italians are better fighters individually than collectively and prefer service in Africa to Russia and Yugoslavia, where they are being employed to suppress the activities of patriot armies.

The General confirmed reports the Italian wartime food organization is shaky, and called Britain's "perfect" by comparison.

He continued by saying he had seen fewer Italian women in the air service than in Britain, and said bombings had not caused any great disturbance in that country outside of the localities immediately affected. He added that the Italian A.R.P. was "rudimentary" and that Fascism's reputation for efficiency has greatly waned.

The General said the Italians had discarded their pre-war opinion that the British navy was "only for garden parties" and that Malta could be taken in five days.

The Highest Security

Every Canadian realizes or should realize that Canadian Government Victory bonds are and will be the finest security that anyone can possess. Behind them stands the natural wealth of Canada and the resources of Canadian citizenship. These two give government securities the premier place of all held in any portfolio.

The Province of Ontario believes it and has shown its belief by subscribing for five million dollars worth of the Fourth Victory Loan bonds and also by declaring that the Government will accept Victory bonds at par with accrued interest to date in settlement of duties on estates. That action is something which should drive home to every citizen the superior value of the bonds.

As the campaign for the sale of the Fourth Victory Loan moves on, Canadians demonstrate their faith and confidence in the great future. What the citizens have and are is due to Canada and the democratic influence or way of life which directs this Dominion and so many other states of the world. The campaign is leading the former victory loan and there is assurance that the present issue will be taken up by the people so readily as to exceed the minimum of one billion, one hundred millions.

The small investors really have a balance of power when it comes to wealth for their subscriptions mount quickly as they are doing in this campaign to swell the total. Industry has been doing well, individuals with considerate private means have done well, institutions have done well and the great mass of the people are doing well.

In rolling up the total, subscribers are building up a powerful reserve for the days of peace which will follow victory. Those who buy bonds now are lightening the burden of the taxation after the war in settlement of the costs of the struggle and the Government is acting wisely in getting the entire nation investing in its securities.

Those who are investing have reason for satisfaction, for they know that Canada stands to defend them, they know that Canada is forging its way to be one of the great nations of the earth in the truest sense and they rightly feel that they will have more than a normal part in that great future, a personal individual part by which they can justly say that they were in this war for the maintenance of a true and just world.

The great inspiration in this campaign and in similar issues is the fighting front of the men and boys of Canada who are ready to carry freedom and liberty to the ends of the earth. These dollars which are placed in the loan give Canada's defenders the tools, backed up by the knowledge of the fullest co-operation of the people of Canada, the parents, brothers, sisters and other relatives of the brave men in arms.

Aid From Britain

The idea is prevalent that the U.S.A. is pouring out millions of dollars worth of supplies, arms and food to Britain, Russia and the other United Nations, and that she is getting nothing in return. In truth, the British Empire is pouring forth a constant stream of food, clothing, weapons and medical supplies for American troops without charge—Lease Lend in Reverse.

After Pearl Harbor, British arms were rushed directly to the U.S.A. Thousands of barrage balloons and A.A. guns, predictors and other protective appliances were shipped across the Atlantic. The latest machine-tools were stripped from British factories and dispatched to the United States. One entire shell-making plant, one of the most modern in the world, was dismantled and shipped, and a gunmaking factory went the same way. No charge was made.

During the North African landings, according to the U. K. Information Office the American forces were provided by Britain with 160 Spitfires, more than 500,000 anti-tank mines and grenades, 130 reconnaissance boats, medical supplies for 100,000 men and one U. S. division was completely equipped with the famous British 25-pounder guns. All this free of charge. This is Lease Lend in Reverse.

A Contrast

A man who might have worn many decorations for his war service was content to wear his ordinary winter campaign dress, beret, sweater, battledress jacket when he came to the gates of Tripoli. It was none other but the great leader General Montgomery. In contrast was the glitter of decorations worn by the Libyan vice-governor, the mayor of Tripoli and chief of police, these three Italian officials who were adorned, according to Edmund Stevens, Christian Science Monitor correspondent, in natty uniforms with row upon row of medals and gold braid cascading from glittering epaulettes. After this one can partially understand one of the reasons Italy has shown so poorly in the war and why the Eighth Army has been the admiration of the world.

Meadow Mouse—Saboteur

Southern Ontario has suffered from a plague of meadow mice this past winter according to reports received by the Royal Ontario Museum. Correspondents state that since the snow has melted it is now apparent that young fruit trees, vines, shrubs, and hedges, have been badly girdled. Meadow mice have eaten both the inner bark and the soft cambium layer beneath it, thus severing the lifeline of the plant.

Maximum damage occurs when a winter of deep snow coincides with a high mouse population. Protected by the snow from hawks, shrikes and owls, meadow mice tunnel vigorously beneath this covering and eat almost everything within reach. They even burrow beneath the soil to get at the roots of plants. Unfortunately damage is complete by the time their ravages are discovered. Trees over two years old can be protected by applying a repellent wash such as creosote and tar to the trunks in the fall. A measure of protection can be given to garden shrubs and bushes by pounding down the snow about them.

Even in peace time the destruction caused by the meadow mouse is serious but in time of war, loss of valuable food-producing trees and vines takes on a graver aspect. The meadow mouse which attacks under cover of snow is an enemy and saboteur.

How Old is Anne?

The village doctor and lawyer were spending a convivial evening with the economist from the big city and eventually the discussion came round to which represented the oldest profession.

"Well!" said the doctor, "Eve was made from Adam's rib. That makes the medical profession the oldest on record."

"Not at all," said the lawyer. "Before Adam — if you will search the record—order was created out of chaos. To get order there had to be law and that makes my honorable profession the oldest."

"Heck," interrupted the economist. "Who do you think created the chaos?"

Noble Gesture

(Hamilton Spectator)

In erecting a memorial to perpetuate the name of Raymond Draper, a young American pilot who crashed in a fatal dive rather than endanger school children in a suburb of London, two thousand grateful English parents are honoring a brave youth and also themselves. It is such gestures as theirs that promise well for the future world and help to subdue the strident voices of nationalism, wherever they are heard.

JUST FOLKS

SAFE SERVICE

I've never wakened as they do
To dwell with danger all day through.
I've never wakened as they must
To rifle fire and bayonet thrust.
When spring has come my happier lot
Has been to view a garden plot.

When I have flung my curtains up
I've looked on phlox and buttercup
Instead of gunfire I have heard
The sweet, enraptured song of bird.
The spring, in spite of grief and care,
Has scattered beauty everywhere.

Now far away, on land and sea,
Those boys who fight for liberty
At morning wake once more to know
That round about them lurks the foe.
Through flap of tent or porthole barred
They look upon a world war-scarred.

Now spring has come and here I stay
Amid the loveliness of May.
While all our braver young will wake
To look on horrors war must make
And all that soldiers must behold,
I'll wake again to marigold.

Leaflets on the Loan

By Stephen Leacock

National Debt, National Blessing

I was a witness to a queer matter of psychology this morning. Psychology? No, I'm not trying to use a long word for a short. It's simple enough. It just means the way you use your mind. For instance, at poker when you want the others to think you hold at least a straight, that's psychology. At golf when you say to the caddy, "How many was that last hole?" and want him to say seven instead of eleven, that's psychology.

Stephen Leacock

The case I mean occurred in the Mariposa barber shop that I spoke of before,—Jeff's place,—a sort of centre of town talk and public information.

It was in the quiet hour of the morning with only Jeff himself shaving. I'd get nominated to the chair right away because the morning papers had just come off the bus and most of the fellers preferred to sit and read for a while.

Well, Bill Landy was talking to George Summers and evidently talking Victory Loan.

Bill Landy has a mind as quick and bright as the flight of a humming bird. He has to. He's in the mining stock business and in that you mustn't give the other man time to think. Of course Bill is closed just now, so he's in war work, — a dollar a year man,—the most he ever made, net. He's the chief canvasser for the Loan in Mariposa, — not the Chairman of the Committee, though,—Mariposa is too religious a place to make a mining broker a Chairman.

Anyway Bill was talking to George Summers. George is different. He has a cement business, and you know the way it is with cement. It has to settle. George's mind is like that. You can't make any marks on it, — he won't let you, — till it gets set and firm. George laid the town side-walks and he doesn't forget the place where the duck walked across the cement in front of the Public Library. No, Sir.

I didn't hear how the talk, or argument, started because Jeff had put a hot towel over my face and stopped to listen and forgot me. But when he let me out of the chair Bill Landy was saying.

"At any rate you remember the old phrase, a national debt is a national blessing."

"Why do you call it a phrase?' says George.

"Because it is."

"Is what?"

"Is a phrase," says Bill.

"Never mind the phrase business," interrupts one of the boys who was listening. "Where does the blessing come in? Isn't a debt a debt?"

"Why, this way," says Bill, "You take a national debt like ours, widely distributed,—"

"What do you call 'distributed' "? asks George.

"He means everybody holds some," says one of the fellers.

"Oh!"

"Well," Bill went on, "now let's say that individual A holds a hundred dollars,—"

"Who's he?" asks George.

"Well, just A, or if you like I'll call him B"

"No, no, call him A if you like. You mean some feller whose name begins with A, like Alec Anderson or Andy Ames."

"Yes, exactly, but I don't mean them."

"Oh you don't!"

"He just means anybody," interrupted the Chorus.

"Yes", says Bill, "I just mean a whole string of individuals, A, and B, and C, all the way to Z".

"I doubt", says George Summers slowly, "If you'd find any feller here in Mariposa whose name begins with Z".

"No matter", says Bill, "the point is this. Each hundred dollars that the government borrows means, to the government, a hundred dollars of debt"...

"Yes."

"But for A. B. and C. it means a hundred dollars as an asset".

"Right down to Z", says George, "or is there a catch in it?"

"Why, don't you see, George", interrupted me and the fellers in the seats "what's a debt to the Government that it owes me, looks to me like an asset, a hundred dollars to the good."

"Exactly", says Bill Landy. "Now add up all the total. If the country owes a billion dollars, is it any poorer? No, not if it owes it at home. It means there are a lot of people in the country who are, put together, a billion dollars to the good. Make it two billion, it's all the same".

"And where's the blessing?" asked George.

"Holds the country together", says one of the listeners, "Who's going to upset or shipwreck a government if he depends upon it for three or four thousand dollars invested in a loan?..."

"Exactly", says Bill Landy.

"I begin to see", says George Summers.

"Next!" called Jeff.

"You're next, George", said the boys. "Shave Mr. Summers, Jeff, we'll wait". They knew it was just the moment.

I walked out and down the street with Bill Landy.

"That's a hard business, Bill" I said. "Canvassing a feller like George Summers".

"Oh, that was not for George", Bill said. "He'll take up the Loan good and plenty when he gets set. That was for the other fellers".

"How do you mean?", I asked.

"Why, the way to make a feller see anything, is to let him see some other feller not see it, d'you see!"

"I see", I said.

MOHAMMED'S MIRACLE

"If the mountain will not come to Mohammed, Mohammed must go the mountain," has been a familiar English proverb since the 17th century.

It is said of one who, unable to have his own way, bows to the inevitable.

Apparently the proverb was suggested by the following passage in Francis Bacon's essay entitled "Of Boldness":

"You shall see a bold fellow many times do Mahomet's miracle. Mahomet made the people believe that he would call an hill to him, and from the top of it offer up his prayers for the observers of his law. The people assembled; Mahomet called the hill to come to him, again and again; and when the hill stood still, he was never a whit abashed, but said: If the hill will not go to Mahomet, Mahomet will go to the hill."

No earlier reference to the story of Mohammed and the mountain has been produced, and no counterpart of it has been found in Moslem or Arabic literature.

The New Testament contains several references to mountain-removing faith: "If ye have faith as a grain of mustard seed, ye shall say unto this mountain, Remove hence to yonder place; and it shall remove" (Matt. 17:20); "If ye have faith, and doubt not, ye shall not only do this which is done to the fig tree, but also if ye shall say unto this mountain, Be thou removed, and be thou cast into the sea; it shall be done" (Matt. 21-21); "That whosoever shall say unto this mountain, Be thou removed, and be thou cast into the sea; and shall not doubt in his heart, but shall believe that those things which he saith shall come to pass; he shall have whatsoever he saith" (Mark, 11:23), and, "Though I have all faith, so that I could remove mountains, and have not charity, I am nothing" (I Corinthians, 12:2).

But there is no known occurrence of this figure of speech in the Koran or in any other pre-17th century Moslem writings.

A story, of later date than Bacon's and probably also of English origin, says that when Mohammed first began to teach his doctrine to the Arabs, they demanded, as a sign of his divine authority, some miracle such as Moses, Jesus and other prophets had performed. Mohammed at first replied that any such pretension to miraculous powers on his part would be displeasing to God. The Arabs, however, persisted in their demand, whereupon Mohammed to satisfy them, called to Mt. Safa (a mountain near Mecca sacred to pagan Arabs) to come to him. When the mountain paid no attention to the prophet's commands, he said: "God is merciful; for had the mountain obeyed my words and come to me, it would have fallen on us to our destruction; therefore I will go to the mountain and there give thanks to God for showing mercy to a stiffnecked generation."

Weather Cause Of Allied Losses In Air Battle

Allied Headquarters, Australia, May 4 — (CP) — It was adverse weather, not the fighting prowess of the Japanese, that cost the Allies heavy losses in the air battle over the Arafura Sea off Darwin Sunday.

Exactly what the losses were has not been disclosed. An official spokesman at Allied headquarters said three pilots were missing after the fight against the 21 bombers and 30 fighters the Japanese sent against the Darwin airdrome.

The Japanese bombers came in at 26,000 feet. Above them swarmed the fighters, so high they were invisible from the ground.

Allied ground defences blazed into action. So effective was their fire the raiders wheeled and raced back to sea before they had completed their bombing run. The explosives they did drop did little damage.

As the Japanese sped out of range of the anti-aircraft guns, the Spitfires roared to the attack and the battle raged far out over the sea.

But when the Australian and British fighters headed for home they ran into a whistling headwind that slowed them so much some were unable to make land. Others crash-landed on the Australian shore.

Three enemy fighters were destroyed and one bomber and nine fighters were damaged. It was considered likely, however, that the adverse weather cost the Japanese further losses before they got home.

What Does The Future Offer?

IV

The shape of things to come will be determined by what we do now.

We, of this generation are engaged in a struggle of barbaric cruelty. We are fighting that our way of life may survive—that the coming generation may enjoy freedom of speech—freedom to worship God as they will—freedom to determine their own destiny.

There must be no compromise—no appeasement—nothing less than unconditional surrender is our goal if the succeeding generation is to be spared the horrors of war. All post-war plans for a better world are but visionary dreams unless we smash through to Victory.

For over three years our men in the armed forces have trained faithfully for the day of attack. Now our leaders tell us the time for attack is at hand. We dare not deny our fighting men one single cartridge that may be needed to do the job.

It's our job—yours and mine—to supply the millions of tons of war materials that are essential to Victory. Let's buy Victory Bonds to the utmost of our ability—two ways—put our savings into Victory Bonds and buy all we can on the 6-month installment plan out of income.

WEDDINGS

MacKAY—ADAMS

Ferns, pale pink hydrangeas and baskets of deep pink carnations formed the floral background in Wesley United Church for the wedding on April 22nd of Emily E., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Adams to Trooper Robert William MacKay, C.A.C., son of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. MacKay, all of Notre Dame de Grace, Montreal. The ceremony took place at three o'clock and was performed by Rev. B. B. Brown. "O Promise Me," was beautifully rendered by Miss Freda Stephens, cousin of the bride and Mr. Gordon Rendell played the wedding music.

Mrs. J. R. Clayton was the bride's only attendant, Mr. J. R. Clayton attended the groom and Mr. Glen Adams, brother of the bride and Mr. Howard Bowman, cousin of the bridegroom, acted as ushers.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of forget-me-not blue triple sheer, cut on Grecian lines with long sleeves ending in bands at the wrists. Her forget-me-not veil of blue tulle illusion, extending to the waist, fell from a cluster of pink rosebuds. She carried an old-fashioned nosegay of Sweetheart roses, forget-me-nots and spring flowers.

The matron of honor was in a floor-length frock of baby pink triple sheer, cut on lines similar to those of the bride's dress, with which she wore a headdress of baby pink tulle illusion and carried a nosegay of blue irises, sweet peas and spring flowers.

The bride's mother was attired in a navy blue crepe two-piece ensemble trimmed with white, a matching straw hat and corsage spray of red roses. The mother of the bridegroom was gowned in dusty rose crepe, with navy blue accessories and spray of pansies for her corsage.

The reception following the ceremony was held at the home of the bride's parents, the rooms of which were decorated with carnations and daffodils. The newly-married couple left later on their wedding trip to the Laurentians. The bride chose for travelling a copen blue flannel suit with navy accessories.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Roy Williamson and Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Peck, of Carrying Place; Mr. and Mrs. Percy White, Muriel and Max of Belleville; Mr. and Mrs. J. E. You can't go "ALL-OUT" If you feel "ALL-IN"

These days most people are working harder, worrying more, sleeping less. This strain on body and brain makes physical fitness easier to lose—harder to regain. Today's tense living lowers resistance—increases body and mental fatigue. Overwork; hasty meals; irregular hours; worry—any of these may upset proper kidney action.

When kidneys get out of order, excess acids and poisons remain in the system. Then backache, headache, rheumatic pain, disturbed rest or that "tired-all-the-time" feeling may soon follow. To help keep your kidneys in good order—to help guard against physical let-down—use Dodd's Kidney Pills, for over half a century a favourite remedy for faulty kidneys. Ask for Dodd's Kidney Pills at any drug counter. Look for the blue box with the red band. 126

Old Age Brings Mental Changes

Mental changes often take place as a person becomes aged. Loss of memory is a common example of this condition. Those mental changes may occur along with the general aging of all body tissues. It is called senility and comes on at about 75 years or older. Also mental changes may come as a result of hardening of the arteries.

The earliest symptom, in most cases of senility, is easy tiring. Then develops failure to concentrate. A variety of other symptoms may occur. The patient may become set in his ways, and may avoid any new methods or ideas. Irritability, anger, depression and suspicion occur in many of the persons. At one time the patient may be relatively clear and coherent. Then, in a few hours, he may not be able to recognize his best friend or speak in a coherent manner. Disturbance of the memory is typical of the mental disturbance of elderly people.

In treating these disorders, according to Dr. David K. Henderson, of Edinburgh, Scotland, an effort must be made to maintain the individual's health at its most efficient point. The idea is to preserve and maintain health rather than to cure the mental condition after it has developed.

A person approaching old age should make preparations to alter his life so as to put the least possible strain on his body. He must take things easier, get enough rest and sleep, avoid excesses, particularly in the use of tobacco or alcohol. The tiredness and fatigue and lack of concentration which develop early in these mental disturbances may often respond quickly to such simple treatment as more rest in bed, a vacation, regulation of the bowel habits and improvement in the general nutrition. It has been noted that there often is a deficiency of vitamin B-complex and vitamin C in these elderly persons, and, of course these vitamins should be supplied in liberal amounts. Sleeplessness often may be a difficult problem in these persons. In addition to making sure that the bed is comfortable and that the room is warm enough and quiet, various drugs may be used as the physician prescribes. Bromides and barbiturates frequently are employed.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

She's Getting Her Daughter Started Right as Hostess

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My little daughter is having a birthday soon and I am going to give a party for her. She has never had a party before, and I want so much to have her begin to be a "good hostess." One thing is especially bothering me: Should I stand near the entrance door to greet the guests and tell them where to leave their wraps, and have my daughter stay in the living-room to greet the guests as they arrive there?

—Mother

Have your little daughter stand with you at the entrance door to receive her guests as they arrive, this at once gives the proper first impression of party hospitality. Since undoubtedly the guests will not all arrive at the same time, in the interim you and the little hostess can chat in the living-room with the guests who have arrived. This procedure will keep "both fronts" covered! And congratulations to you for your ideal of training your daughter to be a good hostess. This will be a fine asset to her always.

Dressing for Her Wedding

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When my sailor-fiancee gets his next furlough, we are going to be married at the parsonage. I am going to wear a navy-blue street-length dress. Would it be necessary for me to wear a hat and gloves? If so, what color?

—S. A.

You should wear a hat to the parsonage and during the ceremony. And you should wear gloves to the parsonage, but you needn't wear them during the ceremony. Your hat may be of the same shade as your dress, or, more interestingly, of a harmonizing shade. The engaging new flower-hats are a godsend to the informal bride, to "dress up" her costume. They are so gay and bridey-looking. Your gloves might be white or light beige or, if you wear a flower hat, they might attractively be of the shade that predominates in the flowers.

Second Anniversary Gifts

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Please tell me what kind of gift to give on the occasion of a second wedding anniversary. Thank you.

—E. F.

The symbols for the first and second wedding anniversaries have never been as definitely assigned as the symbols for most of the other anniversaries. Some lists assign cotton as the symbol for the first anniversary and paper for the second, and just as many name paper for the first and cotton for the second. If, for the anniversary party, a definite type of gift is to be abided by, this should be agreed on by guests beforehand. If it isn't, the guests will have to make their own choice of gift-material.

As a matter of fact, however, not much attention is paid today to the symbols for wedding anniversary parties. That is, the guests don't limit their gifts to any particular symbol, but instead bring a gift which they think the host and hostess will appreciate, and which they can afford. This is a sensible and practical plan, especially in these days.

The Marry-Go-Round

Bring Your Own Rations

B. Y. O. R. (Bring Your Own Rations) will be the slogan of the weekend hostess this summer. BYOR will replace the usual RSVP at the end of her most cordial note of invitations; and it will be as imperative as the RSVP on a card of invitation.

Anybody who happens to remember BYOB (Bring Your Own Booze) of the prohibition era, will appreciate its necessity and understand its importance. In those days, when everybody drank more than ever before or since, it was quite the fashion to bring your hostess a bottle of something—sherry, champagne or Scotch—instead of flowers or candy. That was the graceful gesture, whether you drank anything or not.

Now it is food, not alcohol, which engrosses the attention of the nation and nothing will look so beautiful to your country-house hostess as a lovely pound of porter-house steak of touch her heart like a pound of pretty lamb-chops. We shall see people travelling on busses down to seashore or country places laden with hampers of supplies. Every vehicle of transportation will look like a huckster's cart and grocery store combined.

Even when the hostess can afford to buy food for all her guests she'll have to ask them to bring their own ration cards. And the proper thing to say when you are invited via telephone will not be "Thank you" but "What shall I bring?"

But, don't be morbid about it—be nonchalant! Every houseparty will be a picnic—an old-fashioned "pound party"—with guests and hosts sharing their provender and everybody pitching in and helping with the work because cooks and maids are becoming scarcer every day.

I feel sure that the informality of it all will be a grand relief to the average hostess. No worry about the silver and linen or how many courses to serve or what special dishes to give them. They've got to take whatever they get and like it! No tempting of delicate appetites or catering to epicures, because everybody will be healthily hungry and correspondingly glad to get anything!

Best of all, there'll be no casual dropper-inners. The day of the unexpected dinner guests, who always "dropped in" just as the soup was being served, with his cheerful "Oh, I'll just take pot-luck" is past. Even if he had a chance of finding an extra chop and potato in the pot, he can't get the gasoline for his weekend joy-rides. He has disappeared, along with eight-pound roasts and lavish dinners.

"Entertaining" in the formal and tiresome sense is out, and the "simple life" is in. But good-fellowship, friendliness and informal jollity will make us all more human. And the country house hostess will know which of her guests love her for herself and which loved her for her cook.

Clean-Up Time For Housewives Means Windows Get Going Over

Spring is clean-up time for Canadian housewives. The curtains are removed, floors waxed, storm windows taken off and windows cleaned. In cleaning windows and mirrors soap should never be used. Soapy water streaks windows, makes them cloudy and difficult to polish.

Four tablespoons of dilute ammonia added to a gallon of clear, warm water, will remove any oily film laid down by smoke laden city atmosphere. If it is possible, the ammonia-ized water should be sprayed on the glass. Care should be taken not to spill the ammonia solution on any paint, lacquered, or varnished surface. If some does spill, it should be wiped up with clear water immediately.

A chamois cloth if one is available, should be used for drying and polishing windows. An ordinary cloth will leave lint. The chamois can be used for washing windows too, but it will have to be well rinsed again before it is used to polish windows which are very dirty.

Since mirrors rarely get as dirty as windows, the ammonia in the water may usually be omitted. Care should be taken not to get any water on the back of the mirror where it might damage the quicksilver. The water used should not be too warm or it may leave permanent streaks on the mirrored surface.

Wallbridge W.I. Elects Officers

The regular monthly meeting of the Wallbride Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Frank Shorey. The meeting opened with the Institute Ode played by Mrs. Lane. In the absence of the president, Mrs. Frank Shorey, vice-president, took charge. A very satisfactory financial statement was read by the treasurer, Mrs. Lane.

It was decided to send flowers to the sick independent of other societies.

It was suggested to donate so much money to the Red Cross toward quilt linings instead of buying the materials direct. The election of officers was then conducted. President, Mrs. Hudson Ketcheson; 1st Vice-Pres., Mrs. Jim Sine; 2nd Vice-Pres., Miss Helen Hamann; Sec., Mrs. Harold Yateman; Treas., Mrs. Edgar Lane; Pianist, Mrs. T. The meeting closed with the Lord's Prayer and the National Anthem. A lunch was served by the hostess. Thirteen members were present. A hearty vote of thanks was extended to the hostess.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Sounds Like a Good Deal of Risk

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm engaged to a man I met two weeks ago. He is 35 and I am 18 years old. He has been married and divorced twice, has two children by the first marriage, to whom he pays $8.00 a week, for their support. But he earns good money, and so do I.

He wants me to go out of town and get married, and live away from this town, but my mother thinks I should stay here. What do you think? His reason for wanting to leave this city is that his mother has caused him lots of trouble. She nags him all the time about things he does and he's almost out of his mind. She has broken up his previous marriages, and isn't happy until she has him back home with her again, so he hasn't even told her about me. He said he wasn't going to let her come between us.

Would you advise me to take my mother's advice, or do what my intended wants me to do—go to another city to marry?

This man who is almost twice your age has been married and also divorced a couple of times. He ascribes his matrimonial trouble to his mother. That presupposes he's more or less tied to her apron strings—not a bright prospect for his wife. I think your mother's advice that you should remain in your home town instead of going off with this man, who doesn't seem like a very good matrimonial risk, is wise.

Lack of Understand Between Mother and Daughter

My problem concerns my mother and me. I'm 15 years old and in second year of high school. I like to attend school activities, such as football, basketball, plays, etc., but my mother is against my going because of my girl friend whom I like very much.

This girl has a sister who is rather wild, but that doesn't mean my chum is wild, too. So mother will not let me go anywhere with her, unless she (mother) goes along. Once in a while if she's in a good humor and I beg her to let me go, she will consent.

Girls of my age have problems just as grownups do, and though other girls can go to their mothers and confide, I'd be scared stiff to tell mine anything. My mother is good to me as long as I stay at home and is good company, but as soon as I ask her to go some place, she acts as if I want to go to Bermuda.

My father and mother haven't lived or spoken together for eight years, so I don't know where to go for advice. How can I reach an understanding with my mother, as all mothers and daughters should? I'd deeply appreciate your advice.

Unhappy.

Because one girl in a family is inclined to be wild, it doesn't necessarily follow that her sisters conform to the same pattern. Often this has a deterrent effect, the wild one serving as an unhappy example of kicking over the traces. Put the case squarely up to your mother, tell her you hope for a better understanding and to enjoy the same relationship with her that is so beneficial for a girl of your age. That if there is any real objection to your friend to tell you, or in justice to the girl, to lift the ban.

Wants a Book Which Will Teach Dancing

I've always wanted to learn to dance, but my folks won't allow me to attend the parties given by my friends, where they usually dance. Mother thinks I am too young, and I'm almost 16.

Is there a book published on new dance steps, or something of the sort which will help me to teach myself how to dance?

J.D.S.

There are several very good manuals on dancing. Go to the public library or bookshops and ask for the latest. New editions are published regularly with the latest steps.

Try Postum in this form

YOU may be familiar with Postum only in the Instant Postum form. And you may have had trouble getting it. But your grocer probably has another form of Postum—the original Postum Cereal Beverage.

When prepared, Postum Cereal Beverage has the same robust, satisfying flavor as Instant Postum, but you prepare it differently. You prepare it like coffee, in a pot or percolator. (Not that it tastes like coffee, mind you, it has a grand flavor all its own.)

Directions for percolator, coffee-pot or drip method are on the package. If you use a glass coffee-maker, you may want to put the liquid through a second time.

So when you want Postum, take whichever form your grocer has. And if your grocer has no stock of Postum Cereal Beverage, ask him to get it for you.

A Delightful Beverage

Have you tried Postum Cereal Beverage yet? It gives you the same delicious beverage as Instant Postum—but you prepare it like coffee, in a coffee-pot or percolator or glass coffee-maker. If you use a drip or glass coffee-maker, you may want to put the liquid through twice.

With every succeeding cup, Postum's robust, satisfying flavor seems more delicious. Not an imitation of coffee or tea, of course—but a splendid drink in its own right. Try it.

Maj.-Gen. Salmon, Lt.-Col. Finlay Buried At Brookwood, Eng.

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

Brookwood, England, May 4—(CP Cable) — Maj.-Gen. H. L. N. Salmon of Toronto and Lt.-Col. C. F. Finlay of Niagara Falls, Ont., were buried in the Canadian cemetery here today in a military funeral at which the Canadian Army paid its tribute to the two officers, killed in an airplane accident in England last week.

Three army chaplains, Col. Ross Flemington of Sackville, N. B.; Lt.-Col. U. G. Hepburn of Ottawa and Maj. J. G. Jones of Hamilton, Ont., officiated at the graves, a few feet from the plots where Canada's Dieppe dead were buried last August.

More than 400 officers attended the funeral, headed by Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, Commander of the Canadian Army Overseas, Lt.-Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, Corps Commander, and Air Marshal Harold Edwards, Air Officer Commanding-in-Chief, R.C.A.F. overseas.

Most division commanders and brigadiers were present and several English relatives of Col. Finlay were among the mourners.

Pallbearers for Gen. Salmon were Maj.-Gen. J. H. Roberts; Maj.-Gen. C. B. Price, head of the Canadian Red Cross in Britain; Maj.-Gen. G. R. Turner; Maj.-Gen. R. F. L. Keller; Cmdr. F. A. Price, R.C.N.; and Air Commodore F. G. Wait.

Pallbearers for Col. Finlay were Lt.-Cols. B. H. Darwin, Winnipeg and Vancouver; G. P. Henderson, Montreal; J. R. R. Gough, Montreal; A. H. Jarvis, London, Ont.; W. J. Hastie, Toronto, and J. R. W. T. Bassonette, Halifax.

Lt.-Col. D. C. Simson represented Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey, Canadian High Commissioner.

Anthony Eden Gives Statement on Polish-Russian Relations

London, May 4 (CP)—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, in a statement to the House of Commons on Polish-Russian relations, condemned today the "cynicism which permits the Nazi murderers of hundreds of thousands of innocent Poles and Russians to make use of a story of mass murder to disturb the unity of the Allies."

The British government, Mr. Eden declared, used its influence from the outset in an effort to persuade the Poles and the Russians not to allow the German manoeuvres any success.

The government, he added, blamed no one "except the common enemy" for the dispute arising from a Polish demand for a Red Cross investigation of German charges that the Russians murdered 10,000 Polish officers near Smolensk prior to the Russian-German war.

Mr. Eden said the British government's sole desire was to heal the breach between Moscow and the Polish government here "as swiftly as possible" and to restore Russian-Polish relations to the basis established by the collaboration agreement of 1941.

To that end Britain is working "in the closest consultation and collaboration with the United States," he added.

Expressing hope that the statesmanship which resulted in the previous Polish-Russian agreement would once more prevail, Mr. Eden declared:-

"One thing at least is certain. The Germans need to indulge in no hope that their manoeuvres will weaken the combined offensive of the Allies or the growing resistance of the enslaved people of Europe."

DIES OF GUNSHOT WOUNDS

London, Ont., May 4 — (CP)— Freeman Talbot, 70-year-old retired farmer, died today of gunshot wounds from a shotgun police said he had borrowed from his brother to go rabbit hunting.

Coroner A. R. Routledge said there would be no inquest.

Talbot, who has been engaged for many years in buying farm properties and improving them for resale, lived near the city.

Toronto Hospitals 'Crowded to Roofs'

Toronto, May 4 — (CP) — A survey of Toronto hospitals today showed that most of them are "crowded to the roof" and booked up six months ahead with patients.

Increased industrial activity, more money, immediate hospital care instead of postponed operations and treatment are cited as reasons for the overcrowding.

An official of the Toronto General Hospital said that "as an example, we had 37 maternity cases in 30 hours over the holiday weekend, which means moving patients in and out of delivery rooms practically in a stream.

"We keep the emergency operating rooms as clear as we can and all we are taking in are emergency cases."

Other hospitals reported similar conditions while at the Wellesley "even a linen room now is filled with patients" and some operations have been cancelled.

Japs Acknowledge Reserve of Aircraft Decidedly Short

New York, May 4 — (AP) — The Tokyo radio acknowledged today that Japan's reserve of war materials, especially aircraft, is sufficient only "for a short period of the war," and announced that the cabinet's planning board had approved a large group of emergency measures that "must absolutely be carried out," the office of war information reported.

An official of the Mitsubishi and Nagoya war plants, Kisanosuke Yamada, declared in a broadcast to the Japanese people that greater plane production is a necessity, despite "brilliant" Japanese results in the war of Greater East Asia, and added:—

"Our stored materials will suffice for a short period of the war.

"....the productive strength of America and Britain is pitted against the productive strength of our nation . . . . ships, planes and other things are being produced at a tremendous rate.

"We, also, must not be negligent."

Russell Islands Are Occupied By American Forces

Washington, May 4 (AP) — United States forces extending their hold on the Solomon Islands, have occupied the Russell Islands which lie immediately northwest of Guadalcanal, the Navy Department announced today.

The Russell group, which includes two main islands, lies eighteen miles from the northwestern tip of American-occupied Guadalcanal at its nearest point. The group is less than 100 miles from points in the central Solomons, such as Viru Harbor and Rekata Bay, from which the Japanese are known to have operated.

Navy spokesmen declined comment on the operation, which was carried out in February after enemy resistance ceased on Guadalcanal, but presumably the Russell bases serve as outposts for American positions on that occupied island.

Written and composed through the efforts of the pupils in the various grades, the annual Easter number of the "Courier," the school publication of King George School, is a very credible showing of the children's literary abilities.

All topics of general interest to the pupils and to the school program, including sports and other social activities are featured in prose and verse, while the importance of children buying war savings stamps and attending school regularly receives special mention through editorials by various pupils. Humor has its proper place in the publication with descriptive drawings by pupils distributed throughout its pages. Edited under the supervision of Mr. Chas. Brown, school principal, the proceeds from the sale of the publication will go to the Junior Red Cross unit of the school.

21 New Members Given Initiation By Kinsmen Club

Although it was an evening of fun and frivolity, the club's war charities benefited to the utmost when the Kinsmen Club held their annual initiation ceremony at the Belleville Golf clubhouse Monday night. Some twenty-one candidates rode the "proverbial goat" and were ushered into the inner sanctum of the club's ritual.

Following the initiation ceremonies light refreshments were served and the newly-initiated candidates were presented with their club insignia pins. Raffles were held within the club and fines assessed with all cash collected being given into the Milk for Britain or Kinsmen Fag Funds, both of which were enriched as the result of the ceremony. Kin Harry Rollins was chief initiation officer, while President Orliff Lloyd welcomed the new members and presented club pins.

Unconfirmed Story Says Seysz-Inquart's Daughter Is Held

London, May 4 — (CP) — Reuters news agency quoted the Istanbul correspondent of the French Independent news agency today as saying Netherlands patriots have kidnapped a daughter of Arthur Seysz-Inquart, German High Commander of the Netherlands, and were holding her as a hostage.

Dutch sources in London said they were unable to confirm the report.

The Istanbul account said the Gestapo had been unable to find any trace of the girl. The report said further that patriots had marked for death 47 alleged traitors in Holland. Fourteen of these were said to have been killed already, among them Gen. Hendrik Alexander Seyffardt, once commander of the Dutch Army and described as the lone general officer to connive with the Germans. He was shot Feb. 8 and his assailant has not been reported caught.

MOST VERSATILE PLAYER AWARD WOULD BE BETTER

Players Switched Around From One Position to Another

CATCHER PLAYS THIRD

By JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sport Writer

The most valuable player competition in the major leagues this year could very well be styled the most versatile player awards.

Wartime manpower shortages are causing managers to transplant their players from one position to another faster than most people can get the onion sets started in their victory gardens and if the spring shuffling is only the beginning, a fan must wonder how his favorite pitchers will do at shortstop in the fall.

The Phillies, with a pathetically small roster, are doing the most shifting of jobs. Last week they bought outfielder Jim Wasdell from Pittsburgh and made him their regular first baseman, moving Babe Dalgren from that spot to shortstop. They have Schoolboy Rowe pinchhitting in almost every game in which he isn't pitching and they frequently have had three or four players swap positions during the course of a ball game.

But one of the prize swaps of the season was made yesterday by that indefatigable inventor, Frank Edison Frisch, who installed catcher Al Lopez at third base for Pittsburgh Pirates.

By putting Lopez on third Frisch was able to give a try at shortstop to Bob Elliott, who only two years ago was an outfielder. The result of the newest experiment was that both Lopez and Elliott made errors yesterday and Cincinnati won the major league's first morning game 7-5.

A crowd of 2,958 was on hand for the contest at 11:30 a. m. E.D.T. in Crosley Field and the Reds' general manager, Warren Giles, called his experiment a success.

Only one other game was played in the majors yesterday and in this the Dodgers downed the Phillies again 5-3. Kirby Higbe made his second start and first finish of the year while holding the tailenders to seven hits. Brooklyn made a dozen, three by Dolph Camilli and two, a double and a triple for two runs by Alex Kampouris.

"Y" Leaders Pass Exams

Twelve members of the Junior Leaders Corps of Belleville Y.M.C.A. were successful in passing the annual examination of the National Association during Easter week Gerald Bongard, Colin Cameron, Jack Campbell, Bill Jackson, and John O'Flynn are now eligible to wear a "second Year Credit" Chevron below their Junior Leaders Crests for which they qualified last year, and new members qualifying to wear the National adopted uniform were Harry Abbott, Billy Anderson and Frank Mondeville, of the Junior Class and Benny Legate, Ramsay McClelland, Bruce Neal, and Brock Stackhouse, of the Prep Class.

The examination consisted of set and voluntary movements and exercises on six different pieces of apparatus, and a written test on subjects pertaining to Physical Education and its teaching.

Much credit is due these boys, selected in the first place for their natural leadership ability, and who gave one evening a week to special study and training throughout the fall and winter months, and who are of untold value and assistance to the staff of the Y.M.C.A. in the conduct of its program for boys.

TORONTO REGAINS FIRST PLACE IN INT. LEAGUE

Leafs Win 15-Inning Duel From Jersey City by 5-3 Score

ON WAY HOME

(By The Associated Press)

If it is any satisfaction to Manager Gabby Hartnett, there is one thing his Jersey City Giants can do better than any other club in the International League—and that is making errors.

The Giants bobbled six times yesterday as they lost to Toronto, 5-3 in 15 innings, the manufacture of the winning runs included a two-base error by Nap Reyes on Herb Crompton's grounder.

Toronto's triumph lifted it back to first place ahead of Newark. The game was the only one played in the International League yesterday.

All told, the Hartnett outfit has played 12 games and registered 31 miscues for an average of 2.6 each game. Both Baltimore and Buffalo threaten the Jersey domination in the error column while Newark, Syracuse and Montreal have averaged less than a mistake a contest.

Although he was nicked for 14 blows in the long struggle, Rube Fischer allowed only one earned run while suffering his fourth defeat of the young campaign. In none of his setbacks has he received errorless support.

Only two games are on today's program, one of them being the second of Baltimore's attempts to lure the night shift workers to the Oriole Ball park. The umpires will call "play ball" at 12.30 o'clock.

SPORT SHORTS FROM BRITAIN

By ALLAN NICKLESON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

With the R. C. A. F. Somewhere in England, May 4—(CP)—Basketball interest rules so great at a Canadian Sunderland flying boat squadron that inter-crew games are played after the lads return from anti-submarine patrol. The sport has spread to R. A. F. members on the same station, a big achievement in a country where basketball has little hold.

Leading figure organizing and playing is FO. Jake Downett, a standout cageman from that basketball hotbed of Windsor, Ont. His home-town mate, FO. Johnny Ritchie, better-known as a footballer, also stars.

It would be a tough job to round up a cage team from an ordinary aircraft crew but not so with a Sunderland. They often carry 11 as crew and are so big that some of the boys facetiously consider the possibility of installing basketball courts for use on long patrols.

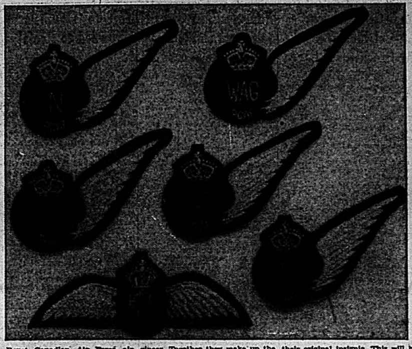
Opportunity has yet to knock for Flt. Sgt. Bob White of Perth, Ont., in an athletic sense overseas, but the husky airman has been doing a big job nevertheless. He guides four-engine Halifax bombers to and from such misguided places as Germany and has a long list of raids behind him.

Back in 1938 the 24-year-old navigator played defence for Perth Blue Wings. That's the year they reached the Memorial Cup semi-finals.

Bob is with an R. A. F. squadron. Had he been attached to a Canadian unit he probably would have had a chance to show his ice wares because most Canadian squadrons boasted a team.

Bill Newman's gridiron duds have been put away since he stood out for Royal Military College football teams back in the mid-30's. But the Toronto youth still maintains his athletic touch on English squash courts—when air operations don't interfere.

Bill's a squadron leader and flight commander in a Canadian Halifax unit with many sorties in his logbook. For a time, Bill was kept in Canada as an instructor.



Royal Canadian Air Force air crews will ride the skies with even more distinctive flying badges than before. Air Force Headquarters has released the above official patterns for new air crew insignia — the familiar double wing for Pilots remains unchanged but each member of a bomber crew will now be identified by a key letter or letters —"N" for Navigator; "B" for Air Bomber; "WAG" for Wireless Operator Air Gunner; "AG" for Air Gunner and Wireless Mechanic (Air Gunner); "E" for Flight Engineer. Together they make up the formidable fighting teams that are bombing and blasting Nazi bases and supply lines paving the way for the offensives yet to come. The official announcement of these new badges points out that from this date onward graduates in air training-schools throughout Canada will receive one of these new official patterns according to their particular job in the air crew. Airmen who have earned the old familiar "O," "AG" and "RO" badges prior to release of these new designs are still permitted to wear their original insignia. This will be good news to the superstitious flier who wears his original, highly-prized flying badge until it is threadbare, believing implicitly in its good luck qualities.

Some manufacturers have produced and distributed allegedly official double wing badges for air-crew other than pilot which are not authorized and are not permitted to be worn. Badges which vary in quality of material and in the actual pattern have also been distributed and are frowned upon by the service.

Teacher—How old are you, Junior?

Junior—I'm just at the awkward age.

Teacher—And what do you call the awkward age?

This and that—

Who says there isn't anything new under the sun?....Yesterday the Cincinnati Reds defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates 7-5 being paced by Lonnie Frey who had four hits ....Now there' nothing extraordinary about the Reds beating the Pirates, but the fact the game commenced at 11.30 a.m. and was played specifically for the benefit of war-workers who are working the "deadman shift" and therefore unable to see regular afternoon games....Upwards to 3,000 saw the game, which constituted an unusually large Monday crowd under normal conditions....Girls softball seems headed towards a banner season all over the country.... In the U.S.A. a girls' professional league is being organized, down in Kingston girls' softball is slated for a revival after several years of dormancy, while in Peterboro the feminine diamond stars are overrun with teams seeking affiliation.. Talk of girls' softball in Kingston recall the old battles between the Ontarios and National Maids of Belleville versus Bill Shaw's Kingston girls, headed by Thelma "Lofty" Gow, nearly two decades ago....Kingston induced Twila (Warham) Langman to ply her hitting powers in the Limestone City and then the real rivalry was on between the Limestones and the Quinte City....All of this reminds us that the Belleville Ladies' Softball League will convene at the City Police Court rooms tonight when entrance fees will be accepted, umpires appointed and opening schedules announced .... Various rumors are current regarding the men's softball picture, which will be brought to the surface when the league convenes soon.

After giving full praise to the Winnipeg Rangers in their winning of the Memorial Cup, emblematic of the junior hockey supremacy of Canada, Geo. H. Campbell, sports editor of the Oshawa Times-Gazette, lashed out at the Motor City's "tin-horn" sports. Scribe Campbell needn't worry, this type of fan can be found wherever sporting contests are played, Belleville being no exception.

At any rate here's how Scribe Campbell described them after the Oshawa-Winnipeg series: "There's one group of people in this hockey-crazy town of ours, for whom we don't feel the least bit sorry. In fact—we're glad of the opportunity. to give them the prod. There are about four or five hundred "playoff patrons" who were left hanging on the limb this week—and it serves them right. They aren't sport fans, because their idea of sport is strictly entertainment and it's got to be at bargain prices even then or they'll squawk about that. They don't support a team all season, during the schedule, against poor teams, etc. Oh no,—they merely wait until playoff time and then they are on hand, large as life—right up in the front row, making sure everybody sees them (especially their boss) because they'd like to be known as "a good fan." Ever city, town and hamlet has their group of these tin-horns. The only difference is that here in Oshawa they got caught this time. How? Well, we'll tell you. These wise-guys knew that all hockey games are "fixed," they knew the entire series was "fixed", they just knew, that's all, that Oshawa was going to win the 6th game of the series and force a 7th game for tonight. Oh, you could hear them on all sides. "Naw, I'm not going tonight and waste my money. I'm going to wait for the 7th game on Saturday." Why we even know of two or three who went into Mike's Place on Wednesday afternoon and ordered tickets for the 7th game and in the same breath boasted that they weren't going to be suckers enough to go to the 6th contest. For at least—Winnipeg Rangers, we thank you."

(Remember when—)

Even in Old New York Sunday baseball was illegal? Twenty-four years ago today Gotham's baseball fans saw their first lawful pay-to-get-in baseball game, the law being passed only a few days previously. The Philadelphia club defeated the new powerful New York Giants, under the late John McGraw, to mark the occasion.

(They're still there.)

Insofar as the majority of local trout fishermen are concerned those elusive speckled beauties are still swimming the Hastings County streams. Although the weekend saw the opening of the trout season in this district, flood waters and unseasonable weather kept the anglers at home. "The most backward and unseasonable opening for trout I've experienced in years," remarked J. Shortt, president of the local Anglers' Club, who missed his first opening day in over a decade.

Oh well, those "speckled beauties" will be a little larger by the time the boys get to the streams.

(Old home week?)

When Earl McCready comes to Belleville Wednesday night to wrestle "Irish Jerry" Monahan in the main bout of Promoter Frank Tunney's all-star show, "Big Earl" won't be too far from the place he was born. Statistics show Earl McCready first saw the light of day at Westport, Ont., just east of Napanee, so it'll be like comin' home to Mrs. McCready's good-looking son.

However, Earl won't have much time to be thinking about Westport and his baby days as he is training for a return bout for the British Empire title and didn't ask for any push over when he agreed to meet Monahan.

"As a Yank I can't rassle for that Empire business, but I have put the skis under many an aspirant and Tunney can rest assured I'll make it tougher for McCready than any other guy he has tossed in for me to try out," boasted Monahan over the weekend. With "Big Earl" tipping the beam at 239, the pugnacious Monahan won't have things altogether his way this time.

Stringing along with the champions, 72 sports writers, participating in the annual Associated Press poll, picked the St. Louis Cardinals and New York Yankees to repeat as pennant-winners. The Brooklyn Dodgers and the St. Louis Browns were awarded the runner-up positions. In the American League, Cleveland was placed third, followed by Boston, Detroit, Chicago, Washington and Philadelphia. In the National League, Cincinnati gained third place, followed by Chicago, New York, Pittsburgh, Boston and Philadelphia. None placed the Redbirds lower than third and only one dropped the Yankees as far back as fourth. Brooklyn was given 11 first-place votes, Cincinnati four an Chicago three, in the senior circuit, while the Browns received five, Cleveland and Boston six each and Detroit one for the top rung, in the American.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By CHARLES EDWARDS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Toronto, May 4 — (CP) — Harry Scott of the Calgary Albertan points out an interesting angle to the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association's proposal to permit defending teams to pass onside up to centre ice next season. He writes: "The team having an advantage in manpower due to an opposing player being penalized will have to be careful that the penalized player doesn't get a breakaway when his time is up and he returns to the ice. Entrance to all penalty boxes will have to be located directly in the centre, otherwise there will be a squawk from the teams." If the rule is universally adopted, rinks may have to do a little remodelling.

Figures Don't Lie:

Proof of entertainment value of the Winnipeg-Oshawa Memorial Cup series is given in attendance figures. The total of 73,839 fans who paid to see the six games set an attendance record for any series played at Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens. The average attendance was 12,307, compared to 11,278 in the memorable 1938 junior series between Oshawa and St. Boniface. However, the 1938 series saw the high attendance for any single amateur game at the Gardens—15,659. High for any single game in the big rink was 16,240 in the Toronto-Detroit Stanley Cup series last year.

Incidentally:

Cliff McFadyen, 25, outside wing with Winnipeg Blue Bombers for the past three football seasons, has enlisted in the R.C.A.F. as an aero-engine mechanic ... Britt Jessup, former sports editor of the North Bay Nugget, has won his R.C.A.F. pilots' wings...all but two members of the present Canadian football champions, Toronto R.C.A.F. Hurricanes, have departed the Toronto scene to train in Air Force stations elsewhere. Those remaining are Art West and Johnny Buckmaster ... Dick Hammond, who pitched for Toronto in the International Baseball League a year ago, now is with the army nine in the Vancouver senior league ... Chicago Black Hawks' hockey brothers, Max and Doug Bentley, are useful ballplayers and may turn up in the Edmonton league this season ... Jimmy Stewart is the only member of Windsor Patricks basketball team, now stacked against Victoria R. C. A. F. in the Canadian final, who was also with the famous Windsor Alumni team of 1936. That year Alumni beat Victoria Dominoes in the National final and represented Canada at the Berlin Olympics.

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 45

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

You know how it is in a bridge game. You start with a bid. The bidding finally ends. Something goes haywire. And bingo! Partner jumps down your throat, hips and all.

Are we mice or are we monkeys? Maybe you were correct. Maybe your partner knows best. Maybe you are both wrong. How do you know?

Do you point to page 326 in some cumbersome book? If so, you may be looking at the 1931 edition. Partner springs that author's 1933 book on you, which says something different.

Maybe you compromise. Maybe you agree that the author's latest opinion is an improvement. But what does that get you? An opponent butts in with the 1936 book, which says something different than either of the others.

So what? There is no supreme court in bridge bidding. Those who aer eligible for a seat in it are either feuding or prejudiced. So, you should know how to prove it to yourself.

Take an opening bid of one in a suit. That has started more hot arguments than Cleopatra. What are the true requirements for such an opening? Convince yourself and be sure.

Look at it this way. You and your partner are in competition against a pair of opponents. If there is no opening bid, there is no battle. You will have nothing to defend.

If you open the bidding, you begin the war of bids in that deal. When would in be wise to start a fight against the enemy? Only when your side is stronger than the buzzards.

When do you expect you are stronger than others in a bridge deal? When you hold better than average in your own hand, not merely in some one item, but in all important items.

What are the important items in a bidding hand? Tricks, high cards, sure tricks, suits. Only when you have better than average in all of them should you open the bidding.

You have better than average in all the essential items in this hand:

THE WAR TODAY

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

Capture of Mateur, key communication centre of the Axis last-stand defences in Tunisia, has set the whole northern part of the long enemy line to rocking—and the advance was officially stated to be continuing today.

This may easily lead to the isolation of the naval base of Bizerte, 18 miles to the northeast of Mateur. It may enable the Allies to drive a wedge between the enemy forces of the north and south.

Some days ago I suggested that the Axis defences were likely to crack suddenly from the pressure of the five major Allied attacks which were being made against the great arc of fortified mountains guarding the plains before Bizerte and Tunis. These thrusts were compared to the fingers of a hand squeezing a toy balloon.

Sooner or late one of those fingers would press so hard as to explode it.

Well, the victory at Mateur may be the finger to explode the balloon.

The Allied High Command in reporting the operation says that "after 10 days of relentless pressure and much heavy fighting, American troops have forced the enemy in the northern sector to evacuate all his forward positions."

Represents Bloody Slogging

That's the way it looks to the military mind. Folks back home can get a thrill from the knowledge that the "10 days of relentless pressure" represented bloody slogging against a determined enemy in his strong positions among the craggy heights. It meant swarming up the rocky hills in the face of heavy direct fire. It meant in many instances the capture of positions at the point of the bayonet.

Mateur is the strategic railway centre which has linked Bizerte with the rest of Tunisia, including its sister port of Tunis to the south. The American operation is calculated to cause all the Axis forces between Mateur and the sea to the north to make a quick withdrawal to Bizerte, while the enemy on the south falls back towards Tunis.

The way things are going it looks as though Bizerte would shortly be isolated and come under siege. Not only are the Americans continuing their advance but there is a Franco-American force on the coast north of Mateur driving along the shore towards Bizerte.

One of Great Naval Ports

Bizerte is one of the great naval ports of the world, ranking next to Toulon among French bases. It also has a bi gair field which will be an asset to the Allies, once Tunisia is in the sack.

This fortified port may be a tough nut to crack. The French spent huge cums of money in developing it and making it one of the strongest naval bases in the world. Because of its strategic position and its extensive fortifications it is known as the Gilbraltar of France.

Bizerte has a trio of harbors. Behind the outer harbor is the Bay or Sebra, the two being connected by a canal. The bay opens into Bizerte Lake, a body of water 50 miles square and deep enough to provide battleships. The port is equipped with all the facilities of a naval base, including arsenal, barracks and hospitals.

"I'll Wait For You"
(First Belleville Showing)

Robert Sterling, Marsha Hunt and Virginia Weidler bring thrills, tender human interest, comedy and tense drama at the Capitol Theatre, where they are currently being seen in "I'll Wait For You", Metro Goldwyn Mayer's vivid drama of regeneration and loyalty.

A more than capable cast includes Fay Holden, the mother of the "Hardy Family", as the farm mother, Henry Travers, in an inimitable portrayal of an old farmer, Paul Kelly, as he detective who trails the racketeer, Don Costello, Reed Hadley, Theodor von Eltz, Veda Ann Borg and Carol Hughes.

Gripping moments include the arrest and escape, the wild chase in the country, the trailing down of the racketeer and the final dramatic climax Sidney Wagner contributed beautiful photography.

Hedy Lamarr

With Robert Taylor and the much-discussed Hedy Lamarr teamed in an unforgettable story, "Lady of the Tropics", which opened as the added attraction at the Capitol Theatre, proved not only a production of unusual dynamic drama but an all-round feature of top-notch entertainment. The story is ideal for the two stars. Taylor, a young American, falls madly in love with Miss Lamarr while visiting Saigon, Indo-China. He marries her, but then discovers it impossible to obtain a passport for her so that she can return to America with him. For another Eurasian, played by Joseph Schildkraut, has exerted his powerful influence to keep Miss Lamarr in Saigon. The solution of the problem is an unusual one and brings a tense climax to the picture.

AT THE BELLE

"RANDOM HARVEST"

Two players indelibly linked to the work of James Hilton, the novelist, work on a Hilton story together for the first time in "Random Harvest," Hilton's haunting romance of a lost memory, now showing at the Belle Theatre. They are Ronald Coleman, who starred in "Lost Horizon," and Greer Garson, of "Goodbye, Mr. Chips."

"Random Harvest" sees Colman as an Englishman who loses all memory of his past during the first World War. He is befriended by a young actress, played by Miss Garson, and inspired to become a writer of ability. They marry and have a child.

Climax

Then an accident opens his mental door to his past but blanks out memory of his marriage and life after the war. He takes over his estates and becomes a powerful industrialist. The wife, maintaining silence regarding their relationship, becomes his secretary, and is of great help to him. Through her devotion the threads of his immediate past are finally gathered together in a hauntingly charming climax.

Miss Garson wears elaborate fashions and does a song and dance number in kilts. Colman gives a compelling performance, as does Miss Garson in the dramatic episodes. Mervyn LeRoy directed skillfully, and Susan Peters, Phillip Dorn, Reginald Owen and Una O'Connor are among the principals.

Hidden Nostalgia—Homesickness

The great success of Mike Murphy the famous athletic coach, University of Pennsylvania, was believed due to not only his knowledge of the fine points of athletics but even more to his knowledge of human nature. An outstanding athlete became moody and Mike, in a confidential chat with him, found that the strict training regulations as to diet was the cause of his moodiness and the particular article of food he wanted, just once, was a piece of apple pie. Mike told him to eat a piece of apple pie when he felt he "must" have it. His moodiness departed.

Another athlete appeared to be going stale and Mike found the boy was homesick. He was told to go home for a few days and came back "on his toes" for work.

It is not surprising then that our military medical officers are discovering a form of "sickness" which they call "hidden nostalgia", that is the recruit is hiding the fact that he is homesick and so carries on his duties in a more or less listless manner. Because of this listlessness, military officers and sometimes medical officers may believe the recruit is below normal mentally.

Lieut. Commdr. C. L. Wittson, Lieut. Commdr. H. I. Harris and Lieut. W. A. Hunt, Medical Corps, United States Naval Reserve, in "War Medicine" state:

"Hidden homesickness when present during the training period interferes with efficient performance and may lead the officer in charge to use critical remarks or severe methods of discipline".

It is pointed out that homesickness is a constant problem the first few days in camp particularly.

A patient with the usual or ordinary case of homesickness is depressed and is not alert about orders given him. He may be extremely nervous and so emotionally upset that it can be noticed by his comrades.

However, homesickness not shown by the recruit but kept well hidden may not be discovered as the recruit is apparently satisfied with all about him. He is, however, a person with something on his mind (home and family). He is so occupied with his thoughts that he is absent minded and slow in responding to orders.

The medical officer of the unit or an army psychiatrist can usually learn the underlying cause of the symptoms and suggest the necessary treatment.

50 P.C. INCREASE IN CAR BREAKDOWNS

Cleveland, May 4—(AP)—Breakdowns of automobiles on United States highways increased 50 per cent in 1942, John L. Young, Secretary of the American Automobile Association, reported last night. Reports from 11,000 garages showed tire trouble was the principal cause of breakdowns, the number of flats increasing from 9,505,000 in 1941 to 11,000,000 last year.

CANNONS VALUED AS MONUMENTS

London, Ont., May 4 — (CP) — Five ornamental cannons in London are more valuable as historical monuments than as scrap metal, city council decided last night. The guns will be left where they are unless the government requests them.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was taking a short cut to school through the back street with Puds Simkins and Shorty Judge and Sid Hunt, and Shorty Judge said, Oh boy look at this, this must be a real anteek out here by mistake.

Meaning an old fashion bewro with a crack in the mirror and some draws with handles on and some with them off, and Sid Hunt said, Hay, I bet my mother would buy that, she thinks all anteeks are great.

I bet my mother would buy it too, I said. One time she paid 40 dollars at an auction for an old mirror without even any bewro attached to it, and it wasn't cracked but it might as well of been because you can't even see your face in it. If you fellows help me carry it back to my house I'll give you half of whatever she pays for it to divide between you. That's fair enough, aint it? I said.

It's fair enough if she buys it, Puds said, and Sid said, Well hay, I was the first one said my mother would buy it, so how about carrying it to my house first if you want to be so fair about it?

And Puds and Shorty both started to claim their mothers liked anteeks too and said they wouldn't carry it anywheres unless we tossed up first to see whose house it went to first, and just then somebody said, One side kids, out of the way.

Being an ashman grabbing a hold of one side of the bewro while another ashman grabbed a hold of the other side to throw it on their truck, and I said, Hay, wait a minute, that might be somebody's anteek.

Sure, it might be somebody's Aunt Suzy, the ashman said.

And they threw it on the truck and kept on going.

Proving it's no use having ideas if you wait too long to take advantage of them.

PASSING DREAM

by MARGARET GORMAN NICHOLS

CHAPTER 6

"She's the only person I know, too. I met her on New Year's Eve. She's pretty swell, isn't she? She wants to know all about you but she doesn't say anything about her. She's a biography collector." His mouth smiled. Yet there was a hint of cynicism too old for such a young mouth. "I like you, Temple."

"I'm glad." She was feeling warm inside and happy. And for no reason, no reason at all . . "No reason?" she asked herself sharply.

Looking past him, she saw the people in the room not as a group but as individuals, well-dressed, important-looking individuals past youth. One rotund, bald little man was eating as though he had been too busy for luncheon; and one handsome blonde woman was saying something obviously very amusing to a tall, broad-shouldered army officer.

Presently Paula came back, bringing with her a big, fair, placid-looking young man.

"This is Dick Ames, Temple. I hope you are being cautious, darling."

"Are you new here?" Dick Ames asked.

"Yes, very."

He smiled. "Then Paula is decidedly the wrong sort of person for you to be mixed up with. She does not like men. She'll prejudice you and you're so young."

Jud was smiling. "I didn't know that. Why don't you like men, Paula?"

She laughed. "I detest them, but I have them about purely for ornamental reasons. I go out occasionally with them only because I don't knit or play bridge. I detest them, if you really want to know, because if you love them, you're not smart and you'll get hurt. And if you don't love them and you are smart, then it isn't any fun. Oh, Venita and Ted are leaving. Excuse me."

"I have to see Ted before he goes," Dick said. He placed his hand on Jud's shoulder. "Not much chance for me anyway, old boy. I see you have a priority."

Jud said, "I wish I had." He turned to Temple. "Another cocktail?" He gave her a long, inquisitive look. "It's cold out and we may not be able to pick up a taxi right away if we stay here too long . . a taxi to a certain restaurant where the spaghetti is famous."

He left Temple and when he returned Paula was introducing her to the other guests. Jud stood still, holding two fresh cocktails until the last introductions had been made and the least meaningless pleasantries had been exchanged.

The warmth of Temple's eyes welcomed him back. She felt he shared her feelings that she was too young and too unimportant to be interesting to the others. A certain restaurant where the spaghetti was famous . . .

Jud said, "You haven' said you'd have dinner with me."

Temple was conscious then for the first time of the great pride in his face. "I'd love to have dinner with you."

They smiled at each other over the rim of their glasses.

"Shall we tell Paula we're leaving?" he said.

Paula sat on her wide low bed while Temple put on her jacket.

"I don't know anything about him, darling, except that his grammar is good and that he dances well and that there's a melancholy streak in him. I find that in a good many kids these days. I was going to call him a gentleman except that that word has conflicting meanings. She smiled at Temple. "Go out and have yourself some fun. I'll ring you and see how everything is going. You might like a weekend at my farm."

"It was nice of you to think of me again, Mrs. Wayne."

"Oh, forget it, and I'm not Mrs. Wayne, baby. I'm Paula. You're lovely but I'm sorry for you. I wouldn't be in love again for a million dollars and everyone knows how I love money."

At the door Jud said, "Thanks, Paula."

"It was a success, wasn't it? Now off with you kids . . 'Bye."

Temple could not remember the last time she had felt a touch as warmly human as Jud's when he touched her arm as she got into a taxi.

"My car is in for repairs," he said. "I walked."

On the way to the restaurant they spoke politely of the Washington weather, which is rarely if ever ideal, and of the great influx of workers. Jud said he thought decentralization would soon be attempted. He also said, as he took a pipe from his pocket and lighted it, that he hoped she did not mind hot summers.

He spoke slowly, casually, thoughtfully as though he weighed his words before uttering them. Temple had already altered her first impression of him and thought that he had never had a lonely moment in his life. For in his voice there was a poignant loneliness. Sitting beside him in the dark taxi she thought that even if she never saw him again, she would always remember his voice.

A little later they were sitting opposite each other in a booth in a crowded restaurant, Temple tense, Jud seemingly relaxed, his pipe in his hand. They ordered spaghetti and wine.

He said, "Tell me about yourself, Temple. I don't particularly care where you came from or how many brothers and sisters you have. I mean about your thoughts and feelings in these times and . . and the war abroad."

Tapping the tobacco in his pipe, he looked up and smiled. "If I thought I was flattering you by asking your thoughts and feelings, I'd ask how your rhumba was."

"Won't you be in uniform before long?"

"Now you're asking the questions. Yes, I'll be in before long. I have no dependents and I'm 27. I'm an investment counsel without which the world can get along quite well these days. I came from up Boston way three years ago and I have a vague, widowed mother who can't understand why the government is interested in the taxes from her little estate. The last time I saw her she asked, 'But, Jud, dear, why does anything so big as the government care about the securities poor Aunt Nora left me? Why do I have to tell the government about them? Paula told me she met you on a train. You probably never spoke to a stranger on a train before in your life."

"Do I look that naive?"

He laughed. "No, you don't! You look—well, mighty good to me. I hadn't intended to say anything nice like that. But you got it out of me. Maybe you deserved it. Hey, we're not serious any more!"

"Then I'll be quiet. Because I am serious. I can't help it." But she was smiling and not looking serious at all.

"But aren't there times when you're wildly happy? You keep it to yourself, don't you? When are the times when you're happy?"

"Well, the first real Spring day, the first snow and the first time you go in the ocean in the summer. A good book and good music and walking in the country and thinking . . thinking of all the things I want to do and see."

"That's funny. Those are the things that make me happy, too. The body and soul things. You're too good to be true. May I touch?"

His hand touched hers briefly. "Here we go again. We're serious. But we're a serious generation, aren't we? It burns me up when the people who had a swell time in the mad twenties say that our generation is too serious. They've had everything we want and they are too old to want those things now. Are you in love with anyone now?"

"You change subjects so quickly I can't keep up with you."

"You're evading. Are you?"

She shook her head slowly. "No, I don't think I've ever been in love. I've been attracted and I've gone home and had nice thoughts about it. But the next time something had gone out of it. The heart had gone out of it."

"Dreamer. Does it have to be moonlight and roses?"

She looked at him frankly. "No. Not at all. But the heart has to be in it." She thought, "Is this another attraction that will send me to my room to have nice thoughts about it? Will the heart be gone out of it the next time, if there is a next time?"

"You're a funny lassie and I'm a funny lad. That makes us funny people. We have everything doped out and we haven't anything doped out. Actually we're just two kids trying to get along and hoping we won't make any bad mistakes. Fifty years ago we'd never have met at all. My father would still have a business and I'd be the boss' son. And you'd be in the kitchen learning how to make good pie for your husband and Washington would be only a place where the White House is. I'm not in love with anyone either and if I can help it, I don't intend to be again." He smiled. "But if you insist on looking at me like that too often, I won't be able to help it."

"Now we're not serious again."

"You saved me. Thanks. I wonder where our dinner is, Walter!"

Their dinner came promptly. Then Jud suggested a movie. Temple had hoped that he would take her dancing.

It was almost midnight when the taxi stopped before her house. He walked up the steps with her and stepped inside the hall.

He looked at her again with that long, inquisitive, thoughtful look before he said, "It was nice. Good night, Temple. I hope I'll see you again."

"I hope you will, too. It was very nice."

He smiled. "It was a success."

She nodded. "Good night, Jud."

He went out quickly. She walked slowly up the steps to her room, her thoughts following him. Jud, bitter-sweet, who made questions like sparks fly brightly across her mind. Also he made her want to buy new clothes and think of clever things to say.

Sundays were leisurely days in the house with people coming and going at odd hours and the old telephone on the wall ringing with shrill impatience. Temple went for a walk with Abby and told her about Jud and Paula and the interesting faces of yesterday afternoon.

"Jud will be in the service soon," she said.

She stood three inches above Abby and yet always when she walked with her she felt smaller. What was there about Abby, plain and unfashionable and sweet, that made her feel humble?

Temple said, "My mother said that this war wouldn't touch me because I'm a girl. But it will. It will take boys who marry girls like me."

"That's our part," Abby said. "Girls who don't think they're contributing anything are contributing potential husbands. You know they say that drinking, if you drink too much, brings out the worst in you, the characteristics you try to hide when you're sober. War is like that too—I mean when you see people you've always thought of as solid get wide-eyed with fear at the thoughts of bombs. And there are the ones who say they are pacifists because they think it excuses them from responsibility. We're all pacifists, if pacifism means not believing in war. Most of us are patriots, but so many of us are selfish patriots. Let's stop and have tea, Temple. I look a wreck and you, you always look just right. The next time I go shopping I want you to come along and tell me what to buy. I have no knack for clothes. I suppose that comes from growing up in hand-me-downs."

Reprisals Threatened Against Relatives Of Germans Surrendering

Algiers, May 4 —(AP) An open threat that the Nazis would take reprisals against relatives in Germany of soldiers who surrendered on the battlefields of Tunisia "without due reason" was contained in a captured letter addressed to a German battalion commander and made public here today.

The letter, dated April 18 from brigade headquarters, said it had been noted that officers and non-commissioned officers when facing critical situations had been surrendering and encouraging their men to lay down arms.

It went on: "Their names have been established and I shall order proceedings to be instigated against them. Insofar as these soldiers are prisoners of war, the consequences of their shameless conduct will be visited first of all on their relatives and after the war on the delinquents themselves."

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, May 4 (CP)—Under the leadership of industrials, the Toronto market today continued its firm tone in early afternoon trading, with volume slightly increased over yesterday's turnover. Sales at one o'clock were 121,000 shares compared with 101,000 at the same hour Monday.

Consolidated paper touched a new high for the year at 4 1-4, up 1-4, while Canadian Marconi slipped to 2 7-8 after having hit a new high, at 3, up 1-4. Ford A advanced 5-8 and most other industrials held earlier gains.

Among golds, Preston was showing a 7-cent advance and Teck Hughes was up 4. Wright-Hargreaves was down 5.

Noon indices showed industrials up .61, golds up .17 and base metals up .31. Western oils dipped .02.

WALL STREET

New York, May 4 — (AP) — Profit cashing retarded the stock market upswing today after one of the fastest openings of the past several years in which numerous favorites hit three-year peaks with gains of fractions to more than a point.

A certain amount of bullishness persisted over the coal labor situation but there was some selling on the idea the picture here was none too clear. A prime bolstering influence remained in the war news from Tunisia. Pressure of idle funds continued as a motivating factor.

Low-priced issues turned over in blocks of 1,000 to 15,000 shares and the first-hour volume was at the rate of about 3,500,000 shares for the full session. Dealings slowed before mid-day and there was a smattering of small losses near the 4th hour.

Among Canadian issues, Dome, McIntyre, Canadian Pacific and Lake Shore gained fractionally from 1-8 to 3-8 while Hiram Walker held unchanged.

'Wings Over the Footlights' Promises Sparkling Entertainment at B.C.I. In Interest of 4th Victory Loan

Fine Program of Drama, Music Offered Public on Wednesday Evening

Star-studded with former well-known radio personalities and headed by Flight-Lieut. "Buff" Estes and his swing orchestra from the Trenton Air Station, the second edition of "Wings Over the Footlights" to be staged at the collegiate auditorium on Wednesday evening promises to be one of the most sparkling entertainments ever offered in this city.

The show is being held in the interests of the Fourth Victory Loan campaign and with the first presentation of "Wings Over the Footlights" meeting with such approval from a Belleville and district audience last autumn, the show is assured of being a real success.

With "Buff" Estes' swing orchestra providing the background for the show, the presentation will be featured by a one-act play "Red Peppers," by Noel Coward, which is being staged under the direction of one of Belleville's premier stage directors, Miss Joan Maraskas. The play consists of singing and dancing comedy acts staged in the dressing room of an English theatre.

Leading parts in the play are being taken by two well-known local actors, Mrs. Josephine Harris and Tom Hyland while five actors comprise the complete cast.

Belleville music lovers will be assured of a fine evening's entertainment in attending Wednesday night's feature show. It will be a swing-sing hit parade, the first of its kind ever to be staged in this city. Former radio and stage personalities will be seen and heard on the stage, while the audience will be assured splendid entertainment from the popular "Buff" Estes with his long experience in Benny Goodman's and other well-known name bands heard over featured radio programs.

Committeemen of the Hastings County Fourth Victory Loan campaign recommend the show to all who enjoyed last autumn's edition of "Wings Over the Footlights." A silver collection will be taken.

HOW TO RELIEVE PILE TORTURE QUICKLY AND EASILY

If you are troubled with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not delay treatment and run the risk of letting this condition become chronic. Any itching or soreness or painful passage of stool is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once. For this purpose get a package of Hem-Roid from J. S. McKeown or any I.D.A. or other drug store and use as directed. This formula which is used internally is a small, easy to take tablet, will quickly relieve the itching and soreness and aid in healing the sore tender spots. Hem-Roid is pleasant to use, is highly recommended and it seems the height of folly for any one to risk a painful and chronic pile condition when such a fine remedy may be had at such a small cost.

If you try Hem-Roid and are not entirely pleased with the results your druggist will gladly return your money.

Admiral Robert Protests Action Of United States

New York, May 4. (AP)—Admiral Georges Robert, French High Commissioner of Martinique, has protested the action of the United States state department in breaking off relations with his administration because of its close connection with the German-dominated Vichy government, he disclosed last night.

In a cable to The Associated Press Admiral Robert said the State Department's action "offers nothing else in exchange" for the ruptured relations, and has "shut out all possibility of a fresh proposal on my part" by calling home the U.S. consul general.

Robert failed to disclose what steps he proposed to take in the face of the department's action. His cable answered a query from The Associated Press regarding his views.

Robert, in his message last night said:—

"The American government has decided, in alleging a certain situation in Metropolitan France, to annual an accord concluded at time when this situation already existed. . . ."

"I can only take note of such a decision, meanwhile protesting, which I have done in a note delivered May 1, and therefore can see only an advantage in the full publication of the text (of Robert's note) in the American Press by the State Department".

Declaring that German submarines "have been refuelled" at Martinique, Representative Morrison (Dem.-La.) told the House of Representatives in Washington yesterday "this situation is serious and something should be done immediately".

Morrison said he had "definite information" concerning the German U-boat activities and "as a matter of fact, workmen on defence projects in Trinidad could turn on their short wave receiving sets and hear commanders of the German submarines talking back and forth about refuelling, and the island of Martinique was mentioned frequently".

Chaplain Tells Whereabouts by Reference to Abraham

London, May 4 (CP)—The Rev. M. E. Aubrey, General Secretary of the Baptist Union, told the annual assembly yesterday of a chaplain who wrote home that he could not give his whereabouts but quoted the remark of one of his men: "Padre, I reckon Abraham was a wise guy to get out of this place as soon as he could, even if he didn't know where he was going." Aubrey said this was passed by the censor, who obviously did not recall the passages in Genesis and Hebrews which say that Abraham left Ur of the Chaldees to go into the land of Canaan. Ur is in Iraq.

Valuable Cow Drowns in Lake

Point Travrese, May 4.—One of three valuable cows owned by Mr. Kenneth McConnell, False Duck Island lighthouse keeper, was lost overboard and drowned in Lake Ontario, while being transported from this harbor to the False Duck Island, a distance of some three miles, according to details reaching this fishing colony.

It is understood that the accident occurred about two-thirds of the distance out from the mainland, when the engine of the small boat that was towing the scow, in which the animals were being taken to the island, went out of commission. The scow careened in the seas, throwing the cows into the chilling waters of the lake.

A fishing boat owned by George Mudgin, commercial fisherman here, put out from the harbor to give assistance, and succeeded in getting the remaining two cows to the shore of the island to safety.

The cow that was lost, was one of a valuable pair of Jerseys recently purchased by Mr. McConnell.

Viscount Bennett Heard in London

London, May 4. (CP Cable) —Viscount Bennett wound up an address on "problems of the British Empire" at the Anti-Publicity Club of London last night with the bald statement:—

"I assure you that the Dominions will not tolerate any action by the British Foreign Office affecting their affairs unless they first have had a chance to say yea or nay".

He said an answer must be found to this problem and recommended immediate action to create an Empire Air Transport system because "if we had that, the Prime Ministers of the Dominions could sit at a common point on 24 hours' notice".

He declared the problem could not be met without this personal consultation.

Viscount Bnenett, former Prime Minister of Canada, proceded this statement with a warning that although the progress of the British Empire had been unhindered through the years, the "greatest difference yet unsolved . . . lies in a lack of being able to ensure that in matters affecting foreign policy all partners of the British Empire have an equal voice".

BIG FORCE 4-ENGINE BOMBERS HITS DORTMUND
AMERICANS WITHIN 10 MILES OF BIZERTE

1,500 Tons Bombs Rain on Plants Of Industrial City

30 BOMBERS MISSING

London, May 5 — (CP) — The largest force of four-engined bombers yet sent over Germany dropped nearly 1,500 tons of bombs last night on Dortmund, industrial Ruhr valley city near Essen, an R.A.F. commentator said today.

Squadrons of Canadian Halifaxes and Wellingtons took part in the raid. The air ministry said the "very heavy" saturation attack cost 30 bombers of which seven were Canadian.

This loss was not considered excessive and the spokesman reiterated that the ratio of losses in this year's attack on Germany were only about half those of 1942, despite stiffer defence.

Blow by Regular Squadrons

The Dortmund blow, however, was struck by the regular operational squadrons of first-line planes without resorting to two-engined bombers, second line planes and normally non-operational aircraft which were pressed into service to achieve the record at Cologne.

Dortmund, among other things, manufactures machine tools and

German Aircraft in Russia

The R.A.F. commentator said the Germans have about half their planes in Russia, including about two-thirds of their bombers. He said the Russians outnumber the Germans in the air, although the Nazis might be able to achieve temporary local superiority wherever they wish to make a summer drive.

He said the Germans are holding about 60 per cent of all their fighters in western Europe to meet the R.A.F. and United States air forces, even though the need for fighters in Africa is immense.

produces gasoline.

The air ministry spokesman said the R.A.F. offensive is keeping four out of every five German night fighters pinned to Western Europe. He declared the German Air Force not only is outnumbered on all three major fronts where it is forced to fight, but is facing three countries — Britain, the United States and Russia — whose production capacity far outreaches that of Germany.

It was the first major attack on Dortmund, which is the main easterly transport exit from the Ruhr valley and its teeming industries. The city has been hit before as part of general missions, but it had not previously been the exclusive target of a massed assault.

Visibility Good

Visibility over the target was good, except for a slight ground haze, said a communique, and first reports indicated the bombing was "well concentrated."

The raid was the R.A.F.'s first night foray over Germany since it finished off a blazing April offensive with a heavy attack on Essen last Friday night and followed a smashing daylight assault on industrial targets in Antwerp by United States heavy bombers.

It was indicated that a great fleet of the four-engined bombers had made the 350-mile trip to Dortmund and observers estimated that several hundred tons of explosives probably had been dropped on the city, which has a normal peacetime population of about 500,000.

Site of Oil Plant

In addition to being an important industrial centre, Dortmund is the terminus of a canal leading to Ems and is the seat of the Fortmunden Union, one of the largest general industrial combines in Germany, it is also the site of a great oil plant.

Machines, railroad cars and locomotives are the principal finished products of the Dortmund factories. Coal, iron, steel, and beer are among its other products.

The Berlin radio claimed that 36 planes were shot down in the raid, which the broadcast said was merely directed at Western Germany.

15 KILLED, MANY INJURED IN BLAST AT POWDER PLANT

Rescue Workers Search for Additional Bodies in Ruins at Elkton, Md.

CAUSE UNKNOWN

Elkton, Md., May 5 — (AP)—Rescue workers dug today into the ruins of five Triumph Explosives, Inc., buildings on the outskirts of this small war-boom city seeking additional bodies while investigating officials sought to determine cause of an explosion in which 15 persons are known to have died.

Five of at least 54 persons injured in the explosion that was followed by fire were in serious condition and 19 others were under hospital treatment. Thirty women were given first aid and released.

Even as the wreckage was being cleared, other employees returned to work in other buildings, answering a call of army, navy and plant officials to "continue 'passing the ammunition.'"

One storage building was blown to bits and another was wrecked by a second explosion within seconds in mid-afternoon yesterday. Fire spread to three others burning many workers severely.

Window panes and plate glass in homes and business establishments were shattered and cracked by the explosion that was heard for miles around. Ambulances, fire equipment, Red Cross units, civilian defence workers, state police and others sped to the scene.

C.C.L. PROPOSES GENERAL REVISION OF LABOR POLICY

Brief Presented By Council Suggests Compulsory Collective Bargaining

OTHER NEEDS OUTLINED

Ottawa, May 5 —(CP)— The Canadian Congress of Labor today proposed to the National War Labor Board a general revision of Federal labor legislation and introduction of compulsory collective bargaining.

The recommendations of the Congress were contained in a 7,500-word brief prepared for presentation to the board in its general inquiry into labor relations and Allied matters. The brief was signed by A. R. Mosher, president of the Congress.

The proposals included:—

1. Amendment of existing labor legislation to protect the right of workers to organize and to provide for compulsory collective bargaining and inclusion of "closed shop" clauses in employer-employee contracts.
2. Introduction of legislative machinery to avoid jurisdictional disputes.
3. Authority for the National War Labor Board to determine wage levels and bonuses in an entire industry, rather than on individual plant applications.
4. Establishment of a uniform cost-of-living bonus with regional variations and introduction of separate indices for zones.
5. Provision of a "floor" of 50 cents an hour, below which wage control legislation would not be effective.

"The basic need in the field of labor relations is the adoption by the Federal Government of a labor policy which will be positive, comprehensive and unequivocal in its attitude toward labor," the Congress said.

Cannot be Avoided

"It is of the utmost importance that the government should reverse its policy of restriction and repression and endeavor to encourage rather than restrain the development of the labor movement. The government should realize that, so long as it fails to protect the right to organize and bargain collectively, and so long as the workers must fight for that right against the opposition of employers, industrial strife cannot be avoided.

Seven of 38 on Life Raft Survive Eight Bitterly Cold Days on Ocean

Halifax, May 5 — (CP) — "I guess I'm a lucky bloke, that's all," said the youthful British seaman as he lolled in a chair and gazed down his pyjama-clad legs at his frost-bitten feet.

David Clowe is lucky because he escaped with his life and all limbs intact from the North Atlantic torpedoing of his merchant vessel and eight bitterly cold days in a wave-whipped lifeboat. More than 70 shipmates went to their deaths and others were maimed for life.

Of the crewmen aboard the vessel, only 38 reached the one serviceable lifeboat after the sinking, and of these only seven survived the freezing gales and buffeting waves.

These seven are in hospital here recovering from their ordeal. Four of them face amputations of all or part of their fingers and feet.

For Clowe, it was his third experience as a survivor in three years' sailing as an apprentice, and each time the 19-year-old Londoner escaped "practically unscratched."

This last time his vessel, several days away from Britain, ran into stormy weather. Waves and wind smashed the davits and carried away two of the boats as well as snapping off the top of the mainmast.

About 10 o'clock that night the ship staggered under the blow of a torpedo and began to settle rapidly. In 12 minutes she was gone, with only one lifeboat and one raft for the survivors. Clowe swam to the boat, and started helping others into it until there were 33 huddled together in the small craft.

"In the morning we sighted the raft with five men clinging to it," he continued. "We took them aboard. There had been 18 on the raft, including most of the officers but the waves had rolled it over and over during the night and most of them were washed away. The captain died from exposure."

With the wind howling about them and soaked with cold brine, they set out a sea anchor and drifted with the storm, hoping to be picked up.

There were 13 Britishers in that boat and 25 East Indian seamen. The latter, unused to such bitter weather, died rapidly.

All except four were dead by the fourth day, and only one survived until the sixth day.

"Sparks (the wireless operator) went mad and died the second day. The others dropped off one by one, usually just before dawn, and we would have to drop them over the side. Toward the end we were so weak, it took an hour or more to struggle each dead body over the thwarts."

On the morning of the eighth day a Canso flying boat sighted them and that night they were picked up by a rescue ship.

More dead than alive, the seven were brought in here some time ago, their feet and hands a mass of lifeless, frozen flesh.

David Clowe recovered without the loss of any toes or fingers, and that is why today he considers himself a "lucky bloke."

220 Ships, 26,700 Men Of Navies of Nazi-Held Lands, Fight for Allies

London, May 5—(CP)—The Admiralty said today that the navies of the German-occupied countries which are fighting with the United Nations total 220 combat ships and 26,700 men.

The Royal Netherlands Navy leads with 63 ships and 6,850 men.

Others include: Fighting French, 49 ships and 6,150 men; Norwegian, 53 ships and 5,100 men; Greek, 33 ships and 5,450 men; Polish, 12 ships and 2,600 men; Yugoslav, three ships and 200 men; Belgian, seven ships and 350 men.

The ships range from cruisers down to minesweepers.

It was announced that a Danish Naval Force had been formed to join the Allied Forces.

The BBC quoted an admiralty official as saying: "The Danish Navy has been providing a number of small craft for harbor uses, but now they are making a start as a combatant force." The broadcast was heard in New York by CBS.

FERRY COMMAND COMES UP WITH ANOTHER RECORD

Capt. G. R. Buxton Makes Journey Across Ocean in 6 Hours, 12 Minutes

WEATHER PERFECT

Montreal, May 5—(CP)—Less than a week after announcing a new North Atlantic flying record, the Royal Air Force Transport Command came up today with another new one—a landfall-to-landfall mark of six hours and 12 minutes from Newfoundland to Britain in a fully-loaded Liberator bomber.

(A landfall-to-landfall mark is the elapsed time from when the pilot loses sight of land as his aircraft begins the ocean flight until he first sees it after completing the crossing.)

Last Thursday the transport command revealed, with a series of other best flying times, that Capt. W. S. May of the Suburan town of Mount Royal had flown the distance—2,200 statute miles—in six hours and 20 minutes in a Liberator.

Today, it announced that Capt. G. R. (Sam) Buxton of the British Overseas Airways Corporation, operating with the transport command, had sliced eight minutes from Capt. May's record.

24 Minutes Less

Capt. Buxton's time from take-off to landing was seven hours and 16 minutes—24 minutes less than Capt. May's performance and 45 minutes less than the best previous mark for the fastest Atlantic crossing.

But the Newfoundland-to-Britain wasn't the only record Capt. Buxton set up. His flight began at Montreal —3,150 statute miles from his destination—and he flew to Newfoundland in three hours, 56 minutes His total actual flying times from Montreal to Britain, therefore, was 11 hours and 12 minutes—one hour and nine minutes better than the previous best elapsed time flight via Newfoundland and 38 minutes better than one via Nova Scotia, both accomplished in the previous two weeks by Capt. S. W. A. Scott.

The transport command, which prohibits attempts to set new flying records, said that Capt. Buxton was favored by "exceptionally good conditions for his flight plans."

NAZI AIR FORCE LOSES 125 PLANES IN PAST TWO DAYS

Ground Fighting Northeast of Novorossisk Mounts Steadily

REDS ON OFFENSIVE

By EDDY GILMORE
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Moscow, May 5 —(AP)— Ground fighting northeast of Novorossisk mounted today, keeping pace with the terrific air battles in the Kuban valley in which the German air force is reported to have lost more than 125 planes in the last two days.

The heavy weight of Soviet artillery is pounding the Nazis northeast of the Black Sea port which still is German held, although the Russians have been south and east of Novorossisk for some time.

The last-published Soviet war front map showed the Red Army line stretching northward from the Black Sea to the Sea of Azov across the Kuban delta, but with a considerable bulge in the middle of the line.

It is not unlikely that the most serious current fighting is going on along this bulge. The territory bisects a highway and railway leading into Novorossisk from other Caucasian connections.

(The Germans acknowledged a forced withdrawal 20 miles above the port of Novorossisk and the loss to the Russians of the town of Krymskaya, 17 miles northeast of the naval base.

Radio Admits Retreat

(The Berlin radio said the Germans retreated "after withstanding heavy Soviet attacks in the Kuban delta for four days" and declared the new Nazi positions were just west of Krymskaya. The Russian communiques recorded in London from Moscow broadcasts by the Soviet radio monitor were not so specific.)

If the Red Army is able to drive forward from this northeastern sector the Germans will be badly hampered in the port itself.

There has been no official word here that the Germans have been driven from Krymskaya, but there is every reason to believe it is true.

DAYLIGHT SWEEP BY U.S. BOMBERS

Naval Base at Taranto and Town of Reggio Calabria Pounded

Cairo, May 5 — (AP) — United States bombers struck at the Italian naval base of Taranto and the Italian town of Reggio Calabria in daylight yesterday, it was announced today.

"Because of cloud coverage, results of the bombing were difficult to observe at Reggio Calabria, although hits were seen on the Mole and on buildings in the harbor area," a communique said.

"At Taranto hits were observed in the harbor and among fuel installations at the harbor's edge.

"From the above operations all our aircraft returned."

Reggio Calabria is at the toe of the Italian boot and is the main supply outlet to Sicily, which lies across the Strait of Messina from it. Taranto is on the inside of the heel of the Italian boot and is a naval base.

GOV'T TO CHANNEL ALL WORKERS INTO ESSENTIAL TASKS

Orders Issued Will Require Workers in Some Classes to Register May 19

CLASSES OUTLINED

Ottawa, May 5—(CP)—The Federal Government has moved toward the channelling of workers from non-essential into essential tasks with the issuance of an order by Labor Minister Mitchell—the first under National Selective Service Civilian Regulations—requiring single men between the ages of 19 and 40 and married men between the ages of 19 and 25 in some 20 non-essential industries or occupations to register by May 19 for possible transfer to essential industry.

In announcing the order last night, Mr. Mitchell indicated that one of its chief purposes would be to overcome shortages of agricultural workers. "As it is so neccessary to secure the workers required by the agricultural industry," he said, "a good many of those directed to employment will be sent to farms, but transfers will not be restricted to that line of work.

"Some workers will be directed to other essential industries where their services are needed."

Though no official estimate of the number of workers the order would make available for essential work was immediately obtainable here, it was believed it would run into thousands. Agriculture was the only essential industry specifically mentioned by Mr. Mitchell in his announcement, but it was presumed that plants manufacturing materials essential to the war effort would be also concerned.

In the department statement the minister said similar orders would be issued later, dealing with other non-essential employments.

Occupations Covered

Occupations and industries covered by the present order are:—

(1) Taverns or liquor, wine and beer stores;

(2) Retail sale of candy, confectionery, tobacco, books, stationery or news (magazines and newspapers);

(3) Barber shops and beauty parlors;

(4) Retail and wholesale florists;

(5) Service stations (by which are meant gasoline-filling stations);

(6) Retail sale of motor vehicles or accessories;

(7) Retail sale of sporting goods or musical instruments.

Whether or not the occupation is one in those industries listed as covered by the order, all men designated under mobilization regulations are covered by the order if they now are working as waiters, taxi-drivers, elevator operators, hotel bell-boys or domestic serv-

U.S. Forces Also Gain Five Miles East of Mateur

Germans Lose 12 Out of 17 Tanks When They Walk Into British Trap

MUNITIONS SHIP SUNK

By EDWARD KENNEDY
Associated Press Staff Writer

Allied Headquarters, North Africa, May 5—(AP)—American and French troops, smashing along the Mediterranean toward Bizerte, have reached a point 10 miles from that naval base while the British 1st Army, fighting northeastward on the Central front, repulsed a strong enemy counter-attack, Allied headquarters advices said today.

The German resistance was most marked, the communique indicated, on the 1st Army front. In their unsuccessful counter-attack the Germans suffered considerable losses in men and 12 out of 17 tanks employed.

5 Miles of Ferryville

Other American forces headed toward Bizerte from Mateur had driven to within five miles of Ferryville.

Ferryville is 10 miles northeast of Mateur and eight miles across Lake Bizerte from the naval base.

Pushing out of Mateur of the east and southeast, the Americans also made a five-mile gain, and repulsed another light enemy counter-attack launched from Djebel Makna, a ridge on the east side of the river Tine.

In this thrust the Americans were aiming at Tebourba, 18 miles west of Tunis and about the same distance southeast of Mateur.

The penetration to within artillery range of Bizerte was made after beating back a German counter-attack at Djebel Cheniti, north of Lake Achkel, one of the water defences protecting the southern approaches to the naval base.

Farther south, where the Germans lashed out in their strong counter-attack east of Medjez-El-Bab, 17 of their tanks walked into a British trap and the communique said that among the 12 smashed tanks were two 60-ton Tigers.

French Smash Ahead

At the Pont Du Fahs "hinge" between the German western and southern fronts, the 19th French Corps of Gen. Louis Marie Koeltz were reported smashing ahead in a new offensive launched yesterday at dawn toward Zaghouan, strategic communication centre which is dominated by the Djebel Zaghouan, a 4,000-foot peak which is the highest in Tunisia.

The communique said these forces cutting in behind the German mountain front which faces Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery's British 8th Army were meeting stiffening German resistance, but they gained two miles by nightfall yesterday and were within eight miles of Zaghouan.

(An NBC correspondent's broadcast from Tunisia said the French had cut the Zaghouan-Enfidaville road. Zaghouan is about 14 miles east of Pont Du Fahs, 24 miles northwest of Enfidaville and 28 miles south of Tunis.)

The 8th Army's artillery continued to pound the enemy forces facing it in the hills, and its patrols had several clashes with the enemy north of Enfidaville.

As a result of the American-French advance along the Mediterranean, the north shore of Lake Achkel are almost entirely occupied by the Allies, who have reached the western slopes of Djebel Cheniti after stopping a comparatively feeble German counter-attack.

1st Army Repulses Attacks

The main enemy activity yesterday was the vigorous counter-attack against Lt.-Gen. Kenneth Anderson's British 1st Army, 11 miles northeast of Medjez-El-Bab.

The Germans there tore in with tanks, infantry and heavy artillery fire but were held off.

This effort and the stiffening resistance from that sector south and east to the coast indicated the enemy was most determined to keep the way open for his retreat into the hills of Cap Bon Peninsula for his last stand in North Africa.

The fact that resistance in the south was stronger than in the north suggested that he intended to attempt a fight on the peninsula even if forced to give up Tunis and Bizerte.

4,000 German Captives

A measure of the fighting in this area was the announcement of the 1st Army, fighting from Medjez-El-Bab to Pont-Du-Fahs, that it had taken 5,000 prisoners, 4,000 of them Germans, since April 21—on the eve of the current Allied offensive.

For the third day poor visibility and low clouds limited air operations over the battlefield, but light naval forces in another of their incursions off Cap Bon blew up a Tunis-bound ship carrying muni-

Canada's Eaters-Out Survive Their First "Meatless Tuesday"

(By The Canadian Press)

It was "Jumbo Finnan Haddie wiht egg sauce" and "Spaghetti with diced chicken au gratin" yesterday, but nobody seemed to miss the roast beef, fried ham and broiled veal chops. Canada's eaters-out survived their first meatless Tuesday with no falling off in activity or morale on the knife-and-fork front.

A Prices Board spokesman said the meatless day conserved sufficient meat to stock a large British battleship for five months at sea. He estimated that regular diners in public eating places ordinarily accounted for about eight per ent of the meat consumed in Canada.

The spokesman estimated that on one "meatless day" they contributed more than 350,000 pounds o. meat to vital purposes. "Meatless Tuesdays" throughout the year, he said, will save approximately 20,000,000 pounds of meat.

Fish, chicken, eggs, vegetables, beans, macaroni and cheese were dished up in scores of shapes as the country's public eating places withheld staple meats from the consumer attack.

Restaurant eaters met the situation virtually without a beef. One Winnipeg meal purveyor told of a customer who walked out in a buff when he couldn't get ham and eggs for breakfast, but that fellow was not typical.

More representative was the travelling man at Stratford, Ont., whose reaction was, "at least a break in the monotony; no roast beef and brown gravy; no roast pork with apple sauce. This is a dashed good idea, even though I couldn't tell you what was in my Welsh rarebit."

Chefs were co-operative and cheerful. One, in Saint John, N.B., can be the spozesman for his clan: "Anyone who couldn't make a tasty, hearty meal from all that was offered in this city shoud take a day off and count his blessings".

Most meat packers and wholesalers thought it too early to determine what the actual savings in poundage would be in their cities. And when they did guess, estimates as between centres varied widely. For instance, Kitchener, Ont., (population 35,57), made a guess of 3,000 pounds, while in the rugged north Sudbury (32,203) said "10 tons".

The high seasonal cost of vegetables made more costly than meat the Tuesday menu in some places. North Bay provisioners mentioned this particularly, though agreeing there would be a saving later on when local produce is ready for market.

City Reaches Over Half of Loan Quota With Total of $550,850

With less than one half the campaign completed, subscriptions to the Fourth Victory Loan in the City of Belleville exceeded 50 per cent of the campaign objective at noon on Tuesday, according to official county figures released by local headquarters this morning.

Total subscriptions in the city at noon Tuesday were tabulated at $550,850, with a total objective of $1,100,000, while general sales throughout the county were figured at $1,226,800 of a $2,800,000 objective.

Of the several other divisions into which the county is broken down, it appeared that Stirling and Rawdon district would be practically certain of passing the half way mark toward their objective before Wednesday night, the official half way mark in the campaign. Up to noon on Tuesday, Stirling and district had attained 42.3 per cent, with Sidney and Thurlow up to 40.4. Deseronto and district stood at 37.7 per cent, Trenton at 34.9, Deloro Village at 30, Tweed district 31.8, Madoc district 25.4 and Bancroft 22.4 per cent.

Hastings County Will Be Free Of Debt in June

A celebration will be in order for Hastings County early in June when at the spring session of the county council, the municipality's last debenture will be paid off and the county will stand debt free.

County Clerk Erle S. Denyes stated this week that when the debenture is retired it will undoubtedly be the first time in its history that the county will be entirely free of debt. Hastings County was organized in 1850 with Edward Fidlar of Rawdon Township as the first warden. Prior to that time the area now comprising Hastings had been known as the District of Columbia with its warden appointed by the provincial government.

Several other counties in the province will also be free of debt this summer when their last debentures are retired, it was stated by Mr. Denyes.

No. 5 I.T.S. Will Parade Thursday On Behalf of Loan

Discontinuing for a period of a week their former practice of staging route marches through city streets every two weeks, personnel of No. 5 Initial Training School will stage a special Victory Loan parade on Thursday afternoon, it has been announced by Wing Commander A. J. Snetsinger, officer commanding.

Wing Commander Snetsinger has given every co-operation with Hastings County Victory Loan committeemen in assisting to publicize the Fourth Victory Loan Campaign and his gesture in staging a special parade in the interests of the loan is one greatly appreciated. Station airforce personnel therefore is not only giving much of its time to support of the loan but are lending monetary support as well. This is indicated by the fact airmen from No. 5 I.T.S. have oversubscribed their objective by over 200 percent.

The route of Thursday's parade will be east on Bridge Street to Charles, north on Charles to Victoria and west on Victoria to Front Street. The parade will then swing south on Front to Bridge Street, south on Coleman and return to the station by way of Dundas St. The parade will leave the station at two o'clock.

DOXTATOR—In loving memory of a dear brother, who passed away May 6, 1942.

We who loved you, sadly miss you
As it dawns another year.
In our lonely hours of thinking.
Thoughts of you are ever near.
'Tis sweet to know we'll meet again
When troubles are no more,
And that the one we loved so well
Has just gone on before.

—Ever remembered by Helen, Percy and Franklin. M5

DOXTATOR—In loving memory of a dear son, who passed away May 6, 1942.

No one knows how much we miss you,
No one knows the bitter pain
We have suffered since we lost you
Life has never been the same.
In our hearts your memory lingers,
Sweetly, tender, fond and true.
There is not a day dear Roy
That we do not think of you.

—Sadly missed by Mother and Dad. M5

SMITH—In loving memory of Olive Smith, who passed away one year ago, May 5, 1942, at three years of age.

I cannot say, and I will not say
That she is dead—she is just away!
With a cheery smile and a wave of the hand,
She has wandered into an unknown land,
And left us dreaming how very fair
It needs must be, since she lingers there.
And you—O you, who the wildest yearn
For the old-time step and the glad return,—
Think of her faring on, as dear
In the love of There as the love of Here;
Think of her still as the same, I say
She is not dead—she is just away!

—Lovingly remembered by Mother and Father and brother Elton. M5

George McKenzie Observes 95th Birthday, Thurs.

Picton, May 5—Still active and able to do light chores around his home, George McKenzie will tomorrow celebrate his 95th birthday. He resides on the homestead at Waupoos which was settled by his grandfather, William McKenzie, around 1812. With the exception of a few years, he has always resided in Prince Edward County. On two occasions, when a young man, he went to Nevada and California where he engaged in mining. Settling on the homestead, he specialized in fruit farming.

Mr. McKenzie has a son, George D. and a daughter, Mrs. Gordon McConnell with whom he resides. Of his fifteen grandchildren, three are in the army. He also has two great-great grandchildren.

$500,000,000 Subscribed to Loan

Ottawa, May 5 —(CP)— Subscriptions to the $1,100,000,000 Fourth Victory Loan passed the half-billion dollar mark yesterday and the total bond sales to close of business last night were $503,936,100, the National War Finance Committee reported today.

The comparative figure in the Third Victory Loan drive last August was $414,583,900 but the minimum objective in that campaign was only $750,000,000.

The current loan campaign opened April 26 and closes May 15. Tonight the half-way point in the drive is reached and unless the day's sales fall considerably below the average of the campaign so far subscriptions by that time will have exceeded the half-way mark toward the $1,100,000,000 minimum goal.

Yesterday's total of sales was $67,590,850, more than $20,000,000 higher for the total for the same day of the last loan.

National Loan Headquarters said that the $503,936,100 total sales in the general canvass and by payroll deducted combined total $138,376,000. Payroll deduction sales which amounted to more than $4,000,000 Monday, turned in another $4,000,000 yesterday. General canvass reached $17,281,000.

"The $138,000,000 total of general canvass and payroll combined, up to the end of the eighth day, is some 21 per cent higher than in the previous loan, whereas a 33-per cent increase represents the actual need if $500,000,000 is to be obtained from this source," said today's statement on the loan's progress from National Headquarters.

Large subscriptions, led by a $5,500,000 subscription from New York Life Insurance Co., "Special Names" yesterday invested in bonds as follows:

Canadian Car and Foundry Co., Montreal, $2,500,000; Henry Birks and Sons, Ltd., and subsidiaries, $650,000; Montreal Life Insurance Co., $650,000; Foundation Co., of Canada and subsidiaries, Montreal, $600,000; E. B. Eddy Co. Hull, Que., $500,000; Montreal Cottons Ltd., $600,000.

From Ontario subscriptions were reported by the Borden Co. Ltd., $1,000,000; Canadian Order of Foresters, Brantford, $800,000;; Procter and Gamble Co., of Canada Ltd., Toronto and Hamilton $750,000.

Kingston Military Dist. Leads For $500,000

Military District No. 3 (Kingston, Ont.,) has passed its $400,000 objective and now is working toward $500,000. Subscriptions there came from about 5,000 officers and men and represent "far from complete" coverage.

Reflecting support of smaller municipalities, Mayor W. Garfield Case of Owen Sound, Ont., announced the Municipal Council had increased its subscription from $100,000 to $150,000.

The town council of Tillsonburg, Ont., voted to set aside $12,000 in reserve to be invested in Victory Bonds for use in post-war municipal improvements.

442,746 Subscribers

The committee reported that 442,746 individual subscribers bought bonds for a cumulative total of $436,345,250 up to close of business Monday as against 337,711 subscribers and $366,985,050 in the corresponding period of the third Victory Loan last Autumn.

Brantford, Ont., with 61.5 per cent of its quota attained continued to lead cities seeking to reach objectives for combined general canvass and payroll savings on the basis of Monday's return and was followed by Fredericton with 80.9 per cent. Summerside, P.E.I. and Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., were tied for third place with 58 per cent. Leadership among cities which have yet to reach gross objectives also were held by Brantford, with 82.1 per cent.

No Estimate Made of Number of Men In Non-Essential Industry Who Must Register Not Later Than May 19

District National Selective Service officials here made no attempt this morning to estimate the number of single and married men in Belleville who will be asked to register pending possible transfers into more essential industry according to the new order announced from Ottawa Tuesday.

According to the new regulation all single men 19-40 years of age and married men 19-25 now in non-essential industry will be required to register with their nearest National Selective Service office not later than May 19th. Among workers affected are those in many retail shops, barber shops and gasoline service stations. Waiters, taxi-drivers and those engaged in occupations associated with the entertainment field are also affected.

"We have not yet compiled sufficient data to determine with any degree of accuracy the number of men affected in Belleville and district," stated Mr. H. H. Reed, manager of the local National Selective Service. "Undoubtedly, however, it will be considerable."

Garages will be the hardest hit locally, it was thought, with several having from five to ten men in the above age groups employed.

"There is nothing they can do about it, however, but comply with the regulations," added Mr. Reed. "Vast amounts of food will be required this year for Britain, while increased quantities of war materials will be needed if and when the invasion of the continent begins.

"It means that we simply have to have increased production and non-essential industries will have to go by the board."

WARTIME GARDEN BOOKLET AVAILABLE

Realizing the need for greater production of food stuffs and well aware of the assistance city residents could give in this respect by growing vegetables and other garden produce, the Department of Agriculture is encouraging such practice through the publication of a wartime garden booklet.

The booklet contains a wealth of information of value to the city resident contemplating a "Victory Garden" and indicates the size of garden needed, the proper site to choose and the type of soil necessary.

Information regarding the preparation of the soil is given as well as the proper time to sow seed or set out plants. The quantity of seed required and the method of planting is also indicated. Proper method of control of diseases and insects affecting garden produce is noted.

Appropriately named "The Wartime Garden," the publication is part of the wartime production series published by the Agricultural Supplies Board and copies may be had free of charge by application to the above address at Ottawa.

Monsoon to Halt Burma Campaign

New Delhi, May 5 — (AP) — Infiltrating Japanese troops approaching the Maungdaw-Buthidaung road near the Burma-Indian frontier north of Akyab were engaged by British troops, a British communique said today.

The inconclusive action was east of the Mayu Ridge along which desultory fighting had been in progress most of the fall and winter.

The curtain is due to ring down on the Burma campaign soon, because the Monsoon is about to start.

West of the Mayu Ridge, the communique said there was nothing to report.

The R.A.F. made widespread and damaging raids in Burma. Railroad yards at Rangoon were bombed last night and "many casualties were inflicted on enemy troops at a camp between Toungoo and Thazi" north of Rangoon. Supply sampans, two steamships and rolling stock also were attacked in raids from which all British planes returned.

Fires Started At Jap Airdrome

Allied Headquarters, Australia, May 5. (AP)—Fires were started around the Japanese airdrome at Babo, Dutch New Guinea, Tuesday, by a formation of big United States bombers which flew through bad weather to deliver a daylight attack.

Babo is more than 700 miles north across the Arafura sea from Darwin, Australia, and is inside the 100-mile long MacCluer Gulf.

Enemy planes were caught on the ground and damaged but it was not until the bombers were on their way southward to their bases that they encountered any opposition in the air. Over the Aroe Islands, six Japanese float planes rose to intercept. Gunners shot down two and all the big bombers returned home safely.

Barges, which the Japanese use frequently for landing coastal supplies, were targets in other aerial action yesterday, as reported in today's noon communique. Barges were attacked off one of the Kai Islands, off Lolobau Islands, near New Britain and in New Britain's Kimbe Bay.

Multiple Defences Of Dortmund Heavily Blasted

By ALLEN NICKLESON

(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

London, May 5 (CP Cable) — Under the smashing bomb attack of the R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. last night, the multiple defences of Dortmund were effectively damaged, returning Canadian airmen reported today.

The German industrial city, they said, was protected by strong anti-aircraft fire and a great belt of searchlights. Night fighters were sent up to meet the bombers.

But the weight of explosives dropped had a telling effect on the ground fire which was not nearly as heavy after the attack had been under way a little while.

Large areas of fire were seen after the explosions. Flt. Sgt. S. E. Youngblut, Londesborough, Ont., said he saw an explosion that sent flames up 6,000 feet "right through heavy billows of smoke."

PO. William Maxwell, Leamington, Ont., reported the destruction in Dortmund as extremely heavy. "Nothing could have survived those flames," said Maxwell.

CLAIMS CONVOY MOVING

London, May 5—(CP)—The German-controlled Paris radio broadcast a report today from La Linea, Spain, which asserted that a big Allied convoy had sailed from Gibraltar, comprising almost 20 transports loaded with landing barges and armored vehicles.

La Linea is on the Spanish peninsula opposite Gibraltar. The broadcast was recorded by the Associated Press.

3 Large Subscriptions Boost Loan $175,000

The cumulative total for Hastings County in the Fourth Victory Loan took a sudden jump upwards today with the announcement this morning that three Belleville and district corporations had subscribed a total of $175,000.

The Canadian Industrial Alcohol Company at Corbyville has taken out a subscription for $100,000, it has been announced by Wilfred LaPorte, general manager, while J. H. Legate of the Canada Cement Company at Point Anne has announced his company has purchased $50,000 worth of bonds. The Canada Cement subscription is part of the order taken by the head office in Montreal with the above sum being allocated to Hastings County.

The third large subscription announced for Hastings overnight, is that of the City of Belleville for $25,000 worth of Victory Bonds.

All Four County RCAF Stations Now Over 100 P.C. of Loan Quota

Leading the way in bond subscriptions to the Fourth Victory Loan, all four county R. C. A. F. stations have now attained more than 100 percent of their respective objectives with the campaign still not at its half way mark according to officials of the Hastings county loan headquarters.

No. 5 Initial Training School at Belleville was the first station in the county to pass its objective and reached the 100 percent mark three days after the opening of the campaign. No. 1 Instrument Flying School at Deseronto closely followed suit, while yesterday both Trenton Air Station and No. 6 Repair Depot went over the top.

Not satisfied with reaching their initial objective, personnel of No. 5 I. T. S. have now more than doubled their quota and their bond purchases now stand at 211 percent of their original goal. The Deseronto station has attained the 160 percent mark, while both Trenton and No. 6 R. D. stand at 105 percent.

THE WAR TODAY

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

Associated Press War Analyst

Axis fear that the Allies may be getting ready to invade the big islands of Sicily and Sardinia, even before the Tunisian campaign is finished, isn't such a crazy idea at that.

The Germans assert that a lot of Allied shipping, including invasion barges, is assembled at Gibraltar. This announcement is likely a fishing expedition for information, but that doesn't necessarily mean the report isn't true. It will be recalled that Berlin was broadcasting information about the Allied fleet for the North African landing last fall some days before the event actually took place.

It wouldn't be surprising to find that the Allies are indeed preparing for invasion of Italian territory to coincide with the wind-up of the Tunisian show, which today is reported as continuing to go well for the right side. And, as the Nazis plaintively observe, there's no law which says such an invasion has to await the surrender of the last Axis soldier on African soil.

The new Allied strategy in relation to the entire Axis war machine seems to be epitomized in the Tunisian offensive. That's to hit the enemy at as many vital points as possible simultaneously and to keep on hitting, so as to make him divide his strength and fight without pause for rest or repair.

Now apart from the fact that Sicily is the natural bridge between Africa and the Italian mainland, it flanks the narrow and shallow channel which forms a bottle-neck in the Mediterranean between the great island Cap Bon, Tunisia. Only 90 miles separate Sicily from Africa at this point, and all through-shipping must pass here.

The result is that the Sicilian channel has become a hunting ground for Axis aircraft, many of which have been based on Sicily. Sardinia, which is only a little more than 100 miles from Tunisia, also holds a club over this channel.

What more natural than that the Allies should have a house-cleaning of Sicily and Sardinia with the wind-up of the Tunisian campaign? One of the prime objectives of the whole African offensive is to reopen the Mediterranean shipping routes which have been impractical for ordinary shipping.

Any Allied invasion of Italy, or any attack up through the Balkans, calls for a wide open Mediterranean for United Nations shipping.

Whatever else follows, the Allies seem likely to clean out Sicily and Sardinia in the immediate future. Where they will strike after that is still the secret of the high command.

LIMITS TO CONCESSIONS

London, May 5. (CP)—Premier Gen. Wladyslaw Sikorski of Poland in a broadcast last night said there were limits to concessions Poland could make to Soviet Russia to retain friendly relations but at the same time reiterated Poland's "implacable stand" against the German despoiler of his native country.

He said that friendly relations with Soviet Russia had always been one of Poland's main guiding principles.

"The facts which are separating us must be removed as soon as possible", he said, in referring to Russia's severance of diplomatic relations with his government last week.

GERMAN CLAIM NOT CONFIRMED

New York, May 5 (AP)—The German High Command, in a communique broadcast from Berlin and recorded by The Associated Press, claimed today that 16 Allied ships totalling 102,000 tons were sunk by German submarines attacking two convoys in the North Atlantic, and four other vessels torpedoed. There was no confirmation of the claim.

Nearing Bizerte

Closer and closer comes the day of the final reckoning in Tunisia, where the Axis is making a desperate effort to delay the United Nations' armies. Though fighting desperately the Germans and Italians know that the handwriting is on the wall for all to see. General Giraud has said that Allied triumph will come within the month.

The rumors which are going about of Hitler's socalled "fortress of Europe" indicate that the Germans and Italians know that the length of the stand in Tunisia is only for a matter of time and that nothing can save the last remnant of North Africa to the Axis cause. One report says that Mussolini has called for the assistance of Hitler and another, this time from Vichy, speaks of the probabilities of Allied invasion through the Mediterranean. On the eastern front the Russians are giving an amazing demonstration of their power and their generalship.

How close the Allied forces are to Bizerte was indicated early Tuesday when the Americans were said to be within ten miles of the dock area and advancing.

On the civilian side is the record of United States industry in piling up the greatest production in history of aircraft, warships and merchant ships in March, though the first three months of the year fell short of the rate needed to meet the plans of 1943 according to Donald Nelson. April shows further advance and the United States aims to accelerate production fifty percent beyond first-quarter records.

'Meatless' Tuesday in Restaurants

Canadians eating in restaurants, hotels and institutions have had their first experience of "meatless Tuesday," but they dined on macaroni, eggs, chicken, fish and a wide range of vegetables.

The time passed without incident and almost without comment, for good cooks, ample food and other dishes took the place of meat that might otherwise have been used. Doubtless many scarcely noticed it and others would not have noticed it but for the name "meatless Tuesday."

It has been said that meatless Tuesday is likely to be followed in many homes as well, as housewives and their families decide to conserve meat in this same way.

Really "meatless" days cannot be unusual in many homes for Canadians do not all eat meat every day. In many homes there are days when meat can easily be passed over. In the last war there were meatless days in restaurants and no doubt in many homes.

General meat rationing which will extend to the home in the near future need not cause any derangement of meals. The allowance of about two pounds of meat per individual seems quite generous. Even if the average Canadian has been eating about 2.6 pounds per week, some have been eating much less and of course, some eating more, but as the amount to be permitted extends even to children the youngest of whom would not eat the approximate two pounds, there will be opportunities for generous meals with meat in the home. What with fish, eggs, fowl, fruits, vegetables and the use of liver, heart, kidneys and other unrationed portions of pork, veal and beef, the advent of meat rationing will not make many changes except to give greater incentive to cooking and to permit planning of a greater variety of meals by the housewives.

It is estimated that 400,000 pounds of meat will be the average saving on a meatless day in public eating places across Canada.

What Name for the War?

Some time ago there was discussion as to the name by which the present struggle is likely to be named and what its relationship by name will be with the first World War.

The other day General Henri Giraud of North Africa made a prediction that the war would end victoriously next year for the Allied Nations and he spoke of the struggle as "the thirty years' war which began in 1914."

That is putting the two wars together with the intervening peace as merely an armistice or stay of arms. Everyone knows how closely this present war is linked with that of 1914-1918 but no one before this has spoken of the two as a "thirty years' war."

If the war should end in 1944 as the general predicts or even if it ends before or after, the phrase General Giraud used may have a chance of surviving as the name of the struggle.

History tells of the Thirty Years' War in Europe which lasted from 1618 to 1648.

Aged Traps Still Good

Fish traps constructed centuries ago now yield fine catches for the natives who found them on Mer Island, in Torres Strait, Australia. Builders of the traps, formed of stones set side by side in huge squares over a total area of six square miles are unknown, but Brisbane historians believe they date to a Spanish or Dutch occupation in the seventeenth century. Fish are stranded in the hollow squares when the tide recedes. Size of the stones indicate a large labor force was necessary for the project.

Newspapers Lead

(Bureau of Advertising, U.S.A.)

In 1942 the people of the United States spent an estimate total of $603,627,000 for copies of daily and Sunday newspapers.

This was $153,000,000 more than they spent for all other reading matter combined . . . more than twice what they spent for magazines . . . more than three times what they spent for books.

The figures are:

Daily and Sunday Newspapers	$ 603,627,000
Magazines	250,000,000
Books	200,000,000
Total	$1,053,627,000

His Goose is Cooked

(Collier's Weekly)

There is a tortured gentleman in Hollywood who owns a dancing goose—or, rather, did own it. In an effort to get it an engagement in Fred Astair's new picture, "The Sky's the Limit," he sent the fowl over in person. It arrived in a crate at the receiving department and was sent promptly to the commissary. The cook knew a good thing in these days of meat scarcity, killed the goose and cooked it. When the owner arrived to interview Ed. Griffith, the director, about his goose, he found it on the menu. "That goose was supporting a family of five," he said wrathfully.

MORE ABOUT ELLEN ELIZABETH

"Bragging you go!" says the mother to me.
"Just an old nuisance you're getting to be!
Nobody's eager to hear you review
The smart little deeds which your grandchildren do!"
Still I must tell, if a minute you've got:
Ellen Elizabeth jabbers a lot!

Only her brother who's with her all day
Knows everything she is trying to say.
Quick as a flash she picks up every phrase
Repeating it later in curious ways,
Leaving no doubt she's a smart little tot.
Ellen Elizabeth jabbers a lot!

"People grow weary," says mother, "you know Hearing you brag of your granddaughter so."
"Listen," I answer. "For forty long years
I've let old grandpas take charge of my ears
Now it's my turn. Let 'em like it or not!"
Ellen Elizabeth jabbers a lot!

Not a bit backward, and not a bit shy.
Ask her a question, you'll get a reply.
Bright as a dollar and smart as a whip
Speech like a waterfall flows from her lip.
Waking, till time she goes back to her cot
Ellen Elizabeth jabbers a lot!

Leaflets on the Loan

By Stephen Leacock

Have You Got Even One Cent?

Professor Scott Byron gave a lecture yesterday afternoon up here in Jeff's Barber Shop in Mariposa. The professor had come up on the noon train from the City, where he is a professor, and always when he comes up, he goes over to the Barber Shop and gives a lecture.

Stephen Leacock

You see, it's a real treat for a professor to be able to give a lecture under proper circumstances such as he can get in a barber shop. With the students it's different. It hasn't the same life to it. They just sit there and write down their notes and don't half appreciate a good thing when they hear it. The students say that Professor Byron's talks always have too many statistics. But in the Barber Shop they can never get enough. The students say that Professor Byron thinks he knows it all. In the Barber Shop he does.

The Professor comes up to Mariposa pretty often. He's getting now just that first touch of old age, like September frost in a garden, that mellows a man and makes him cling to the things he's grown used to. The Professor, you see, always comes up to Mariposa for his vacations and he generally manages to have a fortnight at Christmas; he can usually snatch a week for the trout fishing in May and likes the break of a fortnight in early June for the herring fishing. Beyond that, he has to content himself with odd weekends. He's a busy man. He says so himself. In fact he's getting touchy about it.

When the Professor is going to lecture in Jeff's Place he comes in to get his hair trimmed. Trimmed, you understand, not cut. Jeff understands it exactly; he just trims it round so that there's as much as ever and the professor can come back next day and have it trimmed again.

I wouldn't mention all this except that it happened yesterday's lecture came in just right for Victory Loan week. I don't know whether the Professor meant it that way but at any rate his talk was all about Interest on Money and how it increases if you let it alone. As soon as he said "interest" all the fellers in the shop were sure that he was hitting at the Loan.

What he told us was certainly curious. Some of the "boys" doubted it but Jeff himself believed it fully. You learn to believe when you run a Barber Shop.

He told us a story and he said you could prove it by any history book,—that when the Dutch came to settle in America in 1621 they took the lower half of Manhattan Island — where New York City is located now — and they had too much conscience to take it from the Indians for nothing, so they gave them fifty dollars for it.

Imagine getting the best part of the City of New York for fifty dollars.

But Professor Byron claimed that the Indians got the best of the bargain. If the Dutch, he said, had put the fifty dollars out at interest and let it stay there, it would have brought in, by this time, more than the city is worth. Of course the Professor admitted that interest rates were higher then than now; people got ten per cent easy enough for business loans (Kings paid up to twenty or more) and even a hundred years later eight per cent was easy enough.

Here's the way the Professor worked it. Money at ten per cent doubles in 7¼ years. He gave the Dutchmen 10 per cent till 1735. Then 8 per cent till 1835; money at 8 per cent doubles in 9 years; he gave them 6 per cent till 1895 (he said the United States Government itself paid that much in the civil war time); money at 6 per cent doubles itself in 12 years; he gave them five per cent till 1923; at that, money doubles in 14 years; and 4 per cent till 1943 with money doubling in 17½ years.

This meant that every dollar the Dutchmen invested was doubled 35 times. It starts off as $1, $2, $4, $8 . . . and looks pretty harmless. But watch it when it gets going. When you get to the total of 35 doublings multiply it by 50 because the investment is fifty dollars. It works out at something more than one and a half trillion dollars,—$1,500,000,000,000. That sum is 240 times the assessed value of all the land and all the property in Manhattan. It would buy all the United States.

The Professor offered to calculate it all out and he asked Jeff if he had a table of logarithms. Jeff said he'd always wanted one in the shop (they look nice) and that his wife had tried to grow them in pots but they come to nothing.

He was just going to throw the Professor on his back and trim his moustache when he say that Professor Byron was still talking, so he tilted him up and clipped his neck and let him go on.

This time it was William the Conqueror. "You've all heard of William the Conqueror," he said. All of the fellers said yes, and old Archie Green said he remembered him personally very well and that he always used to walk in six miles from the old Conyers place (it's on the fourth) every Sunday to the Presbyterian Church in Mariposa. Very erect, Archie said.

The Professor got his neck up higher and said he meant the William the Conqueror who conquered England. And some one said, "What would Mr. Churchill say to that " — and the lecture nearly went off the track, as lectures are apt to, in a barber shop. That's where students are better.

But the Professor managed to get his audience back and what he told them was that if William the Conqueror when he marched into London had invested there one cent, — just one single cent, and left it there, it would be worth now,—well I forget what. As much as that.

Jeff said it was certainly a caution, and some one else said that he supposed that if a feller took a good slice of this Victory Loan and just left it to increase, he might presently buy up the whole of Mariposa.

But the Professor didn't stay for the discussion. He knew of another place where he could talk and he went out.

When he was gone some one said "I'll bet the Prof. buys in on the Loan eh?"

There was a bank teller sitting there, a kind of smart feller and he said "He has already." "He put a cent in today."

ON THE RECORD

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

A Yankee at King Stalin's Court

New York, May 5.—"Mission to Moscow" is supposed to portray living history. It opens with a speech by Joseph Davies, former United States Ambassador to Moscow, who, by his presence, lends authenticity to the film based on his book. The characters are living people who have played a role in the history of our times.

The object in making the film is, we are told by Mr. Davies, to create a better understanding of Russia.

Judged by any of these objectives the film is phony. The characters are phony; the history is phony; and understanding will be distorted, not clarified.

No new light is thrown on Russia. We see Russian factories, all of which have been better depicted on Russian films. I recalled an old Russian film, "Turqsib," dramatizing the building of the railroad between Turkestan and Siberia, showing the Russian peoples conjoined in the great pioneering effort to conquer their own frontiers and change a backward country into a modern State. It was impressive. Nothing as good is depicted in "Mission to Moscow."

Fiction in Garb of Fact.

The picture is full of fiction, presented as fact. We are introduced to the Japanese Ambassador, Mr. Shigemitsu, who is now Japanese Foreign Minister. Mr. Davies met him immediately after his arrival in Moscow and remarked in his diary that he was a very able man — as, indeed, he is. In this picture he is presented, appearing at a reception, as a stock buffoon.

No attention is paid to facts of time. Mr. Davies, coming back to the United States via England, is depicted as entering his ship at the moment when the Russo-German pact is signed. Later, in Washington, he testifies before a Senate committee that the war will come in two months, that is to say in August or September. But the Russo-German pact was signed exactly one week before the war began!

The United States Senate as depicted is composed exclusively of isolationists and idiots. It would be a bad film to send abroad to nations that don't believe in parliamentary systems. I myself have testified on several occasions before Senate committees, sometimes against the prevailing opinion, but I have never encountered as a body such morons as are depicted in this film.

It is historically dubious to try to prove that another attitude in 1939 on the part of the isolationists might have prevented the war. By that time it was much too late.

Trials Telescoped.

The famous purge trials are grossly fictionalized. These several trials stretched over a period of two years. Here they are all telescoped into one, and in it is a figure who never appeared in any of the public trials—namely, Marshal Tukhachewsky. He was arrested, together with other generals, secretly court-martialled and shot. There was no possibility of confronting him—as happens in this remarkable picture—with Krestinsky and Bucharin, because both of them were already dead. No one knows what Marshal Tukhachewsky said for or against himself—no one except Warner Brothers.

As an American, living under the great tradition of Western Law, I intensely resent the inference of the film that these trials established justice according to any procedure acceptable to us. In the film Mr. Davies remarks that he believes the men guilty. Maybe. But these trials are no proof.

There is no attorney for the defence, and no cross-examination of the defendants, except by the prosecutor. No witnesses are called. All defendants confess, except Krestinsky, who is condemned on the evidence of the others, and their confessions are the sole evidence. Under Anglo-Saxon law a man may not be compelled to testify against himself and must be defended, even though he does not want to be.

In case of a capital crime, involving a death sentence, our jurisprudence will not accept a plea of guilty. The charge has to be proved by incontrovertible evidence.

Is it the purpose of this film to suggest that those safeguards, for the establishment of which men have worked and fought through the ages, are buncombe? Is the public to be educated to accept this sort of court proceeding?

Appalling Lack of Taste.

The film presents Karl Radek as a peculiarly loathsome character, confessing—as he did—to participation in the whole plot. But it fails to record that Mr. Radek was not executed by the Soviet. He got a ten-year prison sentence. Why? Maybe Warner Brothers didn't know that answer.

The tastelessness of the film is appalling. The British and Polish Ambassadors also representing allies of ours) are presented as asses —in contrast, of course, to the ineffable wisdom of us Americans.

The President of the United States is introduced—as a voice, a back, and a whiff of smoke, much in the manner that God is introduced on the stage.

The producers showed no such piety toward Churchill, Stalin or Kalinin. It would have been more convincing if they had, for the portraits of them are terrible.

It has been suggested that this film needs cutting. It does—indefinitely.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.

Abdominal Pain May Be First Symptom of Appendicitis

The story is told of two British mining engineers about to go on a prospecting trip into the heart of the jungle hundreds of miles from civilization. Both were in excellent health but as they thought of their destination, its distance from civilization, the foods to be eaten and other circumstances, they decided to enter hospital and have the appendix removed before starting on their trip.

Most physicians would agree that these engineers were wise to have the appendix removed while they were in good health as there was little or no chance of a fatal termination to the operation.

Further, physicians are agreed, that while the appendix must have had some use in the body in prehistoric times, there is at present no definite use for it and as it might cause trouble even death if infected, removal of appendix prevents danger to life.

In Southern Medicine and Surgery, Drs. Frederick F. Boyce and Harry E. Nelson, New Orleans, point out that the appendix is just a remnant or trace of a once useful organ that has not completely disappeared from man. It is a blind pouch that may rest or lie in various positions about the last part of the small and the beginning of the large intestine. It has its own blood supply and a closing or obstructive arrangement at its base. Even in health it is filled with infective material and it contains a large amount of lymphoid or spongy tissue (similar to tonsils and adenoids) which is particularly easy to infect.

Because there is "always" the chance of infection present, Drs. Boyce and Nelson believe that any attack of appendicitis should be considered and treated as a serious attack.

"The problem of acute appendicitis would be solved and its challenge met if the public could be taught and if physicians would remember (1) that any abdominal pain may be the first symptom of acute appendicitis; (2) that food, fluids and particularly purgatives should be withheld in every case of abdominal pain until it is definitely decided that acute appendicitis is not present, and (3) that prompt operation should be performed as soon as the physician is reasonably sure that acute appendicitis is present.

It is the following of these suggestions that has so greatly reduced the death rate in Philadelphia and Cleveland.

FLYING DUTCHMAN

The Flying Dutchman is the name of a legendary phantom ship that was formerly believed by sailors to haunt the seas around the Cape of Good Hope.

To catch a glimpse of this spectre vessel was regarded as an ill omen.

"They who see the Flying Dutchman never, never reach the shore," wrote John Boyle O'Reilly in his poem entitled "The Flying Dutchman."

The legends of the Flying Dutchman are legion.

Sir Walter Scott wrote that originally the Flying Dutchman was laden with a cargo of precious metals. A foul murder was committed on board and a plague broke out among the seamen, and the vessel was condemned to be tossed upon the waves forever like a ghost.

The most usual version of the legend, however, is as follows.

A Dutch ship, commanded by Captain Vanderdecken, sailing from the Indies to Holland, started to round the Cape of Good Hope during one of the terrific storms for which that region of the earth is notorious.

The crew begged the captain to turn back or wait until the tempestuous winds and heavy seas should subside; but the captain, half crazed with drink, determined to proceed

A mutiny followed, but the captain suppressed it by putting the ringleaders to death.

Then the Holy Ghost, in the form of St. Elmo's light, appeared at the masthead and warned him to desist. He drew his pistol and fired at the light. The pistol exploded, shattering his hand and paralyzing his arm. Wild with rage the captain cursed the Creator and swore that he would continue to round the cape against the wind if it took until the crack of doom.

Providence, says the legend, took the blasphemous captain at his word, and to this day the ship, with threadbare sails, the hull white with age and the captain and crew reduced to shadows, continues to beat against the wind in a vain effort to double the Cape.

The Dutch, German and English versions of the legend of the Flying Dutchman are substantially the same, except that each nation identifies the captain of the phantom ship as a different person

The legend and superstition of the Flying Dutchman date back several centuries and are believed to have originated in the phenomenon known as mirage.

This is your invitation to see how the officers, airwomen, and airmen live, train and keep in physical condition.

5. Use special chain lubricant to keep this mass of moving parts in easy-running form.
6. Oil frequently the main hanger, to which the pedal cranks are attached, as this is the power plant of the bicycle.
7. Always keep your tires inflated hard. Avoid wheel skidding and hitting curbs and stones. Check wheel alignment frequently to save tire wear.

SURE, I'M A HOARDER!
"I've put the family on a war saving basis!"

"Well, sir, the war changed a lot of things. Many of the plans we had worked out for 1943 just won't happen this year. There are bigger, more important things to think about. This was the year we had planned to do some spending, but we're going to do a lot of saving instead — saving and hoarding to win the war.

"If you had told me before the war that I would pay the taxes I'm paying, keep up my life insurance, and still keep going I wouldn't have believed it. But here I am, doing all these things, and besides that I'm buying and hoarding more and more Victory Bonds and War Savings Certificates. The sacrifices we make are little enough to pay for freedom and a future for the wife and kids."

"Back the Attack!"

Is Your Voice a Charm Asset?

Marquerite Chapman reads aloud for voice training

By HELEN FOLLETT

THERE's a great difference in voices, as you may have noticed. The majority of them are too high in register, haven't sufficient tone range. They are inclined to be thin and reedy are not pleasing to the ear. Loud speaking is not mannerly. The voice hammers on the listener's ear drums.

American girls are known the world over as shouters and that is not to their credit. Slovenly enunciation is a common error—you know, those girls who drop their gs. They're comin' or goin' or thinkin' or eatin'. We wish they wouldn't do it. Speech, like appearance, should be neat.

The voice should be clear, be placed at medium pitch, have emotional qualities sufficient to make it musical. Droners go on and on in a monotone that drives you crazy. Then there are those over-animated young ladies who squeak out their words. They squeak and giggle.

If you have doubts about your voice, read aloud. Read Shakespeare. That's a test. You may be surprised to find that you slur words, that you do not give each vowel its full valuation. Don't forget that a beautiful speaking voice is a quality of charm. Many a man has been fascinated by an attractive voice.

Shallow breathers are likely to have weak voices. Do deep breathing exercises, not only for the sake of your voice and your constitution, but for the sake of your complexion.

Victory Recipes Planned For Canadians' Health

By LAURA C. PEPPER
Chief Consumer Section,
Department of Agriculture

It is going to be easier for housewives to adjust themselves to meat rationing because of the fact that an announcement of the rationing has been made in advance.

Rationing of any food means that certain adjustments, which vary with individual families, have to be made.

When meat joins the ranks of other rationed foods, the majority of families will have to cut the amount of meat they usually eat by about one-fifth.

Now, before the ration actually comes into effect, is a good time to become better acquainted with some of the less familiar cuts of meat and their uses; to learn how to recognize quality; how to store and care for meat properly and how to get the best value from the meat you buy through using the most appropriate cooking methods.

These recipes from the Consumer Section of the Department of Agriculture will be appreciated by the ration-wise but they are grand eating at any time.

Lamb Patties with Tomato Gravy

1 onion, chopped
2 cups cooked cracked wheat, oatmeal, soft bread crumbs or mashed potato
1 pound ground lean, raw lamb
1 teaspoon salt
Dash of pepper
2 to 3 cups canned tomatoes or tomato juice
Flour
2 tablespoons fat

Add chopped onion and cooked cereal, crumbs or mashed potato to ground meat. Season with salt and pepper. Add enough tomatoes or juice to moisten sufficiently for easy handling. Form into patties, dip in fine oatmeal or flour seasoned with salt. Fry slowly in fat until well-browned on both sides—about 20 minutes. Remove patties, drain on brown paper and serve with tomato gravy.

Tomato Gravy

Blend 3 tablespoons flour with 2 tablespoons fat and gradually add 1 1-2 cups tomato juice, stirring constantly. Cook until smooth and thickened. Season to taste with salt and pepper. A little chopped parsley may be added. Serve 6 to 8.

Stuffed Flank Steak

1 beef, flank steak
½ cup chopped celery and leaves
1 small onion, chopped
4 tablespoons fat
1½ cups soft bread crumbs
Salt and pepper to taste
1 cup water

Use one large or two small flank steaks. Saute the celery and the onion in two tablespoons of the fat for a few minutes. Add the bread crumbs and season with salt and pepper. Pound and flatten steak. Spread with dressing and, beginning at one side of the steak, roll up like a jelly roll and tie securely in several places with string. Brown in the other two tablespoons of fat in a heavy frying or roasting pan on the top of the stove, turning the meat until it is browned on all sides. Slip a rack under the meat, add water, cover closely and bake in a moderate oven, (325-350F) 1½ to 2 hours. Use dripping in pan to make a rich brown gravy. Serves 5 to 6.

Flank steak may also be used for stews or meat pies or it may be braised as a Swiss steak.

Savoury Meat Pie

Beat 1 egg well, set aside 2 tablespoons of it. Mix the remaining egg into 4 cups of well-seasoned, mashed potatoes. Spread enough of this mixture into a greased 8 or 9 inch pie plate to make a shell about ½ inch thick. Crimp edge and prick bottom of shell in several places.

Form the remaining potato mixture into marble-sized balls and place on a greased baking sheet. Mix the 2 tablespoons of egg with 1 tablespoon milk and brush shell and balls lightly with this mixture. Bake in a very hot oven (425-450F) until golden brown — about 15 minutes. Remove from the oven, fill shell with hot meat mixture and garnish with potato balls and parsley.

Filling

1 medium onion, chopped
2 tablespoons fat
1 tablespoon flour
1 cup milk
1 cup diced, cooked meat
1 cup diced, cooked carrot
1 cup diced, cooked potato
1 cup peas or corn
Salt and pepper to taste

Brown onion in fat, blend in flour and add milk. Cook, stirring constantly, until thickened. Add meat, vegetables and season to taste. Heat thoroughly and pour into hot potato shell. Serves 6 to 8.

This filling may be used in cooked turnip cases, onion shells, green peppers.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

The Way For Lady to Keep Man From Standing is to Go Away

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

The other evening my husband and I were dining in a restaurant. A man and his wife, friends of ours, stopped for a minute or two to chat with us. My husband stood when they approached our table, but when the woman said "Please don't stand," he followed her suggestion and sat down. I told him after they had left our table that I didn't think it was polite for him to sit down, that to me it seemed discourteous for him to be seated while she was standing. But he maintains that it was all right for him to sit down as long as she suggested it. Which of us is right about this?

R. K.

You are right. It would have been polite for your husband to remain standing for the minute or two your friends were chatting with you. I'll grant that too many women take the rather ridiculous point of view that if they say to the standing gentleman "Please don't stand," they are being polite. But they really aren't, for they shouldn't think that the man would follow their suggestion and they should realize that they should be "on their way," so that the man may sit down. I doubt very much, as I am sure you do too, that your husband was either made comfortable by her suggestion, or felt comfortable sitting while the woman table-visitor was standing.

Commencement Questions

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. When one is being congratulated after one's graduation, should one merely say "Thank you?" 2. How should one thank the donors of gifts that are presented at the graduation exercises? 3. In our High School, with a very large graduating class, only relatives and a few intimate friends can be invited to the graduation exercises. Should we send invitations to the rest of our friends for an informal reception at our house? If so, when should it be? 4. When congratulation cards are sent, how should one thank the senders?

Jean

1. When you are congratulated on your graduation, it's pleasant and gracious to add a little something to your "Thank you." For example, "Thank you. That is very kind of you," or "It makes me very proud to have you say such nice things about my graduation," or "Thank you. I can't tell you how happy and proud you make me."

2. When a guest at your graduation brings a gift, thank her or him for it with warmly appreciative words. There usually isn't time at a graduation to open gifts so you'll have to let your spoken words say your appreciation until you have time afterward for the note of thanks that must be written.

3. It's a grand idea for a graduate to have a party for her friends after the graduation. It's fun and it "dramatizes" the importance of her graduation. The party may be given directly after the exercises, or at any more convenient time.

4. You should write a note of thanks for every congratulatory card or other message sent you.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Shall We Wait Till War is Over to Wed?

One of the questions I am asked most frequently these days is, "Shall I get married now or wait till after the war?"

There are so many factors involved, quite apart from the circumstances that no one knows how many years this war may last, that there is no set answer that can be given to the question.

One correspondent writes:

Dear Miss Fairfax: I'm engaged to a young man, with whom I've been going steadily for three years. He's 26 and I am 21 years of age. We had planned to wait until after the war to marry, but since then have changed our minds, and have not told my parents as yet. I'm sure they won't approve, because they say that everything is too insecure. They definitely approve of my fiance though.

Considering we have gone together for some time, and that ours would not be a "hurry up" war marriage, do you think it advisable to get married now or wait, as my parents prefer?

My fiance has been in the army about six months and if we did marry we wouldn't be together, as it is necessary that I keep my position at the present time.

M. D.

The answer to "M. D." I think, is this:

You've already made up your mind to marry in the near future, as you say you have changed your minds "and haven't told my parents as yet" but you have some qualms about it. And there is reason too.

There are material things to be taken into consideration in contracting a war-time marriage. Will your parents be obliged to provide a home for you, or could you manage on the allowance granted a soldier's wife, if circumstances should oblige you to quit your job? Such questions should be discussed fully by your fiance and your parents.

You're young, deeply in love and to you a few weeks or months of happiness may outweigh every other consideration. It did in the case of the war bride who wrote me:

"Twelve days after we were married my husband went away in the war. But those were twelve of my happiest days. We knew he was to go soon and decided to take a chance on a few days was better than taking none. Even now I am happy and contented as I didn't quit work and that takes eight hours of my day, then at night there are always things to do at home and civilian defence activities to keep me busy and keep me from being too lonely.

"We both write each other daily, and share all our thoughts. These letters keep me feeling very close to him. I trust him fully and I know he does the same by me. He tells me that I have given him something personal to fight for, and I know that this war really means more to me with him in it.

"I just wanted you to know that I am one of the happy war brides."

Another war bride wrote me: "We have wars and depressions one after another. No time apparently is the right time to be a bride, as far as public opinion goes."

Which just about sums it up. It all depends on the couple.

Diagnosis of Stomach Disorders Simplified by Gastroscope

About ten years ago, a new instrument was introduced into medical diagnosis. It is called the gastroscope, and by means of this instrument, which is made up of a tube of lights, it is possible for the physician to look directly into the patient's stomach. There are four separate conditions of the stomach that can be diagnosed by the use of this device.

One of these is chronic gastritis, also called inflammation of the stomach. This is a frequent disorder and the symptoms may be much like those produced by an ulcer of the stomach. That is, there is pain in the abdomen, coming on within one to three hours after meals with some sickness to the stomach. It is not possible to make a diagnosis of chronic gastritis on the basis of the symptoms it produces, because they are so much like those of other diseases. Furthermore, the X-ray is not of value in diagnosing this condition. The only method of determining the presence of chronic gastritis, the type and extent, is with the gastroscope.

The second condition which can be diagnosed with the gastroscope is ulcer of the stomach and first part of the bowel. There are other methods for helping to detect the ulcer. The patient's symptoms often give a good clue. Then, too, the X-ray frequently shows the location of the ulcer as well as its size.

On the other hand, certain ulcers in the stomach may be so located or so slight in extent that they cannot be shown on the X-ray plate, but can be seen in the gastroscope. Not only can the ulcer be seen, but the changes which have taken place in the lining membrane of the stomach can be noted. This may be helpful sometimes in telling when cancer may be starting around a stomach ulcer. The gastroscope also helps greatly too in telling how the healing process in ulcer is progressing.

The third condition diagnosed with the gastroscope is cancer of the stomach. When cancer is far advanced the diagnosis is not difficult because the patient has suffered from rapid loss of weight, has pain in the abdomen, loss of appetite and often the swelling can be felt. Furthermore, the X-ray shows such growths. But when cancer is just beginning the gastroscope is of inestimable value in making a diagnosis.

There are certain other tumors which may occur in the stomach, such as polyps. These may form ulcers and bleed, and in about half of them cancer may occur. With the gastroscope the polyps can be seen, their number determined and their size estimated.

There are certain limitations to the use of the gastroscope but in general it has been found to be a most useful device in diagnosing stomach disorders and permitting their early and prompt treatment.

FASHION FLASHES

PERENNIAL APPEAL is that of the finely detailed, beautifully cut pastel crepe frock. Mimosa yellow silk crepe makes an attractive frock with a short draped sleeve and flat plastron with shirring to drape the torso and lend a little front fullness.

AT LEAST one frankly pretty hat seems to be the aim of most women especially women who wear uniform or factory work clothes all day long. A delightful little hat is made of forward-placed big pink roses on green straw braid bands with pale pink chicken wire mesh veiling.

IT DOESN'T MATTER whether it'll be summer in the old back yard or at the beach, we'll most of us want a play suit. White waffle pique makes a pretty blouse with pleated shorts attached, the blouse trimmed with green rickrack braid for buttons and ruffled collar and cuff trim. The dirndl skirt is of the white pique with scattered multi-colored embroidered flowers.

DOUBLE DUTY clothes are grand for the limited wardrobe. A good model is a black satin dress that can be worn with all sorts of interesting accessories for day or after dark informality and with a separate black net skirt for important evenings.

IF THERE'S ONE THING that may be termed a luxurious economy it is the fur jacket. Snow leopard, lynx and lynx-dyed fox as well as lynx-dyed wolf are favorites with the younger crowd, especially those who live in sunny places. More urban living finds a greater need for the silver fox or sable-dyed squirrel jacket.

Cost-of-Living Index Is Higher No Bonus Change

Ottawa, May 4 (CP) — The Dominion Bureau of Statistics announced today its cost-of-living index advanced from 117.2 on March 1 to 117.6 on April 1, but the gain was not sufficient to cause any adjustment in cost-of-living bonus payments.

Under the Federal wage stabilization policy, cost-of-living bonuses payable in the affected industries are adjusted each quarter, but only if there has been a change of one full percentage point in the index since the last adjustment.

The next revision of the bonus was due on May 15, had there been a change of one percentage point or more in the index for April 1, as compared with the index of last Aug. 15 when the last adjustment was necessary.

The percentage increase in the index since the war began has been 16.7 per cent. Last August it was 17 per cent. At that time the maximum bonus payable became $4.25 a week or 17 per cent of earnings, depending on the salary category of the worker. Employees who had not been receiving bonuses up to August became entitled to bonus payments of 60 cents a week or 2.4 per cent of salary, depending on wage category.

The Bureau of Statistics said the rise in the index at April 1 was due mainly to a further increase in food prices, but fractional gains also were recorded for clothing and miscellaneous items.

The food index mounted from 127.7 on March 1 to 128.7 on April 1, as meats, potatoes, cheese and oranges registered increases. Eggs showed the only appreciable decline.

The fractional rise in clothing, from 120.1 to 120.2, was due to "scattered advances" in women's wear. Miscellaneous rates moved up from 107.5 to 107.7 because of increases in newspaper rates and barbers' prices.

The index rose from 116.9 at Feb. 1 to 117.2 at March 1.

The index measures the influence of changes in retail prices of commodities and services upon the cost of a representative urban wage-earner's family budget.

Labor Congress Outlines Proposals For Collective Bargaining Legislation

Ottawa, May 4. (CP)— The Trades and Labor Congress of Canada today placed before the National War Labor Board detailed proposals for Compulsory Collective Bargaining Legislation.

The proposals were contained in a brief, presented in connection with the Board's inquiry into general labor matters, which outlined the views of the Congress in a number of labor subjects.

Other recommendations of the Congress included:

1.—Payment of the full cost-of-living bonus to all Canadian workers.

2.—Amendment of wage control legislation to allow more liberal interpretation.

3.—Complete change in the personnel of the Quebec Regional War Labor Board and of technical advisers to the National Board.

4.—"An enforceable legal duty" on employers to bargain collectively.

5.—Provision for the determination of the Collective Bargaining unit which might be a craft or trade, all production employees or all employees of several plants owned by the employer.

6.—Machinery for taking a secret vote under impartial auspices to determine representation.

7.—Restriction of Collective Bargaining benefits to bona fide trade unions or genuine employees' organizations.

Disapproves Company Unions.

The Congress said company unions had no place in a plan for collective bargaining.

"The company union is a device for forestalling or undermining genuine trade union organization. . . . It is essentially a parasitic organization enjoying and feeding on the gains of genuine trade unionism and seeking to camouflage its real purposes by imitating trade union organization and techniques".

Dealing with absenteeism the Congress said that few workers absented themselves unnecessarily.

"Poor management and inadequate safety regulations with resultant time lost in recovering from industrial accidents are probably the two major reasons for lost time today", the brief said.

Wants Quicker Action.

The Congress asked that the National War Labor Board take action to speed decisions by regional boards.

"We wish to point out here that a situation exists in the province of Quebec whereby, rightly or wrongly, the workers have lost confidence in the Regional Board of that province, and, in our opinion, the situation is so critical that we strongly recommend a complete change in the personnel of that Board".

Frustration and interference with the employees' right to organize and bargain collectively was weakening morale, enthusiasm and confidence in the government and should not be permitted in a democratic country, the Congress said.

This had been recognized by some of the provinces which had enacted legislations to protect the right of the workers.

"It is our considered opinion that the Dominion Government should not lag behind the provinces on such an important issue, but should at once enact a Federal act guaranteeing the right of employees to organize and bargain collectively through the medium of the chosen representatives of their trade unions," the brief continued.

Essentials Outlined

Essentials of a compulsory collective bargaining bill, the Congress said, should include:

1. Guarantee "in explicit terms" of the freedom of association and self-organization by workers without intimidation or discrimination.

2. Coverage for all employees, manual, technical and professional; except those with power to hire or fire.

3. Application to all employees engaged in any industry, trade or business, including municipalities, school boards and similar public bodies.

New York and Chicago Descend To Cellar of National League Due to Absence of Good Hitting

Chicago's Other Club, the White Sox, Also on Bottom Rung

YANKEES ON TOP

By JUDSON BAILEY

Associated Press Sport Writer

The most interested non-participating observer of the goings-on in the major leagues these days must be Louis Novikoff, of Chicago Cubs, fuming on the front porch of his hacienda at South Gate, California.

The Cubs introduced last year's ball to Chicago for the first time yesterday and 3,908 fans, the biggest crowd of the day, saw a game in which there were 25 hits for a total of 36 bases and 14 runs. But unfortunately from the Chicago standpoint, 15 of the hits, including a home run by Whitey Kurowski, were made by St. Louis Cardinals, who won 11-3.

Of the 10 Chicago hits not a single one was made by an outfielder and it was small solace, as the Bruins stumbled into the cellar alongside New York Giants, that Chicago finally broke a string of 23 consecutive innings.

The mad Russian probably rushed madly to answer the telephone every time it rang last night expecting the operator to say "long distance — Chicago calling."

The call seems bound to come soon. Novikoff was one of eight hitters who averaged .300 or better in the National League last year. He was reported to have been paid $5,500 and to have been offered a boost of $500 this season. He asked for $10,000.

White Sox in Cellar

Chicago's other major league club, the White Sox, also is in the cellar of the American League, but this is causing no disturbance because it was picked to finish about seventh while the sports writers before the season started rated the Cubs third in the senior circuit.

The vacancy filled by the Cubs and the Giants in the National League basement was left by Philadelphia Phillies, who vaulted pretentiously into sixth place by beating Brooklyn Dodgers 3-1 in a twilight game.

Jack Kraus, the rookie southpaw whom the Dodgers sent to the Phillies a few weeks ago, pitched five-hit ball for his second success against Brooklyn.

The Giants were whipped 5-3 by Boston Braves as Jim Tobin pitched six-hit ball and batted in three runs with a pair of singles. Rookie Charley Workman helped out with a two-run homer.

Pirates Outhit

Pittsburgh was outhit by Cincinnati 13-9, but nevertheless beat the Reds 8-3 as rookie Xavier Rescigno worked his way out of continual jams. Vince DiMaggio contributed a home run with one on.

In the American League New York Yankees kept half a step ahead of Cleveland by beating Boston Red Sox 4-3. Spud Chandler allowed only six hits and one earned run for his second victory.

The Indians squeezed out a 2-1 decision over the White Sox in a tight game for Jim Bagby's third triumph. He allowed just five hits and no scoring after the first frame.

Virgil Trucks of Detroit also achieved his third victory without a defeat as the Tigers stopped St. Louis Browns 4-3, but he had to have hitless rescue work for 1 2-3 innings by Dizzy Trout to weather a belated offensive by the Browns.

Rookie Jess Flores pitched a three hitter as Philadelphia Athletics defeated Washington 3-1. In the 32 2-3 innings the little Mexican has worked this season, Flores has yielded 11 hits and three runs. He lost a two-hitter to Boston Red Sox, 1-0, and then hurled 15 2-3 innings against the Senators a week ago, winning in the 16th, 2-1.

Is He Tough?

Yes, it's "Irish Jerry" Monahan, the former masked wrestler, who battles "Big Earl" McCready in the main bout of tonight's wrestling show at the Hume Arena. Monahan claims he was only defeated once in a Belleville ring and promises mayhem rather than defeat at the hands of the former British Empire champion. The preliminaries include Al Dunlop versus Jack Pavlo and Jan Gotch, the popular Dutchman tangling with Jack Wentworth, the champion of Stoney Creek.

Toronto, May 5 — (CP) — The newly-organized All-American Girls' Professional Softball League, operating in Chicago, is playing havoc with some Canadian teams. Outstanding Toronto players have been signed and a scout is touring the prairies.

Latest Toronto girl to sign is Thelma Golden, strike-out queen of Sunnyside pitchers. Bobbie Rosenfeld of the Toronto Globe and Mail says Thelma signed for a sackfull—$100 a week. Gladys Davis and Helen Sandiford of Toronto signed previously.

Western reports say Max Baker, Doris Barr and Millie Warwick of Regina Bombers have taken the jump to the Chicago circuit. Others expected to try out include Helen Nicol, 23-year-old Edmonton pitcher, Mrs. Olive Little, Ethel McCreary, Kay Bennett, Dorothy Hunter, Lucella MacLean and Muriel Caben.

SANDLOT TITLE TO BE DECIDED BY TOURNAMENT

Clubs Will Meet in Toronto August 12th to Start Playoffs

ONTARIO IN ZONES

Toronto, May 5—(CP)—Canada's Sandlot Baseball championship will be decided at a tournament in Toronto starting Aug. 12, it was announced today by Lloyd Douglas, in charge of the National Semi-pro Baseball congress program in Canada.

Douglas added that an organized system of play-offs leading up to the tournament would be held only in Ontario but that baseball teams in other provinces were free to submit entries. 'It is planned to organize playoffs in other provinces in future years.

Ontario has been divided into five districts each of which will have a commissioner to arrange district tournaments at which champions will be declared to participate in the final tournament. Dom Cangiano of North Bay has been named commissioner for Northern Ontario, George (Knotty) Lee of Smith Falls for Eastern Ontario and Charles Good, Sr., of Toronto for Central Ontario. Commissioners have yet to be named for Western Ontario and for the Niagara area which includes Hamilton.

Douglas said the Canadian champions will have the right to play the United States sandlot champions.

Coupled with Douglas' announcement was a statement from President Ray Dumont of the National Baseball Congress, which has its headquarters in Wichita, Kan., announcing closer relationships between the congress and baseball clubs in Ontario, "the Ontario Baseball Association having recently passed a resolution permitting all its teams to enter this new baseball movement."

Toronto Leafs Open at Home On Thursday

By The Associated Press

All the teams in the International League are idle today, travelling to the sites for tomorrow's second openers.

Fans at Toronto will get their first glimpse of the league leading Maple Leafs who compiled six victories against only three losses during a two-week visit in the southern half of the circuit. Syracuse, in third place but beaten more often by the weather than by loop rivals, will furnish the opposition.

Baltimore, winner of yesterday's only game by a 4-1 edge over Buffalo, travels north of the border for a series with Montreal while Buffalo and Jersey City will hold a three-day conference to decide which shall occupy the cellar. Newark goes to Rochester.

Syracuse again was thwarted by the weatherman yesterday, leaving only Baltimore's 12:30 p. m. contest with the Bisons on the schedule.

The early start apparently unnerved the Buffalo squad, which contributed three errors to the Baltimore cause in the eighth frame. Orioles combined the trio of bobbles with a lone hit for all their runs. Floyd Giebell, on the hill for Buffalo, allowed only six hits in the seven and two-thirds frames while his mates clouted Ed Kleiman and Steve Gromek for eight.

Kleiman who won 17 games with Cedar Rapids last season, was removed for a pinch hitter in Baltimore's big inning.

SIX TEAMS WILL FACE BARRIER IN GIRLS' LOOP

All of Teams Will be Composed of Girls From Local Industries

PLAY AT ARMOURIES

Six teams will face the barrier in the Belleville Ladies' Softball League in 1943 and all games will be played on the Armouries lawn, through the kind permission of Lieut.-Col. B. C. Donnan, officer commanding the Argyll Light Infantry. The net proceeds of the league will be given directly to war charities.

The teams finally affiliated in the loop are entirely from local war industries and include: Belleville Sargent, American Optical, Reliance Aircraft, Deacon Shirt, Bristol Aircraft and Stewart Warner-Alemite.

At an executive meeting held last night the league voted a 15-player roster with the option of releasing and signing six extra players before July 31st. The club secretaries must have the names of 15 players in the hands of Secretary Eddie Schrieder 48 hours prior to the opening game, which is scheduled for May 21st.

The top four clubs at the termination of the regular league schedule will participate in the league play-offs for the Frontenac Trophy, emblematic of the ladies' softball championship of Belleville. Players qualifying for the league play-offs must participate in at least two regular league games and no player may be signed after July 31st. The league entrance fee was set at $5.00 and must be paid prior to the next meeting, which is scheduled for next Tuesday.

With President Chas. Barnett in the chair, the team delegates included: Belleville Sargent, Jack Symons; American Optical, Jas. Semark; Reliance Aircraft, H. Kirts; Deacon A.C., Grace Stewart; Bristol Aircraft, J. Davis; Stewart Warner-Alemite, Tommy Colden.

Billie Mills Paces The "Yard" Team In C. N. Roll-Off

Finishing tied for the top spot in the C.N.R., bowling league at the Recreation Alleys, the Yards and Stores battled matters out in a sudden death game last night with the "Yard" quintette winning quite handily by the aggregate score of 3723 to 3515, giving the "Stores" the 194. league championship.

Through the league schedule both teams garnered a total of 75 points to finish in a tie for the league leadership following the completion of the league schedule.

Billie Mills paced the "Yard" team with a hot 785 followed closely by Pointer who rolled 757. Halbert and Cy Young headed the losing Stores' cause with scores of 640 and 632 respectively.

CONSTANTA REPORTED BOMBED

London, May 4 — (CP) — The Rome radio broadcast today a Bucharest dispatch reporting that air raiders had bombed the Rumanian Black Sea port of Constanta, causing some civilian casualties but only slight damage.

Two of the raiders were shot down, claimed the broadcast, which was recorded by Reuters.

There have been no reports from Allied sources of any recent raids on Constanta.

The last reported raid on Rumania was made by Russian planes last Sept. 13, when Bucharest and other cities were bombed.

CASUAL COMMENT by K.J.C.

The young reporter had been told over and over again that his stories were too long-winded and that he must cut to bare essentials. So his next story came out this way:

"J. Smith looked up the shaft at the Palace Hotel this morning to see if the lift was on its way down. It was. Aged 45."

(Remember when—)

A Canadian team won the baseball championship of the world? You'll have to be more than three-score-and-ten if you do—it happened in the 1860's. The champions were the Guelph Maple Leafs and the event was recalled six years ago today on the death in Winnipeg of Harry Steele, 91, who was a member of that championship team. They played such great Amercian teams as the Cincinnati Redlegs.

(It's the weather.)

It's high time the Belleville and District Softball Association executive convened in preparation for the forthcoming softball campaign and on the authority of no less a personage than President H. Chris (he's a proud poppa) Knott the mushballers can start preparing their sights for a quick gathering.

After a year's absence the Point Anne "Cementmen" may be back in the city softball fold. "Ding" Luffman, who was forced to stay out of the game last year as the result of an accident, is reported on the mend and ready to toe the slab for the 1941 intermediate champs. Other members of the two-time Provincial titlists from Ox Point available are Bubby Gaulin, Mike Whalen, Art Whitehead, the veteran Murney Green, "Pee Wee" Hutchings and a junior. Incidentally no doubt Murpey's oldest son will line-up with the Gaulin-led nine to give the league its first father-and-son combination.

(Otherwise it's a question.)

"Spike" Pryke, softball mentor at Reliance Aircraft, is noncommittal regarding the future of the game along the bay bridge road, although we see the Reliance boys are grooming their home diamond which would indicate Tilly Donihee and company will be back in the fold

With 2nd-Lieut. H. P. Holway as sports officer, the Argyll Light Infantry is definitely going to seek affiliation in the league, while rumours have Gerald Barriage, former Corby A.C. manager, seeking another new franchise also.

The teams included on the league roster last year and expected to return are the two Air Force entries, No. 5 I.T.S. and Mountain View, Amy and Navy "Vets", Bristol Aircraft, Stephens-Adamson and Red Townsend's juniors. With Point Anne returning to the fold there's some debate as to what the future holds for the league champion "Vets", however. Actually Belleville has not adequate playing strength for a ten-club league, as there were weak teams in the seven-team set-up of 1942.

(He'll find out.)

When he signed to meet Earl McCready in the main bout of tonight's Queensbury A.C. rasslin' show at the Hume Arena, "Irish Jerry" Monahan had but one question to ask Promoter Frank Tunney.

"If I buy a Victory Bond in Canada does that entitle me to wrestle for the British Empire title?" enquired Monahan. When told it didn't, the "big Irishman" let fly a verbal blast that could be heard all around Maple Leaf Gardens.

"O.K., I'll buy the bond and then beat McCready so badly he'll be ashamed to even talk about an Empire bout and when I do that I want 'Crown-holder' Watson next," bellowed back Monahan.

Of course McCready may have something to say about that tonight after Mister Tunney gets through with his two strong preliminaries he's promised the local wrestling patrons.

(Some costly, words.)

Here is a new McGraw yarn from an Ottawa sport column: "Stories of John McGraw will keep popping up as long as baseball is played. Rarely is there a current baseball incident concerning a big league manager that it doesn't inspire a McGraw story. The broken leg suffered by Boston's Carey Stengel this year, prompts John Carmichael to recall one of the last occasions on which McGraw led the Giants to Chicago. Carmichael relates how McGraw had been accustomed to allow men like Bob O'Farrell and Fred Lindstrom, who lived in or around Chicago, to live at home during New York invasions. On this particular day the Cubs had massacred the Giants and McGraw was in ill humor, not only after the game but as late as the next day when he encountered Lindstrom in the clubhouse. "Where were you last night?" he barked. "You weren't in the hotel at midnight." Fred explained that "Mac" himself had given permission for him to go home, as always, but McGraw flared up and said he'd done no such thing. "You're fined $50," he snapped at Lindstrom and indicated O'Farrell would be visited with a similar assessment. Then it was Fred's turn to burn. "You old so-and-so," he snarled at the boss, "I hope you break a leg." Leaving the park that night McGraw was struck by a cab and his leg broken. He cancelled any fine against O'Farrell but made the 50 bucks stick on Lindstrom because the latter had wished him bad luck."

New York, May 5—(AP)—The new Major League baseball, which will be distributed to the clubs in a few days, is about as lively as the one the Southern Association uses. . .And the Southern League always has insisted on plenty of pep in the pills so there's be plenty of guys with big batting averages to sell at the end of each season .. .Lou Smith is trying to round up 500 bicycles so that race fans can pedal to Rockingham Park from the Lawrence, Mass., station where all the trains stop. . .If he'd install a few mutuel windows at the station so the riders could bet on themselves, the idea might go over.

Confession

When ex-featherweight champ Chalky Wright, who always thought training was getting aboard a train, turned up at the gym yesterday for the first time in seven weeks, Mike Belloise greeted him: "what are you doing here, Chalky? Are you sick." . . ."No," admitted Chalky gravely, "I'm just hungry."

Be your own bridge expert. Make your own decisions. Know when you are correct. Not because you saw it in some book. Not because somebody told you. But because you can prove it.

Take this business about an opening bid of one. When you open the bidding in any deal, you make promises. You say your have more than your average in all the essential items.

The essential items are tricks, high cards, sure tricks. The full requirements for an opening bid of one are (1) five tricks, (2) four high cards, (3) two sure cards. Let's see why.

The only card sure of a trick by itself is an ace. There are four of them in a pack. Each player is entitled to one. More than average in sure tricks would be two aces or their equivalent.

A combination of K Q in the same suit may be considered a sure trick. An A K combination in the same suit may be considered two sure tricks. That takes care of the sure trick department.

In the high card department, there are only aces and kings and queens, of which there are 12 in a pack; an average of three for each player. More than average would be four high cards.

In the trick department, there are 13 that can be taken in each deal. An equal share by each pair would be six. So the pair that has more than six tricks has more than average.

A bid of one must produce seven tricks in a partnership. Only two are expected in partner's hand. So the opening bidder should have not less than five. Because five and two make seven.

You should start with an opening bid of one spade with this hand:

♠Q J 10 6 2
♦K 9 8

You have more than one sure trick (A K of hearts); more than three high cards (an A, two K's, a Q); five tricks (four high cards and a short card in clubs).

Now let somebody give you an argument about an opening bid of one. You can prove whether it is or not. With confidence, too.

"RANDOM HARVEST"

"Random Harvest," adaptation of James Hilton's new novel, brings to the screen an engrossing story of a strange case of suspended memory, which motivates a haunting romance. Teaming Ronald Colman and Greer Garson, in her first picture since "Mrs. Miniver," it is now playing at the Belle Theatre.

Following the Hilton novel closely in its details, it is told on the screen as a "straight line" story, while in the book it was told in "flashbacks."

Colman plays a wealthy Englishman who loses all memory of his past during the first World War. He is sent to an asylum, from which he escapes to be befriended by an actress (Miss Garson), who inspired him to begin life anew. He develops talent as a writer. He and his benefactress fall in love, are married and have a child. Then an accident jolts his memory back to his past, but leaves a blank of his life from the war on. He goes home, takes possession of his businesses and becomes a powerful industrialist. The wife locates him, but knowing of him having lost his memory of her, takes a position as his secretary, maintaining silence as regards their marriage. How she succeeds in winning back his memory and his love provides a haunting and appealing climax.

Colman plays his role with convincing force, and Miss Garson is charming and wears some beautiful gowns. Each makes the most of a difficult role. Mervyn LeRoy directed with deft skill. Clever principals include Susan Peters, Phillip Dorn, Reginald Owen and Una O'Connor.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Whistling in the Dark"

"Whistling in the Dark," based on the famous Broadway stage hit, and presenting the comical Red Skelton of stage and radio fame as M-G-M's new comedy star is the attraction coming next to the Capitol Theatre.

Skelton presents the rapid fire comedy that has made him one of the best known stage figures in America. Ann Rutherford plays his sweetheart and Virginia Grey her love rival. The two girls have a hair-pulling battle over him that is a comedy highlight. Conrad Veidt, who scored in "A Woman's Face," plays the sinister cult leader. "Rags Ragland,' hit of Broadway's stage production of "Panama Hattie," adds to the hilarity.

Also in the cast are Henry O'Neill, Eve Arden, Paul Stanton, Don Douglas, Don Costello, William Tannen, Reed Hadley and Mariska Aldrich.

"Dead Man's Gulch"

The popular western actor's newest Republic picture, "Dead Man's Gulch," will open next at the Capitol theatre as the added attraction. Also in the cast are Lynn Merrick, Bud McTaggart, Emmett Lynn, Jack Rockwell, John Vosper, Clancy Cooper, Al Taylor, and Rex Lease. John English directed the film. Eddy White was the associate producer.

A colored cartoon and the serial "Secret Code" makes up another grand weekend bill.

Also affected by the order are those in any occupation in or directly associated with entertainment, including bowling alleys, pool rooms, film agencies, motion picture companies and theatres. The measure takes in also those following an occupatoin in or directly associated with dyeing or dry cleaning, baths, guide service and shoe shining. Laundries, however, are not affected by the order.

Men engaged in one of the industries or occupations specified in the minister's order, and in an age and marital class designated under mobilization regulations now must apply to his nearest employment and Selective Service officer no later than May 19.

Will Give Special Permits

They will receive special permits entitling them to continue temporarily in their old occupations if no higher priority work is available for them. Otherwise, they will be directed to more essential employment if this appears necessary in the interests of the war effort.

Men unable because of distance to report to their Employment and Selective Service offices will be required to write to them and await further direction.

Coming under the scope of the present order are men in the designated restricted employments who were born in any year from 1917 to 1924, and who have reached the age of 19, whether they are married or single, and every man born from 1902 to 1916 who, on July 15, 1940, was unmarried, divorced or judicially separated, or was then a widower without children, even if such a man has since married.

All Required to Report

The order refers also to a man, who has become a widower since July 15, 1940, and now has no children living, as well as to men who since that date have been divorced or judicially separated. All men in the groups mentioned, regardless of their medical classifications, are required to report.

Married men regardless of the date of their marriage, and single persons maintaining dependents will not, for the present, be required to accept alternative employment involving a chance of residence. However, married men in the listed occupation must register with an employment office if they are in the listed occupations, and may be required to take alternative employment in the districts in which they now are living.

Men discharged from the armed forces after active service in the present war will not for the present be compulsorily directed to alternative employment. They are, nevertheless, expected to register by May 19.

FIRST MAJOR RAID

Railway Yards Bombed

The R.A.F. in daylight yesterday also bombed the electric power station at the Hague, Netherlands, and in the evening bombed the railway yards at Abbeville, France.

Last night R.A.F. night fighter planes went up in coveys to fight off German raiders who dropped incendiary bombs on an East Anglian town. First reports said there were no casualties.

The 8th U. S. Air Force raid on Antwerp, its second on the Belgian port which is the home of the Erla airplane repair works and the 2nd U. S. bomber raid on Europe this month, was notable in that for the first time full American fighter squadrons flew with their own command along with the bombers.

R.A.F., R.C.A.F. and other Allied fighters accompanied the bombers. Three escorting planes failed to return, but Air Force headquarters announced not a single bomber was lost. Several enemy fighter planes were reported shot down. All Canadian-manned aircraft got back safely.

The Berlin radio, announcing the raid before it was made known in England, said 45 heavy bombers came out of the sun at more than 24,000 feet, and claimed one bomber and one fighter plane were shot down.

Nazis Caught Napping

In yesterday's Antwerp raid the German fighter forces, apparently strung thin about northwestern Europe, obviously were caught napping, for there was little interception.

The R.A.F. dropped nearly 10,000 tons of bombs on German industrial cities in 10 major night raids during April, the air ministry news service said, with more than 1,000 tons of bombs released in each of the three biggest raids.

The Italian naval base at Spezia got 800 tons of explosives in each of two raids.

In the month's operations the home-based R. A. F. lost 336 aircraft, including 264 bombers, over Europe. It destroyed 74 Axis planes, the news service said.

30 Acres Laid Waste

Some 30 acres of Stuttgart's factory area were laid waste the night of April 14, and munitions and railway plants in Duisburg were damaged heavily in raids on April 8 and 9, reconnaissance photographs showed.

Other cities which felt the might of the R.A.F. during the month included Berlin, Stettin, Rostock, Mannheim and Kiel.

Other cities in the Ruhr and on the fringes of the big industrial centres also were targets as bombers and fighters collaborated almost every day or night to attack shipping, trains, and river and canal traffic.

NAZI AIR FORCE

The city is an important railway and road junction which connects Novorossiisk with Krasnodar and with the Kuban shore of the Kerch strait.

The Russian army newspaper Red Star said that big air battles now are being waged over the enemy's positions, signifying that the initiative remains with the Russians who have carried the battle into the enemy camp.

(The German radio asserted that the Nazi air force supporting "heavy defence struggles waged by the army on the eastern flank of the Kuban bridgehead" had destroyed several Soviet landing vessels in the waters of Temryuk.

(Temryuk is on one of the many bays that cut up the swampy Taman Peninsula in the Sea of Azov. At last reports the Germans still held Temryuk and it appeared that the Russians might have attempted to land in the rear and encircle the garrison.

(The Germans also asserted that the Russians lost 75 planes in fighting Monday and Tuesday.)

SAYS 34 FAMILIES EVICTED IN PAST TWO WEEKS

Toronto, May 5 (CP)—Ald. Stewart Smith told the Welfare Committee yesterday that there were 34 cases of families being evicted from their homes in court during the past two weeks and that "in all probability the number of evictions will have passed the 1,000 mark by the end of the year, unless more homes are provided".

"The evictions are caused mostly by people coming in from outside and buying Toronto homes", Ald. Smith said.

Lt.-Gen. Andrews Killed in Crash

London, May 5. (CP)—Lt.-Gen. Frank M. Andrews, United States commander in the European theatre of war, and Methodist Bishop Adam Wright Leonard of Washington, representing 31 American Protestant denominations in an inspection tour of United States troops abroad, were killed Monday in Iceland in the crash of an Allied plane which was reported to have had other high-ranking U.S. army officials abroad.

Andrews' headquarters here said in an official announcement early today that "full information concerning the accident is not yet available" but disclosed that the plane had fallen in "an isolated locality in Iceland".

Andrews was the eighth, and highest-ranking, United States army general officer to be lost since the start of the war.

Fifty-nine years old, he had been an advocate for years of a big army air force and a champion of heavy four-engined bombers. He was one of the few officers of his age and rank to hold an active flying licence.

Bishop Leonard had just completed a tour of American troop centres in Great Britain and Northern Ireland and was scheduled to visit other American concentrations in North Africa and the Middle East.

PASSING DREAM

CHAPTER 7

The small tea room was warm and cozy. Coming in, Temple felt an unexpected spurt of happiness because she was young and alive, because she was warm after the cold, because she was having hot tea with Abby and because she believed she would see Jud again and that the heart would still be in it the second time.

The old doors had closed. New doors were opening. Let the old remain closed. Let the new open wide.

They were dancing in the ballroom of the Shoreham, Temple wearing a white dinner dress of classic simplicity with Jud's orchids tremulous on her shoulder. And while her eyes were excited at the color and movement and music, their deeper warmth was reserved for him. She was thinking that this was the third time she had seen him in the month they had known each other and that the sound of his voice after an interminable silence of two weeks had been, for the first time since she had come to Washington, more welcome than a letter from home.

She had had good cause to remember Paula's calling him a young man of good taste. For obviously he found cheap entertainment distasteful since, each time she had been with him, they had dined with an extravagance which took her back to her few visits with Ron and Fran.

Jud drove what had once been an expensive roadster and still bore itself with some dignity when it was not, seemingly, about to give up the ghost. She had wondered why he had not made some humorous remark about his car rather than swearing at it under his breath.

When they returned to their table he said, "I wasn't going to see you again, Temple." He spoke with good humor, almost teasingly. "Then why did you?" She almost said, "I didn't think you were either."

"Don't you know?"

"No, I don't."

"I wasn't going to see you again because you're disturbing and I did see you again because you're disturbing."

Leaning forward, he covered her hand with his. It was a long-fingered, sensitive hand over another of its kind. "Oh, hell, darling, why can't we be two nice young people out to have a good time until my time comes? You're the darndest girl. I'm not particularly happy with you and I'm not particularly happy without you. You're . . . You're not the kind of a girl I wanted to be in love with when I fell in love again."

Temple felt as though he had struck her before all these people and that they had turned to see her humiliation. No one had ever been harsh with her or verbally hurtful. For a blinding second she saw herself leaving him, hurrying to the dressing-room to get her wrap and going home in high indignation. But after a second the blindness was gone and her vision returned and she was seeing his fine face, the thick black hair with the unruly curl in it and the crooked mouth that was so charming.

"What—what sort of girl did you want to be in love with?"

He said quickly, "The boss' daughter, of course. Since I can't be the boss' son, I'd like to marry the boss' daughter, my boss' daughter, yours, anybody's."

He drew his hand away from hers and sat up straight. Then he said gently, "Temple, my father put a bullet through his very excellent brain because he was worth more dead than alive. All through the thirties he worked sixteen hours a day to resurrect a business that had died in 1929. His insurance was worth more than he because it would see his only son through college and give his wife a genteel widowhood."

Judson shrugged. His face was blank. "That's all. But, you see, I come naturally by a champagne taste with a beer income and liking my summers in Maine and my winters in the south. Some people would say I was no good, but they will have to admit that people who had lived on the mountains get sick when they try to live in the valley. I was raised to be something I can't be now. Who's to blame?" He looked at her tenderly, ardently. "But when I look at you, you look so beautiful and sweet and alive that my mercenary ideas trip away one by one."

Temple felt tears coming into her eyes. It would be dreadful if she cried. No one who knew her would believe that she could cry because a boy's face and a boy's voice had stirred her so deeply. Weep for pity and weep for love that you know nothing about except that it warms you and colors your alien world? You call it love for want of a better name though there are hundreds of true names for it.

"So now I know why. . . You've explained yourself." Now she knew why he was angry at his old car and why he sent her orchids and ordered champagne. They were not especially for her, but to keep Jud from feeling sorry for himself, to fool himself into believing that he could still live on the grand scale.

She said, "I have a great deal less than I used to have, too."

"And you hate it as much as I do. You fight it every minute."

"Only my lost opportunities."

"You've sweetened me," she thought. "You've sweetened me with your frankness that hurts. But I don't get up in the morning mad at everything as I did before I knew you. You've changed everything for me, Jud."

He grinned. "I hate the Pollyanna stuff. Don't try it on me. You're sweet, Temple. You're too much. There's the music again. Let us dance."

She wanted to stay there forever dancing with him, feeling the music pour over them and his face occasionally brushed hers. It was as though suddenly this was the essence of living and this was enough. For her, in love for the first time, there was no war coming momentarily closer, no barrier they could not surmount and no end to her love. This was everything and this was enough. Love wasn't a part of your life. It was all of it.

Jud said, "The heart is still in it, Temple. Tell me it is."

"Yes, it is, Jud."

When she looked up and smiled, he said, "Haven't you had enough of this? If I can make my old wagon start, we'll have a look at the Potomac."

The cold was damp and penetrating. They sat, huddled in the old car watching a lighted ship move slowly down the river.

Jud said, "And almost anywhere else on earth that ship would be marked for death. I've been abroad several times. I saw Paris and London and Vienna and Budapest festivals of light and good living." Turning to her, he put his arms around her and kissed her. "You're wonderful. I'm crazy about you, darling. But God knows where it will take us and what it will get us and what will happen to us. Why couldn't we have been in love in normal times?"

"How long have we? How long before you go?"

"I don't know. Let's not talk about it now."

"Not now. But we'll have to talk about it."

"I was wrong. Being with you does make me happy. Funny, the way I feel now I could lick Hitler with one hand while holding you with the other."

"I don't want to get away, Jud."

"Everything looks so rosy now. Now there's no cruelty and suffering and poverty and that thing which to me is worse than real poverty: not actually being poor but scared as hell you might be. That's all gone now, as children say. A girl's warmth and sweetness and love. If only that were all that a man needed."

When Judson stopped the car before her house, he said, "I'll have to kiss you good-night here, darling. In the hall inside I always expect the horribly efficient hostess to poke out her head and remind me that she runs a respectable house." He kissed her again, long and tenderly.

Temple said, "I love you, Jud, and tonight I never felt more respectable in my life."

He smiled. "We're in it now. We'll stick together. I'll come by for you tomorrow afternoon."

She felt as though she were floating up the steps. But she was not thinking beyond the coming day. Later she wondered why she did not think of numbers being called and battle lines extending from older to newer shores.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop yawned some yawns in back of his paper, saying, I wouldn't be surprised if I went to bed early tonight, but I'll be more than surprised if I have the strength of mind to get up in the morning when my alarm goes off instead of dawdling in bed for my usual wasted half hour.

Now that's a coincidence, I mean P. Willis Hinkle just had some very good advice in his collum on that very subject, ma said. He claimed the only way to break yourself and not on public opinion and outside influences. For instance if you want to start the habit of springing out of bed like a proverbial lark, P. Willis Hinkle says the thing to do is to tell yourself in actual incriminating words that you ought to be ashamed of yourself for lying there in such an exhibition of inexcusible sluggishness.

So why don't you try it, William? ma said.

I will, pop said. I'll Hinkle and heckle myself out of that bed on the dot of the alarm clock if it's the last thing I do. I'll say to myself, Stir those stupid stumps, you one-eyed slug, you spineless jellyfish on the backward banks of the Dead Sea. Rise and shine, you oafish oyster, you mooning mollusk. Why, you slithering sloth, you'd of put on our pants and torn off your torpor 5 minutes ago if you had half the intelligence of an underpriveleged sponge. That ought to get me up, he said, and ma said, I should hope so for land sakes.

But on the other hand I'd probably get to the office bright and early with such an inferiority complex that I'd muddle everything I handled, pop said. I think I'll just put my faith in a miracle as usual, he sai, and ma said, Oh, sleep your head off, some people are naturally incorrigible.

PET RABBITS STOLEN ON MEATLESS TUESDAY

London, Ont., May 5 — (CP) — Jimmy and Michael Quirk hope that it's only a coincidence that their two pet white rabbits were stolen yesterday — meatless Tuesday. The thief took the hutch also, and the small owners fear the worst.

Krug Testifies At Detroit Trial

Detroit, May 5—(AP)—Abandoning a previous refusal to testify, Hans Peter Krug, Nazi flier who is a war prisoner in Canada, told a Federal Court jury today that after escaping from a Bowmanville, Ont., camp in April, 1942, he met Theodore Donas and "told him I came from Canada and was trying to get back to Germany."

Krug was a witness in the trial of Donay, Detroit importer, on a charge of misprision of treason.

The flier, who was recaptured in San Antonio, Tex., said he was introduced to Donay by Max Stephan, former Detroit restaurant proprietor who was convicted of treason and sentenced to death for aiding Krug's flight.

Describes Visit

Describing a visit to Donay's store, Krug said today: "Stephan told Donay, 'This is my friend.' I introduced myself. I said, 'I am Lieut. Peter Krug.' Donay appeared to be astonished and we had a conversation. I told him I came from Canada and was trying to get back to Germany."

The government charges Donay knew Stephan aided Krug and failed to notify federal authorities. Yesterday Krug refused to testify.

Krug, in a drama-packed 10 minutes at the opening of the misprison of treason trial of Theodre Donay, clenched his hands behind his back, declined to take an oath, demanded a flat "Yes or No" answer from Judge Frank A. Picard on whether he would be helping the defence, and when this was not forthcoming, said grimly:

"I refuse to testify."

Ten feet away from the nattily-attired German officer sat Donay, the first man to be tried in the United States on a charge of misprision of treason, a law written in 1790.

Speaks of Stephan Trial

Speaking haltingly, but in clear English, Krug, surrounded by guards who brought him from Bowmanville, Ont., prison camp, protested that "the last time I was here in the Stephan trial I wanted to convince the jury it was in favor of him."

Judge Picard, talking softly to the youth brought across the border as the state's star witness, urged him to take the stand and tell the truth.

Three times Krug asked Defence Attorneys Nicholas Salowich and James E. McCabe if he would help them but Donay's counsel sat quietly.

Ordered From Courtroom

With Krug's final "I refuse," Judge Picard ordered him removed from the courtroom.

It was Krug's flight from Bowmanville in April, 1942, that involved both Stephan and Donay. Stephan was convicted of harboring Krug, while Donay, a Detroit exporter, is charged with giving the young Nazi $20. Krug later was recaptured.

In his opening argument to the jury, United States Attorney John C. Lehr said that the misprision of treason charges against Donay hinged on four points, that Donay owed allegiance to the United States, that he had knowledge of treason when Stephan brought Krug to him, that he had concealed the fact and that he had failed to disclose the information to the proper authorities.

Eating Places Offer Tasty Substitutes On Meatless Tuesday

Meatless Tuesdays in public eating houses went into effect with local restaurants well prepared to deal with the situation.

Eating house operators presented tempting vegetable plates in place of beef and pork while other features were fowl and fish, the latter being accepted by many as a spendid substitute for meat in these wartime rationing days.

Hotel and cafe customers smiled when informed it was "meatless Tuesday" and took on the task of ordering from the list of suggested substitutes realizing it was just part of the war effort.

The temporary change doesn't exactly mean much trouble for restaurant operators, who were prepared to meet the problem and still satisfy their customers.

WALL ST.

By VICTOR EUBANK
Associated Press Financial Writer

New York, May 5 — (AP) — Rail stocks drew support in the stock market today although many leaders in other divisions stumbled under the weight of profit cashing.

Moderately fast at the opening, the pace of dealings slowed as the list wavered in the forenoon, but picked up with the flurry in rails. Sizable blocks of low and moderately priced issues, ranging to 10,000 shares, showed indecisive net changes.

Buying among the transports and air line equities, netted them fractions to around a point toward the fourth hour.

International news bolstered sentiment, but brokers noted a tendency to await developments after Monday's steep climb and Tuesday's lesser gains in which pivotal carriers had failed to share.

Rail bonds tended a bit higher and commodity prices were steady.

Among Canadian stocks, Dome Mines, Canadian Pacific and Distillers Seagram lost fractions while Hiram Walker gained 1-8. Lake Shore was unchanged.

Favors Assisted Mass Immigration Of British People by Millions To Canada Once War Is Over

By C. R. BLACKBURN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, May 5—(AP)—Assisted mass immigration of British settlers to Canada immediately the war is over was advocated here today by Garfield Weston, 45-year-old Canadian-born member of the British House of Commons.

In an interview with The Canadian Press, Mr. Weston said Canada had so far failed to impress upon British people the opportunities here for them to establish successful and happy homes.

He said Britain and Canada should begin at once to plan "with care and thoroughness" to promote the transfer of millions of British people to Canada, and for the integration of British and Canadian business interests.

Went Overseas in First Great War

Son of the founder and since 1925 head of a Toronto biscuit manufacturing firm, Weston conceived the idea of establishing the biscuit business n England when he was overseas with the Canadian Signallers in the First Great War.

Ten years ago he began to make that dream come true with such effect that he now is chairman of the board of a leading British food making group, and member of parliament for Macclesfield, which elected him by acclamation in 1939.

One day in April, 1940, 16 Spitfires were shot down in the defence of Britain. Weston contributed $445,000 to replace them and thus started a fund that has grown to many millions.

For several weeks he has been in Ottawa taking over his controlling interest in the E. B. Eddy Co. which he bought from Viscount Bennett.

"Do you think Canada is being well interpreted to the British people by Canadians overseas?" he was asked.

"If you mean by the service personnel, I would say they are doing an excellent job," he replied. "But they are there for another purpose, and have other things to do.

Must Advertise Canada

"We must do the job ourselves of advertising to the British people the opportunities there are for them to establish happy homes in Canada."

"I am definitely for an assisted immigration plan," he said. "Almost anything we could do to get several million English, Scotch and Irish settlers into Canada would be worthwhile, even if we had to support them the first year."

With Canada now experienced in raising and spending great sums for the war effort, the cost of an immigration scheme would be "a mere bagatelle," said Mr. Weston.

"We complain about high taxes in Canada. The only way to cut them down is to double the population."

RCAF Draft Arrives Overseas

(By LOUIS V. HUNTER)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, May 5 (CP Cable.)—Arrival in Britain of a draft of reinforcements for the R.C.A.F. overseas was disclosed today.

The airmen, representing nearly every corner of Canada, included pilots, observers, navigators, bomb-aimers, gunners, wireless-air gunners and radio mechanics.

As the air crews piled out of their ships they were unanimous in naming Berlin as the place they would like to attack first when they are posted to operational duties.

FO. A. Aylsworth, Napanee, Ont., seemed to be the most anxious "to beat Hitler in a hurry and get back home". That was because two days before he sailed from an Eastern Canadian port he learned his wife had given birth to a baby at Prince Rupert, B.C.

PO. Bill Hobson, Kelowna, B.C., is making his second trip to Britain with the R.C.A.F. The first time he came as an accountant but he obtained a transfer to air crew so he could 'hit Jerry the hard way".

Three former newspapermen were among the party, FO. Bill Dumsday of Toronto, Press Relations Officer and former Canadian Press Man, PO. B. B. Thomson of Toronto and PO. H. Steirman of Montreal.

Former sportsmen included Reg Porterfield of Mitchell, Ont., who played with the Stratford Midgets in 1930-31 and Wilbert Lavery of Listowel, Ont., a hockey player well-known on the Kirkland Lake tennis courts.

Crews of Vessels Refuse to Ship Want More Money

Montreal, May 5—(CP)—Crewmen of four ocean-going vessels operated by various shipping companies for the Canadian Government have refused to go to sea because of dissatisfaction over war bonuses and overtime rates, officials of the Canadian seamen's Union reported here today.

Harry Davis, Union Secretary, said the men objected because overtime rates being paid by the shipping companies were lower than those set by the wartime seamen's pool, the government-operated agency which pays seamen while they are awaiting a berth on a ship. He declined to identify the companies.

He said they were dissatisfied with the war bonus because the companies were offering youths under 21 years of age only one-half the amount set by the pool. Seamen over 21 get the full bonus.

Mr. Davis said he had advised Arthur Randles, Director of merchant seamen at Ottawa, of the dispute and had suggested that in an effort to get the ships moving the "pool" rates be paid pending a decision from the National War Labor Board on a brief being submitted to a board meeting at present being held in Ottawa.

He said he told Mr. Randles there was "no one in Montreal willing to

Next Breakfast For These Italians In Prison Camp

Southwest of Mateur, Tunisia, May 2 — (Delayed) — (AP) — A number of Italian officers were enjoying breakfast today in the line of the American-French advance toward Bizerte on the Mediterranean flank. They were approached by a group of Goumiers, native Moroccan mountain troops, who calmly asked the Italians if they wished to buy some eggs.

The Italians roughly ordered the natives away, whereupon the Goumiers spread open their djellabas — brown, black and yellow striped garments which look like beach robes. The Italian officers found themselves looking into a row of tommy guns.

Their next breakfast will be in an Allied prison camp.

The capture occurred in the course of a steady Allied advance.

Hainan Island, Haiphong Raided By U.S. Bombers

With the U.S. Army Air Force in China, May 4 (Delayed)—(AP) —The heaviest American bombing onslaught from a Chinese base struck today against Japanese-occupied Hainan Island in the south China Sea and the lock area of Haiphong, French Indo-China.

The raid on Hainan was made by bombers recently sent from the United States to augment Maj.-Gen. Claire W. Chennault's bombers and fighters.

Both Hainan and Haiphong are major centres on sea and air routes from Japan to the south Pacific.

Kiska 9 Times Raided By Americans Monday

Washington, May 5. (AP)— The Navy Department reported today that American medium and heavy bombers and fighters raided Japanese installations on Kiska nine times Monday.

Fires were started in the enemy camp, hits were observed in other areas which the communique did not describe and "heavy smoke was seen at North Head", a harbor defence position, the Navy Department said.

Increased Wages, Living Bonuses Authorized by War Labor Boards Raise Payrolls by $79,237,104 Year

(By JACK WILLIAMS)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, May 5. (CP)—Increased wage rates and cost-of-living bonuses authorized by the National and Regional War Labor boards have resulted in payroll disbursements estimated at $79,237,104 a year, D. G. Pyle, secretary of the National War Labor Board, said at the opening of a general inquiry by the Board, into labor relations in Canada.

Mr. Pyle, at the opening of the first general hearing of the Board's investigation, submitted a statistical outline of the activities of War Labor Boards.

Mr. Justice C. P. McTague of Toronto, chairman of the National Board, presided at the hearing which was attended by about 100 representatives of labor and management organizations.

Mr. Pyle said that to Feb. 28, 1943, a total of 21,451 applications were considered by the various War Labor Boards, affecting 1,567,053 employees. The Boards granted 89 per cent of the applications in full or in part.

Of the applications, 82 per cent. were submitted by employers, six per cent by employees and 11 per cent jointly. More than 77 per cent of the applications, covering 51 per cent of the employees, were direct requests for increased remuneration through cost-of-living bonus or increases in basic wage rates.

Those concerning cost-of-living bonus were 10 per cent of the total and those for basic increases 66 per cent.

Other applications concerned working conditions and the establishment of new positions.

H. F. Greenway of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics outlined to the Board the Bureau's method of determining the cost-of-living index on which cost-of-living bonus payments is based.

The purpose of the index was to follow monthly changes in the cost of a standard family budget. The index was based on information gathered from 2,000 Canadian retailers. Each month these merchants were asked to report any changes in the price of specific articles. Information on quality changes were also taken into consideration.

Food accounted for 35 per cent of the total budget, said Mr. Greenway.

Criticism of the index was frequently based on a misapprehension that the budget was entirely based on food costs. Food prices shown by the index were up 30 per cent. Such items as bread, which had shown practically no war increase, and milk, which had decreased in most centres, had a marked effect in keeping the food index down. One-quarter of the food items shown had gone up more than 50 per cent.

7 Airmen Rescued From Greenland; Saga of Dauntless Effort and Courage

By WILLIAM F. FRYE
Associated Press Staff Writer

Washington, May 5 — (AP)—The grim story of the rescue of seven airmen from the Greenland ice cap after five months of persistent attempts in which five men died was told last night by the United States War Department.

After the failure of various attempts to bring the men out, including use of motor sleds, Col. Bernt Balchen, noted flier and Arctic explorer and hero of two previous rescues on the ice cap, succeeded in landing a Navy flying boat and taking off on three different occasions —not on water, but on snow.

Three of the rescue airmen, accompanied by Gen. H. H. Arnold, Air Forces Commander, visited President Roosevelt Monday — Capt. Armand L. Monteverde, Anaheim, Calif., Lieut. Harry E. Spencer, Dallas, Tex., and Staff Sgt. Don T. Tetley, Fort Sam Houston, Tex.

Monteverde was pilot and Spencer co-pilot of a heavy bomber which was being ferried to Great Britain but was diverted last Nov. 9 to search for another plane that was reported overdue.

Plane Never Found

The other plane never was found and while they were engaged in the unsuccessful search, their own plane crashed near the west coast of Greenland.

The plane broke in two, and the radio was wrecked. Intense cold and high wind kept the men huddled in the tail section for 10 days but, despite the cold, Cpl. Loren H. Howart, La Crosse, Wis., got the radio repaired and the stranded men established communication with would-be rescuers, who now included the United States Army, the Navy and the Coast Guard.

On the 15th day, Balchen flew over and dropped supplies. At about the same time Tetley and Lieut. Max H. Demorest, Flint, Mich., set out with two motor sleds from a small weather station not many miles from the crash. They finally reached the scene on foot, went back for the sleds, and then Demorest disappeared with his sled into a crevasse less than 100 yards from the plane. All rescue attempts failed.

Lands near Wreck

Meanwhile, Lieut. John A. Pritchard, Burbank, Calif., a Coastguard flier, landed a Grumman plane near the wreck and then flew back to the cutter Northland, taking with him Sgt. Alexander F. Tucciarone, New York, and Staff Sgt. Lloyd Pritchard, Howart and Radioman to the wreck during the attempt to rescue Demorest, but was ordered to take off immediately because fog was closing in. His plane crashed in the takeoff, killing all aboard — Pritchard, Howarth and radioman Benjamin A. Bottoms, Coastguard, Salem, Mass.

The feet of Lieut. William F. O'Hara, Scranton, Pa., had frozen and were gangrenous so Monteverde put him on a sled and sent him off —Tetley driving the sled and accompanied by Spencer and Pte. Clarence Wedel, Canton, Kas.

Wedel Falls Into Crevasse

A mile and a half from the wreck, Wedel dropped into a bottomless crevasse and was lost. Four miles farther on, the sled broke down, and the survivors were stranded in two camps. Foul weather and the all but impassable terrain frustrated all attempts to reach them, and they were kept alive by supplies flown in and dropped by the Air Transport Command when the weather permitted.

In February, Balchen succeeded in landing the Navy flying boat beside the sled camp and rescuing all the men there, including O'Hara, who lost both feet. But bad weather prevented a return trip by Balchen until early in April, when he made a second trip, carrying a dog team and several men experienced in Arctic work. These succeeded in bringing Monteverde and the others from the plane to the sled camp, and on April 6 — Balchen landed his PBY in the snow a third time and flew out with all survivors, including Technical Sgt. Alfred C. Best, Waco. Tex.

Official of WPBT Discusses Problems Facing Merchants As Result of War

Picton, May 4—The importance of retailers in the war effort was stressed by John Devine of the Management Service, Wartime Prices and Trade Board, when speaking at a meeting of Prince Edward County Chamber of Commerce here. The speaker dealt with the work and problems of the Board and the trends in merchandising that are now associated with war.

Mr. Devine warned against inflation and warned that though there might be shortages at present they are bound to increase. He believed conditions would test the resourcefulness of the retailer. The foundation of curbing inflation lies in price control.

There are acute shortages today, which may be relieved to some degree, and still some other lines where shortages may be aggravated. Another angle is the constant threat of shortages in hitherto unaffected commodities, so altogether, short supply has become a major problem, and far reaching in effect on the future conduct of business, said Mr. Devine.

"We should explore every avenue of control in operation related to expense and merchandising," the speaker stated. He urged consideration of shorter hours, a reduction in cost of delivery service, the possibility of self-service, which he believed to be popular, the reduction of credit.

Mr. Devine warned against elimination of advertising in an effort to reduce expenses. "Advertising is sometimes considered a good spot to cut expense. I would be careful about that. There never was a time when the identity of the retailer was more important. Note the large contributors to newspaper and magazine advertising. Some are actually out of the civilian market, but continue to keep their name before the public. We would cut out certain silly subscriber and promoter expenditures we have all made in the past, being noted as the prize patron of every type of racket that comes to town."

The value of the retailer was stressed by the speaker who stated that their attitude, conduct and guidance play an important part in setting and maintaining a high morale among the civilian population, as the stores are still the meeting places of the public.

REDS HAMMER AT APPROACHES TO NOVOROSSISK

BRITISH 1ST ARMY OPENS DOOR TO TUNIS PLAIN

Army Drives Thru Kuban Delta Bulge Toward Sea Port

Massive Artillery Barrages Paved Way For New Thrusts; Many Nazis Killed

KRYMSKAYA CAPTURED

By EDDIE GILMORE
(Associated Press Staff Writer.)

Moscow, May 6 (AP)—The Red Army, hammering today at the northeast approaches to Novorossisk, has taken a dozen more villages in the area in addition to Krymskaya and nine other towns which the Soviets announced they captured yesterday in smashing through the Kuban Delta bulge toward the Black Sea port.

One of the villages is about nine miles northeast of Novorossisk in the hilly marsh country through which the Soviet troops are sweeping the Germans toward the sea in a drive gaining daily momentum.

Massive artillery barrages paved the way for new thrusts and mowed down hundreds of German and Rumanian soldiers in the front lines and in deeply-fortified positions.

Soviet bombing planes sprayed the Axis troops with bombs and cannon fire as they tried to cling to their defence points against the mounting pressure. Bomber and fighter planes also continued to pound the German-held railways behind the front lines. Prisoners poured back to the Soviet rear.

The loss of 7,000 dead and of numerous men captured in the last few days has weakened the Axis forces but their strength probably remains far from crushed. For weeks Hitler has been bringing up tanks and munitions, possibly in preparation for a spring offensive in the Kuban.

Major Gains Achieved

Two major gains were achieved by the capture of Krymskaya, 17 miles northeast of the former Russian naval base.

It poised the Red Army in a position menacing the city and it cut the German-held railway between Novorossisk and Protoka, which is 36 miles northwest of the port. At Protoka the railway connects with a highway that leads westward to the Kerch Straits, across which lies the Crimean peninsula. Protoka also is a junction for a railway that runs northward to the Sea of Azov.

If the Red Army is able to drive a short distance from Krymaskaya to Verkhny-Bakaansky, they will cut the highway from Novorossisk to another seaport town, Anapa, 29 miles northwestward on the Black Sea coast, just below the Aman peninsula.

Taken in Flank Movement

Krymskaya, once a city of 25,000, was taken in a flanking movement, the Russians said.

It was disclosed here that the "Paris commune" flags of the Soviet Black Sea fleet, and other powerful naval units are in the Black Sea awaiting an opportunity to pounce upon any Nazi attempt to evacuate troops to the Crimea by sea.

Red Star, the Soviet army newspaper, said the shelling by heavy artillery made the Kuban horizon appear to be afire.

The roads in the Caucasus leading up to the front were jammed with trucks, tanks and troops moving westward to throw the Germans into the sea.

United Church Leader On Visit to Britain

London, May 6 —(CP)— Rt. Rev. J. R. P. Sclater, Moderator of the United Church of Canada, arrived in London and completed plans to attend religious gatherings and visit the Canadian forces and their chaplains.

Dr. Sclater said his main purpose of the trip is to attend the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland in Edinburgh May 18, when he will make at least three speeches.

Today he will attend the English Presbyterian Assembly at Liverpool as commissioner for the United Church of Canada.

Next week he plans to meet leading Methodists and other figures of church life in Britain at a meeting of the Congregational Union.

CONNALLY BILL PASSES SENATE

Legalizes Seizure of Striking Plants and Provides Penalties

Washington, May 6 — (AP) — The controversial Connally Bill which would give United States Congress' official blessing of government seizure of strike-crippled war industries and mines moved to an uncertain destiny in the House today.

It passed the Senate, 63 to 16, late yesterday after three days debate, during which its author, Senator Tom Connally (Dem.-Texas), beat back all efforts to return it to committee for further study.

In its final form, the bill not only legalizes the seizure of struck plants by the government, but also provides stiff criminal penalties for instigating strikes in them once they are placed under government operation.

Further, on the insistence of Republican members, the measure authorizes the war labor board, which was set up under an executive order, to enter and settle labor disputes. However, it would not necessarily be bound by the Little Steel Formula, which permits wage increases of not more than 15 per cent over the Jan. 1, 1941, levels to match increasing living costs. The board's decisions would be subject to court review only on questions of law.

Japan Preparing To Make Move

Chungking, May 6 — (AP) — Japan is preparing "to make an important move" and China is the most probable objective, the spokesman of the Chinese Army told his press conference today.

"The enemy most likely will try to destroy China's resistance by mopping up operations in one area after another," the spokesman said.

He said that the renewed Japanese offensive in the Taiheng mountain area of Central China, on the Honan-Shansi border, indicated determination to wipe out the Chinese forces there. If that is done the Japanese are likely to turn their attention to the Chungtiao Mountains in Shansi and then strike against the unoccupied areas in Honan, he said.

U.S. Army Develops Portable Gas Lines To Units in Field

Washington, May 6 (AP)—The United States army has developed portable pipelines to carry gasoline supplies to motorized units in the field, the office of War Information said today.

The new pipeline comes in self-contained half-mile units, and can be moved by cargo trucks and used independently of any other units.

SHEEP ON FAIRWAYS

Seaforth, Ont., May 6 (CP)—The Seaforth Golf Club, with an eye to Wartime Economy, has decided to use sheep this year to keep the fairways well clipped.

New Anti-Aircraft Artillery Called 'Gigantic' by Berlin Radio

New York, May 6 — (AP) — The Berlin radio gave the German people today a description of Berlin's new anti-aircraft artillery towers.

In a broadcast recorded by The Associated Press, a Nazi military correspondent was quoted as calling the towers "gigantic" and saying that each one contained as much ferro-concrete as 15 kilometres — about 10 miles — of the west wall along the German-French border.

"This scarrely believable amount," the broadcast said, "is explained by the immense thickness of the walls, and the strength of the foundation of the gun and of the reilling of bombproof rooms.

The broadrast said that apart from housing a crew of some 200 men, shelter could be provided for many civilians.

"There is even a room for childbirth," it added.

The broadcast went on:—

"Even bombs of the heaviest calibre cannot do any harm to these towers. These towers have twin guns. New calibres and new kinds of ammunition were developed which make defence against high and low flying enemies possible."

COMPREHENSIVE CODE FOR LABOR IS RECOMMENDED

Canadian Chamber Of Commerce Presents Brief to National War Labor Board

3 RESULTS WANTED

Ottawa, May 6. (CP)—The Canadian Chamber of Commerce today recommended to the National War Labor Board the formulation of "a comprehensive labor code which would make plain the intention to avoid disputes and provide the machinery to deal effectively with them before they reach the strike stage".

The Chamber's proposal was made in a brief prepared for presentation to the Board on the third day of its general investigation in labor relations in Canada. The brief also suggested the organization of a National Council of Labor Relations to consolidate existing committees.

The chamber warned that government intervention under war conditions in labor matters which in peacetime were within provincial jurisdiction left serious gaps and more serious confusion would result at the end of the war unless the changeover was planned in advance.

The Chamber said it looked for three constructive results from the broad inquiry the Board was conducting:

1.—"A clear enunciation of policy in a single code which can be easily understood and enforced and which will, in effect, promote good labor relations."

Improvement in Machinery

2. "An improvement in machinery to deal with disputes."

3. "A new realization of our identity of interests in securing the utmost production for the effective prosecution of the war and for the satisfaction of peacetime needs."

Georgraphical, racial and other circumstances in combination complicated Canada's labor problems, the chamber said.

"We have the further complication that employees belong to a number of different organizations, some of which are actively competing to secure support by promises to obtain concessions," the brief continued. "In a race without rules the Union which is most aggressive is likely to get the most support.

"Steps must be taken to protect those whose sense of social responsibility prevents them from pursuing their own interests more vigorously. We believe the great majority of workers, men and women, are less interested in which Union, if any, will represent them than in seeing that they get fair treatment and have a recognized place in the National partnership."

"The experience and viewpoint of workers should be represented on government bodies which formulate and enforce policy in such matters as determining essential occupations, price control, rationing, priorities, improvement of morale and social and industrial welfare.

Approve Collective Bargaining

"We aprove of collective bargaining but couple with such approval the necessity of assuring that the majority representation is fairly established, if necessary under government auspices after hearing the claims of the interested parties," the brief said.

Demands for Higher Wages By Certain Trade Unions Cited As Cause of Unrest

Ottawa, May 6 (CP)—The Canadian Manufacturers' Association today cited as the primary cause of industrial unrest in Canada "a deliberate program of certain trade unions" to capitalize on labor shortages in a drive for higher wages regardless of dangers of inflation.

In a brief prepared for presentation to the National War Labor Board at its hearings in connection with a general investigation of labor relations the association expressed strong opposition to suggestions of compulsory collective bargaining.

The focal point of the present labor situation was maintenance of the wages ceiling.

"Unless it can be maintained it will be impossible to maintain the prices ceiling, and unless the prices ceiling is maintained, nothing can save the country from disastrous inflation," the brief said.

Take Advantage of Situation

"First and foremost among the underlying causes of present labor unrest we would put the deliberate program of certain labor unions to take advantage of the country's desperate need of labor to exact higher and higher wages regardless of the resultant danger of disastrous inflation and to build up the membership of their unions by demonstrating their ability to secure such high wages.

"The great majority of the workers in industry are thinking in terms of playing their part in winning the war. They will accept and support the wages policy of the government if it is fairly and firmly administered.

"Wages generally are admittedly good and there is provision in the wages order to make adjustments in the case of unduly low rates. Tens of thousands of young workers or workers new to industry are earning higher wages than ever before. The demand for higher wages regardless of the wages ceiling does not come spontaneously from them.

Selfish Motives Charged

"They are talked into making it by certain union representatives whose motive is not really better wages or conditions, or reasonable rights or privileges for the industrial workers, but increased power, including political power and gain for the organizations themselves.

"The situation is particularly vicious because 'the cards are stacked,' so to speak against those unions, and there are many of them, which are trying to co-operate in making the wages order work."

On the principles of "everything to gain and nothing to lose" workers would support unions which promised increased wages in spite of wage control and such a condition was responsible for the increase in jurisdictional disputes.

"And so long as the irresponsible, law-defying unions can 'get away with it' there is every reason to believe that the situation will grow rapidly worse," the association added.

Forced to Use Same Tactics

"The leaders of those unions which have been following the patriotic course of supporting the country's anti-inflation policy will be driven to adopt the same tactics as their rivals in order to stay in business".

To meet this condition the association suggested an intensive educational campaign by the government to explain to labor that it was in its own interest to combat in-

The War Today— Bulgarian Crisis Reported; 'Something to Keep an Eye On'

By DeWITT MacKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

Bulgaria, grimmest and least vocal of the enigmatic Balkans, is reported in the grip of one of those mysterious crises which descend suddenly like birds of night on that part of the world.

From keen-eared Turkey comes the report, via the London Daily Mail, that 700 people have been arrested in Sofia, the Bulgarian capital, as the result of May-day demonstrations. What sort of demonstrations? Well, that's part of the mystery. But King Boris is said to have fled his capital, and if that's so it suggests a boiling over of the popular dissatisfaction with His Majesty's Hitlerian affiliations.

Curiously, and adding to the mystification, many of the reports are coming from the Berlin propaganda agencies. They say that the streets of Sofia are deserted. All roads leading from Bulgaria are closed while the police hunt the murderers of Col. Athanas Panteff, former chief of police who was assassinated Monday.

Impending Upheaval

The whole picture is calculated to give the idea of an impending upheaval. It's something to keep an eye on, especially since Hungary also is reported to be getting overheated. That's another little country which has been making a virtue of the necessity of kowtowing to Germany.

Whatever may be going on at the moment, Bulgaria has long been displaying a rash which indicated a deep-seated malady, without wishing to make a pun, let's call the malady a complaint. That's exactly what it has been — complaint of a substantial part of the population against playing cat's-paw for Hitler and thus working against the Russians for whom many Bulgarians have a brotherly feeling partly because of a common Slavic background.

King Boris

King Boris is of Teutonic extraction, and he is only second in line of his dynasty. His father, Ferdinand I — often called "The Fox" —was born Prince Ferdinand of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha in Vienna and was elected to the Bulgarian throne. Ferdinand took his country into the last war on the side of Germany and after the conflict he abdicated in the face of widespread disapproval among his people.

Boris succeeded his father, bringing with him all the dictatorial characteristics of the Boche and a leaning for Germany. To make it unanimous he became son-in-law of the King of Italy.

I was in Bulgaria in November of 1938, not so long before Hitler knifed the world in the back, and even at that time Boris was trying thru Germany to recover the Macedonian territory which his father lost in the last war. Naturally when the present conflagration started he was trotting along on the Fuehrer's leash.

Fierce and Primitive Folk

The Bulgarians are a fierce and primitive folk. They are among the toughest fighters of Europe. But they sometimes are slow to register their wrath. They have tailed along with Boris, but there has been much resentment, especially because of the Russian angle. Now the war has reached a crucial stage where it looks as though there may be hot developments in the Balkans.

Rumors are rife that the Allies are preparing to invade the Balkans. Should that happen, Bulgaria would be involved and would in fact be holding the sack for the Nazis. More to the point, from Bulgarian view, talk grows that Turkey may be preparing to join the United Nations and strike up through the Balkans with them.

Small wonder that the Bulgarians should be anxious whether they are on the verge of revolt against their King's policies remains to be seen, but that wouldn't be very surprising. And when Bulgarians really get into action they are awfully tough.

STALIN FAVORS INDEPENDENT POLISH STATE

Russian Premier Also Offers Poles Promise Of Common Alliance Against Germany

ANSWERS LETTER

New York, May 6 (AP)—Establishment of a strong and independent Polish state after the war was advocated by Premier Joseph Stalin of Russia yesterday in a letter to the New York Times correspondent in Moscow, Ralph Parker.

The letter, published today in a copyrighted story in the New York Times, was written in answer to a letter from Parker posing two questions on the Russian-Polish situation.

Stalin also offered the Poles the promise of a common alliance against Germany.

Here are Parker's questions and Stalin's answers, as phrased in an authorized English translation of Stalin's reply:

1. Question: Does the government of the U.S.S.R. desire to see a strong and independent Poland after the defeat of Hitler's Germany? Answer: Unquestionably, it does.

"2. Question: On what fundaments is it your opinion that the relations between Poland and the U.S.S.R. should be based after the war? Answer: Upon the fundament of solid good neighborly relations and mutual respect or, should the Polish people so desire, upon the fundament of an alliance providing for mutual assistance against the Germans as the chief enemies of the Soviet Union and Poland."

The Soviet Union and the Polish government in London now are at odds over German propaganda charges that the Russians executed thousands of Polish officers near Smolensk. Attempts are being made by Allied leaders to patch up the quarrel, behind which lie old territorial and border difficulties.

Russia notified the Polish London administration April 26 that it was severing relations and the Polish Ambassador subsequently left Moscow, en route to Iran.

Sikorski Ready to Co-operate

London, May 6 (CP)—Premier Wladyslaw Sikorski today said the Polish government is "ready to give a positive answer to any Soviet initiative which will coincide with the interests of the Polish republic."

His declaration was made in a letter to the New York Times in response to Stalin's statement in a letter to the Times correspondent in Moscow, Ralph Parker, that the Soviet government wishes to see a strong and independent Poland. Sikorski's letter to the Times, as released to the press here by the Polish government, follows:-

"Premier Stalin's words correspond with the opinion he expressed to me during my stay in Moscow in December, 1941. Indeed, the Germans have been for ages the common and implacable enemy of both Poles and Russians.

"The Polish nation wants, of course to continue its friendly relations with Soviet Russia and to base them on alliance directed against Germany.

"It is, however, difficult for me not be restrained even in the face of such a favorable declaration by Premier Stalin at the very moment when the Polish Ambassador has left Russia and the mass of Polish population in the U.S.S.R. are left without the care and assistance of their government.

Closing C.N.R. Passenger Service Port Hope to Peterborough Opposed

Port Hope, Ont., May 6 —(CP)— With May 23 set as the date of closing of passenger service on the branch C.N.R. line between Port Hope and Peterborough, Port Hope town council is taking swift action to prevent the closing of the line if possible. Council has delegated a committee to immediately contact other municipalities which would be affected by closing of the line, with a view of sending down a delegation to Premier King if necessary.

Closing of the line, it is pointed out, would isolate some rural sections, particularly in winter. The fact that Port Hope and Hope township paid a large sum of money towards the installation of the line is another feature which is impelling strong and speedy action on the matter.

Fiercely-Resisting Nazis Driven From Important Height

Air Force Striking Blows at Axis Life Line Sinks 2 Ships And Damages Seven

1,200 SORTIES MADE

By WILLIAM B. KING
(Associated Press Staff Writer.)

Allied Headquarters, North Africa, May 6 (AP)—The British 1st Army has opened a door to the plain of Tunis by driving the fiercely-resisting enemy from Djebel Bou Aoukaz, 12 miles northeast of Medjez-El-Bab, it was announced today.

American forces captured part of jagged Djebel Achkel, on the southern shore of Lake Achkel, a communique said.

The northwest African air forces, striking fresh blows at the Axis life line across the Sicilian Straits, sank two ships and severely damaged seven.

United States heavy bombers sank an ammunition ship in the straits and damaged another in La Goulette Harbor during a raid which also damaged several small craft, blasting brracks and oil storage and unloading depots and started many fires.

Allied fighter planes carried out 1,200 sorties yesterday in their biggest day's effort in the battle of Tunisia.

In all, 11 Axis aircraft were shot down yesterday. Four Allied planes did not return.

Counter-Attacks Repulsed

In what appeared to be a desperate fight to organize defences on the road to Bizerte, along which both American and French forces have been pressing to distances as close as 10 miles, Axis troops counter-attacked repeatedly yesterday in the area of Djebel Chemti, north of Lake Achkel.

All were repulsed and the Americans took more than 300 prisoners, most of whom were Italians.

South of the lake, Axis troops left behind on the 1,667-foot summit of Djebel Achkel, which lies between the Sidi Salem and the Perryville roads 7 miles southwest of Perryville, attempted to withdraw when they saw the Americans and French advancing on both sides of them.

The Allies, however, forced them to fight and gained a considerable portion of the hill, mopping up the enemy as they advanced.

British 1st Army troops under Lt.-Gen. Kenneth Anderson, following behind an aerial bombardment and artillery barrage, rushed the blood-drenched Djebel Bou Aoukas at 5 p.m. yesterday to win that height dominating the Medjerda river valley and the road to Tebourba. Thirty prisoners were taken.

The action advanced a pincer movement against Tebourba from the southwest. United States troops have occupied Eddekhila, six miles west of that road junction which is 18 miles west of Tunis.

Patrols Penetrate Deeply

A local advance was reported made also by the British 8th Army on the Southern front, which stretches through the mountains westward from the coastal marshes of the Gulf of Hammamet north of Enfidaville.

"Patrols penetrated deeply behind the enemy positions," the communique said. "The country has been heavily mined."

(The communique did not elaborate, but the juxtaposition of these sentences suggested that Axis forces were planting explosives in preparation for another withdrawal.)

As a result of a week's sustained bombing of enemy air fields in Tunisia it is unlikely that the Axis is using any of the fields for bombers, a competent source said. And even most of the enemy fighters now are based on Sicily.

As French and American troops pressed from the south and west toward Perryville and Bizerte, the Allied air forces announced that tremendous damage had been done to both targets by repeated aerial attacks which "all but immobilized Perryville."

The attacks against Bizerte were concentrated on the extensive quays and unloading facilities of the Lake Bizerte Channel.

Perryville has been repeatedly raided by concentrated formations, the report said. Whole acres have been razed and havoc was wrought among drydocks, workshops, barracks, warehouses and fuel installations. The force of the bomb explosions tore off roofs in areas which escaped direct hits.

The report said that on one occasion the weight of bombs dropped on Perryville was so great that nearly 100 acres of docks and installations were devastated. The port was put out of commission for some time.

Last Great Barrier To Breakthrough To Sea Is Captured

With the U. S. Army near Bizerte, May 6 — (AP) — Infantry smashing toward Bizerte have taken Djebel Cheniti, the biggest remaining barrier to a breakthrough to the sea, and also Djebel Achkel.

Djebel Cheniti lies on the north shore of Lake Achkel about 10 miles southwest of Bizerte, between Lake Achkel and the Mediterranean.

Djebel Achkel is on the southern shore of the lake and north of Mateur.

The Americans attacked today along the entire sector with foot troops and armor.

AUTOGRAPH HUNTERS BESIEGED ORCHESTRA LEADER AFTER SHOW

Flight Lieutenant "Buff" Estes, popular orchestra maestro from Trenton Air Station, received a welcome reception at the hands of Belleville high school girls on Wednesday evening when, following the presentation of "Wings Over the Footlights" in the collegiate auditorium he was besieged with eager autograph hunters. With the same graciousness that made him an instant hit as master of ceremonies during the air force show, the widely-known orchestra leader complied with the girls' requests on sheets of note paper that happened to be handy. Members of his orchestra were also eagerly sought by autograph hunters.

MINERVA CHAPTER TO HOLD TAG DAY

Minerva Chapter O.E.S. No. 138 are holding a tag day on Saturday next to assist the chapter in purchasing a "mobile kitchen" unit to be sent overseas. How much these kitchens are appreciated by the troops is expressed in a letter from Hugh Houston, to his wife, residing at 294 Albert Street in this city. Mr. Houston, who is in the Royal Canadian Navy, had occasion to see one of these kitchens in operation and plainly written on the side was "Belleville" donated by the Order of Eastern Star. "They are doing a splendid work," he wrote. The chapter is grateful for the help, that has been given in the war projects sponsored by the organization and ask for a continuance of that support on Saturday.

SNEAK THIEVES STEAL LADY'S PURSE

Sneak thieves reached through a rear window to steal a lady's purse at the Round Spot cafe on East Dundas St. some time Wednesday night. The robbery was reported to police by E. R. The robbery was apparently committed by some person acquainted with the establishment, as the rear window was opened and all the sneak thief had to do was reach inside and take the purse from a ledge while Mrs. Simpson was busy in the front portion of the premises.

Edward J. Butler, Senior Magistrate In District, Dies

Edward J. Butler, K. C., Senior Magistrate District No. 9, Ontario, died at his home, 279 William Street, on Wednesday afternoon, May 5th. He was in failing health for some time.

The late Edward James Butler was in his 75th. year and was born in Deseronto, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Tobias Butler. His early education was obtained in the schools at Deseronto and Napanee, and upon leaving the high school in Napanee he entered Queen's University, Kingston, from which institution he graduated with the degree of Bachelor of Arts.

Being attracted to legal profession Magistrate Butler studied law in the offices of Messrs. Clute and Williams who were prominent barristers in this city at that time. Later he attended Osgoode Hall, Toronto, and upon being called to the bar he came to Belleville in the year 1896 and commenced the practice of his profession. In due time his ability combined with a pleasing personality and friendly manner, attracted a large clientage and he continued in private practice until the year 1934 when he was appointed Senior Magistrate for District No. 9, Ontario, which includes the counties of Hastings, Prince Edward, Lennox Addington and Frontenac. and he held this office until his death.

Served As Alderman

In the discharge of the important duties associated with his office Mr. Butler displayed much wisdom, fairness, and human understanding. With the members of the legal profession here and elsewhere he was held in the highest regard and to them and to many friends outside his profession his death has brought much regret.

Mr. Butler took much interest in the affairs of his adopted city and gave his support to movements, which had as an objective the advancement of the city and the welfare of all citizens. In the year 1907 he served as an alderman and in the matter of education he was interested and served as a member of the Separate School Board for many years, being Chairman on several occasions and representative of the Board at the Belleville Board of Education. He was a good citizen, a good friend and an entertaining companion and they who enjoyed his friendship will long entertain pleasant recollections of their association with him.

In religion Mr. Butler was a prominent and faithful member of St. Michael's Church and took an active part in the work of the parish, being a member of the Holy Name Society. Fraternally he was a charter member of Belleville Council Knights of Columbus, which he was the means of instituting here, as well as in numerous places in this part of Ontario when he served as Master of the Degree Team. In the Order he advanced to high positions being a member of the Fourth Degree and Past District Deputy for the Belleville—Peterboro District in the year 1907.

Surviving to mourn his loss and to whom the sincere sympathy of many friends will be extended are his wife, who prior to her marriage was Miss Mary Dowrie of Belleville; one daughter, Miss Mary Butler, J. P., at home; two sons, Ald. E. Ormonde Butler, Barrister, and Mr. Gregory Butler, now a student at Toronto University; one sister, Mrs. William Featherstonaugh, Calgary, Alberta.

Story of Russia Told Kiwanians

The story of Russia was vividly told by a native of Czecho-Slovakia, who is a member of the Belleville Kiwanis Club and whose name cannot be used for security reasons at the weekly luncheon of the club held at the Quinte Hotel on Tuesday. Incidentally it was "meatless Tuesday" and the boys dined on a fine dish of macaroni and all the trimmings. The club welcomed a number of guests from Hamilton, Toronto and the city and these were welcomed by Eddie Logan. Mark Vanner and I. I. Moore won the attendance prizes, while Ernie Finkle was appointed by the President as the representative of the Kiwanis Club on the Regional Post-War Planning Commission, recently formed by the City Council by by-law. J. C. Allen, assistant secretary of the Navy League of Canada was guest at the luncheon and in a few words praised the Kiwanis Club and other service clubs for the fine work they are performing in the war.

Legal and Civic Leaders Voice Tribute to Late Magistrate

Expressions of regret and tribute to the memory of the late Magistrate E. J. Butler K.C., were paid by citizens in all walks of life in Belleville today. In legal and civic circles expressions of sympathy were extended to the bereaved family.

Hastings Law Association

"The County of Hastings Law Association has learned with deep regret of the passing of Mr. E. J. Butler, one of its oldest members. The late Mr. Butler, though not of recent years engaged in actual practice of law, has when not incapacitated by illness performed his duties as Police Magistrate with dignity and fairness. Before being appointed to the position of Police Magistrate Mr. Butler was engaged in the practice of law in Belleville for many years and was deservedly popular with the other members of the profession. All the members of the County of Hastings Law Association join in extending to his family their sincere sympathy in the loss of a husband and father", stated A. R. Cameron, president of the Hastings County Law Association.

Crown Attorney Donnan

Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan paid the following tribute to the late Magistrate:

"The Bar as a whole, and particularly those charged with the administration of justice, regret the passing of the late Magistrate E. J. Butler.

"The Assistant Crown Attorney, Mr. Robertson, and I, as Crown Attorney, have been associated with him in connection with his judicial duties over a period of many years.

"Evidence of the ability and sound judgment of the late Magistrate Butler will be indicated by the fact that he conducted on an average of 3500 cases each year and from his judgments there were few appeals and no appeal was ever successful."

Mayor Rollins

"It was with profound regret we learned of the death of Magistrate Butler. Since his appointment to the position of Chief Magistrate of this district he had proven himself a magistrate of justice and mercy", stated Mayor Rollins, speaking for the city. "Not only in the legal profession in the community, but as a citizen in general Magistrate Butler has served Belleville in many capacities in the past and his philanthropic endeavours were just one of his many activities", the Mayor added, as he extended the sympathy of the council to the bereaved family.

Magistrate Lloyd

"I have been associated with Magistrate Butler closely since he was named Chief Magistrate of District No. 9 over eight years ago and it was with regret I learned of his death following his recent illness. As a magistrate he presided in court and his decisions were seldom questioned. As an associate magistrate I always respected Magistrate Butler's decisions, as did all who came before him in a legal way, stated Magistrate J. L. Lloyd who has been presiding at local police court sittings in the recent absence of the late Mr. Butler.

Chief of Police Probert

"Although His Worship has been ill and not able to preside at local police court since my appointment as Chief of Police here last year, I first became acquainted with Magistrate Butler during the period of his law practice and later at Trenton when he was appointed magistrate for this district", added Chief R. W. Probert. "I might add that his passing was keenly felt by the entire Belleville Police Department and since coming here I have found nothing but high praise and esteem expressed by the personnel of the department toward His Worship", Chief Probert said, as he also extended sympathy to the family on behalf of himself and the entire police department.

Although illness had kept Magistrate Butler from the bench since Acting Inspector Harry Storey was appointed to the position of inspector of Ontario Provincial Police headquarters here, Acting Inspector Storey added his sympathy and that of the Provincial Police of the entire district.

WARM RAIN SEEN AS BENEFICIAL

Although spring seeding and planting has been retarded considerably as the result of a cold and wet spring, farmers today intimated that this morning's comparatively warm rain would have a beneficial effect in helping to start pastures and meadows. Several deep rolls of thunder were heard during the brief shower, it being the third or fourth time thunder has been heard this season.

Total of Loan Subscriptions In County Nears Half-Way Mark

With a total of $1,591,450 already subscribed Hastings county at noon on Wednesday neared the half way point in its drive for $3,300,000 in the Fourth Victory Loan campaign, according to local headquarters here today.

Subscriptions now stand just under the 50 per cent mark, it was stated.

Six of the divisions within the county have now topped the half way mark in their respective objectives with R.C.A.F. stations having all gone over the top. Deloro village stands at 80 per cent of its objective, while Belleville reached the 59 per cent mark, Stirling and district 57 per cent, Sidney and district 55 per cent and Deseronto 50 per cent.

Standings of the other divisions in their drives toward their respective objectives in the Victory Loan campaign are Tweed, 43 per cent; Trenton, 40 per cent; Bancroft, 37 per cent, and Madoc, 36 per cent.

Bata Co. Over Objective

In the payroll savings division the Bata Shoe Company of Frankford has subscribed a total of $86,800, or 124 per cent of the plant employees' original objective. Plant canvassers have done a really fine job and with 124 per cent subscribed by Tuesday morning, it is anticipated much more will be subscribed before the end of the campaign.

'Wings Over the Footlights' Revue Presents Many Outstanding Features

Belleville and district music lovers took Flight Lieutenant "Buff" Estes and his swing orchestra from Trenton Air Station into their hearts at the Belleville Collegiate auditorium on Wednesday evening when the popular Flier orchestra staged a 1943 edition of "Wings Over the Footlights" in support of the Fourth Victory Loan Campaign.

A crowded auditorium greeted the popular Trenton Swing orchestra when they appeared on the stage for the opening number and spirited applause following each of the various numbers clearly indicated full appreciation on the part of Belleville music lovers.

Well-balanced Program

Possibly lacking a trifle from the varied talent appearing on the stage during the first presentation of "Wings Over the Footlights", during the last Victory Loan campaign, last evening's performance was nevertheless well balanced, indicating much thought and care had been exercised in its organization and planning.

Interspersed between the swing numbers were vocal and acrobatic numbers by high ranking air station artists, while a feature of the evening, from the standpoint of local interest, was the presentation of a comedy skit "Red Peppers", directed by Belleville's Miss Joan Maraskas.

Estes Master of Clarinet

It remained, however, for "Buff" Estes himself to enthral his audience with his solo saxophone and clarinet numbers. Playing either instrument with the ease and perfection that clearly vindicated his former association with Benny Goodman's and other name orchestras, he played in solo "Stardust" and "Honeysuckle Rose", while in a special sextette arrangement he led with the clarinet in "Ida" and "Honeysuckle Rose".

Numbers played by the twelve-piece orchestra included the "Sorgham Switch", "Manhattan Parade", "Dance of the Woodwinds", Mexican Hat Dance", and "One O'Clock Jump". Finale for the evening was comprised of patriotic numbers including "God Bless America", "R.C.A.F. March", "Army Air Corps Song", and "There'll Always Be An England".

A.W. 1 Nonie Stockton, who entertained last Autumn with a much appreciated series of acrobatic numbers, was back again to delight with a brand new repertoire. She did a special acrobatic number and service men's step dance. Vocalist for the evening was plucky Corporal Betty Roche, who despite the fact she is recovering from the effects of a broken leg and still limps noticeably, favored in her fine contralto voice with "As Time Goes By", and "Sentimental Over You", while in her second appearance she sang, "Miss You", and "You And I".

Jitterbugs Pleased

Jitterbug enthusiasts received well-executed exhibition of the real thing when two air force members from the Trenton station high-stepped to the melody "Woodchoppers Ball". Novelty burlesque numbers rounded out the portion of the program staged by the air force which saw their commanding officer Squadron Leader R. E. McBurney deliver a special appeal on behalf of the Victory Loan.

The stage presentation "Red Peppers" under the direction of Miss Joan Maraskas proved a highly entertaining comedy skit, the scenes taking place on the stage and back-stage in a typical English theatre. Mrs. Josephine Harris and Tom Hyland, taking leading roles as a song-and-dance team, demonstrated real acting ability when at the conclusion of their number they engaged in a typical back-stage brawl which eventually involves the theatre manager, and other members of the vaudeville act.

Other actors taking part in the presentation were Eugene Lang, Phillip Flagler, Sheila Burrows, and Kaye Martin.

A silver collection taken to help defray expenses realized $112.

Jas. Allen Appointed C.P.R. Freight Agent To Succeed E. Truman

James Allen, formerly of Chatham, was appointed C.P.R. freight agent at Belleville and assumed the duties left vacant when Edward Truman was moved from Belleville to Kingston to fill a similar position.

Mr. Allen comes from Chatham to take over the C.P.R. freight agent duties here with 31 years of railway experience behind him. He first became associated with the C.P.R. as freight clerk at Tichbourne, Ont., in 1912, being moved to Kingston two years later. During the first Great War, Mr. Allen obtained leave of absence to join Canada's fighting forces and serve his country. Returning to Canada after the Armistice, Mr. Allen returned to the employ of the C.P.R. and was employed as operator, freight clerk and later freight agent in many parts of the Ontario Division and has been stationed at Chatham for the past two years.

With Mr. Truman having been transferred to Kingston and assuming his duties there earlier in the week, Mr. Allen immediately filled the local vacancy to assume his new duties here.

Police Court

Trenton (Special) — Eighteen cases came before Magistrate J. B. Garvin in Trenton Police Court on Tuesday; prosecuted by B. C. Donnan, K.C.

Six appeared for trespassing on the C.P.R., stealing a ride on a freight train from Montreal to Trenton. All were young men from Montreal. They had been remanded by the Justice of the Peace for one week and their finger-print record had been obtained. Velliette was the only one with a record. They were given seven days in the common jail to date from the date of their arrest and due to their youth were given one year's suspended sentence and ordered to return to Quebec province as they were told they were sure to be picked up if they continued riding freights in Ontario.

Archie Williams also charged with trespassing and intoxication was fined the usual $10 and costs for the latter offence and given a year's suspended sentence and warned by the Magistrate to stay away from the C.P.R. unless he had business there.

Three drunks paid the usual $10 and costs, while Melvin Barriage paid $5 and costs for breach of the Highway Traffic Act which included sounding a horn unnecessarily.

Two paid $1.00 each for breach of the Traffic By-law, Ray Hamilton on a charge of vagrancy, case enlarged till Friday. Earl Downs charged with assault had his case enlarged also till Friday. Harry Partington charged with careless driving was fined $10 and costs of $14.75. Some time ago he collided with a motorcycle in which Mr. and Mrs. L. Taylor were injured.

Case of reckless driving and leaving the scene of an accident was laid over for a week. A juvenile charged with shop-breaking was given a year's suspended sentence and placed on probation in the care of his spiritual adviser.

KISS YOUR TIRED FEELING GOODBYE!

Pepless Many Suffer Low Blood Count—And Don't Know It.

The baffling thing about low blood count is that you can weigh about as much as you ever did—even look healthy and strong, yet—you can feel as if you had lead in your legs, dopey, tired and pepless.

Low blood count means you haven't got enough red blood corpuscles. It is their vital job to carry life-giving oxygen from your lungs throughout your body. And just as it takes oxygen to explode gasoline in your car and make the power to turn the wheels, so you must have plenty of oxygen to explode the energy in your body and give you going power.

Get Dr. Williams Pink Pills today. They are world-noted for the help they give in increasing the number and strength of red corpuscles. Then with your blood count up, you'll feel like bounding up the stairs as if you were floating on air. Ask your druggist for Dr. Williams Pink Pills today.

Many Units of District Military Organizations to Parade Sunday

Trenton (Special)—Trenton is to have a Mammoth Parade on Sunday next to stimulate interest in the Victory Loan Campaign. Officers and airmen from the R.C.A.F. station and No. 5 I.T.S. Belleville, under Group Captain H. E. McBurney and Wing Commander Snetsinger, 2nd Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment under Lieut.-Col. A. V. Yates, M.C., V.D., the 34th Battery, the Argyll Light Infantry under command of Lieut Col. B. C. Donnan, W.A.A.C.'s of Belleville, local Air Cadets, Boy Scouts, Girl Cadets and a representative body from the St. John Ambulance Corps will take part. Bands will include R.C.A.F., Regimental Band of 2nd. Hastings & Prince Edward Regiment, Belleville Municipal Band under the leadership of Bandmaster Fred Jobson, the Belleville Pipe Band under Pipe Major Jimmy Clarke, and the Trenton Lions Club Boys' Band. Veterans of the Great War will lead the parade.

Parade Forms at 12.45 p.m.

The parade will be formed at the Trenton Air Station at 12.45 moving into town, west on Dundas St. to Queen, north on Queen to the saluting base in front of St. Peter's Church, where the salute will be taken by Brig. General Harold F. McDonald, C.M.G., D.S.O. of Ottawa, executive assistant to Air Minister Power. Brig. Gen. McDonald is a veteran of the Great War where he lost an arm.

Following the salute the parade will move north on Queen St. to King, right on King to Division, north on Division to Ford, east on Ford to Front, thence south on Front to Dundas. Here the parade will divide, the Air Force returning to their station and all other units to the armouries where a demonstration will be given of the latest field artillery.

Mechanized equipment on parade will include 25 pounders, 75 m.m. gun carriages and their tractors, universal carriers and other motorized equipment.

Brig.-Gen. McDonald is to address a mass meeting in the Trent theatre at 8.15 on Sunday evening led by band leader Fred Jobson. The Lions Club Boys' Band will furnish music for the occasion.

Many Industries Exceed Quotas

Trenton (Special)—Although at a late hour Wednesday Trenton appears to be lagging in their donations, it is hoped this will take a decided turn in the next few days. Of the $460,000 required of our town only $165,250 or 35 percent has been turned in. This, however, only includes one of the many local industries, while all but one of these have gone over their quota. The Benedict-Proctor Manufacturing Co. has subscribed 161 percent, Canadian-Doughnut 190 percent, Central Bridge 115 percent, Crosse & Blackwell 120 percent, Downs-Coulter 144 percent, Hinde and Dauch 114 percent and, Trenton Cottons 75 percent. This later industry, however, have only just begun their canvass and doubtless will far exceed their quota before many days. It is considered worth mentioning the decided sacrifice that many of these factory workers have made in order that they might contribute to this great cause. Many of these young men and girls have given up the few pleasures and comforts which they formerly enjoyed and have put such savings into bonds. While they are doing without these things now they fully realize the value which will be theirs when once again the world is running on an even keel.

As the canvass of the industries is about finished it appears to be the house-to-house territory which must come across quickly and generously in order that we may, as has been done in the three previous loans, go over the top with flying colors.

Both air stations have exceeded their quotas, purchasing each 105 percent. If these men who are already in uniform and giving their all to serve the country so willingly subscribe, surely it is up to the individual to make a greater sacrifice to see that all who are fighting in any way may have the best possible equipment.

Japanese Ship Left Sinking

Allied Headquarters, Australia, May 6 — (CP) — Pouncing opportunely upon Wewak, New Guinea, during the briefish lift of prolonged stormy weather, four-engined bombers set a Japanese ship ablaze and left it sinking, today's communique disclosed.

The account was a delayed one of a raid which occurred Tuesday.

The ship was listed as a 5,000-ton cargo vessel.

Several direct hits left it blazing and sinking. It was caught off an island near Wewak. The bombers also scattered fire and explosions along the waterfront of Wewak's deep anchorage and some bombs damaged two 500-ton boats at the jetty.

Wewak is a feeder base on New Guinea's north coast from which supplies are sent overland to Japanese troops southeastward at Lae and Salamaua, on the Huon Gulf, now menaced by Allied troops moving up from their conquest of the Papuan Peninsula.

Nine Japanese planes tried to intercept the bombers raiding Wewak and one of the enemy was damaged. All the Allied bombers got home.

ARMY CUTS CAR IN TWO, LENGTHENS IT BY SIX FEET

Seattle, May 6 — (AP) — The United States Army stretches its own automobiles. A popular medium-priced model was cut in two, stretched to six additional feet of length and then rebuilt, mostly with wood. It will accommodate 15 passengers. Col. K. B. Harmon, chief of the Pacific coast ordnance district, said a firm now has a contract for 100 of them.

To meet the problem created by many children growing out of their shoes before the shoes are worn out barter centres have been set up in many parts of England.

Magistrate Butler

The passing of Edward J. Butler, K.C., prominent member for many years of the Hastings Bar Association and senior police magistrate for District No. 9 of the Province of Ontario removes one of the best known and most highly regarded citizens. Honored in life for his merits and his many gifts of mind and heart by his fellow-citizezns, by the members of the legal fraternity and the members of the bench, by various societies in which he served, by his church and by the Government in naming him to the senior magisterial post, he will be missed.

Magistrate Butler was possessed of a kindly heart. He had a natural capacity for making friends by his wide sympathies, his innate courtesy, his refinement and his sense of fairness. Throughout his long life, this kindly genial spirit was the mark of the man. His fine qualities were shed about in his family life, in his social environment and in his legal life as a practising member of the bar and in his deliberations and judgments on the magisterial bench as well as in the various organizations, social, secular, and religious with which he was connected. Honors rested lightly on him, for they were a just tribute to his life and to his native capacity. His inborn sense of honor, truth, justice and fair play found expression in every relationship in life. In the law his well-trained and balanced mind found an apt field for his interests and his lifework. He was eminently successful in his profession for his legal training, his natural acumen, his sense of justice, and capacity for vigorous and clear thinking as well as the gift of expression fitted him for such a life in the law and in the magistracy.

Mr. Butler gave much attention to the training of the young and sat as member of the Separate School Board for many years and for some years was representative of the city Board of Education. He was a devout member of St. Michael's congregation by whom he was held in high esteem.

He was a noble exemplar of the democratic and Christian virtues and like a good citizen he strove to benefit and help the society and community in which he lived.

Poland and Polish Airmen

Poles under the tyranny and oppression of Germany and in lands where they have found refuge from the storm which burst over their native land nearly four years ago, have been celebrating the 152nd anniversary of the adoption of Poland's democratic constitution on May 3rd, 1791, which declared all power in civil society to be derived from the will of the people and which confirmed the principle of religious tolerance for all classes.

The anniversary finds the Poles abroad fighting with the United Nations' armed forces and those at home battling against the German occupation authorities with sabotage and revolt.

Poland has suffered much for freedom and democracy. Every day terrorism in their native land takes its toll of victims from among the people, Victor Podoski, Polish Minister to Canada said this week. Poles have never yielded to the foe and never asked terms of the invader of their soil. Denied the freedom of thought and action and even of the right to live, for the Germans have exterminated two and a half million of them, the Poles keep their spirit undaunted.

What have the Poles done in the war? Here are some facts. Allied airmen serving in the R.A.F. number squadrons of the Free Forces, Polish, Czechs, Fighting French, Netherlands, Norwegian and Belgium and these have won more than 200 British decorations. These free airmen have had part in virtually all Britain's air activity, the defence of Britain, sweeps over the continent, anti-submarine patrols and shipping strikes. According to a Canadian Press story by Alan Randal, the Polish Air Force, the largest of all the continental allied air forces, has won more British decorations than all the rest put together, namely 120. They have destroyed 509 German aircraft and one squadron alone shot down 170 while Polish squadrons have made more than 5,000 sorties and have been on all the important raids. Today there are now more than 20 Polish squadrons in Britain. The Free French fighter pilots operating from British bases have destroyed 273 German planes. Belgium has more pilots operating in Britain and Africa than she had before the German invasion. These have won ten D.F.C.'s. Czechs have three fighter squadrons, a bomber squadron and a coastal command squadron and have won 47 British decorations. The Norwegians flying in Britain have destroyed 43 enemy aircraft and the Belgians have won five British awards.

This is how the Poles and the other continental Allies of the R.A.F. have been recording their deeds.

"Pretty Coarse Game"

(Montreal Gazette)

In 1941 there was the R.A.F. pilot who, from a mess of flak over Germany, radioed "Am over Bremen; natives unfriendly." In 1942 were the Marines on Wake Island, with "Send us more Japs," and the nameless naval pilot who "Sighted sub, sank same." Now Air Vice-Marshal Sir Arthur Coningham adds another for the book. Congratulating Air Vice-Marshal Harry Broadhurst for the 58 of 100 Junkers transport planes shot down in a single afternoon, he remarked with ironical belittlement: "Pretty coarse game, old chap."

It's a great tradition. Drake, turning calmly back to the bowling green with a shrug: "We have time to finish the game, and beat the Spaniards too." Drake, again, setting the example for modern Commandos with a raid on Cadiz of incredible, impudent daring, and calling it "singeing King Philip's beard." Wellington, with the calm "Hard-pounding, gentlemen, but we shall see who can pound longest." Coningham and Broadhurst, with a victory behind them which will open the Mediterranean and may well turn the tide of war once and for all, talk of air war in the jargon of grouse shooting.

Junkers are coarse game, at that—great, slow, lumbering troop-carriers, fattest of sitting birds to a Spitfire. But since we do not plan to preserve this particular breed, it hardly matters.

Side by Side Stamps

(Winnipeg Tribune)

Letter writers can save a great deal of wear and tear on cancellation machines in the post office by sticking stamps on letters side by side instead of up and down. The frazzled nerves of postal employees would have a chance to quieten down as well.

With the new postal rates in force as many as three stamps may be needed to pay postage. The cancellation machines extend only one inch down an envelope. To cancel stamps running north and south requires two trips through the machine.

So stamps should be fastened to an envelope in such a manner as to parallel the superscription.

Neck of the Chicken

(Windsor Daily Star)

Meat rationing means lessons in carving and different cuts are given classifications.

Chicken is not rationed, but the youngest child will still get the neck.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

(Copyright 1943, Edgar A. Guest)

THE OLD DOCTOR

The old-time family doctor now is back with us once more.
As majors and as captains all the young have gone to war
And the doctor, long past fifty, is on duty night and day
Taking care of all us patients in his good old-fashioned way.

There is something in his manner reassuring to the sick.
Is it age or is it wisdom? Is it just a doctor trick?
But his speech has comfort in it and it's good to hear him tell
If we'll carry out his orders we will pretty soon be well.

The little grip he carries shows the signs of wear and tear.
Like the doctor it has labored long,
through weather foul and fair,
And the same things still are in it. All the remedies of old,
The pink or crimson tablets good for breaking up a cold.

The young and modern doctors now are working land and sea
For our forces who are fighting in the cause of liberty;
And until the war is ended, here at home
I'm very sure
The old-time family doctor every ill that comes will cure.

The town council received a letter from Capt. W. H. Morden with regards to a daily steamboat service between Belleville and Picton, and he asked a subsidy of $750 par annum for four years for the purpose of establishing the same. Capt. Morden offered to put on the route a new steamer with a speed of ten to twelve miles per hour and the boat would reach Belleville in the following manner: the sum of $1,000 at the close of navigation this season; $750 for the next two seasons and $500 for the last year of the arrangement. The matter has been referred to a committee for consideration.

Portland, Ore., May 6 — (AP) —One Portland man overdid things a bit in contributing to the Salvation Army's scrap paper drive. He called back later for a re-check. The resultant search through a ton of paper yielded a $4,000 note, $750 worth of negotiable bonds, $5,000 in paid-up life insurance policies and a mortgage.

War Labor Board Resumes Hearings In Coal Dispute

By KENNETH L. DIXON
(Associated Press Staff Writer.)

Washington, May 6 (AP) — The United States War Labor Board dug in to tackle the tough coal wage dispute again today, but even the administration which cheered it on seemed to have its fingers crossed as it signaled its safety men to get set in the backfield.

A three-man W.L.B. panel resumes hearings in the soft coal case on the third day of a two-weeks truce under which the industry now operates, but these developments indicated executive doubt that it would settle the scrap which brought a country-wide walk-out last weekend:-

1. Harold L. Ickes, fuel administrator and current coal field boss for the government, set up a system where—in an emergency—coal could be seized from those who have it and diverted it to those who have not;
2. War production Board officials indicated a country-wide dim-out would be ordered if the miners walk out again when the truce ends;
3. The United Mine Workers who defied the W.L.B. gave no sign that they would participate in the hearings.

2,628 MORE DOCTORS IN U. S. THIS YEAR

Chicago, May 6—(AP)—There was a net again of 2,628 doctors in the United States last year, the Journal of the American Medical Association reported yesterday. Statistics gathered by the A. M. A.'s council on medical education and hospitals and based on new licences and certificates issued in 1942 showed 5,981 physicians were added to the profession's population. During the same period, 3,353 deaths were recorded.

POPPING LIKE MACHINE GUNS

Chicago, May 6—(AP)—Tradition would have it that corks popping out of champagne bottles are signs of hail-fellow-well-met. When waiters at a loop cafe investigated popping noises like machine-guns in the storeroom, they were met by a hail of corks—caused by a fire which was estimated to have caused damage of $2,000 to prized bottled goods.

PADDLE 150 MILES

London, Ont., May 6—(CP)—Two University of Western Ontario medical students, Douglas Bocking, St. Thomas, Ont., and Ronald Aitken, London, paddled the more than 150 miles from London to Windsor during the Easter weekend, leaving here Thursday at noon and arriving on Sunday afternoon.

Driver James Allen, M.M., of London, has the finest moustache in Britain's famed 8th Army. It measures seven inches from point to point.

BEN BOLT

This year is the hundredth anniversary of the publication of Thomas Dunn English's famous poem entitled "Ben Bolt," the first stanza of which reads:

Don't you remember sweet Alice,
Ben Bolt,—
Sweet Alice whose hair was so brown,
Who wept with delight when you gave her a smile,
And trembled with fear at your frown?
In the old churchyard in the valley, Ben Bolt,
In a corner obscure and alone,
They have fitted a slab of the granite so gray,
And Alice lies under the stone.

The author was born in or near Philadelphia in 1819 and died at Newark, New Jersey, in 1902.

"Ben Bolt," addressed to a real person of that name, was written in 1843 when Thomas Dunn English was 24 and first printed in September of that year in the New York "Mirror," a literary magazine founded and edited by George Pope Morris, author of "Woodman, Spare That Tree."

The charming simplicity of "Ben Bolt" proved so attractive to composers that it has been set to music 26 different times.

English himself composed music for the poem "entirely for the black keys."

In 1848 Nelson Kneass in Pittsburgh adapted a Germain air to the song and sang it in the drama, "The Battle of Buena Vista."

The Anglo-French author and artist, George Du Maurier, in 1894 introduced "Ben Bolt" into his popular novel entitled "Trilby."

In Jim Wells county, Texas, two neighboring towns are named Alice and Ben Bolt.

English, who was of Quaker stock, was a politician as well as an active editor and prolific author of books, poems, plays and magazine articles.

He read law and received a degree in medicine, and from 1853 to 1856 he practiced both medicine and law at Lawnsville, Virginia, (now Logan, West Virginia.)

During the Civil War he was a Copperhead member of the New Jersey Legislature, and from 1891 to 1895 he served in the Federal House of Representatives, being known as "the Congressman who wrote Ben Bolt."

In his earlier years he was a close friend of Edgar Allan Poe, whom he met when he was contributing to Burton's Gentleman's Magazine of which Poe was one of the editors but later he became an ardent adversary of the author of "The Raven."

SEEMS NO END TO PROSPECTS FOR PLASTICS

Products of New Material Invade Many Fields From Hospitals to Sport Arenas

Montreal, May 6.—(CP)—Plastics have invaded the medical field, popping up in a multitude of places among the equipment of hospitals and private practitioners fighting the ailments to which the human body is subject.

Brain plates, cups to reline arthritic hips, nylon sutures that are stronger and less irritating than silk, instruments that pipe cold light around curves, contact optical lenses, artificial eyes and hundreds of other little appliances and bits of equipment now spring from plastic sources.

Properties such as toleration by human tissues, exceptional lightness in weight, transparency to X-rays and virtual unbreakability adapt plastics to a wide variety of medical uses from brain plates used in delicate operations down to ordinary medicine-chest tongue depressors.

The Plastics division of Canadian Industries Limited says that more than 300 skull operations have been performed in which a cranial defect was repaired with a plate of cellulose nitrate plastic. Easily formed to the necessary curvature in hot water, the plastic is said to be perfectly tolerated by the tissues, is not absorbed, and becomes firmly planted in the skull. A similar operation is made in treating certain types of epilepsy.

Pain in arthritic hips has been relieved and there has been at least a 50 per cent increase in the leg motion—the criteria by which the success of a hip operation is judged—when cups of an acylic plastic have been used. The same plastic has been used for jaw and knuckle joints, as a substitute for metal plates in bone grating, and in plastic surgery.

Millions of feet of nylon monofilament, formerly used in tennis racquet strings and fishing leaders, now is making its appearance as a replacement for gut and Japanese silk in sutures for the Armed Forces as well as civilian medical use. The plastic sutures are claimed to be superior to silk, to have greater tensile strength so that smaller stands can be used, and to be inert and non-absorbing in the body whereas germs can travel in silk and skin can grow into the twisted threads of a silk suture.

Lucite rods, another plastic development, have been found to possess the quality of transporting "cold" light around curves and thus is able to shed concentrated, shadowless illumination in surgical retrators useu for lighting up incisions and the cavities and recesses of the body where head-producing light would adversely affect the examination.

Helping Vision

Contact lenses, made from a crystal-clear plastic and worn next to the eye-ball to correct defective vision, are becoming increasingly used, and some estimates say that their field of application could be extended to 85 per cent of all persons whose vision must be corrected. Weighing 60 per cent less than optical glass, they are virtually unbreakable and invisible.

More common uses of plastics in the medical field are in the shields protecting doctors treating infectiious diseases, windows in plaster casts, stethosope parts, transfusion tubes, containers for pills and capsules, vaccination shields and nose guards.

'Could Have Monarchy Without a Peerage'

(From the Manchester Guardian)

If, as is so often said, we shall emerge from the war a more democratic and equalitarian society, with our extremes of wealth and poverty trimmed off, one wonders whether there will be any change in the attitude towards titles. Shall we see after the war the same flood of honors, hereditary and life, that we saw after the last?

It may be we shall stick to titles as long as we maintain a monarchy, although as a matter of political machinery there is no essential interdependence. We could have a hereditary monarchy without a peerage, a baronetage, and knightage. Apart from a change in the character of the Second Chamber (a pure anomaly on a hereditary basis and affecting only a minority of titles), no one would notice the practical difference.

The case for titles rests on sentiment, not to say human weakness, as much as on anything else, just as the case against them rests on the purely individual feeling that they perpetuate a tradition of social privilege we should be better without.

But it is a matter of interest to inquire whether titles are becoming more numerous or not. The latest issue (1943), the 141st of the invaluable Debrett's "Peerage, Baronetage, Knightage, and Companionage" helps towards an answer. In the first place, there is a tendency for hereditary titles to diminish, although the size of the House of Lords continues to grow. The flow of new peers and baronets is maintained, but the honors tend more and more to become life titles. Only half of the new peers of the last two years have heirs, and of the 15 baronets only six will be carried on.

The smaller family pattern of today hastens the extinction of earlier titles, and the creations of baronetcies are hardly keeping up with the extinctions. The lavish bestowals of the years 1916-22, however, brought a great increase in the number of hereditary titles which has not yet been "liquidated". But, as Debrett noted in December, 1941, there were then more than 100 peerages and 200 baronetcies without heirs.

The great change over the period is in the number of knights. In the last 18 years of Victoria knighthoods were bestowed at the average rate of 83 a year, and this includes the two jubilees. In the 33 years since the death of Edward VII (omitting 1940, when hardly any were given because we had more pressing things to bother us) the knighthoods have averaged 217 a year.

Not all are distinctively British; a certain proportion are Indian and colonial and a few Dominion. But the general effect has been an increase in the size of the life-titled class. At the moment the net increase per year is not large, thanks to the lavish heritage of the Coalition, which is now working itself out as death takes its toll.

The most important change is the way in which the knighthood has come to be the normal reward for political, public, and official service. A title now attaches almost of right to many public positions.

What is the size of the titled classes? One cannot pretend to give exact figures—Debrett's small type in bulk is hard on the eyes—but one can make a rough guess. The total is probably not less than 17,000.

First there are the peers (and peeresses in their own right), whom, excluding the bishops, we can put at 980. To these we add 1,050 wives and widows of peers. To this 2,000 we have to add the families of peers, who, whether commoners or not, carry courtesy titles—something over 5,000. The peerage is thus responsible for 7,000 titles.

The baronets are responsible for something like 1,250 male and 1,400 female (wives and widows) titles, the knights for 3,400 male and 4,400 female (wives and widows) titles. Make some allowance for overlapping between the various branches and from these very hasty figures we reach something like our total.

37 Tons Pork Tails Shipped to Alabama

Edmonton, Alta., May 6 — An unusual shipment of edibles recently left over the Canadian National Railways for Mobile, Alabama, a refrigerator car being loaded with pickled pork tails. The consignment weighed 74,570 pounds and was packed in one of the newest types of Canadian National "reefers." Prepared pork tails average five inches in length and approximately half a pound in weight, according to packing house experts. On this basis the carload of "pigtails" would extend twelve miles if placed curl to curl. J. L. Townshend, general supervisor of perishable traffic for the National Railways, said that in his twenty-five years of service the occasion was the first in which he had ever seen pickled pork tails travelling in a carload lot.

Once Housewives Grew Condiments In Good Gardens

Written for The Canadian Press

By JEAN THOMPSON

Ottawa, May 6—(CP)—A corner in any Canadian backyard victory garden will grow a top-notch crop of seasonings.

The war restrictions mean grocery shelves empty of spices. Let's look back to find out what great-grandmother used before transportation brought the condiments of the Indies to the kitchen cabinet.

Well, housewives of earlier times had a herb patch; summer savory, sage, mint, chives, dill, marjoram, thyme and parsley grew in the summer sun and spiced the air. Old homes had herb gardens protected from the wind; small gardens often had a "wheel of thyme," different varieties being planted between spokes of an old wheel.

Today there is a revival of interest in these plants both for romantic and practical reasons. Some women make a hobby of herbs and collect plants from all over the world. Dipping into old books they reconstruct Colonial gardens; societies provide enthusiasts an opportunity to exchange plants and information.

Growing and Cooking.

Herbs are easy to grow. They require for the most part poor, well-drained, gravelly soil with plenty of warmth, sunlight and air. Space between the plants to allow for full foliage development, regular cultivation and considerable admiration will make them the centre of interest in any garden.

The secret of cooking with herbs is to use only enough to enhance the natural flavor of the dish without dominating it. Fresh or dried there are year round palate teasers. Sandwiches, salads, omelettes, stews, cream cheeses and fruit drinks are all material for trying one's hand as a herb flavorer — but lightly, madam, lightly.

We may even return to tisanes or herb teas if the ration is reduced. Brewed in the same manner as tea in a china pot with boiling water, dried catnip, sage, mint and pennyroyal make refreshing drinks.

Whatever the purpose — gardening, cooking, drinking — herbs conjure up a picture of the "homey" past and add spice to the never failing pleasure of eating. Their fragrance lends romance to the gardens which of necessity this year are practical as well as ornamental.

Perhaps not many of us have either the time or the space to become herb specialists, but we can all grow a few and have first-hand the thrill of their piquant flavor often lacking in the commercial product.

Ancient Remedies.

Parsley was used by the Greeks as head wreaths for victors in games and by the Romans to absorb the fumes of wine and so delay inebriation. In the 18th century it was believed that powdered parsley seed rubbed on the head would prevent baldness. Today it is a garnish, one of the best sources of vitamin C, very necessary but elusive, and easily destroyed by cooking. Eating the garnish is now considered "good form."

Sage, wedded to onions in roast goose, is also a herb of history. The word itself means "wise" said to have risen from the belief that the plants strengthen the memory. Cut when the plant is just coming into flower, and dried hanging in a dustless place the leaves are rubbed down to be stored in air-proof containers.

Body Balance a Beauty Aid

Janet Blair is graceful as well as beautiful

By HELEN FOLLETT

SUPPOSE YOU, gentle reader, were put through a test for agility, grace, posture. What do you fancy would be your rating? That's an interesting question. Visualize yourself walking across a room. It's a simple act, yet few women do it beautifully.

What do you look like when standing? Let us hope you are erect and vibrant. Just how do you seat yourself in a chair? Is the pose pleasing, feet placed close together, body kept tall?

Try Running

Lovely movements are a good looks asset. Some women seem to float through the air when they walk. They step lightly, carry the body with no effort. Others, poor dears, just plod along. Or they take little jerky, sissy steps. Or they swing their hips. Hip swingers are our pet peeve.

Put yourself through your paces, just for fun. When you are out doors and nobody's looking, run for half a block. You should be able to do it with little effort, no puffing or snorting. That is, if you are under 45. Even then, it can be accomplished, if you have been exercise minded, kept the musculature young and resilient.

The graceful woman appears to move with perfect ease. Legs swing from the hips. Arms never have an awkward pose. Head is held high.

Body Balance

Body balance is the secret of good carriage, splendid posture. You obtain it by holding the abdomen in, the chest out. Yes, and by wearing the kind of shoes that give you a firm foothold. If you prance around on spiked heels you are bound to be uncertain and totterish. Here we are back again, on our favorite topic for scornful remarks.

The shoe situation is improving. Fancy a girl in uniform wearing high heels! Also, permit us to remark that spikes look pretty silly with slacks.

Catholic High Mass Pictured in Sound Film "The Eternal Truth"

The moving picture "The Eternal Gift" shown at St. Michael's auditorium Wednesday night was well attended. The picture is a ten-reel sound movie of the Catholic High Mass. The celebrant of the Mass was Rev. Father J. R. Krane, O.S.M., Right Rev. Monsignor Fulton J. Sheehan narrator. The picture of the Mass was excellent and was very fully explained.

The choir of 125 boys' voices with symphony orchestra was outstanding. An added attraction "A Trip to the Holy Land" with Lowell Thomas sponsored by the Sovereign Film Distributors of Toronto and operated by R. Hague was also shown. The picture "The Eternal Gift" was shown in Toronto for two weeks also in Hamilton, Brantford and London for one week and will be shown at Windsor for two weeks. All who did not see this picture last night will have an opportunity tonight.

Fashion Flashes

There's absolutely nothing like a topper for general spring and summer coat wear. A wonderful new model, either in topper or full length, has raglan shoulders with huge platter buttons. Comes in all-wool doeskin in red, caramel beige or blue.

Country cousins and suburbanites are eager customers for smartly cut and styled slacks suits done in washable fabrics. A very dressy slacks suits is of white rayon serge, the Eton jacket trimmed with black and white braid and closing with a big jet button

It's marvelous how skillfully designers handle small yardage and yet give a frock or suit an easy fit and comfort. Three yards of any crepe cut on the bias suffices for a handsome afternoon frock with long tight sleeves. Sheer matching lace ruffles fill in the deep oval neckline, edge the cuffs and continue up the sleeve to the elbow.

On the march on some of the newest suits are rows of tiny buttons. Black faille is used for a pretty town suit, the gently bloused bodice fastens up the front with a hem-to-neckline row of self-loops and tiny black pearl buttons with glittering centres.

Questions and Answers

This column is sponsored by the Regional Office, Wartime Prices and Trade Board. Questions on price control, ration regulations and other Wartime Prices and Trade Board rulings should be mailed to the Information Branch, Wartime Prices and Trade Board, Victoria Building, Brockville, Ontario:

Q.—I wish I could convince my husband, who has always been a heavy meat eater, that he will not suffer under the quantities which will be allowed him when meat is rationed. Can you help me?

A.—Canada's leading authorities on nutrition are unanimous in declaring that a ration allowance of about two pounds of meat a week is ample to preserve health, even for those engaged in the heaviest occupations. As a matter of fact, some of the world's most active men subsist upon a much lower consumption. I am certain your husband will find that his rations are quite adequate and he will have the additional satisfaction of knowing that his reduced consumption of meat will facilitate shipments to the troops overseas and the heavily-rationed people of the United Kingdom.

Q.—Will you please repeat the instructions regarding obtaining extra sugar for cooking rhubarb?

A.—Until May 31 any consumer who presents his No. 1 spare "B" blue coupon to his supplier will be entitled to purchase one pound of sugar for the home cooking of Canada-grown rhubarb.

Q.—We are about to move to Washington, D.C., where my husband has received an appointment. What will I do with our ration books?

A.—Any consumer leaving Canada to reside elsewhere must forward his ration book to his Local Ration Board.

Q.—Does a false statement or return to the Prices Board about stocks of rationed goods, etc., constitute a violation?

A.—Most certainly it does. A restaurant proprietor was recently fined $150 for making a false statement about his stocks of sugar, tea and coffee and a landlord was also fined $150 for unlawfully increasing his rentals and for making a false statement to his local rentals committee.

Q.—The firm of dry cleaners which which I do business used to offer a two-for-one special, which it has now discontinued. Is that not a breach of the prices regulations?

A.—Of course it is, provided it was the custom of the firm to offer such a special during the basic period of September 15-October 11, 1941. It has been ruled that such firms must continue that service since it forms part of their regular price structure.

Q.—Can you tell me if the restrictions upon deliveries now in force are really proving beneficial to our war effort?

A.—There can be no doubt whatever about it. It is estimated that the total saving made by curtailment of wholesalers' deliveries will amount to 200,000,000 miles a year, which represents a marked saving of gasoline, rubber and motorized equipment, while one large department store estimates a saving of as much as 200,000 gallons of gasoline a year because of the delivery regulations.

Coupons 6, 7 and 8, which became valid earlier, will also expire on May 31, along with blue coupons No 1, which is now good for the purchase of an extra pound of sugar for the home cooking of Canada-grown rhubarb.

Coupons for canning sugar, to be distributed this month, will begin to fall due on June 1.

It should be noted that, beginning May 13, two butter coupons will fall due every second Thursday, instead of one each Thursday, and this procedure will continue for the period of the present ration books.

Mother Fitness High Necessity To Coming Baby

New York, May 6.—(CP)—Having a baby is the greatest adventure in any woman's life, writes Dr. Martha M. Eliot, associate chief of the Children's Bureau, United States Department of Labor, in connection with Uncle Sam's National Baby Week (April 6 to May 2.)

If you're a mother-to-be, just turn your thoughts away from all gloomy things to the joy you will feel when you hold your baby in your arms. Remember that the happier your frame of mind, the easily you will face the big day when the baby arrives. You must be ready for that day, with a healthy body and a cheerful outlook.

Imitate the athlete who trains constantly for physical fitness. Get daily exercise. Not violent exercise nor excessive hard work, of course. But you should spent two hours every day in the open air and sunshine, if housework and weather permits.

In your home, let your husband or some other helper take over the heavier tasks for awhile. Particularly avoid reaching and lifting and pushing heavy things around. When you're outdoors walk as much as you can without tiring.

Need of Sleep

You may be an athlete, but a small dose of sports will go a long way at this time! Golf, tennis, and swimming may be indulged in moderately, the first-few months of pregnancy. Most physicians advise against long automobile trips at any time during pregnancy and suggest that during the last month or two of pregnancy women drive cars themselves only short distances and avoid heavy traffic.

Get at least eight hours sleep every night, and take a nap in the daytime, too. Your clothing should be loose, so as not to interfere with the breathing, the circulation, or the increase in the size of the baby. Wrap-around dresses are convenient, but if you prefer the two-piece style, have the skirt attached to a bodice so that the weight hangs from the shoulders.

High Heels Strain

A maternity corset relieves back strain and is ape to make you more comfortable. High heels throw the body out of its natural position and cause strain. Besides, they may cause a dangerous fall. Wartime walking shoes, with low, broad heels, are just the thing for you. Your share in your country's effort at present should be a "physical fitness" campaign for yourself and the new recruit.

WHY NOT HAVE BABY SLEEP THROUGH NIGHT

YOU and your baby both need sleep. There is a sure and easy way to get it. Let Mrs. B——, Jr., of Winona, Ontario, tell you in her own words: "Night after night, as soon as we would get settled in bed, 'Baby' would start crying. . . . Baby's Own Tablets changed all this. What a blessed relief."

In no sense are these "sleeping" tablets. They contain no opiates or stupefying drugs. They help give refreshing sleep by clearing away wastes and poisons that disturb rest.

Sweet-tasting, easily crushed to a powder, if desired—Baby's Own Tablets bring quick relief from teething troubles, constipation, simple fever, diarrhoea, upset stomach, colic, simple croup and colds. Try them. 25 cents.

PROME IN BURMA SHARPLY RAIDED BY RAF BOMBERS

Enemy Railway Installations Set Afire Following Heavy Explosions

TOUNGOO ATTACKED

New Delhi, May 6 — (CP) — A British communique said today that R. A. F. Wellington bombers made a sharp attack on enemy railway installations at Prome in Burma, setting large fires in the yards and causing one heavy explosion.

British ground forces reported active patrolling on the west side of Mayu Ridge and said casualties had been inflicted on small parties of Japanese troops encountered southwest of Buthedaung.

A Japanese unit which occupied a small hill near the Maungdaw-Buthedaung road was quickly dislodged, the communique said. R.A.F. fighters and bombers were reported in active co-operation with ground troops.

American heavy bombers dropped more than 30 tons of bombs Tuesday on Japanese installations in Toungoo, blasting the enemy headquarters there and causing great damage to other buildings, a communique of the U. S. Army Air Forces announced.

The attack on Toungoo was accompanied by a raid by medium bombers on railway installations at Nyngyan, west of Mandalay, where hits were registered on tracks and storage sheds and a turntable was demolished, the communique said.

All aircraft returned from these and other operations.

In the Toungoo attack, fliers noted that black smoke, characteristic of oil fires, billowed up after two secondary explosions.

Member Implies Frau Hess Has Joined Husband

London, May 6 — (CP) — William J. Thorne, Labor, implied in a written question he submitted in the House of Commons today that Frau Rudolf Hess had joined her husband in Britain. Hess, Hitler's deputy, has been a prisoner of war since his mysterious flight to Scotland from Germanf in 1943.

Mr. Thorne asked "whether the £15,000 worth of securities that Rudolf Hess had when he landed in Scotland is being used to pay for the keep of himself and family now in this country."

The Prime Minister's reply will be made later.

In reply to a question asked in Commons last October, Mr. Thorne was informed that Frau Hess was not in Britain and that there was no question of granting her facilities to come here.

Britain produced 135,000 tons of home-grown tomatoes last year, a 75,000-ton increase over pre-war figures.

ESCAPEE CAUGHT IN HOTEL ROOM

O.P.P. Constable Surprises Walter Johnston, Says He Found $2,300 in Jewelry

Nairn Centre, Ont., May 6—(CP)—Walter Johnston, who escaped from St. Catharines jail by sawing the bars and slugging a jailer, was captured here last night. Nairn Centre is 35 miles from Sudbury.

Provincial Constable Thomas Crawford, who entered Johnston's hotel room with a drawn gun, said he found $2,300 in jewelry and two loaded revolvers. Crawford said Johnston was asleep with the guns under his pillow but surrendered when awakened by the officer. He appeared in Sudbury police court today charged with breaking into Minden's jewelry store early Wednesday and stealing $2,300 in rings.

Police at Nairn Centre were notified of the robbery and were asked to check all recent arrivals. Constable Crawford learned a man had checked into the hotel early Wednesday and raided his room.

Johnston had been charged in Oshawa last February, police said, with attempting to enter a jewelry store and having burglar tools. He was released on $1,500 bail and committed for trial. While awaiting trial he was caught on the roof of a St. Catharines jewelry store. He sawed through the bars of the jail on April 27, attacked the guard, Oscar Lamberton and escaped.

Civilians Urged to Give Full Support to Loan

Group Captain McBurney Makes Appeal During Presentation of "Wings Over Footlights"

MONEY NEEDED NOW

Men and women of the Canadian fighting forces are offering their dollars as well their services in the present fight for freedom and have every right to expect civilians to back their efforts to the utmost.

This is what Group Captain R. E. McBurney, commanding officer of Trenton Air Station told a packed civilian audience at the Belleville collegiate auditorium Wednesday evening when as part of the "Wings Over the Footlights" presentation, he appealed for 100 percent support of the Fourth Victory Loan.

"I am not here to appeal to your sense of patriotism or duty," stated the air officer, "but rather to point out to you the cold basic facts underlying the Fourth Victory Loan.

"The war has got to be paid for and the only way this can be done is through taxation. And the only way we can get away from this heavy taxation is to quit cold. We all know what the would mean."

In simple and understandable words Group Captain McBurney expained that while taxation was the only method by which the government could raise the necessary money to pay for the war, the burden of taxation may be spread over a period of years.

Relieves Excessive Taxation

However, the money was needed immediately, he stated. Therefore the necessary money was being borrowed from the taxpayers in order that they may be relieved of immediate excessive taxation. This money would be paid back after the war with money raised through taxation of luxuries now off the market due to essential materials being used for war equipment.

"The armed forces are doing their share in subscribing to the loan," concluded Group Captain McBurney. "The Army and Air Force training stations have gone over their quotas. Trenton has oversubscribed its $125,000 objective.

"Men and women of the services have already done their share, and they are asking that civilians come forth and subscribe their money to the Fourth Victory Loan."

British Watch For Straw Often It Is Danger Signal

(By K. P. Wood in Boston Globe)

An American soldier on liberty in London was watching workmen raze the two remaining walls of a tall building that had been bombed in an air raid. Paying no heed to the scattering of straw on the ground about him, the soldier was intent upon the work of demolition when a passing Britisher offered the following piece of friendly warning:

"You'll get your blooming 'ead knocked off by that swinging crane if you don't watch out! Don't you see that straw there?"

Thus the American learned the meaning of straw as a danger signal in Great Britain and other parts of Europe. This use of straw in lieu of the red flag or the red lantern is widespread.

Vagrants in the north of England fight shy of farmhouses whose gates are planted about with wisps of straw, for it means, among other things, that an unfriendly watchdog is in the offing. The man in the street of London sometimes meets the same mute warning. It may mark a pavement torn up, a building made dangerous by bombing, and seen outside a warehouse it denotes that a hoist is in use.

In the rural parts of England and Scotland a lad carrying a straw in his hat, or perhaps between his teeth, is known in every farmyard for a plowman or a stable boy, or the like, in search of employment. Articles for sale, in other districts are marked with a bundle of straw. Farmers, where they have fowls or eggs for sale, plant a pole in the road near the house and adorn its top with the homely symbol.

A horse's tail well plaited with straw, with the straw ends turned up, mark him for sale, but garnished more roughly with straw wisps, designates him as a kicker. Straw tied to the stall also indicates a kicking horse, and in similar fashion a bundle of it on a gatepost at a short cut over a pasture may give warning of an unruly bull within. Some farmers give further notice by fastening a bundle of it to the animal's horns.

In the farming sections, in winter and spring, the fox hunter always watches for straw, for when he comes upon it tied to the top of a tall red pole he must look out for barbed wire. When hedges are strewn with it he must rein up to keep out of freshly sown wheat or clover fields. During the hunting season on the Yorkshire moors tall sticks are placed along the pathways and hung with straw. They bid the peasantry beware of the stray shots of the sporting gentry.

Miners, extending this old world custom underground, warn comrades of dangerous pitfalls on various levels and in tunnels by means of straw thrown about the mine floor. Considerable straw was scattered around certain sections of much bombed East Anglia in places where enemy shells fell thickest, and more frequently as a warning that the area was to be avoided.

In Germany workmen repairing the roofs of houses hang a bundle of straw from the top window as a danger signal to passers-by, while bricklayers in Norway and Denmark tie a similar bundle to the top of the scaffold to signify that the chimney pots are set and their work is finished.

In the south of England a bundle of straw left in a field is a sign that the gleaners are not let allowed to gather the grain left by the reapers. In the west, neighbors show their contempt for wife beating by tying straw to the door handles of the houses in which such cruel husbands live.

Fastened to a pole stuck in a newly sown field, a bundle of straw serves as a scarecrow, but secured to the roof of a farmhouse in many parts of Ireland it is an invitation to passers-by to enter and drink the health of the bride and groom who have just taken up a residence within, an invitation eagerly looked for by newly arrived American soldiers who have learned the time honored custom.

Great Caskets of Indian Jewels

(By Sonia Tamara, writing to The New York Herald Tribune from Hyderabad, India).

Fabulous wealth lies idle buried in jewels in this state where feudal customs of 300 years ago live side by side with modern progress. Some people say that His Exalted Highness the Nizam of Hyderabad, first among all Indian princes, is the richest man in the world.

There are legends about gold and jewels buried in his vaults. I have not seen them, but I have held in my hand a long string of pearls and emeralds as big as pigeon eggs belonging to some of the Hyderabad noblemen. One of these noblemen offered me to choose among small diamonds dug in the mines on his estate. These mines were famous in old times as the Golconda Mines, but now are exhausted.

My host held a silver box and it was filled with stones, not too valuable, but good enough for our Western taste. I felt embarrassed and took a small stone, but he picked one big enough to set in a ring and gave it to me as though he were giving a piece of candy.

I had lunch in a palace owned by Salarjung Bahudur, whose grandfather was a famous Prime Minister.

Salarjung has no wives and no heirs, yet his wealth is inferior only to that of the Nizam. After lunch I was taken through his collections of lovely Persian miniatures and Western pictures — most of which were third rate—beautiful Chinese jade and jewels.

A large casket was brought by two servants, and an elderly burly nobleman, dressed in European clothes, too, one box after another, producing rings with enormous diamonds, rows of emerald buttons and strings of pearls that would hang below the waist if worn.

Some of the emeralds had verses from the Koran carved on them, others had large diamonds inset.

At Kamaljar, Jungs, at the house of a nobleman, whose wife I visited in her zenana, I saw a god's head, as a goose head carved in light green emeralds. When I asked about the Golconda diamond mines he said casually, "They are in my land, but the diamonds must mature for some time yet."

Robin's Habits Are Described By Ornithologist

The birds of Canada are a natural asset that few people know anything about, and there is a lesson to be learned from each one, Alex Kay, Peterborough ornithologist, told members of the Kiwanis Club in an interesting address in which he featured the robin, says the Peterborough Examiner.

"The robin is one of the nicest and most interesting birds there is and does a lot of good, and so is protected by law. A robin will not breakfast until he has a bath and you can often see a line-up like that in a barber shop, as each bird awaits its turn. Even if the feed is put alongside the tub, none of them will touch it until after the bath.

"Up to Good Friday only the males had come back. If people are good to them they will return to the same place as last year. If you want to feed them, make a habit of giving their food with a little signal, a whistle or tapping sound, and then within a week of their return they'll recognize you and come back."

One of the facts about a robin that is not generally known Mr. Kay related is the fact that they all, male and female, wear "glasses." They are of course not glass but made of a film of cellophane. Each robin has two lower eyelids, he continued, and all the bird has to do is blink and they're on. They use them to look at the sun, in rain and snow storms and particularly in fighting. Bills bounce on and off the "glasses" like rubber balls. The appearance of something like a fine white thread shows that they are on.

Like Ice Cubes.

To show that robins have a good deal in common with humans Mr. Kay said that he put 12 or 14 ice cubes a day in their drinking water and the birds were very fond of it. They have an intelligent approach to their problems and even carry a doctor with them.

Another of the more interesting birds which the speaker told about was the quail. They reproduce faster than other birds and unlike them nest in the ground, he said. The female quail lays 16 eggs twice in a season and when they hatch there are 12 males and 4 females. But because the males like to show off their plumage about eight out of the twelve get shot and so nature adjusts itself, Mr. Kay declared.

Well Protected.

When these birds sleep they form a circle like a wheel. Their tails are like hubs as they sleep with them inward and their heads outward. In this way they can see in every direction and if there is any danger the wiggle of a tail is sufficient warning and they are gone.

"Birds are divided into families just as we are and they have the teacher, preacher and comedian, and do the very same things we do. Today we can tell how many birds there are in the country for we take a census every year and we can tell how much of any type of food they consume.

"The general public doesn't understand birds and they give many birds a bad name. The crow is one of the best scavengers we have and yet his reputation is not particularly good. Actually he does fine work. A crow will live to be 100 years old and while they do not have any law to protect them, they are smart birds. One of their favorite dishes is poison ivy berries," he asserted.

In dealing with the starling Mr. Kay said that this bird was imported from Central Europe and as with all imported birds had not proven to be successful. When birds are turned loose in a strange country without any friends, they take up with the first one who shows any kindness and they soon pick up their habits. The starlings are robbers and follow the bad example set by the blackbirds. They do a certain amount of good, but their bad acts far outweigh their good ones. He suggested that the Government should offer a bonus for the elimination of these birds. They ruin whatever they come in contact with.

War Workers Ask Support --And Get It

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Fashion Editor

New York, May 6 —(CP)— War, believe it or not, has caused a revolution in the corset industry.

Manufacturers accustomed to change the shape of the female population at will, governed only by the vagaries of fashion, now find themselves face to face with reality in the form of millions of women-in-overalls.

Rosie the Riveter and her legion of sisters have put the facts squarely on the table, and the girdle manufacturers have hastened to revise their lines. Says Rosie:

"What we need is a girdle to wear with our work slacks and coveralls. It has to be a pantie girdle, but one strong enough to give proper support to a gal who stands on her feet eight to 12 hours a day. We don't want any satin-and-lace nonsense. We want a girdle that will keep us from getting a back-ache."

Aiming to Please.

That's why you'll find corset departments assuming a down-to-earth attitude this spring. That's why you'll find pantie girdles by the hundreds, scientifically designed, strengthened with stays and in all sizes from juniors to 44-inch waist measurement.

Shops have found that wartime corset buyers are looking for support. Doctors have found that the correct foundation garment prevents workers' fatigue, aids health. So the manufacture of girdles, threatened last year as a non-essential use of rubber, now becomes a vital war industry.

It is usually of sturdy fabric, with criss-cross tape reinforcements at back and abdomen, elastic panels at sides only, and front-and-back boning.

Housewives Too.

Since the new garments have appeared on the market, housewives have snapped them up almost as fast as factory workers, having found them just as practical for Victory gardening as for assembly lines.

Along with the girdles goes sales talk for correct posture. Health directors in war plants advise women to straighten up and breathe deeply whenever they feel the abdomen slumping against the girdle front. Housewives are following suit — and soon we'll have a nation of Dianas.

Council Presents Mayor McKibbon With Tea Service

Picton —(Special) — Mayor G. Nesbitt McKibbon was honored by town council and town officials at the council meeting Monday night when they made the presentation of a silver tea service.

Town Clerk F. L. Ward, K.C., read a humorous address of advice, coupled with an expression of good wishes and felicitations on the approaching marriage of the mayor.

Town Treasurer C. G. Rutter presented the lovely gift.

In expressing his appreciation His Worship said the years spent in council had been a great pleasure and he hoped to continue as a member for years to come. The gift was much more than he expected or deserved, he felt, and he deeply appreciated the sentiments which prompted the presentation.

Councillor C. H. McGibbon and E. P. Cox of the Public Utilities paid tribute to the mayor, offering some helpful advice, the latter himself having been married for more than half a century.

To Enforce Curfew

The curfew law is to be rigidly enforced in Picton. This decision was made at town council.

Councillor B. Moore drew attention to the nine o'clock curfew which he felt should be enforced at once. He reported seeing boys and girls of 12 and 13 years of age out late at night.

Councillor Warren felt that with a concentration of armed forces here that something should be done. He reported young girls enjoying unusual freedom and observing late hours.

Councillor W. Henley, chairman of police, asked council to stand by him in getting action.

Town Clerk Ward pointed out the curfew law is set at nine o'clock and provided by statute under the Children's Protection Act.

Salary Increase Granted

Salary increases were granted Chief of Police B. Biddle and Constables Boyer and Pitt by town council. On motion of Henley-Campney, the chief will receive $110 per month and the constables $100 monthly.

The request for an increase came from the constables who said they understand that after three months' service on the police force that they would be given a raise in salary.

Councillors Moore and McGibbon felt that the chief should be included in any increase due to his length of service and experience, pointing out that it would be impossible to pay constables more than the chief. McGibbon felt $100 month was a small salary for policemen and said practically all towns pay more than Picton. He understood Port Hope paid the chief about $200 per month.

Councillor Henley said the constables were promised $5 a week increase after three months' service.

Town clerk Ward said he had watched the constables in police court and both were doing their work better than expected. A good salary is needed for law enforcement.

The constables received commendation for their work from the Mayor, Deputy Reeve Campney, and others.

Picton to Buy $8,500 in Bonds Of Victory Loan

Picton, May 5. — The Town of Picton will invest $8,500 in bonds of the Fourth Victory Loan. This will be taken from the surplus.

Mayor McKibbon introduced the matter by reporting a cash surplus of $8,500 on hand. There is also a surplus on paper in the form of uncollected taxes of from 15 to 20 thousand dollars. The town is in a good position to help the Loan and he felt a better investment could not be made and that it would come in handy after the war. The surplus was due to war conditions and he felt it would be doing something for the war effort.

Chairman of Finance R. Warren said he had dreams of lowering the tax rate, but if we don't win the war it won't make any difference what the tax rate is.

Councillor McGibbon felt it a good way to establish a sinking fund, to establish security and back a situation that needs backing.

The Mayor reported that Public Utilities had invested a surplus of $8,000 in Victory Bonds.

Airman Returns Home To Surprise Mother At Church Meeting

Stirling—As Mrs. W. L. Fox of Stirling was in the midst of an address to the ladies of St. Paul's Women's Association yesterday at the home of Mrs. H. L. Fair, the doorbell rang and there stood her son of the R.C.A.F. just arrived back from England. Colin Fox, who has been serving with R.C.A.F. in England for more than two years, arrived home while his mother was attending the meeting and was driven by his father to the place of meeting. There were tears of joy from the eyes of all the women present as Mrs. Fox finished her speech ironically entitled "Pioneer Mothers". Colin entered the room and shook hands with all the ladies present, most of whom were friends of his before leaving for overseas. He has been serving with the radio signal division of the R.C.A.F. in England and arrived a few days ago in Montreal from which place he wired his parents of his safe landing and word that he would arrive in Stirling later. His arrival yesterday was a total surprise to both parents.

Colin was one of the earliest members of the R.C.A.F. from Stirling and his many friends welcome him home after a long period of faithful service to his country.

St. Paul's W.A.

The May meeting of St. Paul's W.A. was held at the home of Mrs. H. L. Fair on Tuesday afternoon with the president, Mrs. J. L. Good, presiding over the business period. Following the use of the theme song and prayer by the leader, Mrs. Nora Wescott presented the secretary's report and the communications of the month reporting six cards sent forth since the last meeting. Roll call revealed 30 ladies present including three new members to the organization. Mrs. H. L. Fair and Mrs. Claude Tucker were named as visiting committee for the next month. A complete financial report was given by Mrs. M. Hick. Mrs. Earl Luery was appointed 1st Vice President for the remainder of the year term. Mrs. Harold West, Mrs. R. B. Duffin and Mrs. Nora Wescott were appointed as a delegation to the annual convention of W.A. and Ladies' Aid Society for the counties of Hastings and Prince Edward to be held in Holloway Street Church. Other items of business included arrangements for a hot supper to be held in the church parlours. Mrs. F. N McGee, convener of the program committee, presided over the splendid program of the day, which opened with hymn and prayer by Mrs. Pidgeon. The dual theme of the meeting was Faith and Prayer and "Our Pioneer Mothers." Mrs. Ted Reynolds read the scripture lesson. Mrs. Earl Luery gave an interesting reading. A touch of drama was added to the excellent reading "Pioneer Mothers" by Mrs. W. L. Fox when at the climax the doorbell rang to announce the arrival of her son, Colin of the R.C.A.F., returning from England. As a fitting climax to the fine program Mr. Fox entered and greeting each of the ladies personally. At this point Mrs. G. Bradshaw gave a reading "Thanks for Mother." Another hymn and the National Anthem closed the meeting. Mrs. Volney Richardson expressed the gratitude of the ladies to the hostess, Mrs. H. L. Fair. Mrs. F. N. McKee and the entire committee for the fine program provided. Those responsible included Mesdames F. N. McKee, Ted Reynolds, W. L. Fox, Earl Luery, Pidgeon, G. Brawshaw, W. Hawkins and Mrs. Arthur Gordinier.

DAVIS PREDICTS OPENING SECOND FRONT THIS YEAR

Possibly May Have to Leave Pocket of Resistance at Bizerte

IN ARTILLERY RANGE

By STERLING F. GREEN
Associated Press Staff Writer

Washington, May 6—(AP)—Director Elmer Davis of the office of War Information said today there is "no question but that there will be Allied operations on Continental Europe this summer."

Davis, asked whether Allied forces could clean up North Africa soon enough to permit invasion of the continent this year, said he was confident they could.

However, he added, it might be necessary to leave a pocket of Axis resistance at Bizerte to be reduced by sustained pounding even while the continental operations are under way. The big naval base of Bizerte already is within heavy artillery range of Allied troops to the north.

"The Allies may encounter difficulty when they get the Axis knocked down to Bizerte, where the Germans evidently intend to make their final stand," said Davis, who is in close touch with military strategists here.

"In my opinion, it would be possible to go ahead with the invasion plans even though Bizerte remains for a time in Axis hands."

Davis gave these opinions in a brief interview. At his Press Conference yesterday he emphasized that Allied successes in Tunisia were the result of operations Allied in fact as well as in name.

"It is the continuous pressure on all parts of the Germans by British, French and American troops that produced break-throughs on one or another part of the front," Davis said.

HEAVYWEIGHT GUARDS FRENCH COAST

As the zero hour approaches for a United Nations invasion of Europe, the men who plan it are under no delusion concerning the difficulties which must be overcome by our fighting men. Facing the English Channel along the coast of France the Nazis have built one of the most powerful systems of fortifications in the world — the Schnelle Line. It is believed to mount one gun for every twenty yards of coast and to cover every landing point by fire from three directions. One of its largest pieces of artillery is shown here. The picture is from the latest National Film Board release "Invasion of Europe," which sizes up the possibilities of attack against various points of the fortress the Germans have built around Europe.

Britons may lay in more fuel than the "ration" during May, June and July, but they must sign a solemn pledge to make it last out until the end of March, 1944.

In a leading industrial plant in the Eastern Region of Britain more than seven tons of coal are being saved each week through "staggered" lunch hours.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.

If You Like a Food You Get More Nourishment From It

In these days when so much is being learned about food values and what are the most nourishing foods for both soldiers and civilians, there is one point that is being overlooked. I am referring to what is called the "brain appetite" which means the appreciation or enjoyment of food because it appeals to the eye, to the sense of smell, to the taste, all of which are under the control of the brain.

What does it mean from the digestive standpoint of you like the sight, smell, and taste of a certain food and have memories of how much you have enjoyed it on former occasions?

It means that three digestive juices immediately begin to flow from the mouth, stomach, and pancreas as their digestive juices —saliva, gastric and pancreatic—make ready for the food which has not even entered the mouth. Added to this is the fact that these three digestive juices continue to flow for forty-five minutes, thus giving the food a flying start in digestion.

There has been much controversy over the food value of white bread as compared with whole wheat bread. Now there is no question but that whole wheat bread contains more vitamins and minerals than white bread but allowance is seldom made for the fact that white bread appeals more to the brain appetite of most individuals than does whole wheat bread. Thus, remembering the increased flow of digestive juice caused by brain appetite, it must be admitted that properly baked white bread, fortified with vitamin B is more completely used in the body than whole wheat bread.

A striking illustration of the effects of brain appetite, that is liking a food, is recorded in the British Lancet and in the British Medical Journal.

Dr. Harriette Chick used nine young rats in all and found the group fed upon white flour, fortified with vitamin B1 grew much less than those fed on whole meal. However, Dr. Margaret Wright pointed out that the rats on white flour had actually not eaten their rations probably because they did not like white flour. In her experiments on 25 rats, she ensured that each group ate the same quantities by cutting down the rations of the greedier feeders (the whole meal group) till they equaled the rations of the poorer feeders. She found then that there was no difference in rate of growth between rats eating fortified white flour and those eating whole meal.

ENDORSES BASIC STIPEND

Montreal, May 6. (CP)—Eighty-fourth session of the Synod of the Anglican Diocese of Montreal yesterday endorsed the principle of one basic Diocesan stipend, with family and special allowances, and then decided to ask the General Synod to look into the principle with a view to adopting it for the whole Church of England in Canada.

FARMER STARTS PLANTING WHERE AIRMEN PLANNED

St. Thomas, Ont., May 6. (CP)—Officers at No. 4 Bombing and Gunnery School, R.C.A.F., said they were all set to plant a Victory Garden when in walked a farmer and started planting. Apparently the land, owned by the R.C.A.F., had been rented to the farmer without the knowledge of the would-be gardeners.

FEEDING PULLETS THE FUL-O-PEP WAY SAVED ME ENOUGH TO BUY A NEW WAR BOND!

Isn't there some way that you can use the considerable savings you can make on feed cost feeding new pullets the Ful-O-Pep Way!

Some have asked why a commercial feed manufacturer advocates a plan of restricted feeding. The answer is simple. By advocating this basic principle in the Ful-O-Pep Rearing Plan, substantial economies are possible to alert poultrymen, and at the same time he can raise stronger, healthier birds than by unlimited feeding. With Ful-O-Pep Chick Starter* and Growing Mash*—so exceptionally rich in nutritive values and Vitamins—as a foundation of the Ful-O-Pep Plan, poultrymen may complete the growing ration with greater quantities of whole oats and scratch grains . . . thus saving considerable amounts of money.

We believe this to be an important contribution to the practical poultryman's method of operation.

Leaflets on the Loan

By Stephen Leacock

The Righteous Indignation of Angus McCordell

There is, of course, a radio in Jeff's barber shop in Mariposa. But Jeff never feels very sure about turning it on. People are peculiar. It's all right if it's baseball or anything like that, but Jeff says customers are touchy. Why he's known some people object even to the Farm and Produce Prices,—get right up out of the chair,—think of that!

Stephen Leacock

Of course the war is alright, that is, when it's really war news, but Jeff says customers are apt to get a little restless if it's just war talk. He says a lot of it sounds too much like religion. He admits that no doubt it's not meant that way, but customers resent it all the same.

So Jeff finds that the best plan is just to keep the radio going quietly so that in a way you hear it and yet it doesn't interrupt anybody. Jeff himself is fully satisfied with the result because no doubt being right there beside the chair he can keep one ear each way. You have to, anyway, in running a barber shop.

But for people sitting round the shop it's different. It sounds like alternate talk, first this, then that, especially as the customers pay no attention to what is very often earnest pleading and butt right in on it. Perhaps the radio speakers have got into a set, stereotyped way that fails to carry conviction. That may be it. If so, the customers are not so wrong.

The talks run something like this,— . . . "Surely we realize that in this great world struggle for freedom we ought to feel that no effort is too great."

"With a good push Toronto could move up into second place. That must be a dandy pitcher, that new feller they have . . . "

"That's so."

. . . "Is it not then our duty towards all that we cherish . . . "

"How are the roads out past Medora? . . . "I didn't come that way. I went round by the third but they are not apt to be any too good at this time of year. Of course with plenty of gravel . . . "

"The Hun can be crushed, will be crushed. We must be strong and spare not till the whole foul brood of Nazism has been extirpated and then . . . "

"Potatoes will be up to three dollars for dead sure" . . .

That's the way it generally went and we got used to it. But last Monday afternoon it was different. There were quite a few people in the barber shop and naturally they were talking about the Loan and one fellow, — I won't name him, but it was Peter McGaw—said he didn't see much profit in taking three per cent when a fellow could easy get six on a town mortgage. And he said he wasn't taking any of the Loan. And quite a few fellers, — it wouldn't be fair to give their names; Joe Ekers was one,—spoke up and said they'd no idea of taking any.

You see it just happened that way. Fellers are like that. Now another day it might be just the other way.

Well, just then there was a man began to talk over the radio who could talk. Yes, sir. And he was talking of righteous indignation and when he spoke of it he sent a tingle through your blood and heroism to your heart. I don't know who he was. If you had heard him you'll remember it was a voice with a strong Scottish accent and there was truth and power in every word.

"Don't be afraid to be angry, to be crazy angry, to be filled with righteous indignation. Nothing else has ever won a war. Nothing ever will, nothing but the flaming righteousness of the spirit that counts death as nothing."

The shop grew still and even Jeff stopped the clippers clipping.

The voice went on.

"All history shows it, the history of your country here and of mine at home. What but the power of the spirit, ever animated the men of Scotland to stand firm to death at Culloden and wring Victory from Waterloo. I tell you, strike these people down! Kill and spare not! Death is their portion!"

Sitting against the wall of the barber shop was a big crooked Highland man, too tall, as they all are, to sit properly anywhere and as he listened to the radio I could see his fingers buckle and clench and the fire flash in his blue eyes. This was Angus McCordell, the "crazy Highlander." We all knew him. Below the tamoshanter that he wore there was a deep mark furrowed along the side of his head. That was from the battle of the Somme and the two bent fingers on his left hand were from after he went back again, and the half limp in his leg from the third time. He had a blue eye and a clear face and a stubble beard, half red, half grey. He was twenty years old at the Somme. So that will give you his age.

That was Angus McCordell and he lived by himself out on the fifth concession and some people said he was crazy and some said half-crazy.

He was a wild man anyway. When he got angry nothing stopped him. He reached for his double-barrelled gun and started after somebody. There were car thieves around Mariposa one summer, terrorizing the farms outside the town. Angus went after a gang of five. One he shot full of buckshot and one dead. The rest got away in their car. There've been no car thieves around since.

Show Angus any wrong or cruelty and he'd flame up at once, and go for his gun and get after it. That was all right and no doubt made for righteousness. But at other times Angus would take fire at some purely imaginary idea in his crazy Highland head and come raging into town with his gun, looking for trouble. Then the Chief of Police, who was Scottish himself, would chase after Angus and drive him out home in his car. So that was why people said that Angus McCordell was crazy.

The radio appeal ended with a call to give . . . give . . . give,—that those who held back were unworthy to be citizens . . .

As it ended, Angus jumped up from his seat, shaking his clenched hand.

"Yon's right, he said. "The man who won't give to this Loan is unfit to walk the street. He's a d . . . . . German. He should be shot in his tracks."

And he stormed out of the shop.

"Who's that?" said an alarmed city customer, crawling out from under a Russian shampoo.

They all told him in a babble. He's gone for his gun, they said. He'll be back in an hour raging up and down Main Street, looking for a man who hasn't subscribed to the Loan.

Peter McGaw was out first. They said he was over in the bank in two minutes, signing up for five hundred dollars. Joe Ekers was right after him. He was saying to the tellers that it would be a good thing if every feller who subscribed to the Loan could wear a white band, or something, on his arm so that people would know him on the street.

As the news about Angus went round town you could see men streaking from all directions to the banks. There were so many they had to wait in line.

Angus came sure enough,—with his double-barrelled shotgun,—raging up and down Main Street. The Chief of Police refused to stop him. "He's done nothing," he said. "He's made no threat against any assignable person. He said he'll kill any Hitlerite in Mariposa. He's entitled to. He says he'll put a charge of buckshot in any Nazi who refuses to subscribe to the Victory Loan. He's within his rights."

The Chief, as I said, was from the Highlands himself.

There was great relief that evening when Angus went off home. But it ended abruptly the next morning when he came back. In fact, things were worse. On the first day, to most people, it was no matter of personal alarm, indeed more or less a good joke on the slackers. But this next morning Angus was parading up and down the street in a sort of military fashion. He'd got a new idea. He was after the whole town now. He said that Mariposa had to raise its Quota, — that sum that it was pledged to raise. Raise that, he said, or he'd shoot up the whole street.

But the trouble is the Quota was put too high; everybody knew that. You know Mariposa. It was just vain glory and civic pride. They never expected to raise it.

Angus is on the street right now. The Chief of Police won't interfere. He says, let them raise the quota.

Most of them think they will. In fact, they're all at one another to do it. Angus will see that they do.

Nothing like righteous indignation, is there?

Game Birds Are Becoming A Nuisance!

(From the Calgary Herald)

There will be little shooting of game birds in Alberta this Fall unless the Wartime Prices and Trade Board at Ottawa sees fit to modify its order prohibiting the manufacture of shot gun shells. The order was based on the need of conserving the materials used in these shells and gasoline.

However, there are several other angles to the situation that should be taken into consideration by the board. One is that a very valuable source of meat supply will be shut off at a time when meat rationing is in full effect. Another is that game birds in Western Canada—ducks, geese, partridge, pheasants and prairie chickens — have become so plentiful that they constitute a serious menace to farm and garden crops in many districts. It is only through annual shooting periods that their numbers are kept within reasonable control.

Already complaints have been received from Brooks and other centres to the effect that wheat stooks and other grain left in the fields are being stripped bare during this stage of northern migration.

As Dr. Rowan of the University of Alberta, an authority on game birds, has pointed out, there is a more realistic approach to the subject of allowing the shooting of wild game and wild birds in Britain, Germany and the United States. In these countries it is being permitted because of the contribution thereby to the national meat supply. He points out further that if a reasonable supply of shotgun shells were turned out in Canada this year, the effect on the munitions output would be slight.

The consumption of gasoline in hunting trips need not be large because the severe rationing in force would compel hunters to use other forms of transportation, the railways for longer distances and the bicycle for short trips. Every game bird bagged would add so much to the available meat supply, and in a normal shooting year the amount would be considerable.

The hunter is the ally of the farmer. Extensive damage is caused every year to grain and other crops, Dr. Rowan states that myriads of northern mallards stayed in Alberta last Fall until the middle of November and did extensive damage to stooked grain

The prospects for this year are that the bird population will be greatly increased and unless there is an early harvest the loss will be still greater. Dr. Rowan believes that the daily limit of birds should be doubled to take care of the situation, instead of what amounts to an almost total blackout of hunting this Fall.

"IRISH" MONAHAN EASILY DEFEATED BY McCREADY

Took Both Referee and McCready to Write 'Finis' to Bout

GOOD PRELIMS

"Irish Jerry" Monahan, the former masked rassler, tasted the bitter pill of defeat at the Hume Arena last night, much to the satisfaction of some 900 rabid fans. However, it took the combined efforts of "Big Earl" McCready and Referee Phil Lawson to finally stamp "finis" on the pugnacious Monahan, after McCready had won the initial fall in the advertised main bout.

The defeat of Monahan was really something worth relating. Early in the second round Monahan clutched McCready in one arm and Lawson in the other and with brute force bumped their respective noggins together with Referee Lawson falling to the mat and apparently writhing in pain.

Like all villains Monahan made the true mistake of attempting to repeat his former success and laid hands on both his opponent and the official of the night. This time, however, Lawson and McCready decided to have a little fun on their own account and from each side picked the pacnyddermbuilt Monahan up bodily and when suspended released their grip and Monahan crashed bodily to the mat, where he proved an easy victim for a press, as McCready merely had to fall upon his prostrate body and the patrons howled with glee and then realizing the show was over wended their way from the local sports palace quite happy over the fact they had seen the villainous Monahan beaten.

In Angry Mood

Monahan was in an angry mood from the outset and attacked McCready before the starting bell sent the gladiators on their way to open hostilities. It was a wild melee and a three-way scrap from the start with Referee Lawson leaning noticeably in favor of the former British Empire champion after the big Irishman illegally (is that possible in rasslin') attacking McCready before the opening gong. It was lots of fun and action was personified with nearly 500 pounds of humanity hauling and pulling in every conceivable direction about the squared circle.

Things came to a pretty pass in that initial round when Monahan pulled McCready's hair and Lawson hauled and tugged at Monahan's wig in as neat a hair-pulling contest as any respectable lady could engage in. Monahan incited the crowd and was in a fair way to batter himself to victory when a drop kick back-fired and McCready caught the big Irishman mid-air with a flying mare and that was over with McCready the winner in 9.51 minutes. Monahan protested his shoulders were not pinned to the mat, but his complaints fell on deaf ears.

Had to Run Gauntlet

Came the pay-off when Lawson and McCready dropped Monahan as neatly to the canvas as one could desire and it was exit Mister Monahan. But wait—the fun was far from over. Then came the patrons' chance and they didn't miss their cue as "Irish Jerry" had to run the proverbial gauntlet to his dressing room amid the attacks of both male and female attackers. Yes, everybody had fun—that is everybody except Monahan. In winning McCready gained for himself the right to meet John Katan here next Wednesday night, both of these wrestlers being high-ranking contenders for a shot at champion Billie Watson's British Empire crown.

It was the villains' night all around. In the semi-final go Al Dunlop of Toronto, incited the crowd and employed everything not in the (?) rule book before he pinned Jack Pavlos, of Detroit in 21 minutes. Incidentally poor Pavlos tired himself out hauling and tugging the heavier Dunlop all over the place and that bout was over pronto. Although Jan Gotch, the Dutchman, assumed the villainous role in the curtain-raiser, pudgy Jack Wentworth of Stoney Creek, managed to stay the route in a 30-minute draw preliminary. Promoter Frank Tunney, of the Queensbury A.C. announced that as an added attraction next Wednesday "Gentleman Jack" Claybourne, a colored wrestler of prominence would appear at the Hume Arena.

Haegg and Rice May Not Meet

New York, May 6 (AP)—Add to wartime uncertainties the possibility that the heralded Gunder vs. Greg Rice foot racing duels this summer may have to go on without either Haegg or Rice.

Dan Ferris, secretary-treasurer of the Amateur Athletic Union, still is trying to reconcile plans for Haegg's United States tour with a report from Sweden that Haegg has said he will not run for the benefit of any war agencies. And Rice, who has been a chief specialist in the United States marine service for less than a week, doesn't know yet what his duties will be or whether he will have time to train and compete in track meets.

Haegg is due to reach the United States late this month, giving him about a month of preparation for the National A.A.U. championships here June 19 and 20.

FARMERS FROM ENGLAND

London, (CP)—A party of four British farmers, including Watson Jones of Newport, who farms more than 2,500 acres, is to visit Canada and the U.S. for the Agriculture Ministry to tell farmers there what Britain is doing to win the war on her farms and to exchange ideas.

Padres, doctors and sappers have been taught to jump with "paratroops" so that complete British military units can land at one time.

CASUAL COMMENT by K.J.C.

Judge (inquiring)—Did you notice any suspicious characters about the neighborhood?

New Officer—Sure, your honor! I saw but one man, and I asked him what he was doing there at that time of night. He said: "I have no business here right now, but I expect to open a bank in the vicinity later on.

Judge (heatedly)—Yes, and he did open a bank in the vicinity later on and steal $10,000.

New Officer—Well, your honor the man may have been a thief, but he was no liar.

Hittin' the Head Gin.

It's been a merry mix-up as the local bowling teams hit the stretch this may with ties and play-offs being necessary in some cases to determine league champions.

Take for example the C. N. R. league operating at the Recreation Alleys. At the end of the regular league schedule, that opened last autumn, the Yard team and the Stores finished tie with 75 points each. In Tuesday night's sudden death play-off the Stores team was triumphant and crowned champions for 1942-'43.

Over at the "Y" alleys there's a real tangle in the ladies' evening league. In one play-off the Alerts beat the Pick Ups two straight but are now awaiting a winner between Just Us and Happy Gang ladies, who are tied up in their play-off series.

At the Recreation Major "B" league the teams have hit the stretch with the Nomads a couple of points out in front of the "Just Us" girls, the only feminine team playing in a men's bowling league in this section of the province. Here the lassies can take the league honors (and would there be red faces then) by winning four points in their final game, provding the Nomads failed to pick up any scoring count.

The Major "A" league has the Belleville Golf well out in front, but for second place the Reliance and C. N. R. teams are all tied up and may have to play-off for that position yet. Yes, the races in local bowling circles have been the closest in years with every point counting right down to the last ball fired down the alleys.

Remember When—

Twelve years ago last night, Johnny Risko, the Cleveland baker-boy, gained a 12-round victory over Maxie Baer, the California heavyweight, who in 1934 later took the heavyweight boxing championship of the world by a technical knockout over Primo Carnera. One year later Jimmy Braddock, the cinderella boy of the ring, dethroned Baer. In 1937 Braddock lost the crown by Joe Louis, the present champion. In 1942 Braddock referred a wrestling bout at the Hume Arena in Belleville.

Purely War Industry

Chuck Barnett's Belleville Ladies' Softball League took on a full war industry background in the fact that every one of the teams entered are representing local war industry plants. Three years ago when girls softball was revived in Belleville there was only one industrial team in the league, Corbin Lock. Today the entire league roster of six clubs is one hundred percent industrial and engaged in vital war work. One difficulty confronting the girls' teams is the procuring of uniforms, upon which restrictions have been placed.

Another good move was the returning to the Armouries lawn, where all games will be played. Although the lawn isn't exactly adequate for softball, it is central and commands large galleries, which after all has to be taken into consideration when net gate receipts are to be given to war charities.

Each club must sign 15 players this year, but may release six and sign six additional ones before July 31st. In previous years only three players could be released for belated replacements. Efforts to enlarge the Armouries playing field are being considered by the league executive.

Two against one

It took the united efforts of Earl McCready and referee Phil Lawson to destroy Jerry Monahan's faith in human nature last night when McCready beat "Irish Jerry" 2 straight falls.

Trust Monahan to concoct original ideas, and he had a beaut when he bumped McCready and Lawson's noggins together with some success. However, the trick boomeranged when Jerry attempted to apply it a second time, as Lawson proved an apt ring scholar to assist McCready in dropping Monahan to the mat as you would a hot potato. The rest was easy, McCready merely having to fall on the prostrate Irishman to win. At any rate it was "some fun while it lasted" and Monahan was as angry as the proverbial wet hen. With Monahan disposed of Promoter Frank Tunney will next introduce the sensational "Gentleman Jack" Claybourne at the Hume Arena next Wednesday when McCready and Katan top the bill. Fun for all and all for fun.

A record worthy of note.

"The dean of active umpires, Bill McGowan, is ready for his nineteenth year in the majors," points out Bob Considine, International News Service sports columnist, who adds: "McGowan worked his first 16 and a half years in the American League without missing a game. In August, two years ago, he came down with a bad attack of arthritis and had to miss two days. He hasn't missed one since. We doubt if this record for consistency has ever been approached in baseball with the notable exception, of course, of the late Lou Gehrig's playing streak. To maintain the streak, McGowan once had to umpire 14 games, and behind the plate, with a broken toe. Another time he left a hospital in Wilmington, where his son was sick, and took a cab all the way to Philadelphia to keep his assignment."

Charles Ayres of Southwick, Sussex, has completed a double anniversary, his 83rd birthday and his 70th year as a cyclist. A former police chief, he still cycles, gardens and golfs.

A new depot for servicing 100 locomotives at once has been opened in the North Midlands, important to the war because of the tremendous strain on transport facilities.

TORONTO LEAFS BLESSED WITH GOOD HURLING

Team Open Home Stand at Top of the International Loop

MANY NEW FACES

By The Associated Press

International League clubs that have played 38 games in the not-always-sunny southern sector of their circuit without proving much, open in the northern cities today.

Whether the next round will prove more decisive remains open to question, since the clubs that have been playing in their home parks since the campaign began haven't much more to show for 17 than the usual home-team edge. But the prospects for good opening day attendances look a bit brighter than they were two weeks ago.

The schedule of second openings calls for Toronto, the current league leaders, to face Syracuse, Newark to play at Rochester, Baltimore at Montreal and Jersey City at Buffalo. All four northern cities are known as good baseball towns and there'll be added attractions to draw the fans in most of them.

Toronto, which hasn't had a winner in several years, jumped to the top this season on a string of brilliant pitching performances, including three successive shutouts and a five-game winning streak. Montreal, with a new manager and a number of new players sent along by Brooklyn Dodgers, also racked up most of its victories in a single streak. Royals slipped back to second division by losing their last 3 games on southern diamonds to Newark Bears, but at this stage of the season a three-game losing streak easily can be discounted.

Rochester and Buffalo, fifth and eighth in the current standings, also will be introducing new managers as well as new players to the home fans. Red Wings, who won five games and lost six in the south, are under the guidance of colorful Pepper Martin and the Bisons under Greg (Moe) Mulleavy, who enjoyed considerable popularity as a Bison player.

The public taste in radio programs has changed over the past two years, the BBC listener department reports. Good music is more popular, plays are booming, but theatre organs, dance bands, and crooners are less welcome than they were.

DOMINOES TAKES ONE-GAME LEAD OVER PATRICKS

Norm Baker Scores 37 Points in 58-48 Win for Victoria

ONE-MAN SHOW

Vancouver, May 6 — (CP) — Deadly accuracy of AC1. Norm Baker, sharpshooter of Victoria Dominoes, last year's Dominion Senior Men's basketball champions, enabled Victoria R.C.A.F. to take a game lead last night over the Eastern champions, Windsor Patricks in the three-of-five 1943 championship series.

Baker, a six-foot forward, set an all-time scoring record for Vancouver floors when he bagged 15 field goals and seven free shots for 37 points as the Airmen triumphed 58-48 before 1,000 fans. Second game will be played here Friday and the third Saturday. The previous record was 27 points in one game.

Victoria, down 42-37 at the start of the last 10 minutes, displayed a strong offensive with Baker getting 15 of his team's 21 points to cinch the game.

The former Nanaimo player who had been with Dominoes in recent years, began potting shots from the opening whistle.

He got four successive baskets to keep the airmen even with Windsor in the first nine minutes and his one-man show put the Victoria quintet in front 21-19 in the second quarter before Windsor, led by Fred Thomas, soared into a 42-34 advantage.

Thomas, a centre, collected 14 of Windsor's points, getting six field goals and scoring on two free throws, while forwards Bill Goulthard, with 10, Don Hamilton, with seven, Gordon Lawson and Jack Blair, each with six and Gene Durocher, with five, figuring in the other Windsor point-making.

THE TRUTH ABOUT THE RAZOR BLADE SITUATION

A Frank Statement By
Gillette Safety Razor Co. of Canada, Limited

CONFLICTING and unfounded reports about the razor blade situation prompt us to make this positive statement:—

There should be razor blades for everybody provided everyone buys sparingly and gets every possible shave out of every blade.

It is true that today manufacture of razor blades for civilian use is regulated. No loyal Canadian would have it otherwise. And this company gladly complies with the program established by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board Administrator to conserve steel and labor.

The quota set up by the Administrator was arrived at after careful study, and the available supply of razor blades is intended to take care of civilian needs without working a hardship on anyone.

Despite this you may have found an occasional merchant out of stock when you asked for Blue Gillette Blades. Here are the reasons for this . . . First . . . the Blue Gillette has grown in popularity year after year and today demand is greater than ever. Second . . . some men are hoarding. Storing away even an extra package or two by every shaver in the Dominion could cause an acute shortage. Third . . . many men continue their peacetime practice of not concerning themselves with the number of shaves per blade. These days demand that men obtain maximum service from each blade. Fourth . . . Large orders from the armed forces tax our capacity. These requirements do not come out of our civilian quota, but do take priority on delivery.

Combine these four reasons and you know why from time to time certain dealers may be out of stock. We assure you that this condition is only temporary and should mean at worst merely a brief delay.

But you can help avoid this slight inconvenience. When buying Blue Gillette Blades . . . do so sparingly . . . just one package at a time. Then use each blade thriftily . . . make every blade deliver the maximum number of satisfactory shaves. And when you key your blade consumption to the times, you share the comfort and economy of Blue Gillette Blades with your friends and your neighbours. That's the sporting thing to do. It's the Canadian way.

Horse Sense Bridge

RELEASE NO. 47

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

In any one pack of bridge cards there are 635,013,559,600 hands, no two of which are alike. No use counting them to make sure. It would take until Gabriel blows his horn.

At the moment, know one thing about them. A flock of them will be opening bids of one in a suit. You know that kind best if you know lesson number 28 in Horse Sense Bridge.

That lesson reads: An opening bid of one in a suit promises at least (1) five tricks; among which are (2) four high cards, of which (3) two are sure tricks; and (4) a biddable suit.

When you start with an opening bid of one, keep one important point in mind. The opening bid is the foundation of the future destiny of your partnership contract. That basis must be sound.

You may be allergic to sound rules. Or maybe you believe you can out-think the rules and our opponents. If so, there is no law against it, except perhaps, the law of self-preservation.

If you are that kind of a huckleberry, I will lie right down beside you and wallow in it. We will Einstein each other into some unusual problems. But in the long run, we will be sorry.

You may think you can get along without one of the four high cards. Oh, yeah? Every high card you lack will be held by our opponents. And all the while I am thinking they are with you.

Take a hand like this:

♠A 7 5
♥A Q 9 8 6
♦9 5 4
♣J 2

It is not a sound opening bid of any kind. True, it has a real biddable suit. True, it has two sure tricks. It may even look like a biddable hand.

But it lacks stuff for an opening bid of one. It lacks a high card. It lacks a fifth trick. If you open with one heart, expect to find trouble. Above all, keep away from a no-trump contract.

If you must fudge a little, avoid doing it with an opening bid of one. Or reserve a soft spot in the gutter.

As a radio "crime creator", funnyman Red Skelton is one long howl! Here he appears with Ann Rutherford in "Whistling in the Dark," new at the Capitol, with the added western "Dead Man's Gulch."

AT THE CAPITOL

AT THE BELLE

Greer Garson and Ronald Colman are seen when Colman at last comes to know Greer as both women in his life, blinded by amnesia in "Random Harvest," held over at the Belle until Friday.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Rhythm of the Islands"

Glamorous South Seas island girls cavort among the palm trees of a tropic paradise in Universal's "Rhythm of the Islands" now playing at the McCarthy Theatre. Allan Jones and Jane Frazee are co-starred in the new musical funfilm which features Andy Devine, Mary Wickes and Ernest Truex.

An elaborate musical score features the presentation of seven popular songs. Dances are furnished by the famous Horton Dancers while other entertaining sequences are enhanced by the appearance of the Step Brothers and the sensational new glamour girl Acquanetta.

Second feature is Ginger Rogers in "Bachelor Mother".

AT THE CAPITOL

"Red Skelton"

Hilarious Red Skelton spreads mirth by the wholesale in "Whistling in the Dark," comical adaptation of the Broadway stage hit now showing at the Capitol Theatre, with Skelton playing his first starring role as a radio "crime creator" forced by criminals to invent a practical "perfect murder" for them. His antics and adventures in escaping with two girl friends maintain a continuous gale of laughter.

The comedian has for a sweetheart Ann Rutherford, while Virginia Grey plays her love rival. The girls stage a battle over Red that is one of the top spots in the general hilarity.

"Dead Man's Gulch"

Republic scores again in the western field in its latest production starring Don "Red" Barry, which opens tonight at the Capitol Theatre as the added hit. "Dead Man's Gulch" is an unqualified hit in every respect, with all the elements of suspense, action and thrills effectively played up.

Don Barry, who needs no introduction to local western fans, outdoes himself in the role of "Tennessee Colby," a former pony express rider who became Deputy Marshal in the "wide-open community of 'Dobe Falls. As Deputy Marshal he was obliged to apprehend and bring to justice a man who had been his best friend in pony express days.

A colored cartoon and the "Secret Code" round out another grand weekend program for all.

AT THE BELLE

"Random Harvest"

Ronald Colman and Greer Garson, teamed for the first time, provide haunting romance and a dramatic story in "Random Harvest" Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer screen presentation of James Hilton's best-selling novel, held over by popular demand.

Closely following the book, except that the story is told in chronological order instead of in "flashbacks," it deals with a wealthy Englishman who loses all memory of his past during the first World War. Befriended by a young actress, he starts life anew and wins note as a writer. They marry. Then in an accident, his memory of the past comes back, but memory of the space after the war vanishes. He assumes his old identity and becomes a powerful figure in industry. The wife, realizing that she now is a stranger to him, becomes his secretary, never mentioning their marriage, and essays the task of winning back his memory and love. How this is accomplished provides a haunting romantic climax.

Skilful Direction

Colman and Miss Garson play their roles with utter conviction, and Miss Garson wears elaborate fashions as well as an abbreviated stage costume. Mervyn LeRoy directed with skill and a deft human touch, and Herbert Stothart provided an elaborate musical score. Principals include Susan Peters, Phillip Dorn, Reginald Owen and Una O'Connor.

For the first time national working rules have been accepted by employers and workers in the furniture manufacturing industry in Britain.

Potato Is King In New York

New York, May 6 — (CP) — The lowly potato was king in New York's vegetable markets today as housewives found retail dealers fortunate enough to have supplies limiting purchases to four spuds to a customer — and then only if the purchaser was known to the dealer. Not uncommon were sales of one potato at three cents each.

Civic officials disagree about the cause of the shortage, some blaming "a terrific black market" and officials maintaining there just aren't any potatoes available at this season.

At a press conference yesterday Mayor La Guardia called on farmers throughout the country to help him establish what he termed a "white market," promising to "buy and import any produce from any one anywhere which will help to get food into my white market.

The mayor's reference to a "white market" went unexplained. He apparently referred to civic purchases last week of 800,000 pounds of California new potatoes for retail merchants in the eight municipal markets. By eliminating the wholesaler, La Guardia obtained the potatoes directly from commission brokers, thus enabling municipal retailers to sell at prices 1 1-2 cents a pound less than O. P. A. ceilings.

Sales in the municipal markets, which serve only a small part of New York's 7,000,000, were being limited today to two pounds to a customer but elsewhere throughout the city dealers restricted sales to four tubers. Most retailers, however, merely pointed to empty bins. One Bronx retailer who earlier this week received a small shipment of Bermuda potatoes sold them swifty at two pounds for 35 cents.

More than 2,000 British Restaurants (government owned) are operating, serving 570,000 meals a day.

SPORT SHORTS FROM BRITAIN

By ALLAN NICKLESON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

With the R. C. A. F. Somewhere in England, May 6 —(CP)— Milt Schmidt and Porky Dumart, a couple of hockey men whom thousands paid thousands to see back home, closed their first ice season on this side of the water by opposing each other in an exhibition game.

The high-scoring post-season match ended with Schmidt's Maple Leafs defeating Dumart's Boston 10-9 before a roaring few hundred fans. The former Boston Bruins from Kitchener, Ont., didn't steal the show in a scoring sense. They were content to do plenty of playmaking and sat up tallies for other team members.

Ken McAdam, erstwhile all-round Ottawa athlete and now with the Y. M. C. A. as a sports supervisor, played a powerful game on defence for Leafs, backed up by LAC. Scotty Myles of Windsor, Ont.; WO. Jim Bland of Kingston, Ont., and AC. Pete Snell of Calgary.

LAC. Bill Legg of London, Ont.; Cpls. Roger Alain of Three Rivers, Que., and Gordy Adamson of Toronto, as well as Sgt. Jim Powers of Montreal, led the losers.

It was softball, they said.

One team was composed of R. A. F. officers. The other consisted of W. A. A. F. Not one had played the game before and it took place before a Canadian audience at an R. A. F. bomber station.

The onlookers, as could well be imagined, had a great time. Some laughed so much they fell off their improvised seating accommodation.

The final score was 32-12 for the airmen.

The spectator's howls of glee were so prolonged they prompted this parody on Burns from an English gal who stole second with the bases loaded:

"Oh, wad some power the gift tae gie us
To see ourselves as Canadians see us."

The Casanova Club, more officially known as the ground crew softball team of a Canadian squadron, clipped the wings of an aircrew bunch 10-4 in a hard-hitting fixture played on a back pasture.

LACs. Moose Leone of Niagara Falls, Ont., Johnny Ruttan of Toronto and Jack Lansdell of Porquois Junction, Ont., shone for the winners in the early-season affair. Flt. Sgt. Johnny Higgins of Verdun, Que., who hit a homer for the aircrew, and Lyle Nelson of Sardis, B. C., were among the best for the losers.

Aircraftwoman Dorothy Alice Gore of North Bay, Ont., likes England but admits just a little disappointment that there is no scope for her favorite game, basketball. A member of the Women's Division of the R. C. A. F., she formerly played with North Bay when they won the Ontario hoop title.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was taking a walk with pop and we came to Gussky's Handmade Cigar Shop, and pop said, By gollies I'm going to stop in here and line my machine made vest pocket with hand made cigars and incidentally I'm going to apologise to old Gussky.

What for, pop? I said, and pop said, For saying rude things about the Russians.

And we went in and pop brought 6 cigars from Mr. Gussky, being a kind of a square shape man with stand up hair and a turn down mustash, and pop said, By the way, Gussky, if I ever made any remark that wasn't strictly complimentary to the Soviet Union of Communist Russia, I take it all back. I take off my hat to any people that can fight the way the Russians are fighting to hold up their end and other people's ends. I'd even take off my collar and tie, he said.

So you finely admit we're a great people, heh? Mr. Gussky said, and pop said, I attach my hand and seal to it and permit myself to be quoted.

Then you admit you mean the capitalistic form of government is a failure and the profit sistem is nothing but a swindle, Mr. Gussky said, and pop said, Hay, hold your horses, call off your Cossacks, cant I praise your country without knocking my own?

No, if you admire the Russian people you have to hate the profit sistem, Mr. Gussky, on a beautiful day like this I couldn't hate anything or anybody, even a gink that cant take a compliment.

And we went out again, pop saying, It needs more than a war to tie the world together with baby blue ribbon, and me saying, Maybe it needs a peace, pop, and pop saying, My boy, that's a deeper remark than you are aware of.

Which it probably was.

CHAPTER 8

Abby had written Paula's telephone message and slipped it under her door. It was an invitation to spend a weekend at the farm.

The following week Ron and Fran stopped in Washington on their way to Florida. Ron called Temple at her office and asked her to come to the hotel after work, adding that they would think of something to do after she arrived. Reluctantly she called Jud and told him that she could not meet him for dinner and that Ron and Fran were so unpredictable she hesitated to suggest that he join them or that later she would see him. He said cheerfully, "That's all right, darling. We'll make it tomorrow night."

Ron and Fran were not in their usual suite, but in a single room when Temple arrived. Fran, whose hair seemed to grow blonder as the years went on, was bent over and opened trunk filled to capacity with new and colorful summer dresses and shoes. Ron, his face heavier, had left a highball on the desk to open the door for his sister.

"Hi, Sis," he said and kissed her loudly. "Come in the cubby hole and have a drink."

For only the necessary second did Fran leave her new wardrobe to brush Temple's cheek with her own.

Ron laughed as he went back to pick up his drink. "The way girls kiss—afraid you'll get lipstick on each other."

Temple asked, taking off her things, "Where is Ronnie?"

"Oh, he went down last week with Mother and Dad," Fran said. "You know Ron and I have always gone down by ship until this year, but the war. This year we have to go by train and Ron wanted to stop off overnight and see how you were getting along. Are your drinks ready, darling? Thanks. Just what I need. This room was all we could get. You can't turn around in here and the service is terrible."

Temple sat on the bed and Ron sank into a chair. Fran turned to her trunk again. "This is the worst packing job I've ever seen. Everything will be ruined when I get there. But you can't get a maid now."

Ron smiled half-heartedly. "Don't pay any attention to her, Temple. She's always griping. How are you doing? Do you know anybody? How's the job?"

Fran turned around. "Have you met any 'nice' people, Temple? I should think it would be difficult to discriminate when you work in an office and are thrown with all sorts of girls."

Temple took a deep breath. "The girls in the office are nice people, Fran. They've helped me and covered up my mistakes. They've been strangers, too here."

"Oh, yes, of course," Fran said with a tolerant smile. "But I mean . . ."

"Temple knows what you mean," Ron said flatly.

Temple looked down at the drink in her hand, hating the polite heckling between husband and wife which disguised larger differences. For the first time since Ron and Fran had been going on their pleasant, luxurious way and she had been fighting her new and bitter way Temple felt no envy. Rather she felt they would envy her if they knew her inner glow. She did not want to be Ron going to Florida to get fatter and lazier. She did not want to be Fran going to Florida with new clothes and blonder hair. She thought, "I want to be Temple Graves who will see Jud tomorrow night."

"Any boy friends?" Ron asked.

She glanced up quickly. "Oh yes," she said, smiling. "Even a boy friend."

"Not bad, but don't get serious. Don't, for God's sake, be a war bride."

"What are you doing about it—the war, I mean and defence?"

He made a grimace intended to be a smile. "My ball and chain," he said, nodding to Fran, "and my little ball and chain in Miami."

"And you're the boss' son-in-law."

"Yeah, dandy, isn't it?"

"I don't see anything the matter with it," Fran said. "You don't know when you're lucky."

"You wouldn't see anything the matter with it. All the war means to you is that the servant problem is getting worse and you can't go in Florida by sea and you have to buy clothes made in America."

"Oh, don't be tiresome, darling. You're boring, Temple."

"I bore myself. Let's have another drink. Then Temple can tell us where her boy friend takes her to dinner."

"I want to go to the Mayflower," Fran said.

"My master's voice, Temple."

"I went there Sunday," Temple said.

Ron nodded, "My wife approves of your boy friend." He glanced aside, seeing Fran going to the bathroom with a dress over her arm. "My goodness, she's changing her dress again!"

Obviously it was a pleasant evening for Ron who always found living pleasant if the food was good, the drinks plentiful and the chairs comfortable. It was also pleasant for Fran, who sparkled in a place where she was most likely to be seen by "nice" people and where the size of the bill told her that she had not depreciated her fashionable self by having dined there.

Ron and Fran had excellent company manners, Temple thought. In public they spoke endearing to each other and Fran never missed the opportunity to refer proudly and lovingly to her son in hearing of total strangers she most wanted to impress.

Before their sham and before her own growing sense of superiority Temple felt herself becoming quieter. Suddenly the thought flashed "Jud and I won't be like this. To marry him, Oh, but it was absurd to think of it so soon! I thought it would be years and years before I married and now in five weeks I want to get married. After the war? We're not in it yet and it may go on for years. Before he goes then? A war bride? No, I don't want to be that. I loathe the idea of being that!"

"Temple, would you care for anything so unromantic as dancing with your brother?"

"Of course, Ron."

When they were dancing, he said with surprising soberness, "Mother writes very cheerful letters. She would. She said you had been sending her money. I don't know how you do it and I don't know why the devil you should. I feel like an awful heel about my family."

"You have your own family. Mother won't let you take on hers."

"Yes and the way taxes are going to be, we'll have to cut down." He chuckled, "Oh, you know, one less car or so, one less yacht or so and maybe a wing on one of the houses closed. You're doing okay, kid. I'm proud of you. You're doing a hell of a lot more than I've ever done."

"You sound unhappy. You are lucky in many respects."

"Am I? Maybe. We're going to Florida all dressed up like Mrs. Astor's pet horses because the old man has stock in a company that is making submarine parts. Submarines that send people to their deaths are taking Mr. and Mrs. Graves and son to Florida for the season."

Temple looked up and smiled. "I believe you're acquiring a conscience, Ron."

He chuckled again. "Um . . . Down in Florida I'll burn on one side and then the other, making sure that I'm the same color all over. If I'm not, it will be the worst thing that can happen to me. A major tragedy. Everybody will talk about me. 'Poor Ron, something happened to his tan this year. It is not even. Have you seen it? Poor job. Very poor job.' And I'll watch my boy play on the sand with a lot of other little boys who are in Florida because their fathers manufacture things to kill other little boys playing in the sand. I must be drunk. I never talked so much in my life. But I don't want to go to Florida. I want to do something constructive for defence."

"You never talked as much to me."

"That's because you're not home. At home you're my little sister who isn't supposed to know that all is not sweetness and light in the world. Here you're—you're a pretty girl I'm dancing with. You're nicer than you were. Or were you always nice?"

"I'm nicer."

"You're okay. I am, too, but I won't be if I have another drink. Besides, you should be in bed. You are a working girl."

"If you want to do something constructive for defence, why don't you?"

"You said I was lucky. Remember?"

They said good-bye in a taxi outside Temple's boarding house where, for an instant, Fran concentrated hard upon the size, appearance and location of the house.

She said to Temple, "Good-bye, darling. It's been grand seeing you. I do wish you could come along with us. It would do you so much good. But when I get back—I have lots of clothes. If you wouldn't be offended."

First Bottle Convinced Her Syntona Was Great Medicine

Rid of Stomach Gas, Acidity, Rheumatic Pains; Free from Headaches; Sleeps Better; Felt Nervous and Rundown.

"I had been in poor health for so many years that I really didn't remember what it was to feel otherwise until I began taking Syntona," said Mrs. Louise Fulcher, 11 Edinburgh Street, London, Ontario, recently.

"For years I suffered with stomach disorders. It got so bad that everything I ate caused gas, with belching up of hot, sour liquids. This would be followed by heartburn with a feeling of dizziness and little black spots floating before my eyes. My back felt lame all the time and I was seldom free from sore, aching joints and muscles. To make matters worse my nerves became so upset that I'd lie awake unable to sleep after going to bed at night.

"A few weeks ago a neighbor told me of the good results she got by taking Syntona and I decided right there to try it. From the very first bottle I felt some better and I knew it was going to help me. With this little encouragement I kept on taking it until now for the first time in years I can eat heartily without suffering afterwards from gas, acid-risings and heartburn. I haven't had any dizziness since and the aches and pains have been relieved. My nerves have calmed down so that I have no trouble getting to sleep at night and as a result I feel so much better in every way that even my work seems easier. I am glad to add my name to the many who are recommending this fine medicine."

MRS. LOUISE FULCHER

Syntona is made from 12 of the finest grade herbs, roots and barks. It acts on stomach, kidneys, liver and bowels, and many who have used it say that even after the first few days the whole system takes on a new feeling of energy and vigor.

Let this pure Herbal Tonic help you as it has hundreds of other grateful men and women. It is pleasant to take and quick to act. Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville at DOLAN THE DRUGGIST.

Half of Victory Loan Objective Has Been Reached

Ottawa, May 6 (CP)—Subscriptions to the $1,100,000,000 Fourth Victory Loan totalled $564,106,500—just over half way to the objective—when returns on business up to last night half-way point in the three-week campaign, were compiled, National Loan Headquarters announced today.

But loan officials said there should be no "complacency" over progress of the loan. Many of the large corporate subscriptions were recorded fairly early in the campaign and "putting the loan well over the top depends largely upon enthusiastic response from general canvass and payroll saving between now and the end of the drive."

$60,170,400 Wednesday

Subscriptions for Wednesday, ninth working day of the 18 working days of the campaign were $60,170,400. On the same day the Third Victory Loan of last autumn obtained $43,674,400, and had reached a cumulative total of $458,258,300. The Fourth Victory Loan now exceeds the comparable period of the Third Victory Loan by $105,848,200, but the objective in the third loan was only $750,000,000.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, May 6 (CP)— Despite generally lower prices, some issued on the Toronto Market today managed to reach new high ground for the year during late morning and early afternoon trading.

Among Industrials Eastern Steel gained 1 to 16, General Steel Wares advanced 1-4 to 10 1-4 and International Utilities jumped 1 7-8 to 8, all new highs. Winnipeg Electric was soft at 45, off 1 7-8.

In Golds Chesterville sagged to $1.18 after having touched a new high at $1.25 for a gain of 10 cents.

Noon indices were generally lower while one o'clock sales at 187,000 shares were 2,000 ahead of yesterday's turnover at the same time.

WALL STREET

(Associated Press Financial Writer)

New York, May 6. (AP)—There was little selling urgency in today's stock market but further light profit realizing was sufficient to put most leaders in a slightly lower bracket.

Fractional advances predominated at the start. These, on the whole, were eliminated by midday. Isolated strong spots, however, were in evidence near the fourth hour. Dealings slackened after a fairly fast opening in which low-quoted issues, generally unchanged, turned over in blocks of 1,000 to 7,000 shares.

Commitments were lightened here and there, brokers said, on the idea technical factors connected with the recent rise to 3-year peaks might result in a nearby reaction. The tense coal labor situation also was viewed as a deterrent. Continued good war news was helpful.

Bonds were selectively higher and commodities narrow.

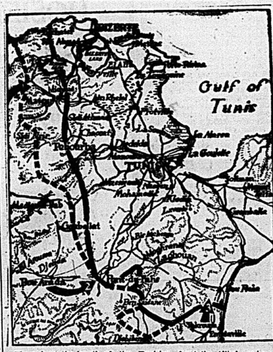
ALLIES DRIVE AHEAD IN TUNISIA



Throughout the length of the Tunisian front the Allied armies are driving ahead, squeezing Rommel's forces into a tight corner. The broken black line shows the position of the Allied drive only a few days before the Allied troops had advanced to the dense black line, and now they are moving fast beyond it, in the fury of the final battle of Tunisia. U. S. tank and infantry forces have pushed west of Tebourba to within 10 miles of Tunis and the whole line is advancing on Bizerte in the general direction of (1) ABOVE. The French are pushing ahead in the Pont-du-Fahs area (2) and the British Eighth Army is advancing far north of Enfidaville, (3).

Quints Rehearse For Christening Of 'Quint' Fleet

Callander, Ont., May 6 —(CP)— The Dionne Quintuplets today held a final rehearsal for the christening Sunday at Superior, Wis., of the "Quint Fleet" of liberty ships for Britain.

The rehearsal was held by the Quints for their official guardian, Percy D. Wilson of Toronto, who expressed delight with the manner in which the five girls carried out the ceremony. It was a full-dress rehearsal, the sisters also preparing for the continent-wide broadcast in connection with Sunday's launching.

Annette smiling described "God Bless America" which she and her sisters will sing in English as "a very pretty song"

"We like to sing it," she said, "and we hope the people will like the way we sing it."

Noose Tightening Around Axis Army

Washington, May 6. (AP)—War Secretary Henry Stimson declared today that "the noose is tightening around the Axis army" in North Africa but "there is every indication" the enemy will continue to fight there.

"There has been no evidence", he told his press conference, "of any attempt to evacuate any considerable portion of the Axis army".

Stimson had praise for the "almost perfect co-ordination" of the British, American and French ground and air forces and for the Royal Navy in the Mediterranean for its assistance in interrupting the flow of supplies from Italy to the hard-pressed Axis troops in Tunisia.

In a general war review, the secretary said that in the South Pacific adverse weather is interfering with air operations, but Allied fliers have made a number of successful raids.

He said two recent raids from Chinese air bases on Japanese positions were "very successful" and the largest yet carried out there.

Annual Edition of the Alibi Shows Results of Thoughtful Editing

Sixteen former students of Albert College have paid the supreme sacrifice in the present battle of Allied nations for freedom, it is indicated in the annual edition of "The Alibi," the official college magazine, now just off the press.

Representative of all three branches of the Canadian fighting forces, the boys who have given their all for freedom saw action over the battlefields of Europe and Africa, as well as on the seas in the far-flung parts of the Empire. Nine of the boys were with the R.C.A.F.; two with the R.A.F. two in the Canadian Army; two in the Navy and one each in the United States Marines and the Canadian Merchant Marine.

Fewer Illustrations

Possibly less profusely illustrated than in former years due to restrictions in printing and engraving materials, the college magazine is, nevertheless, a credit to those responsible for its editing and composition.

All phases of school activity are concisely and attractively narrated, while the literary and editorial departments sparkle with the gem of originality that is a real credit to the magazine's contributors. The editorial "Will Democracy Work," by Thomas C. McMullen of the college teaching staff, is representative of clear sound thinking, plus a liberal application of fact and hard common sense.

144 in Armed Services

Special mention is made of the No. 2 Flight of the Belleville Air Cadet Squadron, this unit being under the direction of Albert College. An honor list containing the names of 144 former students with the various branches of the Canadian armed services, is also contained within the magazine's pages.

Printed in the job printing department of the Ontario Intelligencer, "The Alibi" is a credit to its editorial staff. R. Jeffrey Waite is the editor-in-chief; John Abraham, assistant editor, and John Skinner literary editor.

These Killed in Action

Following are the names of former students killed on active service:

Pilot Officer Lloyd Bishop; LAC. Raymond Chatson FO. Roberts Edwards; H. Malcolm Forbes; Marine James P. Johnson; PO. Arthur C. MacDonald; Lieut. Colin S. MacDonald; PO. Bruce Morgan; PO. Arthur M. Saunders; PO. Alex A. G. Trueman; Sub. Lieut. Sidney R. Watson and Sergt. Bruce M. Wilson.

Flight Sergeant William Hagyard; Sergeant Elmer Mutton; PO. Sidney Smithers and Private Harvey West have been reported missing following service with their units and are now presumed killed.

Whitehall Notebook

By FOSTER BARCLAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, May 6 — (CP) — There is a possibility that another member of the Beaverbrook family may enter Parliament.

The name of Wing Cmdr. Max Aitken, Montreal-born son of Lord Beaverbrook, has been placed on a list of suggested candidates sent to the Conservative Association in the Aston Division of Birmingham where a vacancy has been created by the death in action of Lt.-Col. E. O. Kellett. Political circles hear that influential Conservative supporters intend to back Aitken's name when the time comes to select a standard bearer.

Aitken, holder of the Distinguished Service Order and Distinguished Flying Cross, was a Battle of Britain fighting ace. While his father was speeding aircraft production he was busy shooting down Nazi aircraft. Nowadays he leads a night-fighter squadron.

A new parliamentary weapon is being forged — the mass resolution. Not so long ago, it was comparatively unusual for a motion to appear on the order paper with more than a score of supporting names. Nowadays 100 names are fairly common and there have been cases where nearly 200 members of all parties have signed a motion.

This is a good sign, in the view of most supporters of the parliamentary system. It shows, they say, that parliament is alive to the issues that affect the man in the street and that it is prepared to bring important issues forcibly to the notice of the government.

Mrs. Mavis Tate, Conservative member for Frome, gave a fillip to the method by successful organization of a demand for equal compensation for women. Faced with a demand supported by 200 members the government agreed to appoint a select committee and then accepted the committee's recommendations in favor of equal compensation.

Now there is a motion down on the order paper demanding a select committee to look into the working of the war pensions system. It has nearly 100 supporters and about the same humber support a motion demanding increases in workman's compensation.

The Onlooker, official journal of the Conservative arty, has turned a critical gaze on the common wealth party and its leader, Sir Richard Acland.

The publication tells conservative readers that the party cuts no ice. But at the same time those fighting by-elections were warned that they would need to watch the party, for it gave the cover of its umbrella and the support of its organization to any would-be candidate who came along with an "eye to exploiting grievances."

Here are some of the Onlooker's charges and comments:—

The party has nothing whatever to do with the British Commonwealth of Nations; its name (written as two words) is synonymous with Communism; its voting strength in by-elections has been drawn from those who in the ordinary way would vote Socialist or possibly Liberal; it has never opposed an official Socialist candidate and could not muster a dozen candidates at a general election.

Col. Clifton Brown, newly-chosen Speaker of the House of Commons, told the parliamentary press gallery about three personal ambitions he would like to fulfill during his tenure of office.

"I should regard it as a great occasion if it fell to my lot to lead the House of Commons into the church across the road at the end of the war," he confided. "I should like, too, to be the first to sit in the Speaker's chair when it is re-erected on the old site.

"Thirdly, I should like to have the privilege of turning on the switch which lights the lamp of Big Ben at the top of the clock tower. It would not merely be turning on a light showing that the war is over — it would be lighting a beacon which would give hope to a sorely distressed world."

Safety Rules to Observe When Meeting Army Convoys on Highways

Kingston, May 6 — Civilian motorists are being asked by army officials in Military District No. 3 to observe certain rules when they meet up with convoys on highways during the daytime or at night.

For some time large numbers of vehicles, usually in convoy, have been operating in this district, and the instructions have been issued with the view to minimizing the possibility of accidents. These convoys are producing specially trained drivers who are urgently needed by the army overseas.

The instructions issued by army officials are as follows:—

To Pass Through a Day Convoy

Slow down behind the last vehicle and blow your horn. The assistant driver will signal you to pass and he will wave his arm from rear to front.

Pass each vehicle as quickly as possible in this way; correct speed and interval can not be maintained if you lag along between vehicles. The driver knows what the army vehicle in front of him is going to do, but he has no way of knowing what you may do.

Do not cut into a convoy from a side street or road. Avoid a possible accident by waiting till the convoy has passed.

A traffic point or guard is placed at main intersections, railway crossings, etc. Do not disregard his signal. He will let you pass as soon as it is safe to do so.

If you are nervous and wish to pass through a convoy with a maximum of safety, blow your horn twice and wait behind the last truck for one of the convoy vehicles (jeep or motorcycle). You will be escorted through.

In passing a day convoy in the opposite direction, stay well over on your own side of the road and slow down to 20 m.p.h.

In Overtaking a Night Convoy

Slow down behind the last vehicle. It will display red lights. Flash your headlights off and on, and wait for a control vehicle to escort you through. Use headlights, lower beam only, while following the control vehicle.

The eyes of driver and crew of the Army vehicle are adjusted to darkness. Any bright lights will blind them temporarily. Switch the parking lights on, and the bright lights off, whenever possible.

To pass a night convoy in the opposite direction, pull as far over to the right hand side as possible and STOP and use your parking lights. The leading convoy vehicle will momentarily flash his bright lights as a signal to you.

Civilian motorists are asked to remember that an army vehicle is much more difficult to drive than a motor car, particularly under blackout conditions. The driver is doing his best to carry out his instructions for day and night convoy operation and you can help by using sound driving judgment, and following the above instructions. Many motorists have been doing this of their own accord, and the drivers will be further assisted by full co-operation.

IN CHOIR AT 90

London, (CP) — Henry Dutton, who has sung in St. Paul's Cathedral choir for more than 65 years, was at his usual place in the church when he celebrated his 90th birthday. He said "moderation in everything" kept his voice unimpaired through the years.

NEW ZEALAND BABIES

Wellington, (CP)— More babies were born in New Zealand during the year ended March, 1943, than in any year for which statistics have been kept. The number was 35,236 or 22.91 a thousand.

Thirty - four schoolboys average 16, marched 58 miles from Petersfield, Hampshire, to London. They had been evacuated from London to Petersfield and were returning to their original school.

18 Railway Unions Dissatisfied With Methods of Determining The Cost-of-Living Bonus

Ottawa, May 6. (CP)—Dissatisfaction with the method of determining the cost-of-living bonus was expressed to the National War Labor Board today by the Standard Railway Brotherhoods.

The brief presented by J. B. Ward of Montreal, chairman of the Dominion Joint Legislative Committee of 18 Standard Railway brotherhoods took particular objection to the government subsidy of certain commodities which had the effect of holding down the index.

"In connection with general labor relations, the brief said recognition of the right to organize and bargain collectively was the first step toward avoidance of strikes. Accompanying this action should be a speeding up of the investigation into disputes.

"The workers patriotically submitted to the freezing of wages after they had been promised and assured that the Wartime cost-of-living bonus would safeguard them against increases in the cost of basic necessities of life", the brief said. "However, when an increase in the index number with a corresponding upward adjustment in the wage bonus is anticipated, the government by subsidizing commodities, controls the index.

"The cost of the subsidies is met by taxes largely collected from the workers. Thus public funds are taken and utilized to control earnings and indeed may bring about a decrease in the existing meagre cost-of-living bonus".

Control On Index is Claim

The Brotherhoods said reduction in the price of tea, coffee, milk and oranges, made possible through payment of subsidies was an example of the practice to which it objected.

"It is our conviction that the emphasis of control is on the cost-of-living index rather than on the actual cost of living", the brief continued. "We feel that inquiry into the policy of controlling the index by subsidies and the resultant additional taxation thereby created, will reveal the fact it has worked to the general disadvantage of the workers.

"Moreover, this condition will be accentuated if and when additional commodities are subsidized. . . .

"The employees represented by the general conference committee (of Railway Brotherhoods) pioneered among the workers throughout Canada in giving the enunciated policy of the government a fair trial, and having had unsatisfactory experience, are seriously considering the advisability of declining to any longer acquiese with it.

"Obviously workers have no confidence in the compilation (of the index) and we strongly recommend that steps be taken at once to make such corrections as will reflect the true condition and also convince the workers that the index is correct".

Eighteen Miners Survive Blast

Lafollette, Tenn., May 6—(AP)—Eighteen coal miners, huddling behind a hastily erected canvas barrier nearly 2,000 feet underground, survived an explosion that rocked the Etna Coal and Coke Company mine and suffocated 10 of their companions.

The miners, fighting against the deadly fumes of "black damp" for more than eight hours, stumbled and crawled from their barricaded cell last night as rescue parties freed them.

Two other miners, who had joined the barricaded group, became panic-stricken and dashed from their enclosure to death from carbon monoxide fumes 400 feet away.

The explosion thundered through the east Tennessee soft coal mine yesterday afternoon, rocking it from tipple to the deepest seam. Two miners who were almost outside the mine tunnel when the blast occurred were burned critically.

Earl Turner, one of the first entombed men to reach the outside, said he herded his companions into an enclosure and erected a cloth canvas barricade to keep out the fumes.

HIGHER WAGES

flation and help maintain the wage ceiling.

The association recommended also that "a stop should be put to the open flouting of the industrial dispites investigation act prohibition against strikes, pending an investigation and report by a conciliation board".

"We submit that the key to good employer-employee relations is mutual confidence and we further submit that so far as the great majority of industrial workers are concerned there is a very large measure of mutual confidence between them and their employers", the association said.

The unions of which it complained were a minority of the trade unions operating in Canada.

Most Unions Playing the Game

"The majority of the trade unions are playing the game and not seeking to take undue advantage of the country's extremity. In these circumstances it is difficult to see why the state should cater to minority labor groups which are taking advantage of the country's extremity, by passing legislation which will facilitate them in building up their membership".

The introduction of compulsory collective bargaining and a corresponding increase in unionization held no solution to the problem, the association said.

"An analysis of recent strikes shows that the most serious of them have taken place in plants that were unionized, while, on the other hand, there are notable examples of non-unionized plants enjoying much more harmonious employer-employee relations than many unionized plants. The suggestion that non-unionization means turmoil and strikes and that unionization means peace, harmony and maximum production is completely refuted by the facts, both in the United States and Canada".

Should Include Responsibilities

Any proposal to make collective bargaining compulsory should take into account the responsibilities as well as the rights of employees and the rights as well as the obligations of employers.

If such legislation were to be introduced it should include provision for the registration of trade unions and the filing of financial returns, the legal responsibility of trade unions to carry out contracts the legal responsibility of employers and protection for employees who may join unions "from self-perpetuating officers" by requiring annual elections.

"If there is to be a provision for punishing an employer for seeking by intimidation other unfair means to prevent a worker from joining a union then equally there should be provision for punishing trade unions or their agents for seeking by intimidation or other unfair means to compel a worker to join or to continue his membership in a trade union".

The worker should also have complete freedom in the choice of unions, the association said. The argument that independent unions were never free of management domination should not prevail because it was based on the principle that the employer had no right to interest himself in any way in the question of what type of labor organization his employees would adopt. As a fundamental right of free speech the employer was entitled to advise his employees.

'Closed Shop' Principle Wrong

"The 'closed shop' principle should have no place in any legislation on collective bargaining", the brief said. "It is just as unfair as it would be to pass a law that no one could carry on manufacturing in Canada unless he was a member of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association. . . ."

The "check-off" practice of having union fees deducted from the workers' pay was equally objectionable, the Association said.

In Great Britain Collective Bargaining had been widely and successfully practiced for many years without any statute enforcing trade union recognition or compelling collective bargaining. In the United States the unions had obtained compulsory legislation.

"In other words in the United States an attempt has been made to secure for the unions by statute what the British trade unions have secured for themselves, because they were strong and well-disciplined and showed themselves willing and able to carry out their agreements . . . . .

"It is submitted that a comparison of the British and United States experience in this field leaves no doubt whatever that the sound course is to give trade unions full and unequivocal status under law, as in Great Britain, and then let them stand on their merits".

Approve Wage Control

The association said it approved in general of the government's wartime wage control and submitted that all questions arising under it should be dealt with by the National or Regional Boards with settlement by special order-in-council only at the request of the National Board.

The association suggested an extension of the National Board's policy of issuing directives to regional boards on specific subjects.

"It is further submitted that there is urgent need of greater co-ordination between the administration of National Selective Service and that of the wages order", the brief said. In many instances Selective Service advised plants that they could only provide the help required at a rate in excess of that fixed by the regional board.

"The only adequate way of meeting the situation is, we submit, that Canada should follow the example of the United States and forbid workers employed in an essential industry to leave their present employment in order to secure a higher rate of pay".

The association said under war conditions it was opposed to any general readjustment of wages, "even though a case for such readjustment on grounds of equity can be made out". Exemption of some low wage groups from wage control might result in considerable dislocation.

Wages should be governed by local conditions.

ALLIES ENTER TUNIS, BIZERTE

Capitalize on Deep Penetrations Thru Collapsing Enemy

Allied Planes Completely Dominating Sky Maintain Heavy Attacks Upon Axis Transport Columns Which Clog Roads of Retreat

25 SHIPS SUNK IN TUNISIAN STRAITS

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, North Africa, May 7 (AP) — Allied troops have penetrated into the outskirts of both Bizerte and Tunis, it was officially announced at Allied Headquarters today.

HEAVY FIGHTING REPORTED

Heavy fighting was reported in progress in both sectors as the British 1st. Army and American forces capitalized on deep penetrations through collapsing enemy positions all along the northern Tunisian front.

"Our troops have continued their victorious advance," a special communique said.

Reconnaissance elements were said to have made the penetration of the Bizerte suburbs. Many more prisoners were taken, it was announced.

Armored units of the British 1st. Army captured Le Bardo, on the highway at the western edge of Tunis, the communique stated.

Allied planes, completely dominating the sky, maintained heavy attacks upon Axis transport columns which clogged the roads of retreat.

COMPLETE AIR DOMINATION

"Because of complete air domination," said a statement issued by the R.A.F. and the U.S. A.A.F, "the tactical air force was able to throw practically the whole of its weight against enemy armor and German defences in front of Tunis, enabling our own troops to advance and capture all their objectives with a minimum of casualties."

(A broadcast by Grant Parr, NBC reported attached to Allied headquarters, said 25 enemy ships had been "sunk in the Tunisian Straits," this suggesting another powerful sweep against surface transports which might attempt to withdraw the Axis survivors.

("The spirit of the German troops appears to have been broken," Parr said.)

Bizerte is almost cut off from the remainder of the enemy territory and the Germans are falling back from their last defences in front of Tunis after the loss of Massicault, their strongest positions in the plain of Tunis.

The enemy was reported throwing up defences in front of Tunis, capital of the French protectorate.

Heavy losses were inflicted on the retreating foe over wreckage-littered terrain in some of the war's fiercest fighting. The offensive began at first light Thursday, raged through the day and as night fell both Britons and Americans were still advancing.

Capture 1,000 Germans

An Allied communique said United States troops had captured four more important points in northern Tunisia in the push upon Bizerte and captured more than 1,000 Axis prisoners in the last two days.

As air forces blasted a path four miles long and 1,000 yards wide with a terrific bomb barrage which covered practically every square yard, the British 1st Army swept down the main road to Tunis from Medjez-El-Bab, established itself on a broad strip extending five miles north and five miles south of the road, and rolled eastward.

The infantry at first formed the spearhead of the drive, taking high ground and wiping out anti-tank gun positions. Then British armored formations, moving up on both flanks, took over the lead.

The Germans assigned 60 tanks to engage this steamroller movement, 35 to the south of Massicault and 25 north of the village. Both these formations were routed in armored battles during which several German tanks were destroyed. British anti-tank gun crews took up positions to prevent the enemy from throwing in any fresh armor.

Fell in Pincer Movement

Massicault, 17 miles southwest of Tunis, fell into the heavy British pincer and by the time it was occupied at 3 p.m., British armored units which shot around the town were advancing toward St. Cyprien, six miles up the road.

Brantford, Ont., May 7—(CP)—The merchants' section of the Brantford Board of Trade today passed a resolution to proclaim May 24 a public holiday in observance of Queen Victoria's birthday. AMERICAN TROOPS TAKE FERRYVILLE

With U. S. Forces in Northern Tunisia, May 7 —(AP)— American troops took Ferryville, eight miles from Bizerte, at 1 p.m. (9 a.m., E.D.T.) today.

Capt. Clark Gable Enjoys First Raid

London, May 7. (CP)— Capt. Clark Gable went on his first raid in the attack of May 4 on Antwerp and "enjoyed it and learned a lot", the United States 8th Air Force today quoted him as saying.

Capt. Gable, former film star, flew as an observer on a heavy bomber which went through the raid without encountering enemy planes and sustained only two small flak holes.

Gable, who qualified as air gunner before his recent arrival from the United States, did no shooting. The pilot called the trip "uneventful".

House-to-House Canvass in Lindsay

Lindsay, Ont., May 7 (CP)—A house-to-house canvass of 2,000 homes in Lindsay is being undertaken this week by a service club (Rotary) to obtain all available manpower for spare time work on district farms. Many businessmen helped out in this way last year.

The serious farm labor shortage in this area, together with the growing lateness of the planting season due to weather condition has caused concern to farmers and to officials pledged to increase food production. A central office will be established here where farmers may telephone for spare time help.

Canadian Fighter Pilots Destroy 3 Messerschmitts Over Tunis Bay

With the Western Desert Air Force, May 6 — (Delayed) — (CP Cable) — Three heavily-armed Messerschmitt-110's were destroyed by a trio of Canadian fighter pilots over Tunis Bay Wednesday, it was announced today.

The R.C.A.F fliers suffered neither casualties nor damage in the brief, decisive encounter.

Victorious Canadians were Flt. Lt. William Stewart, D. F. M., of Sherbrooke, Que., W.O. William Parlee of Sussex, N. B., and Sgt. Gordon Rattle of Toronto.

Four R. A. F. fighters first encountered the Messerschmitts and chased them out to sea. They were then pounced upon by the Canadians who each selected an opponent and went to work. Fifteen minutes later all three Jerries were in the sea.

"We had the jump on them at the start and took no chances," Rattle said, "We kept out of the way of their fire and kept squirting away at our chosen victim until all had been destroyed."

BARRAGE BY AIR BLASTS 1,000-YD. PATH WIDE OPEN

New Mark Is Set In Co-ordination of Air Forces With Ground Forces

CRATERS EVERYWHERE

Allied Headquarters, North Africa, May 7 —(AP)— The four-mile long path which British and American air forces blasted for the British 1st Army's advance out of the hills to the plains of Tunis involved the most concentrated bombing in support of troops ever undertaken in Africa.

As hundreds of planes dropped thousands of bombs just ahead of advancing troops, a new mark was set in co-ordination of air forces with ground forces. The path blasted was 1,000 yards wide.

This air barrage had the effect of crushing everything in its way, as a gigantic steamroller might do. As one formation retired the next one arrived and explosives were planted so close together not many yards of surface were left unscathed.

Ground troops found craters everywhere, the enemy's dead and wounded men and smashed, burning vehicles around them.

Teams of R.A.F. and American fliers of the tactical air force which did the job had their biggest day on record.

Lane Blown Open

An R.A.F. officer who watched a lane blown open from a hill three miles west of Massicault said, "ground troops unable to contain their enthusiasm came running across from their trucks to shake me by the hand and say, 'By God, what a show."

"From the first light to 9:30 in the morning the sky was densely dotted with bombers, each formation with tremendous fighter escort," said the officer.

The whole battlefield was so covered by dust from the pummelling that many of the explosions were difficult to see but their noises came rumbling back to observers on the hill.

With the exception of four Focke-Wulfs which dropped bombs harmlessly, no enemy planes showed up to interrupt the spectacle.

There was a pause in the bombing at midday, and large fighter formations swept in and strafed enemy troops. Then the bombers resumed the job.

Capt. Harold H. Balfour, British under-secretary for air, and Air Marshal Sir Arthur Coningham saw the battle from a hill top.

At an advanced U. S. air base in Tunisia, May 6 —(Delayed)—(AP)—The Allied air command launched the greatest ground-support air attack of three years of African warfare at dawn today.

During the first four hours of the attack, the staggered Axis forces were hit with a bomb tonnage nearly equalling that dropped on London during some of the big German night attacks.

This punch was delivered by light and medium bombers alone.

The thunderous air blow was coordinated with the largest infantry and tank attack launched by the Allies so far in this war exceeding even the scale of the mighty British 8th Army attack at El Alamein. There was a continuous air and ground onslaught from the Mediterranean south to the Pont du Fahs sector.

Drive Enemy Into Sea Says Alexander On Eve of New Offensive

London, May 7 —(CP)—Gen. Sir Harold Alexander declared in an order of the day to his 18th Army group that "we have reached the last phase of this campaign" and "are going to drive the enemy into the sea," Algiers radio said today in a broadcast recorded by the Associated Press.

The 18th Army group consists of all ground forces in action in Tunisia under Gen. Alexander's command—the British 8th and 1st armies, the American 2nd corps and the French Army.

The broadcast gave this quotation:-

"Soldiers of the Allies:-

"We have reached the last phase of this campaign. We have grouped our victorious armies and are going to drive the enemy into the sea.

"We have got them just where we want them—with their backs to the wall.

"You have proved yourself masters of the battlefield and therefore you will win this last great battle which will give us the whole of North Africa.

"The eyes of the world are on you and the hopes of those at home.

"Forward then to victory!"

It was issued, the radio said, Wednesday night, on the eve of the new Allied offensive.

PRESIDENT SENDS PERSONAL LETTER TO JOSEPH STALIN

Joseph E. Davies Will Leave Almost at Once for Moscow

MISSION SECRET

Washington, May 7 (AP)—President Roosevelt said today that Joseph E. Davies would leave almost at once for Moscow to carry a personal letter from the President to Joseph Stalin.

The President fended off all attempts of reporters at a press conference to gain infomation on the contents or on whether Davies would bring back a reply. He said Davies, former Ambassador to Russia, does not know himself what is in the letter.

There have been conjectures that the President might propose a meeting with the Russian leader similar to that he has held with Prime Minister Churchill.

Mr. Roosevelt told the reporters, however, that their guesses always had been wrong in the past.

Davies will not be gone very long and will come right back, Mr. Roosevelt said. He said he assumed his personal envoy would learn the contents of the document in Moscow, discuss them, and then return.

The President said nobody had seen the letter except himself and his personal secretary, Miss Grace Tully.

No Coal Strike Is Expected

Washington, May 7 (AP)—President Roosevelt gave a clear indication to a press conference today that he expects no strike of coal miners against the government.

"Are coal miners employees of the government," a reporter asked, "and, if so, can they strike against the government?"

He said he would reply in the affirmative to the first part of the question, and on the second, he remarked that he had been in the government a great many years and could not recollect any strike by government employees against the government.

He was asked, too, whether he planned for the government to continue operation of the mines it has taken over until "a new contract is signed and peace assured in the industry."

He said he had heard nothing until today about stopping the running of the mines.

FLOW OF SUPPLIES CONTINUE DESPITE JAP SINKINGS

Five Ships Sunk But Only Small Percentage of the Crews Perish

GAIN ON GROUND

By C. YATES McDANIEL
Associated Press Staff Writer

Allied Headquarters, Australia, May 7 — (AP) — Japanese submarines torpedoed and sank five Allied freighters recently in the "life line" waters east of Australia, but the huge flow of men and supplies for future Allied offensives continues "virtually undiminished," Allied headquarters announced today.

The biggest ship lost was an Australian freighter. Only two of her crew perished.

A small Australian freighter was sent to the bottom by a submarine which later surfaced. Survivors bent low in the lifeboats fearing they would be machine-gunned but it was dark and the submarine failed to sight them.

Another small Australian freighter's hull was ripped in mid-morning by two torpedoes and she sank within an hour. The other two ships lost were a small Norwegian freighter and a United States ship carrying 81 persons. Most of the crews were saved by patrol craft.

"Our shipping continues to operate in virtually undiminished volume under protection by our naval and aircraft units," today's communique reported.

It also announced a new ground triumph for the Allies moving upon the Japanese bases of Salamaua and Lae on New Guinea's Huon Gulf. Surprising a Japanese outpost and dispersing it, the Allies seized the village of Bobdubi only five miles southwest of Salamaua. This move threatened to cut the line of supply to Japanese forces entrenched at Mubo, 12 miles south of Salamaua, in an area over which Allied attack planes roared 20 times yesterday, pouring cannon and machine-gun fire.

Hits Scored On Two Ships

Cairo, May 7 —(AP)— United States heavy bombers raided the harbor of Reggio di Calabria on toe of the Italian boot in daylight yesterday and scored hits on two ships in the harbor, a British Headquarters communique said today.

The daylight attack by American bombers followed a raid the previous night by heavy bombers of the R.A.F. during which bomb bursts were observed in the target area and at least one fire was started, the communique said.

The American planes shot down at least one of the enemy planes which attempted to interfere with the attack. From both the British and American raids, one Allied plane was reported missing.

DONATES BLOOD HERO OF DIEPPE

Galt, Ont., May 7 — (CP) — Pte. Harry Wichtacz, who won the D. C. M. and lost a leg at Dieppe, walked into the Red Cross Blood Clinic here yesterday and gave a transfusion.

"I would not be alive today if it were not for the blood serum that had been made available through the Red Cross," he said.

SOVIET ACCUSES POLISH AGENTS OF ESPIONAGE

Spokesman Declares Some Have Admitted Guilt and Have Been Sentenced

STATEMENT ISSUED

(By EDDY GILMORE)
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Moscow, May 7. (AP)—Andrei J. Vishinski, vice-commissar for Foreign Affairs, told British and American newspapermen today that representatives of the Polish government in London had engaged in espionage activities in Russia and declared some of those involved already had admitted their guilt and been sentenced.

Former Ambassador Stanislaw Kot himself, Vishinski asserted, had admitted being involved in these activities and had expressed his regret.

(Kot is now serving as Minister of Information with the Polish Government in London, a post to which he was appointed last March 19.)

Brought to Trial

Some of the accused Poles, Vishinski said, had been brought to trial, "exposed and deported from the Soviet Union" while others were "sentenced to various terms of deprivation of liberty."

Among those deported he named Gen Volikovsky, chief of the Polish military mission, two first secretaries of the Polish Embassy and other junior members of the embassy staff, including Polish representatives at Vladivostok and Archangel. Embassy staff members were among those sentenced to be deprived of liberty, he said. (The statement did not make it clear whether these actually were held in Russia.)

Vishinski asserted that an "overwhelming majority" of those prosecuted "peaded guilty of their criminal activities and gave evidence elucidating in detail the essence and method of these activities."

Answers Question

Asked why the Poles should be engaged in espionage in Russia—a country with which they signed a mutual assistance and friendship agreement on July 30, 1941—Vishinski replied:—

"Nobody spies out of charity".

The accusations against the Polish representatives were contained in a paper which Vishinski read to the correspondents and which he said had been sent to the Polish government in London.

The paper also accused Polish military leaders of refusing to send to the Soviet-German front the Polish Army which was organized in Russia with the co-operation of Soviet authorities.

Nazis Intensify Work on Norwegian Fortifications Following Conference

Stockholm, May 6 — (Delayed)— (AP)—The Germans are intensifying work on Norwegian fortifications following a conference in Narvik at which the possibilities of invasion were discussed by Norwegian Quisling leaders and heads of the German army, navy and police, reliable reports from inside Norway said today.

These reports said that orders have been given by the Norwegian underground organization to prepare for open revolt and that more snares had developed in the total labor mobilization campaign.

In the province of Jaeren on the southwest coast of Norway between Stavanger and Kristiansand, the Germans have begun digging a giant anti-tank ditch, it was reported. Extension of the railroad line north of Mosjoen in Northern Norway also is being rushed and work is being hurried on an airfield at Orlandet off Trondheim Fjord and a submarine station at Trondheim, it was said.

Unconfirmed reports here said units of the German fleet had moved from Trondheim to the area of Tromsoe, north of Narvik. While such a shift would put the fleet in a better position for action against any Murmansk-bound Allied convoys during the long summer days, reports of the move came following an increase in R.A.F. activity along the Norwegian coast.

Sources in contact with Oslo said the administration of the labor mobilization decree was in a "hopeless mess," with the Germans drawing vital workers from farming and timber areas for work or military fortifications.

Loyal Norwegians said a full-scale revolt would come when Norwegian officials gave the signal to co-operate with Allied summer offensive plans.

Seven Axis Supply Lines and Avenues Of Escape Cut Off

Aided by Strong Air Support Net Is Being Tightened Around Novorossisk

10,000 NAZIS KILLED

By EDDY GILMORE
(Associated Press Staff Writer.)

Moscow, May 7 (AP)—The Red Army, smashing forward in increasingly violent battles which have cost the Germans nearly 10,000 dead has driven a wedge between the German and Rumanian forces operating north and south of the Kuban River in the Caucasus and is tightening its net about Novorossisk, front line dispatches reported today.

Aided by strong air forces, the Soviet troops cut one road after another in the Kuban Valley, severing Axis supply lines and avenues of escape.

One dispatch said the Russians cut an important road and captured a height dominating the approaches to a large city, the name of which was not given.

Red Star, the army newspaper, said the Germans were pouring in more reserves along with more units of tanks and planes.

Terrain Extremely Difficult

Immediately northeast of Novorossisk the terrain is extremely difficult, full of terraces and steep hills. The Germans, and their Rumanian satellites, are dug in deeply here, and are fighting fiercely.

German prisoners told their captors that the German officers had orders to shoot every man who fell back.

A dispatch to Izvestia, the government newspaper, said special groups had been organized to bury the Axis dead and that one of these groups buried about 2,000 soldiers yesterday.

West of captured Krymskaya the Red Army managed to drive one part of a large Axis force to one side of the swamp and river and pursued another force down the opposite side of the river.

The occupation of the villages of Sadqvoy, Melkhovajy and Blagodarny, all northwest of Krymskaya, divided still another large group of Germans and Rumanians, it was said.

The Soviet troops pushed westward toward the Kerch Strait and the Sea of Azov after capturing basic points and preventing the Germans from regrouping.

The midnight communique as recorded in London by the Soviet Radio Monitor said that 1,500 more Germans had been killed in the newest fighting.

Today's noon communique, broadcast by the Moscow radio and recorded in London, said that in the region northeast of Novorossisk "our troops continued to fight the enemy. In other sectors of the front there were no significant changes."

Smash 50 Gun Positions

The bulletin said Soviet artillery smashed more than 50 gun positions and wiped out many enemy blockhouses while the land forces were continuing their push northeast of Novorossisk. Two German tanks also were knocked out, it was stated.

The midnight communique said five German counter attacks, each succeeding one more bitter, were fought off in the region of Neberdjayevksaya, which is only nine miles from Novorossisk. German broadcasts said the Russians were attempting to flank the north end of the battle zone with water-borne troops sent from Rostov across the Sea of Azov, and claimed that German bombers destroyed 11 Soviet barges in that region, and 18 boats carrying Russian troops were sunk in an attempt to cross the Kuban River at a point in the Taman Peninsula.

A Russian broadcast recorded by the Soviet Monitor in London said that Russian bombers scored hits on munitions-filled German trains at the railway junction of Dnieperopetrovsk, Kremenchug and Bryansk Wednesday night.

Rt. Rev. Sclater Pays Tribute to Cheerfulness Of British Housewives

London, May 7 — (CP Cable) — Rt. Rev. J. R. P. Sclater of Toronto, Moderator of the United Church in Canada, today paid tribute to "the everlasting cheerfulness and cleverness with which the British housewife manages to make living conditions extraordinarily reasonable."

"When I go back," he told correspondents at the Ministry of Information, "I shall suggest a subscription to provide a monument to be placed in Westminster Abbey to the British housewife."

Dr. Sclater arrived in London on Wednesday to attend religious gatherings and visit the Canadian forces.

PROPERTY DAMAGE AMICABLY SETTLED

Damage to both left fenders of an automobile resulted on Front St., Thursday afternoon when a truck driven by A. Michalwit, of Hamilton sideswiped a motor car driven by Allan MacMullin, 57 West Bridge St. Mr. MacMullin had stopped his motor car on Front Street in order to permit Mrs. MacMullin to alight. Following behind was Michalwit's truck and when he attempted to pass on the left hand side of the motor car another automobile was approaching from the north and the space was not sufficiently wide enough to permit the vehicles to pass with the result both the left front and rear fenders of Mr. MacMullin's car were badly crumpled during the impact. Police investigated and the matter of damages was amicably settled.

Catching fire from a small bonfire which had been built from rubbish at the rear of the building, the wall of a garage owned by the Wallbridge Cartage at the corner of Henry and Everett Streets was slightly damaged, it was said by department officers. The fire fighters were called to extinguish the flames and quickly had the fire under control with the use of the Booster pump.

Early Friday morning the brigade was called to the Houston Lumber Company premises on St. Paul St., where the shaving burner smoke stack had gotten aflame. No damage of any nature was reported by firemen.

RED CROSS NURSES TO BE IN PARADE

The Red Cross nurses of Belleville will take part in the military parade to be held in support of the Fourth Victory Loan Campaign at Trenton on Sunday afternoon, it has been announced. The Red Cross unit also took part in last Sunday's parade which was held in Belleville.

Two Airmen Given Jail Terms For Entering Cottages

Convicted of breaking and entering summer cottages situated on Peche Point on the Bay of Quinte, two airmen from the R.A.F. stationed at Kingston, were sentenced to serve three months each in the common jail after being convicted before Magistrate A. B. Collins K.C. in Picton police court Thursday. The airmen, Erland Vickers and Robert Vallance, were apprehended in a cottage owned by R. Draycott of this city, two weeks ago.

Vickers pleaded guilty to two charges of breaking and entering summer cottages and a third count of stealing a canoe from the Trenton R.C.A.F. base. Concurrent sentences were given in all three incidents bly the court. Vallance was only convicted of entering a summer cottage owned by Harry Langabeer of this city, and also of the taking of the canoe. However, both airmen will spend the next three months in the Prince Edward County jail, as Vallance's sentences were of the three-month nature to run concurrent also. The men were apprehended by Provincial Constable Kellogg following a chase down the bay.

Prior to their arrest by civil authorities the airmen escaped detention from the guardhouse at the Trenton R.C.A.F. station, where they were being held awaiting escort from Kingston. They later stole a canoe from the Trenton station and paddled their way to Peche Point where they were arrested by Provincial Police inside a summer cottage.

Trucks Donated To Take Troops

Responding to the call for trucks to transport members of the Argyll Light Infantry Battalion, 34th Battery R.C.A, for Sunday's Victory Loan parade at Trenton, Mr. Richard Kuntze, manager of the York Trading Company, yesterday volunteered three of his company's largest vehicles for this purpose.

"In these three large trucks we can transport approximately 75 men, but we need many more such vehicles if our local Garrison is to be at full strength for this important war program," stated Lieut.-Col. B. C. Donnan, officer commanding the Argyll Light Infantry today. Operators with trucks available to transport the local military garrison to Trenton on Sunday are asked to phone 1499.

Today additional trucks were assured the local Garrison when L.A. Young, manager of the Stewart Warner-Alemite Corporation donated three vehicles. Others to assist in the transportation are Stephens Adamson Ltd., Houston Lumber Company, Morley Smith and Everett Black. Still other means of transportation are needed, Captain K. R. Holmes, adjutant of the Argyll Light Infantry added today.

E. P. Smitheram Addresses Thurlow Teachers' Assoc.

Speaking at a special dinner meeting of the Thurlow Teachers' Association held at the Y.M.C.A. Thursday evening, Mr. F. P. Smitheram of the Peterborough Normal School told district teachers that individuality in the public school teaching program was necessary to assist children to take their place in modern civilization.

Dealing at some length with the various individual philosophies of education, Mr. Smitheram pointed out that just as this individuality existed, so did the need exist of regarding as of paramount importance the individual needs of the child. In this way only was it possible to train a child to assume his rightful place in the world, he said.

In conclusion Mr. Smitheram commended the Thurlow Teachers' Association for the many social opportunities accorded visiting teachers-in-training.

Among the teachers-in-training from Peterborough and Ottawa Normal Schools present at the meeting were Miss Mary Rush, Miss Muriel Wells, Miss Phyllis Beattie, Miss Jean Cook, Miss Irene Ketcheson, Miss Keitha Bush, Miss Nina Sine, Miss Kathryn Winter, Miss Audrey Barker, Miss M. Armstrong and Miss W. Huffman.

Much valuable practical training in teaching methods is received by teachers-in-training through the program calling for their being stationed for several weeks in school during their normal school studies. Such teachers-in-training in the Thurlow district are under the direction of Mr. J. R. Pickering, district public school inspector.

Included on the evening's program was a humorous reading entitled "Child's Composition—Farm Animals", given by Mrs. H. Harrison. Dr. Madill introduced the guest speaker to the district teachers, while appreciation of the association was very capably expressed by C. I. Frederick, principal of Queen Mary School. Miss Olive Treverton acted as convener for the evening's program. Normal school masters present were Dr. Bannister, Dr. J. H. Madill and Mr. Smitheram.

Rumors That Executive Workers And Special Committee Heads Receive Pay for Services to Loan Are Denied

Spiking current rumors being heard by salesmen in various parts of the county and which are detrimental to bond sales, local Victory Loan headquarters officials emphatically denied today that special committee heads and executive workers in the campaign are granted liberal allowances for their services.

Persistent rumors that such executive workers receive liberal salaries for their services are very discouraging for those people who graciously volunteer their services gratis. None of the campaign executive workers receive salaries or allowances of any kind, it was stated this morning by Mr. F. C. Woolley, local campaign organizer.

No Gas Allowances Either

"It really is discouraging for these people to have this thrown up at them", commented Mr. Woolley. "These officials really work hard and put in long hours purely as a patriotic effort. They do not even receive gasoline allowances for what travelling they may have to do".

Salesmen and county organizers appointed by the National War Finance Committee, together with the regular office staff at headquarters are the only persons connected with the county organization who receive payment for their services. Chairmen and members of the various committees, such as sales and public relations receive no remuneration whatever for their work.

City Air Cadet Corps Complimented For Excellent Showing at Inspection

There need be no fear for the future of the air force in this country if the enthusiasm and interest shown in air cadets in Belleville is exemplified all across the Dominion.

Such were the words of Wing Commander R. C. Ripley, officer commanding Mountain View R.C.A.F. Station as he addressed the Belleville air cadet squadron following their annual inspection held on the collegiate campus Wednesday evening.

The inspecting officer complimented the local air cadets on their parade performance and also expressed gratitude for the enthusiasm shown by the large turnout of spectators.

"I was greatly impressed by your parade performance," stated Wing Commander Ripley to the cadets, "Your drill and marching were excellent, a credit to yourselves and to your officers. If the enthusiasm in air cadets shown in Belleville is a criterion of the interest shown across Canada, there need be no fear for the future of the air force in this country."

If the Belleville cadets followed up the training they are now receiving by enlistment in the Royal Canadian Air Force, Wing Commander Ripley promised them an "exciting and interesting time."

56 Members in Corps

High ranking air and military officers from the district were interested spectators for the ceremonial on the collegiate campus which saw 56 members of the local air cadets, spic and span in their new uniforms, parade before their reviewing officer. Commanded by Air Cadet Flying Officer Dawson Boyd, the boys presented a fine picture as they marched past the reviewing stand, both in flight and column of route order.

Outstanding in the ceremonial point of interest was the presentation of the air cadet insignia to the Pilot Officer Sam Johnson, specialist officer for the local squadron. Drawn up in hollow square formation facing the collegiate the boys stood smartly at attention as Douglas Boyd, provincial air cadet secretary, presented the colors to the local squadron. The insignia was dedicated by Flight Lieutenant J. Scott, padre at No. 5 Initial Training School.

No. 5 Initial Training School bugle band acted as duty band for the inspection and for the march past and also led a short parade which saw the cadets march down Bridge Street, up Front Street to Campbell and back to the collegiate.

Rotary Club Proud Sponsors

Sponsored by the Belleville Rotary Club, the local cadets were watched with pride by Rotarians as they paraded during their inspection. Officers and members of the Kingston Air Cadet squadron were also interested spectators.

Officers of the Belleville Cadet Squadron No. 133 are Air Cadet PO. D. C. Boyd, O.C.; A.C. PO. M. E. Branscombe, Medical Officer; A.C., PO. J. M. Wilson, Adjutant; A.C., PO. O. H. Mangold, Flight Commander No 1 Flight; A.C., PO. H. B. Simpson, Flight Commander No. 2 Flight; A.C., PO. M. C. Ryan, Equipment Officer, and A.C., PO. Sam Johnson, Specialist Officer.

Officers of the local air cadet squadron and guests at the ceremonial were entertained at a reception following the inspection at the home of Mrs. H. B. Finkle, BBridge Street. The reception was sponsored by the civilian committee of the local squadron.

Picton and District

M. Webster Suffers Broken Leg When Knocked Down by Motorcycle

Picton, May 7—Struck by a motorcycle driver from the Canadian Ordnance Corps Training Centre at Kingston, Morley Webster suffered a fractured leg here yesterday. Durward Cole was also knocked over by the machine but was not injured. The machine was one of about 25 in a motorcycle convoy which was visiting the county while on a training scheme. The drivers were student officers.

Traffic had been halted on Main Street and the machines were pulling from the curb, heading west. One of the machines failed to turn sufficiently to avoid crashing into a light delivery truck which had been stopped behind cars parked on the south side of the street. A group of people was standing in front of the truck, or the north half of the travelled portion of the road, and the machine went into their midst. The driver was unhurt. The machine started up very suddenly as it left the curb.

Webster was taken to the County Hospital for treatment.

A.M.C. here, and members of several patriotic organizations. A drumhead service will be carried out at the War Memorial.

Chinese Willing Buyers

"If everyone was like the local Chinese, selling Victory Loan bonds would be an easy job," a salesman reported at headquarters here yesterday. "I have sold bonds to them in every loan and every member takes a bond. They are waiting for the salesman to call and it is just necessary to say Victory Bonds and they are ready to sign the application. Where I expected to sell one or two bonds, the staff would turn out to be many times that number and all would do their part."

Though living very quietly, the operators of the cafes and laundries have proved themselves good citizens in many ways, being always ready to support every good cause.

Arthur Phasey has been appointed assistant to A. W. Hensman, Selective Service Officer at Picton.

Only 22 reactors in 21,731 head of cattle tested in Prince Edward County were discovered in the fifth general re-test just completed, the Department of Agriculture at Picton announced.

Hastings County Loan Subscriptions Near $1,750,000

Subscriptions to the Fourth Victory Loan in Hastings County neared the $1,750,0000 mark at noon on Thursday, it was indicated this morning by local loan headquarters committeemen. With an overall objective of $3,300,000 subscriptions for the county now amount to approximately 52 per cent it was stated.

Only four districts in the county, those of Trenton, Tweed, Madoc and Bancroft, have failed to top the 50 per cent mark in their drives toward their respective objectives.

Outside of county air stations which have already exceeded their respective objectives, the village of Deloro is nearest to reaching its goal, according to official tabulation. The northern village has now attained 85 per cent of its objective, while Belleville comes second with 63 per cent. Stirling is rapidly gaining ground and is only two percentage points behind Belleville, while Sidney and Thurlow district is now up to 57 per cent. Deseronto is up to 57 per cent; Tweed 48 per cent; Trenton 45 per cent; Bancroft 46 per cent and Madoc 41.8 per cent.

Police Dept. Exceeds Quota

The city police department is the first of the municipal employees' groups in Belleville to exceed their respective quotas it has been announced by headquarters. An over-all objective for all municipal departments was set for the campaign and then the quota sub-divided between the various city departments.

LOAN SALES FOR THURS. AMOUNT TO $66,737,100

Total for First Ten Working Days Hits $630,843,600—Many Large Subscriptions

HULL LEADS CITIES

Ottawa, May 7—(CP)— Bolstered by a $15,000,000 subscription from Unemployment Insurance Commission of Canada, Thursday's subscriptions to the $1,100,000,000 Fourth Victory Loan totalled $66,737,100, raising total subscription in the first 10 working days of the three-week drive to $630,843,600.

This announcement was made by National War Finance Committee Headquarters, which listed the corresponding 10-day total for last Autumn's Third Victory Loan at $509,980,000. But in the last loan the objective was only $750,000,000.

Yesterday's subscriptions of $66,737,100 compared with $51,721,700 on the same day of the Third Victory Loan drive.

Corporate "special names" subscriptions yesterday included: T. Eaton Co. Ltd. and subsidiaries, $5,500,000; Searle Grain Co., Winnipeg, $400,000; Western Savings and Loan Association, Winnipeg, $400,000.

From Ontario were reported: British American Oil Co. Ltd., $1,650,000; John Inglis Co. Ltd., $500,000; W. Robinson and Son Converters Ltd., $500,000; Dominion Metallurgical Co. Ltd., $639,000; City of Guelph, $500,000; Canadian Canners Ltd., Hamilton, $750,000; Horton Steel Works Ltd., Fort Erie, $500,000.

The army in Canada subscribed a total of $7,250,850 during the first nine days of the loan, with $2,937,210 from the seven loan districts in Ontario. At Petawawa, Ont., where the camp total is nearly $250,000, Canadian Artillery Training Centre A1 was leading with bond purchases of $106,650.

"An important part of army bond purchases is made up of subscriptions by the Canadian Women's Army Corps, composed of girls who do not hesitate to give up accustomed little luxuries to back attack," said Loan Headquarters. "Typical of what they are doing is the case of No. 3 C. W. A. C. Basic Training Centre at Kitchener, Ont., where girls jumped their quota from $25,000 to $40,000 and are within $10,000 of achieving it."

Since the drive began April 26, daily subscriptions have averaged more than $60,000,000, and if these continue at the same level the close of today's canvass should see the cumulative total approaching $700,000,000.

THE WAR TODAY

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

Mussolini and his followers are giving a realistic exhibition of condemned men saying farewells after walking their last mile.

That really isn't surprising, if you make allowance for the emotional strain they must be undergoing as they see disaster nose-diving on them. There can be small doubt that Italy is facing a crisis.

Word from Tunisia-lying only 90 miles from Sicily—is that the Allies today continue to press in about the cornered Axis forces in the Bizerte and Tunis sectors for the Coup de Grace. Many ominous signs warrant the Italians in fearing an Allied invasion of their fatherland as Tunisis falls.

Indeed, the Paris radio says a big Allied convoy has sailed from Gibraltar. It's reported to include 20 transports loaded with landing barges and armored vehicles. What would such a convoy be up to, wandering about the Mediterranean?

Meantime unrest is seething in the Balkans—the territory that Mussolini once natively considered his "sphere of influence," while Hitler grinned. The Turks are polishing up the buttons on their uniforms—just in case.

Small wonder, then, that the Italian dictator should be quaking. I'll wager he was bigger pouches under his eyes than I saw him wearing at the Munich conference. Then he was terrified that Hitler would go to war; now he's terrified because he knows Hitler can't make war vigorously enough to save Italy.

On the anniversary of Mussolini's creation of his Empire in 1936, he has declaimed to his people:-

"The great enterprise is not finished; it is simply interrupted. . . we will return."

Carlo Scorzia, Secretary of the Fascist Party, has told Italy: "should we fall, we must fall with honor and dignity."

So Mussolini and his henchmen are preparing their country for the shock of final defeat.

The Allied High Command continues to let the Axis do all the talking about invasion plans. The only thing we can say with certainty is that it would be logical for the United Nations to strike a quick blow at least against Sicily and Sardinia in conjunction with the finish of the Tunisian battle.

Such an operation would serve the double purpose of unblocking the shipping route through the Sicilian channel and paving the way for invasion of the Italian mainland. If these two great islands were seized immediately, this also would effectively cut off the escape of any more Axis troops from Tunisia, since they have been making Sicily and Sardinia their first refuges in running the gauntlet.

Mess Room Chatter Of Canada's Airmen

By ALAN RANDAL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

With the R.C.A.F. Somewhere in England, May 7. (CP)—A man who has flown maybe 40 or 50 different types of aircraft is in command of an R.C.A.F. squadron of Coastal Command which flies long-range fighters. He is Wing-Cmdr. G. G. Truscott of Moosomin, Sask., who had to wait about three years before he got the chance to do operational flying overseas.

Reason for this was that he was so accomplished in certain things that he was held at jobs in Canada. His squadron is that formerly commanded by Wing Cmdr. Pat H. Woodruff, D.F.C., of Edmonton. Already it has a fine reputation.

An engineer, Truscott went to Royal Military College with such flying fighters as Wing Cmdr. Paul Davoud of Kingston, Ont., a leading night-fighter, Wing Cmdr. "Jud" Kennedy who has seen wide service in the Far East and Europe and Sqdn. Ldr. Vaughan Corbett, D.F.C., veteran of the Battle of Britain.

Something for R.C.A.F. lads to shoot at is the record of Group Capt. Geoffrey Leonard Cheshire, at 25 the youngest officer to hold this rank in the R.A.F. He is one of the R.A.F.'s more colorful characters, has flown bombers from Canada to Britain, made nearly 80 operational trips over Germany, Italy and occupied territory, has seen Rostock, Emden and Cologne in flames and watched his bombs crash into the war industries of the Ruhr. Cheshire has made seven trips to the Big City—Berlin—alone.

Cheshire, native of Chester, Eng., commands a bomber station, and gained the D.S.O. in December 1940 for bringing his Whitley bomber back from Cologne after a shell had exploded a photographic flare which set the aircraft on fire and almost split it in half. In February, 1941, he got the D.F.C. for courage and ability over a long period.

On the side, apart from his flying activities, he wrote a book of personnel experiences called, "Bomber Pilot".

Flt. Sgt. Lorne Thompson, a wireless operator with the R.C.A.F. from Toronto, was too anxious to start his second tour of operations. He had served only one week as an instructor, hardly any time at all compared with most of them. He heard of a squadron leader who was looking for an operator for his crew. He applied, got the job and completed ten trips on his second tour. Then somebody found out he had only filled an instructor's post for a mere week after completing his first ops quota. Right away he came off ops for an other instructional posting.

Sqdn. Ldr. Eugene L. Neal, D.F.C. of Quebec City has a healthy squadron. Flt. Lt. E. L. Thorne of Charlottetown, "M.C." for this famous fighter outfit, says it is a rare sight to have anybody show up for sick parade, so rare that his three orderlies have taken to conducting physical training classes instead of tending ailing men.

The Appetite of Airplanes

(Montreal Herald)

The desperate fight which the Germans are waging around Novorossisk to maintain their toehold in the Caucasus as a stepping-off place for a summer campaign to obtain possession of the Russian oil fields may throw an interesting sidelight on the question so often asked, since the Allies started their round-the-clock air bombing of Germany—the question, "Where is the Luftwaffe"?

There are many theories. One is that Hitler is conserving his airplanes for a big surprise. The fact that meanwhile the Allies are reducing his production centres to rubble and destroying his transportation facilities by "train busting" does not square with that theory.

Another explanation is that his airplanes are fully occupied on the Russian and Tunisian fronts. But the weakness of his air arm first over Libya and now over Tunisia, and the powerlessness of the German air forces to affect decisively the Russian campaign, does not square with that theory, either.

Is the real explanation to be found in a growing shortage of fuel?

The appetite of airplanes is astounding. What Hitler is up against in this respect—and incidentally what we, too, are up against—is revealed in a bulletin first issued by Standard Oil of New Jersey.

Last year the United States produced approximately 50,000 planes. Says the bulletin:

"A plane in flight consumes approximately one-half pound of fuel per horsepower per hour of flight.

"Assuming an average of 1,500 horsepower per plane (which is conservative it can be seen that a plane burns 750 pounds of fuel per hour of flying time. This is equivalent to over 100 gallons, or about three barrels.

"This means that to keep 50,-... plaens in the air for one hour requires 5,000,000 gallons of high-octane fuel. . . . .

"The 1,200 cargo planes scheduled to be build by the Higgins Shipyard in New Orleans alone, would require more than 8,000,-000 gallons of 100-octane gasoline a day, if operated at their maximum cargo carrying capacity".

"Present cargo planes require from 1.2 to 4.4 tons of fuel for every ton of freight carried, even under the most efficient operating conditions".

The surfacing transportation necessary to keep airplanes aloft is staggering—even if unlimited supplies of natural oil are available. Where dependence must be placed on synthetic fuels the call on surface transportation is far greater.

Pipelines, ocean tankers, railway tank cars and motor trucks must be used unceasingly to bring to airplanes in the field fresh supplies to feed their insatiable appetite.

Hitler hasn't got unlimited supplies of natural oil. That is why he has fought, and is fighting, so desperately to get into the Caucasus.

Behind him the Allies are fighting a relentless war on his transportation facilities—and doing it with airplanes.

Thus the answer to the question "Where is the Luftwaffe?" may lie not so much in a shortage of aircraft as in a shortage in fuel for those aircraft—first because of lack of large natural resources of oil and secondly because of a growing shortage of surface transportation for moving available fuel.

When Hitler began his campaign against Russia experts declared he must secure possession of the Caucasian oil fields before winter or face defeat through exhaustion of his oil reserves.

He has not obtained possession of that oil after nearly two years of war with Russia.

BACK THE ATTACK- BUY more VICTORY BONDS

IT'S a tough, grim life they've chosen — those loyal, hard-bitten men who get the cargoes through. On watch, the hours are long and cold and lonely . . . then, below for a snatch of sleep that may be broken at any moment by the call of danger. There's never an instant's truce with the enemy. Always the threat of death hangs over them . . . spitting death from the air, flaming death from oil, numbing death in icy water . . .

They fight the elemental fight, because the cargoes MUST go across. They fight for you!

Think of that when you ask yourself, "Can I afford a Victory Bond?" For those who sacrifice so much, can you refuse a little self-denial? Can you hold back your dollars when they don't hold back their lives?

Ask yourself, "Can't I buy a bigger Bond this year?" Or plan to buy two, one from savings and one on the instalment plan from earnings. Do your part by buying more Victory bonds!

On to the Goal

When the halftime was reached in the Fourth Victory Loan campaign on Wednesday night the subscription had just passed the halfway mark. The progress of the subscription campaign has been encouraging but there remains much yet to be done to bring in about five hundred and fifty million dollars or more.

Canadians will not be complacent. Rather they will make the subscriptions during the coming days keep up to or exceed the sales of the first half of the drive, for they know that the utmost that the people can achieve must be done to make certain that all that British liberty and democracy stand for, and all that the people of Canada have been accustomed to and all that they cherish most in the world may be secure from the worst menace that has ever assailed civilization.

Canadians have done nobly and there is every confidence that the total which has been set as a minimum goal will be achieved and passed. For the people realize that everything which is done now in the war effort must be performed in the spirit of service in order to attain that victory which will assure peace and security and the maintenance of the rights they now possess under the free democracy of the British Empire.

Victory will be won but at a cost of total effort which demands the maximum of the men of the fighting services, of the men and women in factories, and of the money which represents the wealth of Canada under democracy. It requires sacrifices. Lending money to the Government to make the total effort to potent as to guarantee all that Canadians set before themselves for the future generations is not a hard task. In the light of the future the people will see their subscriptions, their bonds and savings certificates serving a very essential purpose.

The words which Prime Minister Churchill used almost three years ago at a time when France was falling, still stand as the goal of this war: "You ask, what is our aim? I can answer in one word: Victory, victory at all costs, victory in spite of all terror, victory, however long and hard the road may be; for without victory, there is no survival." That is the victory at which the Fourth Victory Loan and other loans aim. "Survival" is in that one word "victory."

The bond issue is well named for it points to that most desired of all goals, the triumph over the enemies of humanity.

Money loaned to the Government at this time is helping to fight the battle of freedom and liberation.

Meeting Proposed

The other day Premier Stalin of Russia told the people that the war must have but one end, the defeat and "unconditional surrender" of the Axis. Though Mr. Stalin was unable to attend the conference at Casablanca, he uses the same phrase as was used by Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt in reporting on the aims of the United nations, to demand the "unconditional surrender" of the enemy. Mr. Stalin's reference to the goal and his praise of the British and American raids on Germany and Italy and of the successes of the North African campaign show the unity of all the Allied Nations.

After the Casablanca conference Mr. Churchill had flown to meet Premier Stalin and conferred with him in Russia with good results.

Now it is reported that Mr. Joseph E. Davies will make a second mission to Moscow as the representative of Mr. Roosevelt to propose that the heads of the Soviet Union and of the United States meet for discussion of mutual problems. Davies is no stranger in Russia for he was United States ambassador from 1935 to 1938 at Moscow and has spoken sympathetically of Russia in his book "Mission to Moscow."

The meeting of two such great men as Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Stalin, like that between Mr. Stalin and Mr. Churchill, cannot but serve a good purpose because it is possible in a meeting to achieve through very strength of personality what might otherwise be difficult in the normal channels of diplomacy. Both the Russian and American leaders are towering figures, truly great men like Mr. Churchill. They represent two great nations and their meeting would be an event of great importance.

Necessity and Invention

Necessity is ever the mother of invention and a new type of war which has come upon earth, built on new inventions and a conflict of scientific instruments, has brought the development of further inventions.

The use of gasoline in war today has brought to the fore the problem not only of transportation across the American continent and across the seas but it has also been the problem to get gasoline to the fighting forces at the front. A Washington story on Wednesday told that the United States army has developed portable pipe lines to carry gasoline to motorized units in the field, the pipeline coming in self-contained half-mile units which can be moved by trucks and used independently of other units.

The ingenuity of man responds to the insistent demands of science and produces new devices, instruments and methods.

The Nazi Hangmen

(News From Czechoslovakia)

Fearing inevitable defeat on the battlefields and being greatly alarmed over the growth of the Czechoslovakia underground movement, the German authorities in Bohemia and Moravia are intensifying the reign of terror over the Czech patriots. The Nazi hangmen are kept busy murdering Czechs by the score.

According to an official publication of the German People's Court in Prague 185 Czech patriots were executed since January 1, 1943. About 120 of them were sentenced to death on the charge that they were guilty of high treason. During the month of March, 55 persons were executed. This is the record of one Nazi court.

According to a report issued by the executed .This is the record of one Nazi Czechoslovak Press Bureau in London 18 persons were executed in Prague and ten in Brno on March 16.

After the Restrictions

(Brockville Recorder and Times)

Canadian manufacturers expect that post-war employment here will exceed that of the years before the war. Considering all the things that are not now being made and that will be required by consumers after the war, that is a very reasonable expectation. Once existing restrictions are removed, there will be a great rush to buy, and thus to make, countless articles that will be needed.

LETTER-WAITING

Time was it little mattered did he stop or pass us by.
What the postman used to bring us was the common run of stuff,
To something we had written there might be a friend's reply
Next week or even later for such notes were soon enough.
We didn't run to meet him when the monthly bills he'd bring
Or the advertising matter: "second-class" I think they pay.
But we're waiting every morning now to hear the door bell ring
And we're watching out for letters since the boy has gone away!

I didn't stop the postman down the street and ask to see
If he had some special letter, for I didn't greatly care,
For whatever mail he carried, night was soon enough for me;
We've a table in the hallway and I'd surely find it there.
Now we watch to see him coming. You can guess the reason why.
And there's something very pleasing in that uniform of gray,
But we're sad and heavy-hearted when he has to pass us by.
We are anxious now for letters since the boy has gone away.

Oh, we know the postman knows it, as he walks along the street,
Knows the mothers' eyes are on him through the windows where they wait.
He can guess the sort of welcome he is on his way to meet
When he has that precious letter you can tell it by his gait.
Though I should be at the office, for the town I seldom start.
I linger at my doorway for the postman every day.
For the business of the morning now I haven't any heart
Till I know if there's a letter from the boy who's far away.

Leaflets on the Loan

The Chairman's Walking Stick

Stephen Leacock

It was pretty well understood by the middle of the Victory Loan Campaign in Mariposa that on the final evening they would present the Chairman of the Committee with a stick. This was partly on the Chairman's own account. Jim Heavyside—that's the older one; don't confuse him with young Jim, — is one of the biggest men in Mariposa, head of the largest of the companies and just retired from active work a month ago after a long life of service to the town. And now he's thrown himself into this campaign with all his old time energy. In any case he's a good feller; I mean he's all right.

It has always been the thing in Mariposa to give a man a walking stick in recognition of any public service. They gave a stick to the designer of the historic monument in the Park, and a stick for the Municipal Abbattoir, and a stick for the new wing of the Asylum that increases capacity three to one and definitely put Mariposa on the map as a home for the feebleminded.

Generally when they're going to give a stick the idea gets started and goes round town, confidentially, of course, so that the man himself won't know it. In this case, as a matter of fact, the idea originated in Jeff's Barber Shop and it was Jeff himself who first started it. He stopped his scissors one afternoon and rested his elbow on the customer's neck and said: "What about a stick for Jim Heavyside ?"

The idea caught right on. And Jeff, — you know how a modest man gets encouraged and goes on, —said that to his mind, one of these Malacca canes with a band on would be just right. It appears that they sell canes like that clear up to a hundred dollars, and past it, though you wouldn't think it.

Well, that was all settled and the next thing was to raise the money. Bill Landy, — he's the mining broker I spoke of , generally does that because he understands finance. He just gets from each feller what he feels like giving, and keeps it confidential. He gives out nothing except the total. A lot of mining business is done that way. They just tell you what you get.

So that was all settled, and Bill got busy and a couple of days later he was telling a group of us in the shop that he had all the money for the cane in sight, when who should walk in but Jim Heavyside himself. He was leaning on a Malacca cane You could have knocked any of us down with a club.

One of the fellers, in a chair, who could only half see, called out, "What's the matter, Jim, gone lame?"

"No," said Jim Heavyside with a laugh. "the boys at the factory gave me a farewell supper last night and this stick as a presentation. "That's the third stick," he added, "that I've got in less than a month. Take a look at it, isn't it a dandy?"

They passed it round but of course the heart was out of the idea now. They had to think of something else.

Well, the next day, Jeff said to some of the customers in the shop, "Professor" Byrin was up here from the city yesterday and he says why not give Mr. Heavyside one of these sets of books, — what is it, — an encyclopaedia?"

"An encyclopaedia," said one of the fellers, "Why Jim Heavyside could never read that. He's no scholar."

"You don't have to read an encyclopaedia says another. It is for the front room. And when you buy them now they sell you a glass case right with them so that you don't have to open it even for dusting. Bert Trawley has one,— has had it for ten years, — and it's in dandy shape, — good as new,— they never open it."

"Grandfather had one," said another customer, "given to him like this when he retired, but he read his: yes, sir, sat down to read it clear through and get the good out of it. But he was too old when he started. He died in the letter A. But Jim Heavyside is only sixty-five. He can tackle it."

So it was settled that the presentation gift would be an encyclopaedia. But just to avoid all error this time they got Bill Landy to go up to the Heavysides' house to spy round and see if they had one.

Lucky they did. They had one sure enough, and a real beauty, an antique, in fine old leather, at least seventy years old. Goodness knows what it would fetch today. So that was a lucky escape from another bad break.

Then came a suggestion that carried every one with it. It's a wonder that so often the right thing never occurs to any one at first. This idea like so many others, came from Peter Cogland, the new lawyer in Mariposa. He's always full of ideas and popular. Of course he's new to Mariposa, — only been here six years, — but the feeling is that after he's been in the town a while and gets settled, he'll play quite a part.

Anyway it was Peter who said, "Why not give Jim Heavyside a case of Scotch Whisky?" Well, the idea just caught like wild fire. Someone said, "But Jim doesn't drink." And Peter said "That doesn't matter. You see, he has to entertain a lot, and now all the more because of this campaign and being retired. He'll have fellers in his house all the time. This whisky will come in just right. But listen, — a case is only two dozen isn't it, — we might make it two cases,— one for Jim and one for Mrs. Heavyside." "That's right," said one of the boys, "the only question would be whether Scotch Whisky is as acceptable as gin, — a case of real old dry gin,—"

"Or if you come to that," interrupted George Summers, "What about a case of rye?"

But he was ruled out. Everybody knew that George only drank rye.

The only question was whether such a presentation was legal. Would the law of the province allow it or not! So Jeff said, "I tell you boys, why don't you telegraph down to the city and ask if its legal to give the Chairman of a Loan Committee a case of whisky, —"I can't express it right," Jeff said, "but no doubt Mr. Cogland could.

So Peter Cogland got a pencil and a pad and they started framing a telegram to the Attorney General's Office. It was certainly hard to phrase.

"A group of citizens of Mariposa desire to know . . . "

That didn't sound right.

"On behalf of the undersigned group . . . "

And that sounded wrong.

"Would you consider a case of Scotch whisky . . . "

No, that sounded backwards.

Then some one suggested, why shouldn't they write it just the way Jeff said it,—

"Is it legal to give the Chairman of our Loan Committee a case of whisky?"

So that was what they sent.

Telegrams are like that.

The answer came right back while most of them were still sitting round discussing it.

"Presentation entirely legal. Writing you to that effect."

So that was great. They started right away picking brands off a Liquor List, each one what he liked best.

Naturally there were quite a number of fellers in the shop next day when the noon mail came in. The letter was addressed to Jeff and it read:

"Your proposed presentation of one or more cases to the Chairman of the Victory Loan Committee is entirely within the law. The only limitation upon it is that the cases must not be bought for this purpose but must be filled with bottles taken from the private stock of individual subscribers."

Well, say! . . . Talk about a Victory Campaign — talk about sacrifice and winning the war— but when it comes to . . . well, I mean when you ask a man to,— well, who would want to . . . oh, no, reason is reason.

So that was the end of that. I will admit that for the moment all the fellers looked pretty downhearted, almost felt mean. They knew that they were right in not asking one another to give up private whisky but somehow they didn't feel so good.

Luckily there came to Peter Cogland on the spur of the moment one of those bright ideas that will some day send him to Ottawa,—or half way to it. Anyway,—as far, say, as Kingston.

"I've got it," he said. "We'll give Jim Heavyside a hundred dollar Victory Bond."

Wasn't it simple and timely? and obvious? And yet no one had thought of it. It's always like that. Give the Chairman one of his own Bonds! Why of course!

So the meeting, — it was a sort of meeting, — broke up with enthusiasm and went to dinner.

I lingered behind a moment.

"That's fine, isn't it? I said, "that was the real solution."

Jeff shook his head.

"I don't know that I hold with it," he said. "You give a man one of his own Bonds and it seems like giving milk to a milkman . . . or it's like giving me a free shave and a shampoo" . . . And he added gloomily, "Jim will be disappointed about the stick." "About the stick?" I said.

"Yes, he is expecting it. He'd heard something about it. He's got the notion of sticks. You see, Jim Heavyside is not vain but he's pretty proud of having three sticks given to him, and he was hoping to make it four. That's why he came down here with the Malacca cane . . . In fact, it was my idea. I said to him, "Mr Heavyside if you'll come down to the shop and bring one of your sticks that'll put the boys on their mettle to give another."

Luckily it hasn't been too late. Everything is arranged and the Chairman will get his stick. We have it all ready, and real dandy. Some of the fellers think it must be worth a hundred and fifty dollars, some more. No one knows how much Bill Landy collected or what he paid for it. Better taste," Bill said, "to keep it confidential."

Stephen Leacock.

ON THE RECORD

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

The Polish-Russian Difficulties

New York, May 7—The breaking of relations, 10 days ago, between Stalin and Gen. Sikorski's Polish Government-in-Exile has opened the whole question of Russia and the Western nations. The return of Mr. Litvinoff of Moscow and the second mission of former Ambassador Davies foreshadow new negotiations. Fortunately, there are symptoms of goodwill from both sides.

The attitude of the British and United States Governments has been to try to reconcile both parties, and, on no account, to drive the wedge deeper.

From the Russian side, there is lately a distinct change of tone. Stalin, in his order of the day of May 7, accepted, for the first time, the Casablanca formula of "unconditional surrender."

He also, for the first time, has changed his attitude of denigrating the North African campaign and the bombing raids over Europe and Germany, which, of late, have been costing us dearly. He now appreciates both as substantial contributions to victory, and affirms unequivocally that Russia and the Western powers are fighting a united war of coalition.

So the atmosphere is not so bad as might have been feared a fortnight ago.

Separate Peace "Out."

But this does not settle the basic issues regarding the war aims of the several powers. There have been apprehensions that Russia might possibly get out of the war and conclude a separate peace with Hitler. Stalin's latest statements rule this out—and so does Hitler's launching of the story about the massacre of Polish officers. For if Hitler were thinking of a separate peace with Russia he would not have launched his story at this moment.

He obviously launched it to deepen the breach between Poles and Russians, whose relations have been unhappy for a year and a half and probably with it he hoped to make overtures to certain sections of the Polish people.

Hitler is forming new armies out of such Eastern European peoples as he can command, and recently it became known that a captured Red Army general is recruiting an army of Ukrainians from the territory occupied by the Germans.

Legion in Last War.

The German High Command certainly recalls that during the last war a Polish Legion was formed on German soil out of refugees and men from the territories occupied then as now by the Germans. They were led by Col. Pilsudski — afterward Marshal—and fought the Russians. Late in 1917 Pilsudski broke with the Germans when they tried to set up a Hohenzollern prince as king of Poland, and he was arrested, and interned in the Fortress of Magdeburg.

The policy of Pilsudski, as head of the Polish State, was consistently to try to avoid either a clash or a union between Germany and Russia, both of whom, from a Polish viewpoint, and from Polish history, were potential enemies.

Since Russia and Germany have both, in the past, and during this very war, collaborated to destroy Poland, neither country is beloved by the Poles, and there is always the possibility that one branch of Polish opinion and leadership might be exploited against the other. Hitler is obviously trying to do this now—to woo those Poles who might so greatly fear Russia as to forget what the Nazis have done. So far it is the glory of Poland that she has never had a Quisling.

In this situation it is unfortunate that the question of frontiers was ever unrolled at all. Nothing is more dangerous than to start dividing the spoils of war before the war is won. Both Russia and Poland have signed the Atlantic Charter, which contains three pledges: First, no aggrandizement, territorial or otherwise: second, no territorial changes that do not accord with the freely expressed wishes of the people concerned; third, the right of all peoples to choose the form of government under which they will live.

Frontier Security Sought.

This bars out enlargement of the territory of any ally at the expense of another, and even enlargement of territories at the expense of the enemy, unless the people themselves desire it.

It is possible that the Russians date their acceptance of these principles from the time when they entered th war, and thus find it compatible with the Atlantic Charter to claim the Baltic States and Eastern Poland. But I think this is stretching the Atlantic Charter very dangerously. I believe that what concerns Russia is frontier security, and that depends upon the sort of peace organization that we are able to create after the war.

On the other hand, many spokesmen for the Poles and even the Polish Government-in-Exile have advanced claims for a Greater Poland which are certainly incompatible with the Charter.

In a war of coalition, where there are divergent interests among allies, the only safety lies in sticking to clear principles, and not departing from them by an inch. For every departure, by one nation or another, opens a breach into which the enemy moves with the greatest expedition.

SHOVELLED COAL TO FIND LIQUOR

BENEFIT OF CLERGY

In the Middle Ages clergymen, monks and nuns were exempted in England from the jurisdiction of the secular courts.

A clergyman accused of any crime except high treason could appeal to the ecclesiastical authorities.

This privilege was called "benefit of clergy," a rough rendering of the Latin legal phrase "privilegium clericale."

It was based largely on I Chronicles 16:22, which reads, "Touch not mine anointed, and do my prophets no harm," which in turn is a quotation from Psalms 105:15.

Naturally many persons not in "holy orders" sought the same privilege and attempted to pass for clergymen.

Therefore, it became the practice, when a plea for benefit of clergy was made, to bring out a book in Latin and ask the accused to read. In those days reading in Latin was limited almost entirely to the clergy. If the accused could read from the book, the plea was admitted; if he could not it was denied.

The passage generally selected as a "trial-verse" was the first verse of Psalms 51, which reads: "Have mercy upon me, O God, according to thy loving kindness: according unto the multitude of thy tender mercies blot out my transgressions."

It is estimated that between the 13th and 19th centuries nearly a million persons were saved from the gallows by being able to read this passage from the Bible, which became popularly known as the "neck-verse," because ability to read it saved the prisoner's neck.

After Ben Johnson was sentenced to be hanged for killing Gabriel Spencer in a duel he claimed the right of benefit of clergy. Being one of the best Latin scholars in England, he easily scanned the neck verse to the satisfaction of the court and so escaped hanging.

The privilege of benefit of clergy was first officially recognized in England in 1087, during the reign of William Rufus, second of the Norman kings; a statute passed in 1489, during the reign of Henry VII, distinguished between persons actually in holy orders and others who could read, the latter being restricted to one plea in benefit of clergy, that is, a person who was not a clergyman but who could read was permitted to make the plea only once. For identification in future cases the accused was branded on the left thumb with a hot iron.

Benefit of clergy was abolished in 1512 in respect to persons charged with murder and other grave crimes. It was finally abolished altogether in 1827, during the reign of George IV.

Although the American Colonies recognized the benefit of clergy, in 1790 the first Congress passed an act barring such pleas in the Federal courts.

Dionne Quints Visit Wisconsin To Launch Ships

Superior, Wis., May 7 —(AP)— Superior expects to break ship launching records, strengthen international relations and hasten victory in four action-packed hours Sunday, but it was the visit of the Dionne Quintuplets that had the city excited today.

The famous eight-year-olds are coming to this head-of-the-Great Lakes city of 40,000 to christen the Quint Fleet, five sleek ocean freighters built for Great Britain under lend-lease arrangements.

Statesmen of three nations, admirals and tens of thousands of spectators will be here. As for the records, never have vessels gone sidewise down the ways in such number.

But it's the five little girls, not ships, dignitaries, gold braid or precedent, that has Superior's eye.

Each of the Quints will sponsor a ship, dashing a pint bottle of Niagara Falls water against the bow.

Christening in English

The christening will be in English. Whether Annette, Cecile, Emilie, Marie or Yvonne will have the honor of sending the first vessel on its way to war cargo duty will be determined by lot.

The freighters are the Moses Gay, Asa Eldgridge, Gurdon Gates, Bailey Foster and Watson Ferris, named for captains of early American frigates and assigned by the U. S. Maritime Commission.

At one time it was planned to give the sponsors' names to the fleet, but this was abandoned when attention was called to the tradition of the sea — that it is bad luck to change the name after the keel has been laid.

But the Quints aren't disappointed. At the Dionne home near Callander, Ont., Yvonne gave their answer:—

"What does that matter? We are going there to christen the ships so we can help win the war — not because they were to be named for us."

Launching of the first vessel is scheduled for 3 p.m., E.D.T., with the others following at 45-minute intervals. Part of the ceremony will be broadcast in Canada and the United States and by shortwave to Great Britain. The broadcast will begin at 4 p.m., E.D.T. The Quintuplets will send greetings and sing several songs in French and English.

A Mountain of Tin Cans

(From The Winnipeg Tribune)

Years ago our fathers founded this city at the junction of the two rivers. They built their cabins in a great plain between the Red and the Assiniboine. As far as the eye could see there was no hill to break the straight line of the horizon. Through the years since those first days of Winnipeg, there sons have been busy making themselves a hill, until today a small mountain has grown on the western edge of town.

Other mountains near other towns are made of earth and rocks, covered with pines and trees whose soothing fragrance descends with the breezes on the townsfolk. Our mountain is made of different stuff. It is built of tin cans and eggshells and other interesting by-products of the city. No grass or trees grow on its slopes. As for its breezes, confidentially. . . .

In our mountain's tiny caves dwell tribes of rodents who cause our aldermen to worry. Each alderman is on guard to repel their sorties with his particular peashooter. Junior commandos have been encouraged to storm the dump and forcibly part the rats from their tails at a nickel a tail—but in vain. The rats grow in numbers and sleekness.

Now there has appeared an Eastern firm of mountain movers who offer to remove the mountain, taking in return the metal in its innards. The City Fathers would like to jump at the chance of getting the landscape flat again, but they are awed at the thought of the rats. Where would they go, whose ward would they invade?

So the Council dreams of Pied Pipers to lead them away and fairy godmothers to change them into white horses while the westering sun sinks behind our mountain.

Animal Appetites

WILBERT NATHAN SAVAGE
(In Our Dumb Animals)

Have you ever seen one of the keepers at a zoo feeding the animals? If you have, you perhaps know that some animals have very ordinary appetites, while others have most extraordinary capacities for food.

The koala, original of the "teddybear", has a peculiar appetite, and will eat nothing but fresh eucalyptus leaves; the walrus has an avid appetite for soft-shelled clams; and the gila monster insists on fresh eggs, regardless of high market prices.

The great African elephant is the champion eater of the animal world, requiring from 150 to 200 pounds of hay daily, with a dozen or so loaves of bread, and a huge salad of cabbage, carrots, lettuce, or cornstalks.

An 80-pound sea-lion needs eight pounds of fresh fish daily; the land tortoise finds nothing more tempting than bananas; and a large python demands 40 pounds of fresh pork for a meal, but luckily for the man who pays the food bills, this quantity of food satisfies the monster for several months.

For many animals the diet must be carefully balanced and systematically varied from day to day. Monkeys and bears must have a variety of food, properly alternated from week to week, or month to month. Lions and tigers scorn a variety of foods, insisting on a "straight" diet of raw meat, raw meat—and more raw meat.

Many animals love both raw and cooked foods. Every zoo has a kitchen in which food is prepared for the many finicky guests. Up-to-date zoos also have a bakery. In the Milwaukee Zoological Garden a special bread is baked for the 38 bears. Honey and other foods that the bear dearly loves are combined to make delicious and tempting golden loaves that make Mr. Bear's mouth water. One thousand loaves of this special bread are baked at one time.

Just imagine what tremendous quantity of food is required to feed all the animals in the many zoos throughout America!

Day of Mighty Male On the Wane

(From Christian Science Monitor.)

Things have come to a pretty pass. Women are not only going to be able to do all the welding in the family when the men come home from war; they're going to do all the tinkering around the house, too.

If the boys ever find out what they're up to, there's likely to be a big slump in the morale of the army, believe you us. Imagine women learning, in qualified "tinkerers' schools", how to fix drippy faucets, leaky radiator valves, sticky doors, and balky electric irons.

In olden days women used to swoon over such a catastrophe. More recently they've just yelled for the man of the house to come quick. He responds like a rescuing knight of yore. Only his act is to arrive with an impressive assortment of tools, make a few meaning passes at the offending gadget, and stroll off with apparent nonchalance, caressed by the adoring eyes of his better half, as knotty domestic kinks yield to the magic of his masculine touch.

But alas and alack, the day of the mighty male is on the wane. When the weaker sex learns how to tinker, the myth of masculine superiority will hit a down-draft. Women will no longer swoon and call for help. They'll probably just grab the hammer out of the hand of their once-respected spouse, and sputter, "Oh, let me do it!"

"Well, anything can happen now. And it may. Probably the next thing we know, women won't even squeal at the sight of a mouse!

AVOID "DOSING" CONSTIPATION

TRY ALL-BRAN INSTEAD OF HARSH PURGATIVES

Take this BETTER WAY to get at trouble caused by lack of "bulk"

● In these wartime days when you're working so much harder, it's more important than ever to be free of constipation.

Instead of using harsh purgatives, why not take the "better way" to correct the cause of the common type of constipation due to lack of the right kind of "bulk"-forming material in the diet? KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN, a crisp, crunchy cereal, supplies the necessary "bulk" . . . tastes grand eaten either as a cereal or in hot muffins.

Eat ALL-BRAN every day and drink plenty of water. But, remember, ALL-BRAN doesn't work like purgatives. It takes time. Get ALL-BRAN at your grocer's, in either of two convenient sizes. Made by Kellogg's in London, Canada.

Mrs. Hooper Addresses Holloway St. W.M.S.

A joint Easter Thankoffering meeting of the W.M.S., Mission Circle and C.G.I.T., was held on Tuesday evening in the church parlours of Holloway United Church.

Mrs. Hagerman, president of the W.M.S., opened the meeting with a brief worship service. Mrs. Hubbs was the group leader, her theme being, "Teach us to Love".

The Worship Service was taken by three members from the Mission Circle.

Mrs. Cross introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Hooper of Trenton, wife of Rev. Hooper, former missionary of China, now stationed as padre at Trenton. Mrs. Hooper's subject was "The Women of China". In a very interesting address she gave vivid pictures of the women of China in their homes, their dress and food. "To them the church means new life and freedom from bondage and slavery", the guest speaker said. She also mentioned the New Life Movement formed in an effort to clean up China and to educate the masses. Many illustrations were given of the splendid work done in the hospitals by the nurses and also by the Bible women. Mrs. Hooper was heartily thanked for her stirring address. Mrs. MacDonald rendered a solo "Prayer", accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Hubbs. A short business period followed which included the taking of the offering and the hearing of reports.

The meeting closed with a hymn and prayer.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Mr. A and Mr. B Swapped Wives, New Children Are a Problem

It's pretty difficult to make wife-swapping anything but what it is —a dreary and sordid affair.

When we read about it occurring in mountain districts which specialize in feuds, clay-eating and snuff-dipping, we shrug it off as something peculiar to the hinterland, and no great concern of ours. But here's a case involving a Mr. and Mrs. A and a Mr. and Mrs. B., who are persons of some standing in their comparatively civilized communities, that equals in all respects any wife-swapping ever done in the mountains.

The original couples were friends and had exchanged visits for four years. Mr. and Mrs. B were childless and often expressed admiration and a sort of playful envy that Mr. and Mrs. A. already had three children. Mr. and Mrs. B. canvassed orphanages but as frequently pointed out in this column, it is difficult to obtain an adoptable child.

Then the childless Mr. B. suggested the plan of wife-swapping. Both couples admitted in court that a signed agreement was drawn up, whereby Mrs. B. would live with Mr. A. while Mrs. A. would reside with Mr B., until such time as the B. home would have two children.

Testimony in court disclosed that the terms of the agreement were carried out. Mrs. A. took up her residence with Mr. B. and eventually became the mother of two children.

Apparently she eventually longed to return to what she considered her Grade A husband. But being a maternal soul she wishes to take with her her lately acquired children, of whom Mr. B. is the father. She declined to turn the little B's over to the B. household, and moreover demanded in her legal petition that Mr. B. support them.

It seems that nothing had been mentioned about the support of the possible little B's in the original arrangement. That brought the matter to court. But Superior Judge Emsley W. Johnson, Jr., of Indianapolis, said: "The evidence being what it was I threw the whole case out of court and refused judgment to anyone."

However, that by no means settles things. For one thing, what of the children and their future?

Forty Hour Devotions At Point Anne

The devotions of the Forty Hours opened in the Catholic Mission at Point Anne on Monday morning and concluded on Wednesday evening. Large numbers were present at all the services. The altar was beautifully decorated with lights and flowers. The children's choir was under the direction of Miss Hazel Simmons. Mr. Robert Flurey rendered several solos and Mrs. J. Grant presided at the console of organ.

There was High Mass every morning at eight o'clock and devotions at 7.30 in the evening. The clergy present were: Monsignor Nicholson, Belleville; Dean D. M. Lacey, P.P., Napanee; Rev. J. Powell, P.P., Erinsville; Flt. Lieut. G. T. Martin, P.P., Deseronto; Flt. Lieut. G. Mulligan, Mt. View; Rev. C. Baker, Belleville; Rev. A. L. O'Donnell, Belleville.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Birthstone in Wedding Rings Finding Favor Among Brides.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

In your column the other day you wrote many girls nowadays choose to have engagement rings with their birthstone rather than to have a solitaire diamond. Two of my girl friends and I were very much interested in this idea, since it happens that we all like colored stones, rather than white. We are all engaged but the engagements have not been announced, and we have been doing a lot of talking together about what we would like for engagement rings.

We do not know which birthstone is supposed to be for which month. Will you please publish the list of birthstones? Thank you.

Letty.

Gladly! Here they are:

January, Garnet; February, Amethyst; March, Aquamarine or Bloodstone; April, Diamonds; May, Emeralds; June, Pearl or Moonstone; July, Ruby; August, Carnelian, Sardonyx, or Peridot; September, Sapphire; October, Tourmaline or Opal; November, Topaz; December, Turquoise or Lapis Lazuli.

Some of these birthstones are in the semi-precious-stones group, but in the precious-stone group there is, of course, a wide price-range, depending on the purity of the stone. Also you will probably be able to find reconstructed stones, which, while not so valuable, have good color.

Also instead of having a small solitaire, some girls now are choosing to have their birthstone as the central stone in their engagement, and then a few small diamonds, (Perhaps baguettes) set in the sides. (For example, a girl born in June might have a moonstone ring with small diamonds on the sides.

Also the popular new idea might interest you. . . . instead of having a one-stone ring, have a band of colored stones (your birthstone, if this is adaptable for this idea) to wear over the to-come wedding band. This is an effective idea and practical (because the engagement band is easy to wear on all occasions in these busy days.)

For Orphan's Wedding

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My mother and father are dead, and for some years I have lived with my brother and his wife. Now I am to be married and want to send out formal announcements. Should these carry only my brother's name or would it be possible and correct to include my sister-in-law's name too? I love her very much, and she has always seemed like a 'sister" to me. Is there any way in the wording of the announcement that I could suggest this "sisterly" feeling?

Florence

Yes! This form, which is the usual form for this kind of announcement, will suggest just what you so sweetly and proudly wish to suggest:

Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Lee Adams announce the marriage of their sister
Florence
etc.

MELROSE W.M.S.

The regular monthly meeting of the Melrose W.M.S. was held on May 5, at the home of the Misses McLaren. The President, Mrs. F. Bennett, conducted the Worship Service the theme being "Canada's Youth in the Forces and Factories". Mrs. Bennett gave many interesting highlights on the recent Presbyterial held at Belleville and read the lovely prayer composed by Mrs. Hooper for use at the Presbyterial. Collection $3.42. Mrs. E. Pascoe, Sr., 3rd Group Leader, read a timely article entitled "What the Church is Doing in Conquered, Enslaved Countries". Mrs. J. McFarlane read "Mad About Missions". Mrs. Walter Snider read an inspirational message taken from a recent address by Rev. Sclater, moderator of United Church. The President, Mrs. F. Bennett, pronounced the benediction. The hostesses passed around some delicious maple sugar candies.

Mutual Aid Bill For One Billion Read First Time

House Agrees on Fighting Canada Aiding Her Fighting Allies

WILL NOT ASK CASH

By JAMES McCOOK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, May 7—(CP)—After a sitting spent in consideration of Canadian aid to other United Nations, the House of Commons today was expected to review some purely domestic business with a government motion to re-establish a committee on radio broadcasting a likely subject of discussion.

Returning from their Easter vacation, House members yesterday gave approval to a resolution to introduce a bill providing $1,000,000,000 in mutual aid, and the bill itself was given first reading, broad agreement on the principle of fighting Canada assisting her fighting Allies was demonstrated.

Finance Minister Ilsley, as government spokesman for the resolution, set forth that it was not Canada's wish to build up great war debts in her favor. Such a condition might lead to difficulty when trade was being developed in the post-war years, and it was not the intention to demand cash on the barrelhead in dealing with Allies who were fighting in the front line.

With the principle of supporting the other United Nations speakers for opposition parties—Joseph Harris (Prog. Con. Toronto Danforth), M. J. Coldwell, C. C. F. Leader; Victor Quelch (N. D. Acadia), Hon. R. B. Hanson (Prog. Con. York-Sunbury) and Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative House Leader—promptly expressed their agreement.

More Information Asked

But the progressive conservatives demanded more information on the way the Canadian gift might be distributed and on consultation between the United Nations. The C. C. F. and new democracy spokesmen thought Canada might well require the return of all Canadian securities held in the United Kingdom, as such securities represented the holdings of large companies and did not benefit the common man in the United Kingdom.

J. F. Pouliot (Lib. Temiscouata) said he approved of assisting Canada's Allies, but he thought it was a sound policy to see that something was obtained in return.

"Why not ask Britain to transfer to us Jamaica, Nassau, Bermuda and Newfoundland, so that Canada might compare favorably with the United States, so far as production is concerned?" He asked.

Hon. P. J. A. Cardin (Lib. Richelieu-Verchères) said he was opposed to continuation of "the colonial tribute Canada is paying." The Finance Minister obviously did not rely on all the compensations which might be obtained from other nations likely to benefit under the mutual aid plan. The aid would in fact be a gift.

Amendment Ruled Out

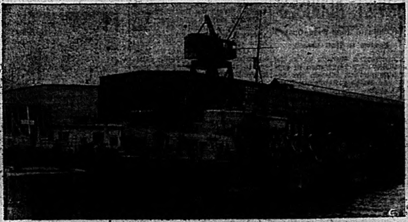
While he was proud enough of Canada to wish to see glory for Canadian fighting men, Mr. Cardin said he was not anxious to see a repetition of Dieppe, so far as sacrifices were concerned. He was not anxious to see the Canadian army a spearhead.

"I hope we shall win this war, ... Without our sons who are at present in England being forced, for the sake of glory, . . . to be butchered as a number of our sons were butchered on the shores of Dieppe," he continued.

Deputy Speaker Bradette ruled out of order an amendment to the resolution moved by Fred Dorion (Ind. Charlevoix-Saguenay) urging that the $1,000,000,000 mutual aid sum be raised from individuals, companies, firms and societies with assets of more than $500,000 rather than by general taxation.

When the Deputy Speaker's ruling was challenged, the House supported it by a vote of 88 to five.

FIGHTING FRIGATE OF OLD COMES TO LIFE TODAY



Canadian frigates, like the one pictured ABOVE, are being built to fight the Axis submarine menace. They are said to be the biggest and most complete little warships ever built for this purpose, and carry in their name the traditions of the renowned sailing battleships of the 19th century.

Washington Spotlight

(By J. F. SANDERSON)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Washington, May 7. (CP)—The impending return to Moscow of Maxim Litvinoff, Russian ambassador to the United States, for consultations with Soviet officials, brings the whole subject of Russian-American affairs into sharp perspective.

The fact of the matter is that while the two nations are Allies and relations are outwardly friendly, they are not as close as many people would like to see them. For instance, there seems no chance of a Russian-American treaty of non-aggression, paralleling the Anglo-Russian 20-year pact, or anything remotely approaching it.

The American people as a whole appreciate and applaud the fact that Russia has done more than any country to whip Germany in the field. But sentiment seems to end there—apparently lacking is widespread desire for closer relations in the postwar world.

In part, this may be due to inborn isolationism and a natural distrust of international entanglements. It is due, also, to anti-communist sentiment which is used to becloud any discussion of Russian-American relations, sentiment springing from a variety of sources political, economic and clerical.

That Flag Question.

The first thing Canada knows, she will have a flag of her own, despite the inability of parliament to make up its mind whether the Dominion wants one. In most public buildings in Washington, in store windows, canteens and recreation centres, the flags of the United Nations are draped together.

Canada, the only United Nation without a distinctive flag, is represented by the red ensign bearing the Canadian coat of arms which, of course, is not an official Canadian flag at all. If this goes on long enough, the rest of the world may decide Canada's flag question for her.

Disposal of confidential government papers in Washington is no longer a simple matter of setting a match to them. It has to be done in a special furnace, supervised by military personnel.

Every day, 15 to 20 tons of secret papers from the army, navy, lend-lease and other government departments, go up in smoke.

Even the carbon paper, which might reveal some secret information, goes into the daily fire.

Post-War Draft.

When President Roosevelt returned to Washington from his recent inspection trip of war plants and military camps, he made a veiled reference—but an important one—to the desirability of some sort of military training for American youths after the war. His remarks were buried by news of the coal crisis but more will be heard on this subject.

Many observers here regard it as a fair sort of bet that the United States will continue the draft, in some modified form, into the peace.

All business: Delegates to the United Nations Food Conference, scheduled to open May 18 at Hot Springs, Va., were advised by the United States government not to bring formal clothes with them. In addition, the most diplomatic language was used to deter them from bringing their wives.

One Version.

When William Phillips, United States Minister to India, made a recent request to interview Mohandas Gandhi and Pandit Nehru, the Congress Party leaders who have been in detention since last August, he was turned down by the government of India. The incident was referred to, in a publication by the British Information Service as "the decision of the government of India not to relax Mr. Gandhi's and Mr. Nehru's seclusion. . . ."

The big talk in political circles now is the threatened rebellion of the deep South against President Roosevelt and the Democratic Party. For years it has been the centre of Democratic strength, something like Quebec has been for the Liberal party in Canada, but there are rumblings of discontent below the Mason-Dixon Line. How serious they are is something that cannot be gauged today but there is no doubt of their existence.

Guess who: The richest American had an income of $5,261,000 in 1941 on which he (or she) paid a tax of $4,545,000 or 86 per cent. All that comes from a publication of the Treasury Department, "The statistics of income for 1941".

The name was omitted but this much is known: He (or she) was unmarried. He drew no salary at all. Those two facts are enough to exclude men like Henry Ford, John D. Rockefeller, and the Hollywood luminaries including Louis B. Mayer whose salary of $705,426 topped the list in 1941.

The Treasury knows, but isn't telling.

Add signs of the time: The war production board has established a "horseshoe and harness hardware industry advisory committee". Its first job was to limit the styles, shapes and sizes of horseshoes.

THOUGHTS OF THE HOME FRONT

The past few years have gone their way,
And millions of people have learned to pray,
Their prayers will be answered without a doubt,
And freedom's voice will ring and shout,
Yes! Like the tide all things must turn;
With God as our Ally Whom our enemies spurn
We will fight with heart, blood tears,
That the world will be free in the coming years.

A poet I'm not, by now you can see,
And the Army has classed me Category E,
But each day that goes by, I'll do my bit
Buying War Bonds, and Stamps, also working my shift;
So let us all with heart and soul
Help the Boys in the Front Line achieve their goal,
So that with God's Help in '44
We'll have freed the world and settled a score.

SOVIET ACCUSES

Possible to Heal Breach

Answering a question as to the possibility of a resumption of diplomatic relations between the Soviet and Polish governments, Vishinski said:—

"There is nothing in the world which cannot be changed".

He added, however, in concluding the conference:—

"The Polish government is responsible for the rupture of relations and therefore it is for the Polish government to take concrete steps, and one cannot discuss the question in the abstract. How, when and in what direction depends on concrete conditions.

Vishinski said there apparently was a feeling in the United States that both Poland and the Soviet Union had fallen into a Nazi propaganda trap, but he said he did not believe the majority of people in America thought the Russians had been taken in.

It is obvious, he said, that the Germans are trying to drive a wedge between the United Nations.

(Russia severed relations with the Polish government in London after the latter had asked the International Red Cross to investigate German charges that the Russians had slain 10,000 Polish officers in the Smolensk region prior to the Russian-German war.)

Asked to say specifically whether relations with the Polish government had been broken or merely suspended, Vishinski did not give a direct answer, declaring merely that the Russian word for the situation had a fine shade of meaning.

The issue as to whether Russia had broken or suspended relations with the Poles was raised abroad in connection with the translation of the Russian note into English.

Text of Statement

The text of the statement read by Vishinski, as broadcast by the Moscow radio and recorded by the Soviet monitor in London, said that Gen. Volikovski, former chief of the Polish military mission in Russia, had played a leading role in the alleged espionage activities.

Others mentioned by Vishinski in connection with the espionage charges were first Secretaries Arlet and Zalenski of the Polish Embassy, and second Secretaries Gruyav and Glogovski.

Some attaches of the Polish Embassy were deported on account of their connection with the alleged spy operations, Vishinski's statement said. The Polish representatives were said to have acted under the guise of organizing relief for Polish citizens in Russia—a work for which Vishinski said they had been given every assistance by Soviet authorities.

The Moscow broadcast also quoted Vishinski as reiterating Russian charges that the Polish government in London was "under the influence of pro-Hitlerite elements" and asserting that Polish officials, press and radio are continuing to circulate false reports concerning relations with Russia.

Vishinski, the broadcast added, asserted that "allegations that Soviet authorities have hindered or are hindering the departure from the U. S. S. R. of Polish subjects . . . are false."

The statement included a lengthy resume of the assistance which the Russians were said to have given the Poles in forming and equipping an army on Soviet soil. The Polish government "did not wish to dispatch divisions to the Soviet German front to fight shoulder to shoulder with Soviet troops and evaded the fulfillment of its own undertaking," the statement added.

The Russian charges followed by 24 hours the publication of a letter from Premier Stalin to the Moscow correspondent of the New York Times in which he replied to the correspondent's queries concerning Russia's views on Poland by saying he favored establishment of a strong independent Polish state after the war.

Sikorski Confers With Eden

London, May 7 (CP)—Premier Wladslaw Sikorski of the Polish government conferred more than an hour with Foreign Secretary Eden after Soviet Russia made new accusations against the Polish Embassy in Moscow.

The Polish government was silent about the statement by Andrei J. Vishinski, Soviet Vice-Commissar for foreign relations, pending the conference at the foreign office.

However, the Poles have consistently denied allegations that their troops stationed in Russia had refused to join Soviet operations against the Germans. They said that only one reduced division of about 9,000 men was adequately equipped and the Russians themselves were unable to furnish arms for some 90,000 others.

Thereupon, the Poles said, in accord with both Russia and Britain some Polish units were transferred to Persia and the Middle East where there were possibilities for arming them with Anglo-American supplies.

Gen. Sikorski himself touched briefly on this subject several months ago in answer to reporters' questions.

The fact that Mr. Eden recently has conferred at length with Ivan Maisky, the Soviet Ambassador, aroused speculation in informed quarters that some new proposals aimed at bringing the Poles and Russians together had been made.

BLAST SHATTERS WAR PLANT, KILLING TWENTY

DEEP PENETRATION

Many of the enemy were killed. To the American bag of more than 1,000 prisoners in the north, the 1st Army added many hundreds. The captives included some German elite troops, who cracked as did the others under the terrific bombing, shelling, tank assaults and infantry attacks.

U. S. detachments on the British left flank attacked the highlands guarding Chouigui, 21 miles west of Tunis and by 10 a.m., forward elements had reached their objective in spite of strong enemy resistance. The troops involved were among those who had taken Mateur, the communications junction between Tunis and Bizerte.

Germans Outnumbered

(Gen. Sir Harold Alexander, Deputy Commander-in-Chief in charge of ground forces, declared in an order of the day broadcast from Algiers that the last phase of the campaign is at hand and "we are going to drive the enemy into the sea."

(A German military spokesman said "The decision is approaching in Tunisia" with Axis forces outnumbered 10 to one, according to a Transocean dispatch broadcast by the Berlin radio and recorded by The Associated Press.

(The German High Command said the Allies had penetrated German and Italian positions deeply at one point, "although numerous enemy attacks were repulsed and 12 enemy tanks were destroyed and several hundred prisoners were taken."

Supported by Strong Air Support

(The communique, broadcast from Berlin and recorded by The Associated Press, said the Allied infantry and tank formations were greatly superior and were supported by strong air force units.

(The Italian High Command said in its communique that Axis forces in the northern sector "made a fighting withdrawal" yesterday after a battle of extreme violence.

(It said "The powerful shock of the enemy infantry and armored forces was counteracted by the tenacious valor of the Axis troops." The Allied ground forces were supported during the day by "overwhelming forces" of aviation, the communique added.)

Cross River Tine

A little north of the Choigui sector, other Americans crossed the river Tine and attacked the ridge on the east bank along a sector of several miles under heavy machine-gun and mortar fire.

Still further north, tank-supported U. S. detachments mopped up the last Axis opposition on Djebel Achkel, on the south shore of Lake Achkel, and on high ground called Djebel Zarour six miles to the southwest, across the Mateur-Bizerte highway.

Six of the enemy's heavy anti-tank guns were liquidated with their crews. In one case a tank ran squarely into a gun, flattening its position.

Enemy forces overwhelmed included members of the Nazi Barenthin Regiment, among the best in Tunisia.

The main object of the day's operations for the Americans was to get Choigui Pass. While it was not fully occupied, the gains of the day, which the communique listed as "four important features," were such as to dominate the Pass and put pincers on several other strategic points at which the Germans were still fighting.

French troops in the Pont du Fahs area, on the 1st Army's right flank, continued their advance toward Zaghouan against strong opposition and extensive mine fields.

Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery's 8th Army advanced also at one inland point nine miles northwest of Djebebina, approximately midway between that village and Zaghouan, in heavy fighting.

Furious Air Offensive

Yesterday's furious air offensive, which eclipsed anything yet seen in the African campaign, set many new records, including one of the greatest blows against enemy shipping yet achieved from North African bases.

Twenty-seven vessels were hit, the largest number recorded in one day, and of these 12 were definitely sunk and the others were damaged and left burning.

The victims included one destroyer, seven motor barges and four small boats loaded with men, all sunk. Another destroyer was among the damaged craft. Most of this damage was done by medium bombers.

(Communiques from Cairo and Valetta told of other blows against the Axis Mediterranean shipping. United States bombers attacked moles and harbor installations of Reggio De Calabria, Italy, and scored direct hits on at least two large merchant ships, one throwing up flames and white smoke.

Twenty Axis aircraft were shot down over their own air fields in Tunisia and three others during the sea sweeps. Ten Allied planes are missing.

An advance to within nine miles of Bizerte along the road from Mateur would put the American forces in the immediate outskirts of Ferryville, a docking and repair centre eight miles across Lake Bizerte from the naval base itself.

The British 8th Army made a local attack in the sector of Sourar west of Enfidaville, and considerable artillery and patrol activity was reported from that southern battlefront.

In addition to the almost constant sweeps over the battle area, Allied aircraft raided the docks and shipping at Favignana, a small island off the west coast of Sicily.

In addition to the 11 ships announced definitely as sunk, many others were sunk in attacks on Sicilian ports, the communique said. It also disclosed that fighter-bombers of the desert air force, in addition to blowing up a destroyer in the Gulf of Tunis as reported earlier, scored direct hits on another destroyer.

Swept Down from West

British troops, after shattering German positions at Bou Aoukaz, swept down the highway to Tunis from the west, repulsed a counter-attack and captured Massicault.

United States troops farther north were then less than ten miles from the great naval base of Bizerte after plunging through stubborn enemy resistance.

Both the British and American troops have captured many prisoners from many different enemy units—thrown into the battle in vain effort to stem the Allied advance over the entire length of the northern Tunisian front.

The Northwest African air forces put on the greatest aerial offensive of the African campaign to blast a path for the advancing infantrymen. Allied airmen carried the battle to the enemy's remaining airfields and shot down 17 planes over his own landing grounds, virtually driving the Axis air forces from the skies.

2,000 Sorties Made

As a result ground forces heading toward Tunis were able to drive down the main road stretching through the Medjerda Valley without opposition from Axis bombers or strafing planes. More than 2,000 sorties were carried out in this tremendous effort.

Other Allied planes continued to batter at enemy shipping in the Gulf of Tunis, the Sicilian Straits and the harbors of Sicily.

Enemy ships were hit during a heavy pounding of the harbors at Trapani and Marsala, and the harbor installations were damaged.

As the battle grew in fury, Gen. Henri Honore Giraud repeated his prediction that the Axis would be defeated in Africa by the end of May and said "it is important to fight at the same time on the North Sea channel, on the Mediterranean and on the Russian front."

Gen. Giraud in an interview published in the Algiers weekly 'Tam', said "Europe is at the moment a fortress. If it is to be penetrated it must be attacked and attacked at several points."

He said the morale of the French troops was strengthened by the new offensive and the knowledge that in a few weeks they would be receiving new equipment to replace their old rifles and cannon.

Fascist Hallucinations

By J. B. Priestley

(Broadcast in the BBC's short wave overseas service.)

What queer days we spend—in these strange times! I had a queer day recently. I had received a message to say that one of my daughters, who is a dispatch rider in the WRENS, had met with an accident and was now in a large naval hospital at one of our naval bases. I imagine that all of you know now that the WRENS are the women's auxiliary force attached to the Navy.

My daughter has quite an exciting life as a dispatch rider, for she has to go charging up and down the steep roads of a much-bombed port, along the quays, sometimes in the middle of the night, when the black-out is like a bag of soot and the roads are slippery and treacherous with rain or frost. She had had a great many opportunities of injuring herself—honorably and gloriously—while on duty, but, unlike many of her colleagues, she had managed to escape all such injuries. So far she had gone careering round on her motorcycle at all hours of the day and night without getting much more than an occasional scratch or bruise. And now she had gone and broken her arm, not on duty at all, but coming home from a dance with a lorry load of other WRENS. There was a collision in the black-out. Their lorry turned over, and my daughter was at the bottom of the pile—result—one broken arm. So I thought I had better go along and take a look at her.

Children Grew Up.

It is queer the way children suddenly grow up, as all parents will agree. One year our daughters are still schoolchildren curling up in corners reading "Black Beauty"—the story of a horse—or "The Wizard of Oz", and the next year, it seems, they are talking about cocktail parties, have mysterious long conversations on the telephone, and are called for by strange young men.

Yes, that's queer enough. It's still queerer, in my opinion, when one of them puts herself into naval uniform and spends her time delivering dispatches to the youthful commanders of motor torpedo boats. And it's much queerer still when she lands herself into a naval hospital, like the one I visited recently. It was a very big place, with immense perspectives of corridors, along which surgeon-commander, nurses and stewards went hurrying. It was built securely enough on land—it even had four underground operating theatres and could function as an emergency casualty station during a really bad blitz—but like all naval establishments, it had a nautical, sea-going air, as if at any moment the whole enormous building might quietly slide down the hill into the water and set sail for Gibraltar and Malta.

I found my daughter—her arm strapped and reasonably well—in a long ward filled with girls—some in bed, and the others sitting round the big stove, knitting and talking. My daughter, a terse young woman with strong views, amounted that the place was "very hygienic and very dull", which sounded a pretty accurate description to me. And after all, hospitals should be very hygienic and very dull. There was a time when hospitals were very dirty and very lively, but unfortunately in those hospitals the patients died like flies, in fact, probably more of the patients died than the flies.

After much talk with my daughter about her health and the accident and what plans we could make, and giving her the family gossip—we are a fairly large family so that there is always plenty of news to exchange—I had to leave her for the time being, and so I accepted an invitation to lunch in the officers' mess.

Meets Group of Psychiatrists.

Here I was fortunate because I found myself at a table with a little group of psychiatrists. They were all wearing naval uniform, and were in fact naval officers for the duration of the war, but before the war they had had important practices in London. I say I was fortunate to find myself among these experts simply because though I do not pretend to know much about psychiatry and psychological medicine, I am extremely interested in psychology and like to discuss it with expert practitioners. After all, a novelist and dramatist does share some of the territory with these psychiatrists, the only difference being that he starts from one end and they start from the other, but they are both primarily concerned with human nature and all its whims and fantasies.

And nothing could better indicate the profound changes that have occurred in the medical services of our fighting forces than the presence here of these psychological experts. An admiral of the old school would have turned bright purple and nearly exploded at the notion of employing such fellows in the Navy. But now we know better! Modern war involves a terrific psychological strain—for after a long period of tense waiting it has a habit of letting all hell loose on a man. Actually the old regular Naval men do not require much attention from the psychiatrists because not only have they been most carefully picked but also because they have been conditioned by long years in a service that has the most tremendous prestige and tradition.

You couldn't blame any man if a note of pride crept into his voice when he mentioned that he belonged to the British Navy. The British Navy is something to belong to. True, our friend Musssolini told the world a few years ago that the British Navy was now merely so much old scrap iron, but this was not a view shared by his admirals nor indeed by any of his military leaders. And the Germans, at their silliest, have never shared it, although Hitler himself has sometimes talked as if navies didn't matter. What a pity that one or two of these psychiatrists with whom I lunched at the naval hospital could not have been turned on to Hitler and Mussolini, and could not have published, years ago for all the world to read, some careful reports on these interesting cases! What a great deal of trouble it might have saved!

Collective Hallucination.

We had some good talk over the lunch table on psychological problems and on those strange borderline happenings that suggest that this life is a far more complicated and mysterious affair than the old-fashioned scientist ever cared to realise. Something was said during this talk about collective hallucinations. It seems that it is not difficult and by no means uncommon for small groups of men, existing under a long-continued and terrible strain—adrift, in open boats, for example—men suffering from lack of proper food and water, from intense cold or heat, and so approaching delirium, to become the victims of collective hallucination. They all see, almost together, what in fact is not there, or hear sounds that don't exist, or believe strange things that they would instantly reject at ordinary times.

Something of this sort would seem to happen at times of sudden stress to people who are not half-crazed from lack of water, who are not being frozen or fried or drifting and tossing for days in open boats. For example, at the beginning of the last war, hundreds of ordinary folk believed in the Angel of Mons, or swore they had seen trains crammed with Russian soldiers. Even in this war we have heard strange tales of villagers who have announced as one man or woman, that they have seen great fiery crosses in the night sky.

Seizes Whole Nation.

But probably collective hallucination can go much further than this. It looks as if it can take hold almost of a whole nation, compelling them to believe and assert any nonsense that pleases them. Millions of Germans apparently believe that they are members of a master race destined by some mysterious deity to rule the whole world, and that one Adolf Hitler, whose qualifications for the task would seem to any outsider to be almost nil, has been instructed from on high to carry out this great work of enslaving the world for the Germans. And all the people who denounce and oppose this monstrous notion are abused as members of a sinister plutocratic - democratic - bolshevist - capitalist-Jewish conspiracy. It seems the kindest thing under the circumstances to decide that the millions who still believe in this rubbish are suffering from a collective hallucination. They have preferred altogether not to live in this real world but in an imaginary world.

And the Japanese are as bad. Their national conceit has been raised to the crazy level of a collective hallucination. Their children are taught that the Japanese invented everything, when in truth they have invented practically nothing. Learned professors in Japanese universities rewrite the story of evolution, to prove that whereas members of all other nations consist of human beings who are the result of a long evolution of Darwinian lines, the Japanese are quite different, have nothing to do with evolution, being descended from the gods. Sooner or later, this altogether superior and celestial nation must dominate all the other and far inferior peoples, just as gods must inevitably dominate mere collections of monkeys. This is what the psychologists call "over-compensating an inferiority".

Japan's Borrowings From China.

The Japanese borrowed most of their old culture from that vast storehouse of ancient culture, China, and they have borrowed nearly all their modern methods of production and organization from Western Europe and America; and they are a people of small stature, not too well-favored, of no obvious great attainments; and so they have gone on compensating themselves for these and other disadvantages until they have reached a level of crazy conceit that can be said to involve them in a colossal collective hallucination.

It is this fact that makes the Germans and Japanese such tough and ruthless opponents, for they fight madly in a kind of intoxicating dream and are not sobered down by reality. Not yet, that is, though there are a good many signs now that grim reality is breaking through, that truth can creep in through the gaps we have blasted in their national armour.

The descendants of the gods are broken like corn under a hailstorm on the beaches at Guadalcanal; and the members of the Nordic master race perish and surrender by the hundred thousands in the snows of Russia; and the leaders of these demi-gods and master folk stare uneasily at their maps and hear more and more sinister and disquieting reports of the growing offensive of the United Nations. So there'll soon come a time when these collective hallucinations will veil reality no longer, when truth comes smashing through like an iron fist through a window, and that will be a terrible moment for these deluded millions.

But I'll conclude by telling you a charming story that might make you think that some of us here are suffering from a collective hallucination.

During the last two years, a small rare bird, jet black with a touch of white on its wing and sometimes a flash of red on its tail, a bird whose male has a sweet if rather monotonous song, has been making its appearance here, and especially among buildings that have been badly bombed. People who knew something about birds would hear one of them singing among the ruins of a badly bombed site. They were heard in the City of London, down among the bankers and merchants, not far from the Guildhall itself. One was heard singing outside the grim Old Bailey, where the murderers are tried. Others were seen and hard on Finsbury Pavement, near Farringdon Street Station, and not far from Cheapside and the Mansion House. And in order to make it perfectly plain that it really had arrived, one of these birds actually turned up just outside the Natural History Museum, and an ornithologist working there heard the bird singing. But mostly they have been seen and heard among the badly bombed buildings, just where the bombing was heaviest and most damaging.

Now isn't that like a fairy tale? Wouldn't it be easy to invent and embroider a legend about a strange bird that came to sing for us in those very corners of our cities where we had suffered the most? The truth is, that this particular bird—the blackredstart, it is called—has been gradually further east from Central Europe, and is attracted to our bombed sites because they are now quiet and probably remind it of the rocky slopes of the lower Alps where it was in the habit of nesting. So we're not suffering from collective hallucination. But it would have been a charming legend—that of the strange bird that came especially to sing in the ruins.

AIRMEN RESCUED AFTER SIX MONTHS ON ICE CAP

TOJO THREATENS CRUSHING BLOW

Japanese Premier in Boastful Vein Says All Bases Strengthened

New York, May 7. (AP)—Premier Hideki Tojo of Japan was quoted by the Axis radio as saying in Manila that Japanese fighting forces had "strengthened all strategically important bases in Greater East Asia" and are "now prepared to deal a decisive blow at the enemy".

The broadcast recorded by The Associated Press said that Tojo addressed some 400,000 persons in Manila in a celebration marking the first anniversary of the Japanese taking of Corregidor from American troops. Tojo declared, the broadcast said, that 1,000,000,000 inhabitants of Greater East Asia are "unanimously resolved to continue the war to a victorious conclusion".

"We are now in readiness to deal a thorough and crushing blow at the enemy's armed power", Tojo was quoted.

The anniversary of Corregidor's fall has been designated as a Japanese holiday.

The Tokyo radio also quoted Tojo as saying the Philippines would be granted their independence "as soon as the Filipinos are in a position really to collaborate with Japan."

This vague promise, reported in a broadcast heard by The Associated Press in London, obviously was a bid for co-operation from the Filipinos, who would have received full sovereignty from the United States in 1943 under the Tydings-McDuffie Act, the provisions of which were ratified overwhelmingly by the Philippine electorate in a plebiscite on May 14, 1935.

The statement disclosed the real significance of Tojo's radio— and indicated the strenuous efforts which the Japanese are making to consolidate their position there.

Shortest Road To Tokyo?

(Christian Science Monitor)

It is unlikely that the American public can intervene very intelligently in the present controversy over more planes for General MacArthur. Therefore the publicizing of the General's plea for air reinforcements should be sharply questioned. Its main effect so far has been to confuse and disturb the people. While Secretary Stimson announces that air reinforcements will be sent to the Southwest Pacific, we must hope that this decision results from military judgments based on evidence of mounting Japanese strength, not from any fear of popular clamor.

For to have carefully-worked-out and long-range strategy messed up by the emotional response of the public to a popular general would not be helpful to anybody but the enemy. The public often has sound instincts about basic strategy and it seems to agree with the Churchill-Roosevelt plan to beat Hitler first. But it has a special interest in the Pacific war and could be aroused to urge an unnecessary margin of air superiority there. No one wishes to give the Japanese an inch, but any forces added in the Pacific mean forces withdrawn from the present effort to clear the Mediterranean. And the road to Tokyo may be shorter or at least quicker via North Africa than via New Guinea.

For when the Mediterranean is cleared Allied naval strength will be freed for reopening the Burma Road. And the Burma Road, giving the Allied an opportunity to attack Japan from China—by far the closest and most practicable base—is the shortest military route to Tokyo. The only alternative worth talking about would be an all-out Allied push of naval and air power from bases in the Pacific. If such a move brought the Japanese fleet to complete destruction, another way to Tokyo might be opened. But the Allies have not planned it that way.

Therefore minor shifts in the allocation of strength hold out no hope of making a decisive change in the Pacific picture and they run the risk of diverting forces that have already headed for Tokyo by another road.

Geography

Lord Beaverbrook astonished an audience by stating that the British Empire once touched Russia! He was referring to over 1,000 miles of common frontier between Canada and Alaska, for during the Crimean War Alaska was a Russian possession, says J. W. Edwards in Belfast Weekly Telegraph.

Geography teams with surprises. How many people are aware, for instance, that Edinburgh is north of Moscow? Liverpool, too, is as far north as parts of Labrador, Hudson's Bay and Kamchatka, while the Shetland Islands are actually farther north than Leningrad and parts of Alaska and Greenland.

And Land's End is not the most westerly point in Britain. A glance at the atlas will prove that certain portions of the Scottish coast jut out farther west, the most westerly point of the mainland being Ardnamurchan Point, Argyll.

Phillies Will Not Be Door Mat For Rest of National League Clubs As in Former Seasons

Record Considerably Better Than One of Last Season at This Time

RED SOX BEATEN

By JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sport Writer

The Philadelphia Phillies, who have been the butt of many bad jokes, now are making the bad jokers say "But..."

The Phillies are in the National League cellar...as expected, but...

Manager Bucky Harris and owner Bill Cox have succeeded in collecting a reasonable facsimile of a baseball club. At least it looks more like a ball club than the door mat that the rest of the league has been wiping its shoes on for the last several years.

They have beaten the first-place Brooklyn Dodgers in three out of nine games and considering the masterminding that Harris has had to do even to get a team on the field, this is a minor miracle.

Phillies halved a four-game series just completed in Brooklyn, winning a tight, 10-inning tussle yesterday 3-2. John Podgajny held the Dodgers to five hits and in the 10th Glen Stewart tripled and came home with the winning run on a fly.

Their victim was Buck Newsom, who previously had won two without a setback. He pitched six-hit ball and fanned nine, buit it wasn't good enough. The Phillies now have won four of 11 games. Last year they won only three of their first 15.

Cards Cuffed by Cubs

In the only other National League game yesterday St. Louis Cardinals were cuffed again by Chicago Cubs, 5-1, and lost their exclusive hold on second place. Hiram Bithorn, scoring his third victory against one defeat, pitched seven-hit ball and had a shutout until the ninth.

New York Yankees sent Boston Red Sox away from Yankee Stadium bruised and stumbling from four consecutive one-run defeats. The American League leaders bagged a doubleheader 2-1 and 5-4 to conclude the series.

The first game was a duel between Ernie Bonham of the Yanks and Lefty Oscar Judd, but Charley Keller settled it in Bonham's favor with a triple in the seventh, scoring on a long fly by Joe Gordon.

The nightcap was a nightmare. Rookie Tom Byrne started on the mound for the Yanks, faced five men and failed to get any of them out. Before Bill Zuber could come to his rescue he had forced two runs across with a walk and Tony Lupien singled off Zuber for two more. This ended the scoring for the Sox, who made only four hits and the Yanks didn't get a run until the seventh. But in the eighth Dick Newsome loaded the bases and all scored, relief pitcher Mace Brown forcing in the tying run with a walk.

Murphy Leading Hurler

A wild throw by Brown in the ninth gave the Yanks the deciding run, Brown his fourth defeat without a victory, and Johnny Murphy, New York's relief artist, his fourth victory without defeat.

St. Louis Browns downed Detroit for the first time this season in a classic 1-0 contest in which the winning run was scored in the 9th on George McQuinn's triple and a fly. Dennis Galehouse of the Browns and Lefty Hal Newhouser of the Tigers each pitched five-hit ball.

Roger Wolff also hurled a shutout, stopping Washington Senators 7-0 for Philadelphia Athletics.

Cleveland Indians entrenched themselves more strongly in second place by beating Chicago White Sox 6-3 behind the steady pitching of southpaw Al Smith.

FOOTBALL STAR MISSING AT SEA

Toronto, May 7 (CP)—Flt. Lt. Eddie Thompson of the R.C.A.F., one of Canada's most brilliant football stars, is "missing in action at sea" his parents were informed today.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Blake Thompson of Toronto, Thompson started his football career here with Oakwood Collegiate and starred in senior ranks with University of Toronto, Toronto Balmy Beach, Camp Borden and the Toronto R.C.A.F. Hurricanes, Canadian champions in 1942. He was captain of the Hurricanes.

Thompson, 26, joined the R.C.A.F. June 7, 1940, and trained at Eglinton, London and Camp Borden where he won his pilot's wings and commission in November, 1940. Later he was an instructor at Camp Borden, Trenton and Oshawa elementary training flying school.

Fl. Lt. Brian Casey Reported Killed

Windsor, May. 7—Brian Casey, former University of Western Ontario football star and one of Windsor's outstanding athletes, has been reported killed in operations with the R. C. A. F.

A flight-lieutenant, Casey underwent a nose operation so he could enlist at the outbreak of hostilities. After receiving his wings at Camp Borden, he was given instructional duties. He served a term with the Ferry Command and then won his fight to be transferred overseas.

He was a quarterback with the Mustang when they won Canadian Interscholastic honors, was one of the keymen of the squad.

He was well known in Belleville softball and basketball circles, having played here with Trenton R. C. A. F. teams for the past four years.

TORONTO ENJOYS FULL GAME LEAD OVER THE FIELD

10,000 Fans Saw the Leafs Give Syracuse a Real Drubbing

BEARS BEATEN

Without any references to weather conditions, International League baseball men will tell you today that spring is here.

They can prove it by these two facts: (1) that the opening games in the four northern cities of the circuit yesterday drew a greater actual attendance than the League's opening in the south two weeks ago and (2) that the first night game of the season is scheduled for today.

Some 37,000 fans turned out for yesterday's four games. The top crowd of 12,500 appeared in Buffalo to see the Bisons take their eighth straight setback, a 15-4 drubbing from Jersey City Giants. At Rochester, 10,941 saw the Red Wings beat Newark Bears 5-2 behind Blix Donnelly's six-hit hurling and more than 10,000 Toronto fans were on hand as the league-leading Maple Leafs routed Syracuse Chiefs, 12-3. The day's smallest crowd, 3,400 at Montreal saw the tightest game as Baltimore Orioles, held to two hits, conquered the Royals, 2-1.

The results of these games gave Toronto a full game lead over the field while Baltimore moved into a second-place tie with Newark and Rochester tied Spracuse for fourth. Tonight the Leafs will play Syracuse under the floodlights while the other clubs stick to afternoon contests.

Toronto got off to a shaky start yesterday when young Dick Conger gave up five hits and three runs in the first inning, but he pitched two-hit ball the rest of the route while the Leafs belted out 14 blows, including a homer by rookie Ralph Kiner on his first trip to the plate.

The Jersey City players, like the Maple Leafs, all got at least one hit as they pounded four Buffalo flingers for 15 blows.

Although he was stingy with hits, Rochester's Donnelly gave seven passes and was in tight spots most of the time until the late innings.

Toronto, May 7—(CP)—Canadians have a double interest in Count Fleet, the Kentucky Derby winner. The great thoroughbred's jockey is Johnny Longden, who came out of Taber, Alta., and got his racing start on Western Canada tracks. But it's not so generally known that Count Fleet's trainer, Don Cameron, was born in Winnipeg.

Cameron's father also was a well-known trainer. Don is a nephew of the late W. M. (Billy) Graham, former agent for the department of Indian affairs at Regina.

Longden was the second Alberta rider to win the Kentucky classic. Smokey Saunders of Calgary piloted Omaha to victory in 1935. Another Canadian jockey who once had a crack at the Derby, Johnny Craigmyle has reconsidered his decision to retire, announced after he won the Canadian Derby at Winnipeg aboard Maginot Line last year. Craigmyle couldn't stand to remain a spectator when the ponies started running so decided to try his luck at California's Bay Meadows. Craigmyle finished 11th in the 1928 Kentucky Derby on Sun Beau. And the winner of that race was Reigh Count, daddy of Count Fleet.

Egan Egad!

Pat Egan, the former Brooklyn hockey howitzer, is leading the Valleyfied Army team in the Quebec Senior Lacrosse Group this year. Egan played last season in Vancouver and Johnny (Vancouver Province) Park comments: "Eastern lacrosse is due to be 'needled' this season. Pat Egan wired for his helmet and running shoes. They should come in handy until Pat gets suspended." Other teams in the Quebec Group are last year's champions, Lachine-Vile St. Pierre, Lachine R. C. A. F., Montreal Canadiens and Caughnawaga-St. Regis, in all-Indian team.

Incidentally:

Preparing for the Alberta Derby, Scotty Kennedy's 37-cent Omar's gift worked three-eighths in 36 seconds flat, fastest ever clocked on a three-year-old at Winnipeg's Whittier Park. Scotty bought the horse last year from R. J. Speers of Winnipeg for just what money he had in his pocket—37 cents. . .It seems Victoria shot its bolt in hockey for some time when it sent the Army team into the Allan Cup final against Ottawa Commandos. Coast reports say the Victoria rink is to be taken over by the defence department and that there will be no hockey in Victoria next winter. Meantime, Vancouver understands its forum rink, used by the Armed Forces the past year, will be available for hockey again next season. Probably Nanaimo will re-enter the Mainland League with Vancouver and New Westminster.

Sports Roundup

New York, May 7 — (AP) — Harvard's announcement that it won't play intercollegiate football next fall surprised exactly nobody hereabouts. And, as an old Princeton grad, we might comment: "It's not the first time — and we don't mean during the last war, either." .... After playing a high school team at the end of spring practice, maybe the Harvard boys decided they'd found their class and might as well stay in it.

Gene Sullivan, St. Joseph (Mo.) News-Press: "Lou Novikoff still is on the west coast demanding more money before he will report to the Cubs, but practically nothing has been carried on the wires about him and Chicago papers mention the fact only casually...after all, holding out in North Africa means something different from holding out in the National League."

Thorncliffe Park Meeting To Be Held at Woodbine

Toronto, May 7—(CP)—The spring meeting of the Thorncliffe Park Racing and Breeding Association will be held at the Ontario Jockey Club's Woodbine track, it was announced today in a statement issued from the office of George Gray, Canadian Transit Controller.

The meeting, transferred from Thorncliffe's track in Suburban Leaside to Woodbine in the eastern part of Toronto, will be held May 41 to June 7.

"This change has been made at the request of the transit controller because of the serious shortage of gasoline and rubber and the complications which would arise in the handling of war workers by the bus transportation facilities in the Thorncliffe area," the statement said.

Bettors Settle On Vincentive For Preakness

By DONALD SANDERS
Associated Press Sport Writer

Baltimore, May 7 — (AP) — The "knock-down-the-champ" club, looking around for a colt which might stand a chance against Count Fleet in the 53rd running of the Preakness, had just about settled on Vincentive today.

Sentiment played a strong part in the swing to the sturdy Maryland-Bred son of Challenger 11, but the fact Blue Swords has had five shots at Mrs. John D. Hertz's Brown Hurricane without success was another factor.

Vincentive has won only four races in 10 starts, but he was impressive in his last two efforts although winning against second-rate colts. Consequently, it appeared that W. L. Brann's Color Bearer might go to the post tomorrow the second choice, despite the fact that Blue Swords has never allowed anything to come between him and Count Fleet.

Besides, Marylanders still hadn't forgotten that the only non-favorite to win the $50,000-added second leg of the triple crown in its last nine renewals was Brann's Challedon, like Vincentive a son of Challenger II.

Horses Ready For Handicaps

Toronto, May 7 — (CP) — Race fans may witness a three-cornered duel for handicap honors when the Ontario season opens at Woodbine two weeks from tomorrow.

Already quarters at the east end course and training smartly are Fairaris, four-year-old English-bred colt owned by R. S. McLaughlin of Oshawa, Ont., and Ten to Ace, Canadian-bred flier which won the King's Plate last season for Harry Giddings of Oakville, Ont.

Third member of the triumvirate may be Bon Jour, which finished a close-up third to Alsab and Boysy in the Victory handicap at New York last fall after being acquired by Chick Turner or Toronto.

Fairaris, winner of the Peter Pan handicap and lesser events at Belmont Park last summer before an injury threw him out of training, whizzed four furlongs Wednesday in .49 for one of the sharpest moves of the spring training grind. Ten to Ace stepped the distance even faster yesterday, negotiating the half-mile in .47 2/5.

"Well," was the reply, "two of them were on the mirror and the others were round the whisky bottle."

Ki-Y Ready to Go.

Ed Shortt called today to say application forms for affiliation in the Ki-Y softball groups can be obtained at the Y. M. C. A. As in years past three groups will be operated, Bantam under 12 years, Midget under 15 years and Juvenile under 17 years on May 1st of the playing season. The last day of entry in May 14th, just one week from today.

The Ki-Y softball groups do much to fill in a much-needed gap in the athletic program of Belleville and those responsible for its annual operation are doing their share towards the alleviation of minor delinquency in the City of Belleville. In that period of fine evening weather in May and June, prior to the summer school vacation period, the Ki-Y softball groups fill a great need in Belleville.

Mr. Shortt would like softball teams entered from every district in the city, but time is short fellows, so get your entry form at the "Y" pronto.

Softball in General

Lorne Cook, who championed city league hockey in Belleville when employed at the old "Intell" nearly two decades ago, was re-elected to the post of President of the Kingston Softball Association. There was a time when Prexy Cook went to bat for softball in the Limestone City when they had but two teams and a bank balance of exactly eight cents. Already this year five teams have affiliated with the Kingston "mushballers" and at least one more entry is expected. The teams now entered are the league champion Victorias, the K. of C., Nylon Company, Ordnance Corps and the Kingston Garrison.

In Belleville there is still an air of doubt as to just how many clubs will answer the call when President Chris Knot calls the annual league conclave early next week. With Point Anne returning to the fold it is quite doubtful if the league champion Army and Navy "Vets" will be able to field a team, as they'll lose at least five players to the Cementmen.

Over at the Reliance Aircraft, "Spike" Pryke is far from optimistic, as the "plane-makers" have no available pitchers and have no Pete Horrick, Tims Williams and Chuck Barriage, the latter being a trio of infielders hard to replace in these trying war times.

However, to fill one of these vacancies in the league roster, the Argyll Light Infantry Battalion sports officers have signified intentions of seeking affiliation, while naturally Point Anne would take care of the other missing club in the event the Reliance do not go to the post. Otherwise Stephens-Adamson, Bristol Aircraft, Belleville Juniors, No. 5 I.T.S. are certain to face the barrier, while nothing has been heard from the Mountain View Bombers camp.

(Remember when—)

Sixteen years ago today, only 1-1000th part of a goal put Portsmouth into the English Football League first division. Climaxing a great promotion fight with Manchester City, Portsmouth blanked Preston North End 5-0 while the City walloped Bradford City 8-0 in final games. Although tied in points Portsmouth gained major league ranking with a better goal average.

"I got the business," screamed "Irish Jerry" Monahan after Wednesday night's defeat by Earl McCready. "Not only that I got both ends of the dirtiest deal I ever saw and to h—— with you," he roared in Promoter Tunney's ears as he accused Referee Lawson of collusions with McCready. Monohan went so far as to threaten never to wrestle in Canada again, but no doubt if the right amount of mazooka is layed on the line Jerry will ply his ring prowess anywhere from Timbucktoo to Nome.

However, while Monahan is cooling his heels and bemoaning his fate, Promoter Tunney has a natural for next week's card between John Katan and Earl McCready. Here the Empire title championship atmosphere is most prevalent, both being contenders.

(Others reported)

It was with regret we all learned that Sergeant Bill McQuaid, of this city, was reported "presumably dead following air operations over enemy territory last July." Bill was well known in local sports circles, particularly baseball.

Yesterday a dispatch from Windsor announced that Flt. Lt. Brian Casey, former University of Western Ontario grid star and Trenton R.C.A.F. athlete, had been "reported killed in operations with the R.C.A.F." The dispatch didn't elaborate on the report.

Brian Casey was well known in Belleville for his fine sportsmanship in softball and basketball and only a year ago played with the Trenton Flyers, senior Dominion basketball semi-finalists. He operated with the Ferry Command earlier this year.

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 48

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Eva Tyme may not know an opening bid from a closed season. But she is a good cook. Which enables her to remember each bridge rule by the recipe for some dish.

Suppose she wants to remind herself of the needs for an opening bid of one in a suit. She thinks of griddle cakes. That tells her how many items it needs.

She says: "To make good hotcakes, I use four basic ingredients. There must be flour. There must be baking powder. There must be milk. And there must be eggs."

That surprises me. At camp, we just chuck a batch of prepared flour into a tin can and mix water. Flipsem and flopem in a pan of bacon grease over an open fire. Result, flapjacks.

So I ask: "Gosh, do you really need milk and eggs?" And she replies: "Well, you can leave out the eggs. Or substitute water for milk. But they will not be as good."

Compare that with an opening bid of one in a suit. You need four basic items for that, too. They are: Five tricks, four high cards, two sure tricks, and a biddable suit.

Leave out an item. Be short in an item. Substitute something. Either may answer a temporary desire. Either may be good enough at the moment. But it will not be as good.

If you are short a trick, your contract will be too high. If you are short a high card, your no-trump bids will suffer. If you are short a sure trick, your partner's doubles will go sour.

Suppose you have this hand:

♠10 8 6
♥A K 9 3
♦A 9 5
♣9 7 4

You have a sure trick more than you need. Your suit is biddable. But you are shy a high card and short two tricks for a good opening bid of one heart.

There are some bridge players who will open with such a hand. But with a bad beginning they come to no good end.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Shadows on the Sage"

Usually fans wait until actors achieve stardom before asking for their autograph, but two Hollywood youngsters made a special exception in the case of Jimmie Dodd.

After three years of playing featured roles in various films, Dodd was cast in a co-starring part for the first time—to play "Lullaby Joslyn" of the Three Mesquiteers in the Republic western "Shadows On the Sage." On the morning of the first day he reported to work, he was met at the studio gate by two youngsters, autograph books in hand. They had heard the news and were determined to be the very first of all movie fans to get the new star's signature!

"Shadows On the Sage" will be shown this weekend only at the McCarthy theatre. Bob Steele and Tom Tyler will once more be seen as the other two stars of the Mesquiteers trio—Steele as "Tucson Smith," and Tyler as "Stony BBrooke. Cheryl Walker has the leading lady role.

AT THE BELLE

"RANDOM HARVEST"

Ronald Colman and Greer Garson star in one of the strangest romances ever to reach the screen, in "Random Harvest," based on James Hilton's best-selling novel, now in its sixth and final day at the Belle Theatre. It is the love story of a man who forgets his past and identity, through war injury that brings amnesia, and a woman whose love and steadfast faith guide and inspire him, and finally unlock the mental door to his past.

"HAPPY GO LUCKY," In Color

For the benefit of film fans who might want to take a pleasure cruise without leaving Belleville, the Belle Theatre will this week-end present Paramount's funfilm in Technicolor, "Happy Go Lucky," starring Mary Martin, Dick Powell, Betty Hutton, Eddie Bracken and Rudy Vallee.

The movie, according to advance reports, will move you right out of this humdrum world to a resort island in the Caribbean where laughs, glamour and song combine to banish blues. The five principals are admirably suited to provide the gayety called for by the story of "Happy Go Lucky" which Mary Martin, and her laugh-provoking trials and tribulations trying to land one. Rudy Vallee plays the millionaire — a character similar to the one he played so hilariously in "The Palm Beach Story," pince-nez and all.

On the island Mary finds not only millionaires, but beach boys too, in the persons of Dick Powell and Eddie Bracken. Powell, for reasons of his own, helps her land Vallee although his interest in the lady is anything but platonic. Bracken is once again devoured by the incendiary blonde, Betty Hutton. Fresh on the heels of their triumph in "Star Spangled Rhythm," the two are said to hit even higher spots in "Happy Go Lucky."

Frank Loesser and Jimmy McHugh have written five terrific tunes especially for the film — "Happy Go Lucky," "Let's Get Lost," "Murder, He Says," "The Fuddy Duddy Watchmaker" and "Sing a Tropical Song" the latter sung by Calypso singer, Sir Lancelot, who also comes through with a little Calypso number called "Ugly Woman."

The picture from all accounts, is a vacation in itself with its colorful island atmosphere and happy go lucky spirit. With singers like Mary Martin, Dick Powell and Betty Hutton to do justice to the catchy songs and funny men Eddie Bracken and Rudy Vallee to dish out laughs, "Happy Go Lucky" sounds like a swell bet for movie-goers of all ages, so include it on your film list.

Three other treats will also be exhibited. Continuous shows will be presented.

AT THE CAPITOL

"RED SKELTON"

Fast-talking Red Skelton, hailed as "funniest man on the stage," bids fair to annex the same title on the screen in "Whistling in the Dark," his M-G-M starring picture, now showing at the Capitol Theatre.

The comedian has the opportunity to "give his all" in the hilarious story—and does just that.

Skelton's antics and wisecracks are augmented by those of "Rags" Ragland, comedy hit of Broadway's "Panama Hattie." Conrad Veidt, who scored in "A Woman's Face," plays another mystery role as the saturnine cultist leader. Other principals in the picture are Henry O'Neill, Eve Arden, Paul Stanton and Don Douglas.

Sidney Wagner contributed unusually effective photography and Bronnislaw Kaper an interesting musical score. One of the comedy highlights is the fight between Miss Rutherford and Miss Grey as feminine rivals for the love of the comedian.

"DEAD MAN'S GULCH"

Republic scores again in the western field in its latest production starring Don "Red" Barry, which is the added hit at the Capitol Theatre. "Dead Man's Gulch" is an unqualified hit in every respect, with all the elements of suspense, action and thrills effectively played up.

Don Barry, who needs no introduction to local western fans, outdoes himself in the role of "Tennessee Colby," a former pony express rider who became Deputy Marshal in the wide-open community of 'Dobe Falls. As Deputy Marshal he was obliged to apprehend and bring to justice a man who had been his best friend in pony express days.

A colored cartoon and the "Secret Code" round out another grand weekend program for all.

Tattooing

Male or female, a sailor's a sailor, and a tattooing expert in Chicago won't be surprised if he numbers "Waves" among his clients, sooner or later.

He told an enquiring reporter of The Chicago Daily News that tatooing has more than doubled since the start of the war, thanks to the 75,000 sailors at Great Lakes and Navy Pier training station.

After all, he said, he has had many feminine customers. He went on:

"A show girl—snake charmer—comes in regularly. Goes for Oriental stuff, like dragons.

"At one time it was a fad among women to have their lips and cheeks tattooed. Saved rouge. I still get an occasional job like that. Girls also go in for beauty spots on their faces.

"One young couple, a man and his wife, came here and picked out a heart-and-scroll design. The man had it put on his arm, with her name on it ,and she took it on the thigh, with his name on it. Another couple brought their own design, a tiny heart with a date, and had me tattoo it on the girl's left breast.

"As a rule, I don't like customers to bring their own designs I have [illegible],000 of my own. There was a navy man who would bring in pictures that his girl friend had made and have me copy them on him. The girl was an artist, and she specialized in birds and flowers. Last time the fellow left here he had nearly every square inch of his body covered with sketches his girl had made up".

Wool Draperies

Wool draperies should be brushed frequently or cleaned with a vacuum cleaner. After taking them down and shaking them gently, special attention should be given to the folds where moths are more apt to be present.

Light-weight wool draperies can be laundered at home. Allowance should be made for some shrinkage. They should not be soaked, but may be rinsed in warm water to remove the surface soil before laundering. Lukewarm water and mild soap are essential. Wash quickly, do not rub, and rinse thoroughly. Dry away from heat.

Heavier lined draperies, if at all possible should be sent to be dry cleaned, because of their bulk and, more important, because the lining is usually of a fabric other than wool.

Little Benny's Note Book

After supper ma's alligator bag was open on the living room table, and pop looking inside, saying, A woman's handbag is only second in misteriousness to a woman's heart. By gollie she's got her diamond ring in here again instead of on her finger, he said.

And he took it out and stuck it in his vest pocket to teach her a safety lesson by making her think she lost it, and this morning ma was eating her breakfast with her hat on ready to go out, and she started to look all through her alligator bag with an expression like a lady going to faint, and I said, Gee, ma, dont worry, pop must of forgot to tell you. He took it out and stuck it in his vest pocket last night. He's up there still shaving, do you want me to go up and get it for you before he gets his vest on? I said.

There are some things I'd rather do myself, ma said.

And she quick went upstairs and came down again with her diamond ring and put it in her bag, and as soon as pop came down she started to look all through her bag with an imitation of a worried expression, saying, Oh dear, my diamond ring, I know it was in the bag.

Oh, it'll turn up, it was probably merely stolen, pop said. If you had a magician for a husband he would get it back for you just by waving his hand. By gollies I feel magic coming on, I believe I'll try it myself. Shut your eyes and open your bag, he said.

All right, I will, I can be silly too, ma said. And she opened her alligater bag and shut her eyes, and pop said, Presto Change-o, out of the nowhere into your bag. And he felt in his vest pocket and got a surprised scared expression, and ma opened her eyes and looked in her bag saying, Well of all things here it is, it must of been here all the time for land sakes, imagine that.

Well Ill be switched, pop said. I only feel 5 years older now instead of ten. Thats putting one over on the old magician. You're the magician of this family, believe me, he said.

The airmen are busying themselves with the gardens which help brighten up the grounds. Any donations of bulbs or plants would be welcome.

Friends of Harold Goodman, Senior Y.M.C.A. supervisor, will be interested to learn he has been transferred from Trenton to No. 1 Instrument Flying School at Deseronto. Bob McArthur is his successor.

The tea and sale on Wednesday at the Y.M.C.A. Hostess House proved an enjoyable and successful social event.

The record of the R.A.F. in the Victory Loan campaign is earning them much praise and they are setting a wonderful example. With an objective of $6000 they have invested $22,700.

Quebec Endorses Compulsory Education Bill

Must Attend Between Ages of 6 and 14 and Have Free Text Books

A CLOSE VOTE

Quebec, May 7 (CP)—The Quebec legislative assembly late last night gave a compulsory education bill a 30-11 endorsation after rejecting by a 29-11 vote an opposition amendment urging reconsideration of the bill and clauses to aid poor families and provide help for school commissions and teachers.

The bill now goes to the legislative council—provincial Upper House—where it must receive three readings before becoming law. The council stands adjourned until May 20.

Premier Godbout and opposition leader Maurice Duplessis both took part in the debate on the bill which provides for compulsory school attendance between the ages of 6 and 14 and free text books.

The Premier saw in the bill a means of qualifying his fellow French-Canadians "as even better citizens." It would result in many seeing their "duty more clearly and in a broad fashion; it would teach our children what a country stands for, and what we owe to a country —a country for which we are fighting today.

Neglect Duty is Claim

"There are parents, in all classes of society, who neglect their duty by not educating their children. Refusal of anyone to do his duty to society makes it the duty of the government to act. We are taking away no liberty from the people, but we have no right to risk the future of the nation to the few who will not do their duty.

"Compulsory education is essential for the general welfare of our people. It will be necessary for the generation of tomorrow, in the citical period to come, to understand its duty better than some of this generation understands it. It is necessary that the people be given the mean to protect themselves against petty politicians. That is one of the reasons why compulsory education is necessary: that is a reason why children should not leave school at the age of 10, but continue long enough to understanding civic and patriotic duties."

Mr. Duplessis said his Union Nationale party was for educational reforms "and if the government is prepared to take the necessary steps to bring in the legislation, which must precede a bill such as this, we will collaborate.

"The government is making a step backward instead of forward in the bill. The opposition wants to extend instruction to all, especially to poor children, but this bill is illusory and inoperative and will result in heavier burdens for the school commissions of the province."

He said teachers were poorly paid and they had no guarnatees for pensions and that some school buildings in Montreal "are death traps."

Dieppe Prisoners Still in Chains

London, May 7 (CP Cable) — Lieut. Arthur M. Hueston of Sarnia, Ont., officer in the Essex Scottish Regiment who was taken prisoner at Dieppe last summer, wrote in a card received in London today that "we are still in chains."

The officer, son of the publisher of the Sarnia Canadian Observer, H. M. Hueston, was believed to have been among the first group of Canadian prisoners shackled in German prison camps last autumn.

He wrote London friends: "There are a few Americans in the camp from Africa but as we are still in chains and held incommunicado from the rest of the camp, I don't know them."

His seven pencil-scribbled lines also disclosed "we are receiving plenty of cigarets and cigars from Canada" but implied, friends said, that the food situation was much less satisfactory.

The Americans to whom he referred are believed to be the first United States soldiers to be held in Germany in this war.

United Church Leader On Visit to Britain

London, May 7—(CP)—Rt. Rev. J. R. P. Sclater, Moderator of the United Church of Canada, arrived in London and completed plans to attend religious gatherings and visit the Canadian forces and their chaplains.

Dr. Sclater said his main purpose of the trip is to attend the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland in Edinburgh May 18, when he will make at least three speeches.

Thursday he attended the English Presbyterian Assembly at Liverpool as commissioner for the United Church of Canada.

Next week he plans to meet leading Methodists and other figures of church life in Britain at a meeting of the Congregational Union.

Spartansburg, S. C., May 7—(AP) —Imagine the surprise of a store cashier, looking at a customer's ration book, when he found it contained two complete sets of all coupons. "Where did you get such a book?" he asked. Then the customer professed bewilderment, asking, "aren't they all like that?" The local ration board is expected to rectify the error.

PO. Ernest MacDonald Reported Lost at Sea

Halifax, May 6 (CP)—PO. Ernest MacDonald of Halifax, formerly assistant chief flying instructor at the St. Catharines, Ont., R.C.A.F. Station, has been reported lost at sea following the torpedoing of a Britain-bound freighter carrying air force personnel, relatives here learned last night.

(Sixteen Canadian fliers were landed recently at a British port after their ship was sunk, and it is believed here this was the vessel PO. MacDonald was aboard.)

A member of the Halifax Aero Club before the war, he went to St. Catharines in July, 1940, and last September was posted to combat service.

THE ROBIN DIED

Denver, May 7—(AP)—Charles D. Allen noticed a string hanging from the bill of a grounded robin. A humane officer took the bird to a hospital. There the string was removed. On the end was a fish hook. On the hook was a worm. The robin died.

HAD POTATOES WITH HIM

Media, Pa., May 7—(AP)—"Steak and potatoes," ordered Philip Wagner, in a restaurant. "Sorry, we're out of potatoes," the waitress said. "Well, I'm not," said Wagner, producing two from his coat pocket. Luckily the restaurant had the steak.

COUNTESS OF HAREWOOD DIES

London, May 7—(CP Cable)—The death was announced today of the Dowager Countess of Harewood, 84. She was the widow of the fifth Earl of Harewood and the mother of the present sixth Earl whose wife is the Princess Royal, sister of the King.

Greer Garson and Ronald Colman co-starred in M.G.M.'s "Random Harvest," now in its sixth and final day at the Belle Theatre.

PASSING DREAM

by MARGARET GORMAN NICHOLS

CHAPTER IX

Temple stiffened. "Oh, I have plenty, thanks. Send them to one of the war relief agencies."

She stepped out of the taxi, seeing them briefly before the taxi drove off. Fran was looking somewhat startled. Ron looked only sleepy.

Temple that night wrote a cheerful letter to her mother. Now there was no forced cheer in it. In part she wrote, "I've been invited to spend the weekend at Mrs. Wayne's farm in Virginia. We're driving down Saturday afternoon."

She slept soundly, waking to remember Jud's long, tender kiss.

Paula drove in a way that made you glad you had been spared, after you had reached your destination.

But they had not yet reached their destination — Paula's farm. Temple was thinking that Paula's entering the boarding house—not coming in, really, but bursting in like a flame — had caused more excitement than anything that had happened since Temple had been living there. Paula's deep voice had made itself heard even in Mrs. Benson's little office; she had been like a bright bird in an aviary of dull, feathered companions.

Paula had talked almost incessantly on the trip, meanwhile loudly blaming other motorists for her own, unconscious mistakes in driving. Temple watched the countryside made desolate by winter. But she was thinking of Jud. She was always thinking of him now, wrapping her love about her as a protector against the cold which penetrated the shiny new gray car, thinking of last night and the night before and the dear, foolish things they had said to each other.

But they had made no promises, she thought. For them there could be no promises. They could look back, but not ahead. A man who claimed to be a frustrated artist had so arranged it that a boy and girl in Washington in 1941 could not promise each other anything.

"I'm really going in for farming seriously this year," Paula was saying. "Heretofore I've had planted what I thought was pretty. Imagine, planting what I thought was pretty! When the tenant farmer suggested certain crops I always asked 'What does it look like? Will it be becoming to the house?' He probably thought I was nuts. But no more of that. I don't know what potatoes look like when they're growing or whether they grow inside or out, but I'm going to have potatoes, lots of them. Mamie, the tenant's wife, will be there getting our dinner. She's never owned a cook book but she can run rings around the chef in the hotel. Are you warm enough, dear?"

"I'm quite comfortable," Temple said.

Paula laughed. "Poor baby! You are probably wondering why in heaven's name you let yourself be dragged off on a wild chase like this when you could be having an exciting evening with Jud. Oh, I know all about that. I can spot a girl in love a block off. But I never give any advice on romantic matters, so please don't ask for any. I have listened to more wrecked love affairs than any woman dead or alive. And why, you are asking yourself, does she pick on me?"

She turned her head quickly and smiled. "Can't I have a school girl crush? Why can't I? One of the good points in reaching my peculiar station in life is that I may choose my friends. Have you ever seen such driving? Really, I don't see how half of them keep from exterminating themselves? Be a good thing if they would. It would at least clear the roads for people who try to be as careful as I am. Temple, what are you and Jud going to do about the draft?"

Temple tucked her chin in the collar of her beaver jacket.

"I don't like the word 'draft' . ."

"I don't either."

"He is going to wait until his time comes and then he is going."

"Why doesn't he enlist? He can choose his field then."

"I hadn't thought of that." Truly she had not. "I suppose he wants to stay at his job as long as he can."

"If they'd take me, I'd enlist today. I haven't anybody to send or anybody to lose, but I'd like to get in with both feet to stamp out the scourge. I felt the same the last time when I did have someone to send and someone to lose. It makes me glad that I'm not young. It always reminds me that I am not young.

"It's a pity it will be dark when we get there. You won't be able to see the orchard or the creek until tomorrow. Don't expect too much. It isn't grand. The house is so old I think the antiques will charm it is put together with wooden pegs. your New England heart and I'll murder anyone who says they are not authentic. I went into barns and attics and stables up and down the Atlantic coast to get them. What's more, you can sit on them. It won't be long now. I'll tell you about my neighbors."

Presently Paula turned the car into a long lane at the end of which was a small, white house enclosed by a picket fence. It was not quite dark, so Temple could see as the car came closer that the fence also enclosed an old-fashioned well over which had been built a white shingled canopy. Huge old trees stood like loving sentinels. There was still enough light for her to see that the stream in the rear of the house was glazed with ice. There was neither sound nor movement. An instant later she saw smoke coming from the chimney and scattered by the wind.

"It's lovely, Paula. At every season it's different and at every season it's lovely. But it isn't—it isn't like you."

Paula glanced at her quickly. "Oh, yes, it is. It's very much like me. I'll blow the horn and Herman, Mamie's husband, will come out for our bags."

Stepping inside the house was like stepping back a century. And Temple, who, next to truth, loved beauty and especially the beauty of old, mellow things, stood still, hating to spoil the picture by intrusion though she ached to warm her cold hands by the fire burning high and bright in the old brick fireplace. The walls of the room were pine-panelled; the rugs had been hooked by patient hands that loved color. The chairs and tables were graceful representatives of a by-gone era.

Paula took Temple through the house to Paula's bedroom on the first floor, quaint, shining clean and colorful with chintz, then to the small dining-room complete with old mahogany pieces scarred by generations of children, but still polished and beautiful; and to the two small bedroom upstairs. In one there was a canopied bed.

"Your room," Paula said.

Temple compared this with the blond modern furniture and the startling modern pictures in Paula's Washington suite.

They had tea before the fire. The old china tea service had been brought in by Mamie, a large woman in a housedress and a long cotton apron.

Paula chuckled. "So now you know why I ask few people here. Oh, they'd love it. So quaint, don't you know. Too utterly dear. Wherever did you find such a perfectly charming place, darling? and so on. They'd think it was a hobby. It isn't. It's a home. I bought it from a family whose forbears put the first plow in the ground 'way back in seventeen something. The present generation was broke. But the family burying ground is in the back field. I keep the graves clear of weeds and put flowers on them occasinally. In a way they've become my family, too since I haven't any other I care about."

"I'd like Jud to see it."

Paula laughed. "When you can't enjoy something without wanting a man to share your joy, it's bad, very bad, darling, I'm afraid."

"I'm not afraid."

"No one ever is at your age. You don't even close your eyes and jump. You jump with them wide open."

"I wonder that you didn't marry again, Paula."

Paula jerked her head up quickly. Her eyes were bright and amused. "How do you know I've been married at all? Bless you! I have been more times than I care to remember. Why should I get married again—that is, if anybody would want to marry me? You don't have to think how you look when you get up in the morning, darling. I do. I never let anyone see me until I put on my eyebrows and mouth. And a man suitable in age for me? I couldn't stand him. Bald head and indigestion. No, thank you.

"I don't want to marry for money because I saw to it the last time that I had plenty of that. I don't want to marry for companionship because the most delightful of companions ceases to be a companion when you marry.

She shook her head slowly. Her face was pale and sharp and drawn in the shadows, but there was great vitality in it.

"You wonder," Temple thought, "on what her vitality nourished."

"You can never go back, Temple. Never. Women are always kidding themselves that they can."

Temple smiled. "How do you know you're in love, Paula?"

"Good Lord, how do I know? I've made more mistakes than any woman on earth. Some women know they're in love when a man bangs them on the head and they still care. There, I'm stopped. I could go on all night. Once I stayed in love two years with a man who went away. When he came back, I loathed the sight of it. He told bad jokes and sat in a chair as if he'd been thrown in it. I suppose he'd always been that way . . . I'll bet Mamie is listening. I'd like to hear her report my conversations to her friends. I know she thinks I'm nuts. But she had something you and I haven't, darling. She has a husband who adores her and six kids to whom she is indispensable. What is more, she has a fixed place in her community. She's Mrs. America; and don't feel sorry for her."

x x

That night Temple lay in the canopied bed under the eaves of the old house and listened to the wind. Sleep was distant; she thought of Jud and Paula and Ron, misfits three. Would Ron continue to submit to the demands of Fran and her family? At least there was a spark in him and perhaps that spark flamed when he thought that once he had wanted to stand, hard and lean, outdoors and see a bridge span the water. If Paula loved country life, why didn't she live here the year around? And Jud, who was meant to be the boss' son and who was instead a number to be called, only a number . . .

She had read and listened more intensely than most girls her age and she knew now that the war abroad was touching her and millions of girls like her. But seeing Jud go would be like dreading an operation, but knowing that you could not be well again until that operation had been successfully performed. No resentment would she feel, but sadness and pride. It was as difficult for the young to speak of their patriotism as of their religion. Both were too personal and deep-rooted for casual conversation.

RECTAL SORENESS AND PILE TORTURE
QUICKLY RELIEVED.

If you are troubled with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not delay treatment and run the risk of letting this condition become chronic. Any itching or soreness or painful passage of stool is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once.

For this purpose get a package of Hem-Roid from J. S. McKeown or any I.D.A. or other drug store, and use as directed. This formula which is used internally is a small, easy to take tablet, will quickly relieve the itching and soreness and aid in healing the sore tender spots. Hem-Roid is pleasant to use is highly recommended and it seems the height of folly for any one to risk a painful and chronic pile condition when such a fine remedy may be had at such a small cost.

If you try Hem-Roid and are not entirely pleased with the results your druggist will gladly return your money.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, May 7—(CP)—Industrials and base metals held to the up side during late morning and afternoon dealings with golds joining in with firming tendencies.

Among firming golds was Beattie which jumped 2 cents to 1.02, a new high for the year. Nipissing, up 5 to 1.50, also was at a new high for the year.

WALL STREET

New York, May 7 (AP)—Buyers continued to nibble at selected stocks in today's market but further profit taking in others blurred the trend picture to some extent.

Individual spots of strength appeared after a fairly lively and indefinite opening and, while losers were plentiful near the fourth hour, most set-backs were small. Rails were among the few soft groups. Numerous issues were unchanged. Dealings slowed at intervals.

Both speculative and investment demand helped absorb offerings and pivotals, instead of the recently sprinting low-priced shares, came in for more attention. Optimistic war news remained as a buying argument. Commitments were trimmed in certain cases on thoughts of a possible technical correction following the string of 3-year highs.

Rail bonds did better. Commodities were narrow.

Among Canadian issues, Distillers Seagram lost 1-4 while Lake Shore and Dome Mines gained fractionally. In the bonds, Canada 4s gained 1-4.

NATIONAL WAR LABOR BOARD ADJOURNS INQUIRY

Will Resume on May 13 Study of Labor Relations and Associated Subjects

SUBMISSIONS

Ottawa, May 7 — (CP) — With a broad outline of Canada's labor problems before it the National War Labor Board has adjourned until May 13 its general inquiry into labor relations and associated subjects.

The adjournment was made at the conclusion of yesterday's session to enable the board to hear, during the early part of next week, several pending applications in specific cases.

In the first three days of its investigation the board, headed by Mr. Justice C. P. McTague with J. L. Cohen, K. C., of Toronto as the employees' representative and Leon Lalande of Montreal as the employees' member, heard submissions from major trade union and management organizations and received recommendations from eight regional war labor boards.

Three of the labor organizations, the Trades and Labor Congress, Canadian Congress of Labor and Canadian and Catholic Confederation of Labor, placed emphasis on the importance of introducing legislation to make collective bargaining compulsory.

Railway Brotherhoods

The general conference of Standard Railway Brotherhoods said it considered "that a recognition of the right to organize and bargain collectively is the first essential step towards the avoidance of strikes."

The Canadian Chamber of Commerce as well as two provincial labor ministers, Hon. Peter Heenan of Ontario and Hon. L. D. Currie of Nova Scotia, endorsed the general principle of collective bargaining. The Canadian Manufacturers' Association said it was opposed to the use of any compulsion in collective bargaining legislation.

Variances in the cost-of-living bonus paid were the subject of criticism in several of the briefs. Payment of a uniform full bonus was recommended by all the labor organizations. The Canadian Congress of Labor suggested the introduction of regional indices to meet variances in living costs in different localities. The Railway Brotherhoods called for a revision of the cost-of-living index on which the bonus is based.

Aligning Legislation

Several of the briefs said confusion resulted from the large number of orders-in-council and other legislation applying to labor matters. The Canadian and Catholic Federation proposed the calling of a Dominion-Provincial conference in an effort to align Dominion and Provincial legislation.

The Canadian Chamber of Commerce called for a clear-cut labor code consolidating existing Federal legislation.

While all organizations expressing an opinion on the subject supported the government's price control policy there was a variance of opinion as to the effect of wage increases on prices. The Canadian Congress of Labor took the stand that in some industries wage fluctuations had little effect on prices. The Manufacturers' Association said maintenance of a wage ceiling was essential to price control and the government's anti-inflation policy.

He is survived by his wife, the former Hannah Hines, and one son, Borden Lucas of this city. Two sisters, Mrs. Stephen Kellar of Belleville and Mrs. Leslie Brickman of Moira, and three brothers, William, George and John, all of Thurlow, also survive.

Cheese Board Opens Season

Opening the season for the sale of cheese on the Belleville Board Thursday night, 885 boxes were offered for the next two weeks' delivery and the cheese were sold on the quota system, the same as last year and that procedure will be adopted again this season. Owing to the limited number of cheese offered the board decided to meet again in two weeks.

The question of whether the price set to be paid for cheese means F.O.B. factory or shipping point, will be settled in the near future, when a ruling will be obtained from Ottawa. The buyers took the cheese last night with the understanding all adjustments would be made when the ruling was laid down for guidance. W. H. Montgomery of the Cheese Producers' Association, stated the producers were very much dissatisfied with the price set by the government and expressed the opinion "we may go hungry for cheese." Fred Mallory, secretary of the Board, stated that some producers were of the opinion that it would be better to consolidate the price now paid after the war instead of getting a price now that we cannot hold after the war.

A resolution was passed by the Board expressing the deep regret of the members in the death of James Cook, a buyer on the board for many years. Buyers present were Murphy, Fraleigh, Brownell, Morton, McCreary, Cook and Finkle. The factories represented were:

C.-in-C. Home Fleet?

(London Spectator.)

Who is the Commander-in-Chief Home Fleet? I am not asking for information, but to suggest that readers should put the question to themselves. I doubt if one in ten could answer it, though in fact his appointment, in succession to Sir John Tovey, was announced in all the papers less than a month ago.

Why are we so regardless of one of the half-dozen men who holds the safety of this island in his hands? No one had any doubt about who was in charge of the North Sea in the last war. Jellicoe and Beatty were as familiar names as French and Haig. It is partly, I suppose, that the German fleet is not the same danger today as it was then, and also that some of the other commands—notably the Mediterranean — are of relatively greater importance (for Italy and Japan were our allies then).

All the same, our sense of debt to Sir John Tovey till a few weeks ago, and to Sir Bruce Fraser now, ought not to go unregistered entirely.

Point Traverse — Inclement weather was partially responsible for the postponement of the wolf hunt to be staged by farmers in this vicinity on Monday morning.

Several owners of flocks of sheep in this area have suffered considerable loss from the killing of their ewes and young lambs this spring, which is believed to be the work of one or more wolves running at large over the Point. The wolf has been sighted by residents here, and it is their belief that the killing and destruction of their sheep in the work of the savage beast.

Plans are being prepared to stage a wolf hunt within a few days, and Picton townsmen are asked to join in the hunt some Wednesday afternoon. It is estimated that some thirty or forty men will be needed to bag the crafty animal.

If SHE can buy—!

MRS. GRAY is mighty near the end of life.

Pleasures are few when you're 74 . . . and living on a tiny pension . . . alone.

Of course, there's your memories . . . but they're not all happy ones.

But . . . you can still be patriotic . . . even at 74 . . . with the candle burning low.

One of the few pleasures left to Mrs. Gray is thinking of others . . . trying here and there to help in a kind of feeble way . . . now and then.

That's why she bought a Victory Bond . . . for a small amount, as you can imagine.

"I haven't anyone over there," she said. "But other people have . . . and I do want to help. Can't you fix it so I can pay about four dollars a month? I believe I can manage that."

* * * *

And so . . . by a miracle of scrimping . . . by giving up a few poor creature comforts here and there . . . old Mrs. Gray joins up for the duration.

She may not live to see the victory of Right . . . but she believes in it . . . and she backs her belief with a bond . . . bought at the price of REAL sacrifice.

Measure your bond-buying by her yardstick . . . and you'll probably own more of them than you had planned.

TUNISIAN STRONGHOLDS FALL

Bizerte, Tunis And Pont Du Fahs Seized by Allies

Scattered Pockets of Resistance Being Destroyed in Rolling Offensive That Continues Pursuit of Enemy on All Fronts; Turn Back Axis Right Wing in South

SUCCESS COMES 6 MONTHS AFTER ALLIED LANDING

(By WILLIAM H. KING)
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, NORTH AFRICA, May 8 (AP) — Allied troops hammered scattered pockets of resistance and pursued enemy detachments fleeing from conquered Tunis and Bizerte today in a battle which General Dwight D. Eisenhower, Allied commander-in-chief, said would continue "as long as a single armed German is on African soil."

Six months to the day after Allied landing barges grounded on French North African beaches, the Allied communique said significantly, "The advance continues."

French troops captured Pont Du Fahs and high ground to the east to roll up the right wing of Axis lines still holding on the southern front to contribute to the offensive in which British 1st. Army troops took Tunis and Americans seized Bizerte yesterday.

"Many prioners and much equipment have already been captured, but exact figures are not yet known," it was announced in a communique from headquarters. "The advance continues."

The surprisingly abrupt conquest of Tunis and Bizerte, achieved by a massing of overwhelmingly superior forces of men, tanks, guns and planes, came one day short of six months after the Allied landings in French North Africa.

Allied land, air and naval forces are bent upon one thing—destruction of the last vestige of the Axis forces in Africa as a prelude to carrying the war across the Mediterranean and into Europe.

The determination of the troops as expressed by General Sir Harold Alexander, is to "drive the enemy into the sea." There is equal determination to prevent the enemy, once driven to the sea, from achieving even a partial Dunkirk.

With liaison severed between the survivors of Bizerte and Tunis garrisons, and the southern front yielding before attacks of the British 1st. Army and the 19th. French Corps, the campaign was in its final bloody stage.

Allied airmen who provided unprecedented aerial support for the ground offensive sank 14 small craft, set a destroyer aflame and damaged several other vessels in the gulf and harbor of Tunis and sank three more vessels at the entrance to Tunis harbor at La Goulette, the communique said.

This followed up widespread attacks Thursday in which, further reports disclosed, three Axis destroyers were sunk and three others damaged and 25 vessels were sunk in attacks on Sicilian ports.

Keep Up Intense Attacks

"Light and medium bombers, fighters and fighter bombers of the tactical air force kept up intense attacks on roads congested with enemy troops, destroying many vehicles and starting numerous fires," the communique said. "Enemy air fields near Tunis were attacked."

The communique said that armored elements of the British 1st Army entered Tunis at 2:50 p. m. Friday after having advanced some 23 miles in 36 hours against stiff resistance, including many mine fields.

"In the north, troops of the Second U. S. Corps had cleared the important town of Ferryville by 4 p.m. and at 4:15 p. m. their forward elements entered Bizerte," the bulletin said.

Field dispatches earlier had said that the Bizerte entry was made first, at 4.15 p.m. and that the penetration of Tunis was made five minutes later. (The conflict was not immediately explained, but probably was due to difficulties of field communications while the actions still raged.)

Isolated groups of Axis soldiers fought overnight in the narrow streets and thick-walled houses of Tunis and Bizerte in an effort to win a few hours reprieve for columns fleeing eastward in a crowded jumble along the few northern roads still in enemy hands.

(Axis dispatches broadcast by the Berlin and Rome radios and recorded by The Associated Press today admitted that Bizerte had fallen, but the Germans said street fighting still was in progress in Tunis.)

Axis Left No Refuge

Capture of the two cities left the Axis forces of the north no refuge but the coastal hills and the thin, mountainous Cap Bon peninsula.

If the Germans and Italians reach Cap Bon in strength they will be able to add days to the time required for the final and complete Allied victory, but their positions there can have little effect on military developments.

(A Rome dispatch recorded in London by the Associated Press said some Italian troops had already "taken up new positions on the Cap Bon peninsula.")

Airmen who struck at shipping in the straits of Sicily said they saw a number of boats carrying troops heading for Sicily, indicating a partial evacuation was being attempted, but it was on a small scale and a large percentage of the ships are being sunk. It appeared most probable that the Axis could not accept a large-scale evacuation.

Maj.-Gen. Omar N. Bradley commanded the 2nd U. S. Corps in its victorious drive through the rough northern Tunisian countryside to Bizerte, it was disclosed today. Gen. Bradley is a 50-year-old Missour-

SUBSIDIZE FOODS IN FIGHT AGAINST INFLATION IN U.S.

Meat, Coffee, Butter Subsidies Will Be Swung In To Support Price Ceilings June 1

COST $2,000,000,000

By J. F. SANDERSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Washington, May 8 — (CP) — Subsidizing of foods to the extent of $2,000,000,000 will be the next step in the fight against inflation in the United States, it was reported authoritatively here today. These reports said that such a program was already under consideration in high administration quarters.

Giving strength to this report was the official announcement yesterday that meat, coffee and butter subsidies will be swung in to support price ceilings June 1. And it was believed here that soon this act will be broadened to include canned fruits and vegetables and a long list of other foods.

However, it was not expected that anything but foods would be subsidized.

Meat, coffee and butter subsidies alone will cost approximately $400,000,000 a year, according to unofficial estimates, and have been intended by Prime Administrator Prentiss M. Crown to force a 10 per cent cut June 1 in retail prices of these products.

Flat payments of a cent or more a pound will be made manufacturers on condition they cut their prices according to the program.

The administration has discussed the subsidy possibilities for more than a year, but with few exceptions, little has been done on them up to now—due largely to congressional opposition. That opposition still showed today as some officials and legislators indicated they doubted whether the larger program in prospect would be adopted without specific authority from Congress.

Employees Request Arbitration Board

Port Colborne, May 8 (CP).—Formal application for a Board of Conciliation to arbitrate company-employee questions will be made by members of the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (C.I.O.) at the International Nickel Refinery here. Local 637 of the Union recently met and voted in favor of the application.

The refinery has approximately 1,500 employees of whom between 800 and 1,100 are believed to be union members. The vote to apply for a Board of Conciliation was not a plant vote and the company has issued no statement on the matter.

Edmonton Pilot, Though Wounded, Survives 8-Day Ordeal in Dinghy

By LOUIS V. HUNTER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

An R.A.F. Hospital, Somewhere in England, May 8 (CP)—Young Sgt. Pilot Gerald Emes of Edmonton, his face pale and drawn, leaned toward the side of his cot and smiled weakly.

"I don't know why I'm still alive," he said. And it was difficult to believe he still was, after the story he told of his eight-day ordeal in a bobbing rubber dinghy in the cold, choppy water of the English Channel.

With a leg wound suffered in a 25-mile running fight with six Focke-Wulf 190's, the 22-year-old Spitfire pilot lived for six days on a few tiny malted milk tablets and emergency tablets. He had no water to drink and during the last two days before a rescue aircraft picked him up he didn't even have tablets.

"I just sat there in the dignhy and had to be contented. There were two rough nights. On the fifth night I fell out of the dinghy, but it didn't get away from me, though I can't swim a stroke."

His greatest trial was the lack of water. "What a temptation it was to drink that cold, clear, crystal water of the channel," he said.

Destroys One Plane

The Nazis Emes tangled with didn't get away scot free. He saw one Jerry "hit the deck" and believes he damaged another. There were only two Nazis after him when he landed in the channel.

"I got a bullet in my left leg below the knee," he related, "but I felt sure than with the Spitfire I could evade the F.W.'s and get home."

For 25 miles there was a running fight as Emes headed for home.

"I got along all right with the six of them. But 25 miles off the French coast, my engine, which probably had a bit of damage, seized on me and I had to bail out.

"The channel is about 110 miles wide where I came down," he said. "I felt sure I would be sighted and rescued and just drifted in and out with the tide. On the seventh night, though, I drifted a long way towards the English coast. On the eighth I was picked up.

"I used up my malted milk tablets in a few days and then I had to use the emergency tablets."

After the first five days, Emes resolved the only thing to do was to do nothing and thus conserve his waning strength.

"It never occurred to me that I wouldn't be picked up. I felt certain I would be sighted. But I was so lonely after five or six days that I almost felt I didn't give a damn. I don't know yet who sighted me and sent that aircraft out."

The War Today—

Allied Successes in Africa "Magnificent Victories"

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

So at long lost the Allies have reclaimed the North African shore of the Mediterranean, thereby achieving one of the most magnificent victories the war could offer, for this theatre is among the ranking strategical positions of the whole world.

To be sure, there still remains mopping up to do in Tunisia. Weary, shell-shocked German and Italian soldiers—many of their officers having fled to the continent—are holding out in some of the mountain fortifications. Details are lacking, but it's likely that a considerable force may be out on the tip of Cap Bon, hoping against hope that an unfriendly sea will relent and bring them evacuation facilities.

Still, what's left to be done, can be done handily. The day is ours.

This throws Hitler the world-beater back behind the crumbling walls of Europe which he has all but wrecked. The paranoic genius of death and destruction is on the defensive, with the enemy pressing him on all sides.

With the retreat goes Mussolini's Empire, for which Il Duce sacrificed his honor and stabbed a wounded neighbor in the back. With it, too, goes the Italian dictator's outlying defences against invasion. The Bull of Bashan which roared so terrifyingly from the security of Rome now turns out to be a sea-cow which sprawls more or less helpless, waiting for the kill.

Perfect Co-ordination.

The Tunisian victory represents perfect Allied military co-ordination and timing. That speaks well for the future. It speaks doubly well in that this co-ordination couldn't have existed without the most friendly co-operation among the Allies in this bloody engagement — the Britons, Frenchmen and Americans.

The Allied command has operated its attacking machine like a precision instrument. The whole long line has been so delicately manoeuvred that the co-ordination has been perfect.

So has the timing. Crucial attacks were supported by application of pressure in adjoining sectors. And when the Americans and British finally rushed to seize the great plums of the victory — Bizerte for Yanks; Tunis for John Bull — they were less than an hour and a half apart.

That's a tribute to the High Command and to all the officers and non-coms who carried out the orders. It's a tribute to the grand fighting men who made it possible for the orders to be executed. In short, we're talking about a great army.

Some of the enemy undoubtedly have escaped in small boats—probably mostly officers. As for the rest, it looks like death or surrender for most of them. A large-scale escape by water seems impossible. The sea swarms with Allied naval ships, and the sky is dark with Allied planes.

SUPERIOR AWAITS DIONNE QUINTS TO SPONSOR SHIPS

More Than 100,000 Are Expected to Witness the Launchings

5 TO BE CHRISTENED

Superior, Wis., May 8. (AP)—Public demands for a left-handed christening bottle were rife in Superior today as milling crowds, liberally sprinkled with uniforms of Canadian and United States forces, awaited a special train bearing the Dionne Quintuplets—feature attractions at the launching of five cargo ships tomorrow.

The cry went up shortly after a launching foreman explained that the five merchantmen posed on the ways of the Butler Shipbuilding Company will side to the left of the platform tomorrow, and may force Emilie, the petite southpaw, to make a backhand swing at her vessel.

The city, whose 1940 population of 36,000 has more than doubled since it began to send ships down to the sea, otherwise was prepared for a crowd of 100,000 at the ceremonies tomorrow.

Eugene Casey, executive assistant to President Roosevelt, will be among the score of North American statesmen, military, naval, and maritime service officials on the stand when the world's most famous sisters swing to their red, white and blue jacketed bottles of water from the Niagara River to mark officially a world record for sidewise cargo ship launching.

The five vessels, named after early American captains Moses Gay, Asa Eldridge, Gurdon Gates, Bailey Foster, and Watson Ferris, are destined to fly the British ensign under Lend Lease.

Which of the girls will open the ceremony at 3 p.m. (E.D.T.) is to be determined by lot. The other launchings will follow at 45 minute intervals.

Touching United States soil yesterday for the first time, the eight-year-old daughters of Oliva and Elzire Dionne made their initial appearance at Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., where they greeted a crowd of 1,000 at the station.

With the Quintuplets and their parents were four other Dionne children: sisters Rose, 14, and Pauline, 10, and brothers Daniel, 11 and Victor, 5, Ernest, Oliva Jr., and Theresa remained at Callander.

Harry Phillips of Bath, England, who for most of 77 years was famous throughout West of England for his Punch and Judy Show, died and had his punch doll buried with him.

FRIDAY'S TOTAL HIGHEST RECORDED FOR SINGLE DAY

$77,006,700 is Subscribed Bringing Loan to $707,850,300 in 11 Days

916,619 SUBSCRIBERS

Ottawa, May 8 (CP)—Subscriptions in Canada's Fourth Victory Loan campaign have reached a total of $707,850,300, it was announced at National headquarters today. This cumulative total compares with $564,863,750 subscribed at the corresponding stage of the third loan.

The day's total was the highest daily figure ever recorded in a Canadian Victory Loan campaign. The highest previous total for a day was $70,672,850 on the 18th. day of the Third Loan last Fall.

The cumulative total of subscribers at the close of business Friday evening was 916,619. This compares with 668,322 atthe same stage of the last loan, an increase of 248,297. At the current rate of progress the number of subscribers should pass the 1,000,000 when week end returns are received, headquarters officials said.

Subscriptions yesterday, as the campaign neared the end of the second week of the three-week drive, amounted to $77,006,700, while for the corresponding day of the last loan the total was $54,883,750. The day's total also showed a marked increase in the number of individual subscribers, 134,373 compared with 104,626.

$12,000,000 Subscription

Buttressing yesterday's total was a $12,000,000 subscription from the Great West Life Assurance Co. H. W. Manning, vice-president and managing director of the company, said of this subscription, "we are investing the premium savings of many thousands of policyholders in Canada's finest security. Experienced large investors buy heavily in these issues. The small buyer can well do likewise."

First returns on bond subscriphome and abroad to $8,301,050, or units overseas brought thearmy's combined total of subscriptions at home and abroad to -8,301,650, or nearly three times as much as the entire army raised during the whole of the Third Victory Loan. The first cable from London, England, reported 4,910 applications for the $564,750, compared with the $402,000 raised by army overseas personnel in the last loan.

WASHINGTON SURPRISED AT SPEED OF DRIVE

Final Phase of the Fight Began Less Than Week Ago by British and U.S.

SUPERIOR NUMBERS

By WILLIAM FRYE
Associated Press Staff Writer

Washington, May 8 —(P)— The speed with which Allied troops shattered the Axis bastion of Northern Tunisia brought surprise as well as obvious delight in Washington today.

Since the North African invasion last November, officials—particularly in military circles—have carefully avoided any predictions on the length of the campaign, but observers got the definite impression that the defeat of the Axis armies was not expected before June.

As described here, the final phase of the fight which resulted in the fall of Tunis and Bizerte appeared to have begun less than a week ago when the British 1st Army seized the key to Tunis with a savage assault that took Djebel Bou Aoukaz and the 11th United States Army Corps swept up hill 609—13 miles southwest of Mateur.

Djebel Bou Aoukaz was the main peg in the German line, and its fall opened the road to Tunis, toward which the 1st Army turned immediately, seizing Massicault and pocketing the Axis forces around Tebourba between their lines and the Americans swinging down from Mateur.

Similarly, on the 2,000-foot eminence termed by military strategists "Hill 609" the Germans had pegged their defence of the approaches of Bizerte. When that fell, it was only a matter of two days before the United States forces fought their way into Mateur, vital rail and highway junction of Northern Tunisia.

Estimates of the number of German and Italian troops left in Tunisia are indefinite, but 150,000 seems to be a generally accepted figure, with probably something more than half this number now caught north of Tunis and thus cut off from any last stand in the Cap Bon peninsula.

Below Tunis, what is left of Marshal Erwin Rommel's Africa Korps faces the British 8th Army and the French troops in a shortened line above Enfidaville and Pont Du Fahs. Threatened now from the rear by troops of the 1st Army in Tunis, withdrawal toward Cap Bon seems their only chance to escape immediate decimation. Even in the peninsula they could hardly hold out long.

Unquestioned and overwhelming superiority in numbers has forced the decision in Tunisia—numbers of men, numbers of planes, of tanks, of guns. And that appears to have been the plan from the start.

ONLY FOUR REMAINED YEAR

Boise, Idaho, May 8—(AP)—A small business man, discussing difficulties of wartime operation, made this report "I normally employ 22 persons. During 1942 there were 153 names on the payroll, and of these only four, including myself, were there at both the start and end of the year."

Growing Strength of Allied Power May Eventually Drive Enemy From Air

By LOUIS V. HUNTER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, May 8 — (CP) — The growing strength of Allied air power and the extremes to which the Axis is being driven to stave off total eclipse in the air are revealed in many new types of aircraft which recently have appeared on both sides. The authoritative aviation magazine, the Aeroplane, confidently believes that if things continue as they are now, "the result must be that the enemy will be driven from the air."

Just off the secret list is the Hawker Typhoon, a single-seat fighter armed with four 20-millimetre cannon. The North American Mustang now is similarly armed, and, with the Rolls Royce Merlin motor, should be exceedingly formidable.

In the specialized 40-millimetre cannon, the Hurricane IID, with its two Vickers 40-millimetre cannon, is in a class by itself. The Fairey Barracuda torpedo-bomber is reported to be in service, but details haven't been disclosed. The Bristol Beaufighter is beyond doubt the world's best land-based torpedo-bomber.

The Nazis have been driven to use their fast Focke-Wulf 190 fighter as a night bomber, "probably the most uneconomic use to which such an airplane has ever been put." The Messerschmitt 323 six-motor omnibus fared badly in its first large-scale transport job in Tunisia—31 out of 31 were destroyed. Nor did the Caproni-Reggiane 2001 single-seat fighters which escorted them put up a useful show. These Italian fighters with German engines are said to be the best Italians possess. The Spitfire IX's flying in Tunisia have complete mastery over them.

"In fact," states the Aeroplane in a review of the air war, "unless the enemy is holding back new aircraft of a performance utterly beyond anything they show at present, the technical superiority of the Allies seems likely to become increasingly apparent as numbers are added to quality."

Extremely Violent Battles Reported Near Novorossisk

Russians on Three Sides and Smashing Hard on the Arc Around Port

3 TRANSPORTS SUNK

Moscow, May 8 (AP)—An extremely violent battle was reported in progress today southwest of Neberdjayevskaya, which is only nine miles from Novorossisk, as the Germans rushed up reserves, tank, and motorized artillery in an attempt to halt the Soviet advance toward the Black Sea port.

In the face of growing resistance, Red army units, which turned southward after separating the Germans and the Rumanians north of the Kuban River from those in the south, were driving hard to follow up the force of their first thrusts in the direction of Novorossisk.

There was no indication the city was surrounded but the Russians were on three sides and smashing hard on the arc.

The German regrouped their sagging forces yesterday and threw several heavy tank-led counter-attacks against the Red army advance.

A major struggle developed for an important hill southwest of Neberdjevskaya, with the Germans scoring a temporary minor setback.

At this point Russian divebombers swooped in to dump tons of explosives on the Axis infantry and wheeled guns, throwing them into flight.

German Platoon Executed

A front dispatch said that prisoners captured in the Russian drive told that a platoon of the German Third Infantry Division had been shot for abandoning their positions against orders.

The Soviet armies also captured several strategic hills as they pushed towards the Black Sea northeast of Novorossisk.

Pravda, the Communist party newspaper, reported that German right wing rests in an easily-defended range of high mountains and that it will be difficult to dislodge them.

The struggle in the Kuban Delta currently is three-phased:

First is the drive for Novorossisk with the Russians southeast and northeast of the city although it is not disclosed how near.

Second is the operation from northeast of Novorossisk to the south bank of the Kuban river where the Soviet troops are driving toward the Black Sea and a major breakthrough would isolate Novorossisk except by sea, where the Red fleet is waiting for an evacuation attempt.

The third operation is north of the Kuban river between the river and the Sea of Azov coast, an area containing the highway leading to the Kerch straits. The Red army is taking more villages and roads in this sector, picking off one group at a time and pushing westward.

Axis Announces African Defeat

By The Canadian Press

Italy curtly announced the fall of Bizerte and Tunis today to an Allied force which the Rome radio said outnumbered the Axis 10 to 1, while the Germans conjured up the old familiar propaganda stand-bys such as "secret weapons" and "invasion of Britain to sugar-coat the bitter pill of defeat in North Africa.

The German communique, broadcast by Berlin and recorded by The Associated Press, said street fighting still was in progress in Tunis, although the Italians said via the Rome radio the capital had fallen.

"The enemy continued a large-scale attack with manifold superiority in Tunisia," the German communique said. "Axis troops with unswerving fighting spirit offered stubborn resistance. Frustrated enemy attempts at encirclement supported by strong infantry and tank forces, and imposed serious losses on the enemy in men and material. Our own losses likewise were considerable."

The Berlin radio broadcast editorial comment in the Dagsposten of Stockholm to suggest dire things to come.

"Invasion of Britain is not out of the question," the Berlin radio said, purporting to quote Dagsposten. "There might be mass attacks by air and with U-boats with, perhaps, new and terrible weapons."

The newspaper was quoted as saying that "Great Britain's position is so desperate that an Allied invasion of Europe cannot be postponed any longer and the Allied invasion may be expected in the west, but hardly in the south of Europe."

The thesis on which this reasoning was built was the assertion that German submarine bases in France and the lowlands must be knocked out "and if this is not done, then England is lost and the fate of the empire is sealed," Berlin said.

Quite in contrast, The Associated Press correspondent in Stockholm, Edwin Shanke, quoted the Berlin correspondent of Aftonbladet as saying the Nazis were "struck with astonishment" by the Allied triumph in Tunisia.

Strenuous Efforts of Firemen Save Dwelling From Complete Destruction

Running fire hose 750 feet to the Moira River and pouring tons of water into the burning dwelling, members of the Belleville Fire Department saved from complete destruction on Friday afternoon the frame residence of Lyle "Silver" Watts of Cannifton.

The principal living quarters of the dwelling were burned to the ground but through concentrated effort firemen were able to save from destruction a long wing of the building. The fire started in the upstairs of the main part of the dwelling and although villagers quickly formed a volunteer fire brigade, the blaze was soon beyond the control of available equipment and the city fire department was called.

Soot-laden pipes or a defective chimney is believed to be the cause of the blaze which all but destroyed the Watts' residence. A fire had been lighted in a furnacette in the front room and the first indication that anything was amiss was the discovery that the upstairs rooms were all aflame.

Sensing that it would be impossible to save the structure volunteer firemen concentrated their efforts to saving the furniture in the lower storeys but that in the upstairs rooms fell prey to the flames.

Upon the arrival of the firefighting equipment from Belleville the entire upstairs of the dwelling was ablaze and the flames were rolling through the windows and up over the eaves. The city pumper was used to draw water from the river and although it was found impossible to save the burning wing, firemen were successful in bringing the flames under control in time to prevent destruction of the entire building.

City firemen came in for high praise from Cannifton villagers for their work in bringing the fire under control. Firemen made a quick run to the scene of the fire and remained until all danger was past.

The damaged dwelling and household contents destroyed by the fire were covered by insurance, it was stated.

Letter To The Editor

WHEAT "SURPLUS" WILL DISAPPEAR

TORONTO,
May 6th.

Editor,
The Ontario Intelligencer,
Belleville, Ont.

In an item of news from Ottawa the other day, the Ontario Intelligencer lists, among the functions of the Agricultural Food Board, the following: "...and at the request of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, to arrange for the movement of food supplies from an area where there is a surplus to an area where there is a deficiency."

This "Agricultural Food Board" is a move in the right direction, and particularly gratifying is the decision to keep in the closest touch with the primary producers, in the form of an Advisory Committee, headed by president Hannam (Canadian Federation of Agriculture) and drawn primarily from the farm organizations and the provincial agriculture departments. This setup has been long overdue, but doubtless time can be made up now, by dedication to the task?

If one bears in mind the over-all demands upon our supplies of food and fibre, with the single exception of wheat, a food surplus is almost nowhere in sight—and recent items in the news, dealing with the astonishing "disappearance" of wheat in the United States, via feed-troughs, industrial alcohol distilleries, etc., begin to look like moving the bread cereal over into the "deficiency" ranks, somewhere around October 1944.

So, therefore, it is likely that Jack Canuck's wheat "surplus" will take the same road—even if at a somewhat slower pace — until the forces of freedom smash their way into Europe. Then, as whole regions get liberated, will come the cry for food from myriads of the enslaved peoples who have been for three years under the Nazi terror!

It is up to us to be ready to play our allotted role in this work of relief and rehabilitation which will follow hard on the heels of our advancing troops? If we can meet this challenge, it will strike hard at the retreating Hun—and make the name of Canada a tender memory in minds and hearts of millions across Europe?

When I reflect upon the state of the world at this hour, I see no "surplus food" anywhere.

Four Arrested For Vagrancy

Two Trenton youths and two Belleville girls were taken into custody by city police on charges of vagrancy shortly before three o'clock Saturday morning. The youths' names were given at Pte. M. L. Sharpe, formerly of Trenton and now stationed at Barriefield military camp, and Kenneth M. Flindall. The girls' names were withheld.

City police apprehended the quartette riding into Belleville in a motor car after they were alleged to have entered the home of Mr. W. Harrington at Rossmore without color of right. According to Mr. Harrington's report to police authorities the party merrily walked into his home in the middle of the night and proceeded to what's generally known as "make themselves at home."

On Saturday the quartette was given over to Provincial police following which Constable Kellogg escorted them to Picton where more serious charges are to be preferred, the authorities revealed.

Flood of York River

Many residents of Bancroft village are witnessing a real flood of the York River in town for the first time. The lakes northwest of Bancroft are just breaking up and there is an unusual rush of Spring flood water. Most of the cellars in the lower section of the village are flooded to a considerable depth and the water is backed into the street drains and on the west side of Main Street the water is right back of the residents and stores. Wood piles have suffered the worst and some of the wood dealers affected have been compelled to place booms across sections of their woodyards to protect their interests.

Mother and Daughter, Father and Son Banquet Held at Y.M.C.A.

A Mother and Daughter, Father and Son banquet, sponsored by the Belleville Young Men's Christian Association, was held on Friday evening at the Y.M.C.A. During the supper music was supplied by Bruce Sills' orchestra and Mrs. Plumpton and Ed. Shortt acted as song leaders, accompanied by Alec Gordon at the piano.

Mr. W. H. Finkle, as chairman, introduced Mayor Rollins, who welcomed the guests. He said, "It is a great honor to welcome each and every one of you here tonight and we, the local government, owe a great deal to the men and women who take time out of their daily work to spend time on the children. The government should have a new program, a new compulsory program, to donate money to this work. We are proud of the boys and girls of Belleville and hope you make good use of the Y.M.C.A. I conclude with giving a hearty welcome to all you boys and girls, and mothers and fathers."

Following greetings by Mayor Rollins, Ron Moorman entertained with a cornet solo followed by a vocal solo by Bruce Stackhouse, the hearty applause of all brought them back in several encores. Bruce Sills gave several numbers on his musical saw and Phyllis Barkley sang several numbers.

Speaks Briefly

Miss Templeton introduced the guest speaker of the evening, Miss Muriel Jacobson, M.A., secretary of the National Girls' Work Board of Canada. One of Miss Jacobson's duties consists of field trips across Canada helping leaders of Girls Work Boards and councils and also helping with the plans and programs of the C.G.I.T. In 1938 she went as a delegate to the British Commonwealth Peace Congress at Glasgow and then on to Czecho-Slovakia.

The guest speaker spoke briefly on how we, as Canadians, can make the world a better place to live in and she concluded with saying, "Mankind was made for fellowship and as long as he goes on breaking that, there will continue to be trouble."

J. B. Boyce, president of the Y.M.C.A., thanked everyone who had contributed to making the party a success and said there has to be co-operation and good will in the world; without good will people will perish because they will destroy themselves. In closing Mr. Boyce said, "Freedom and Liberty are great things and you can all do your part in keeping this country free."

The National Anthem brought the evening to a close.

EXTREMELY

Soviet aviation, however, the Germans manage to feed infantry reserves and tanks into the battle areas, chiefly at night.

The noon communique reported heavy artillery duels west of Rostov, where the Soviet army holds the initiative.

Smash Another Nazi Barrier

london, May 8. (CP)— Russian troops have smashed another German defence barrier on the approaches to Novorossisk after beating down a series of nine counterattacks, and Soviet artillery throughout the night battered 87 Axis gun positions and killed about a battalion of German infantry, the Russians said today.

Russian air forces, infantry, artillery and the Red Fleet all are reported functioning in a co-ordinated series of blows to drive the Germans and supporting Rumanian divisions into the sea at Novorossisk and on the Taman Peninsula.

Moscow broadcasts recorded here said Russian bomber destroyed or damaged 350 German planes along the front on Thursday alone and the midnight communique said 27 enemy planes were shot down over Kuban Valley battlefields.

Three Transports Sunk

A broadcast to the Red fleet said the fleet's air arm had sunk three transports totalling 13,000 tons, a 3,000-ton tanker, three torpedo boats and two invasion barges, in an attack on an enemy-occupied port, presumably Novorossisk.

The midnight communique told of renewed fighting with some bearing on the Leningrad area since an advance into several villages reported southwest of Velikie Luki may mean another drive to sever the Vitebsk-Leningrad rail line over which the Axis sent troops and supplies into Central Russia.

Continuing raids on Kota also have some relation to the Leningrad front since Kota is one of the main points through which German troops and supplies reach Finland; Stockholm reports linked the Russian air attacks with unconfirmed stories the Germans planned a new drive against Leningrad.

BIZERTE, TUNIS

ian.

Regarded as a fine infantry officer, he took over from Lt.-Gen. George S. Patton, tank specialist who commanded the 2nd Corps in the Gafsa-el Guetar campaign.

The shift was made in mid-April when the corps moved from the right to the left flank of the British 1st Army. (Gen. Patton's present whereabouts were not disclosed.)

Delighted with Developments

The reason for the change in command, it was explained, was that the new zone of operations assigned to the Americans made the northern drive essentially an infantry fight.

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Allied Commander-in-Chief, said: "Naturally I am delighted with the developments which brought us into Bizerte and Tunis but so far as I am concerned as long as a single armed German is on African soil there is still a battle and I want to destroy the rest of his resistance."

The British reconnaissance unit of the Derbyshire Yeomanry which fought in the original November drive toward Tunis was the first to reach that city, it was disclosed.

The 11th Hussars and an armored unit of the 8th Army which fought all the way from El Alamein was close on their heels and participated with them in confused fighting with Axis troops who apparently were surprised by the speed with which the city was entered.

Eye-witnesses reported the French civilians were overjoyed to welcome their Allies.

It was stated that the 894th Tank Destroyer Battalion Unit of the American 9th Division was the first to enter Bizerte at 4.15 p.m. yesterday, just 15 minutes after a combat command of the 1st U.S. Armored Division occupied Ferryville and shortly after British troops entered Tunis.

A company of tankmen and two companies of tank destroyers made the initial entry into Bizerte sweeping in from the south under artillery fire. Long lines of prisoners streamed to the rear.

No Surprise to Eisenhower

Eisenhower learned of the fall of Tunis and Bizerte as he returned to headquarters from a visit to the front Friday night. It was no surprise.

"This battle has shown the great advantage of unification which we achieved by putting Gen. Sir Harold Alexander up front and letting him handle the battleline from day to day," the Allied Commander said.

"He has been able to transfer force to where he wanted it and he has handled the battleline as a single unit.

"We are now seeing the results of this unification.

"It speaks well for the tremendously difficult tasks lying ahead of the United Nations."

The resounding United Nations victory was accomplished as a spectacle of fine co-ordination by the British 1st Army and the 2nd U. S. Corps, flanked by French troops and Colonial units, all operating with a synchronization of infantry, armored units and air forces that had wiped the enemy out of the sky.

Showered 625 Tons of Bombs.

It was disclosed that on Thursday alone, as the big push began, Allied airmen showered more than 625 tons —over 1,250,000 pounds—of bombs on the enemy, and that 25 Axis ships were sunk in the Sicilian Strait and the Tunis Gulf. Three destroyers were sunk, one was damaged, and 25 enemy planes were destroyed in the air in the operations, it was said.

The French capture of Pont Du Fahs, western anchor of the Axis southern front, and high ground to the east which the communique described as "important" marked the first major break in that area since Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery's British 8th Army won Enfidaville.

(The high ground might be Djebel Zaghouan, Tunisia's highest peak, some 12 miles east of Pont Du Fahs.

(A Reuters dispatch from North Africa said Allied forces had also taken Bir M'Cherga, 10 miles north of Pont Du Fahs and 21 miles south west of Tunis, this heightening a threat to the Axis rear instituted by the British 1st Army's dash to the capital.)

"On the 8th Army front there was considerable local activity and some prisoners were taken," the communique said.

Saturday, April 17, was the hottest day of spring in Britain. Shade temperatures rose from 74 degrees on April 15 to 78 on April 17 when there were 11 hours of sunshine and a cloudless sky.

All Military Districts Pass Quotas

Commenting on progress of the loan campaign among army units, Defence Minister Ralston said today that it was "with a great sense of personal pride in the Canadian army" he received the news that all military districts and commands in Canada had now passed their objectives in the Fourth Victory Loan drive.

He said it proved again "the splendid spirit of army teamwork that exists from coast to coast" and added: "The flame of that spirit is brightened by Victory Loan returns from overseas, and brings home more vividly the total war effort of the armed forces."

Mr. Ralston said that, with a week still to go in the loan, one in every three members of the army in Canada has bought a bond.

"I would like," he stated, "to congratulate all ranks of the Canadian army on their fine achievement, and urge the army to carry on with continued buying zeal during the remaining week of the loan."

Announced by National headquarters today were substantial purchases of Victory Bonds by the following industrial, commercial and financial concerns: Lake Shore Mines Ltd., Toronto $500,000; Dominion Stores Ltd., Toronto $600,000; Bathurst Power and Paper Co. and Subsidiaries $600,000; Royal-Liverpool Insurance Groups $475,000; Robert Mitchell Co. Ltd., $500,000.

Several Records Set.

Victory Loan subscriptions by the army in Canada now stand at $7,736,900 and have already established several records. Officers and men in Ontario to the number of 32,380 have subscribed $2,964,500, or $314,450 more than the whole army in Canada raised during the Third Victory Loan, when there were 32,845 subscribers.

The Third Victory Loan army total of $2,650,050 has also been surpassed by the combined subscriptions of four leading army loan divisions outside Ontario, namely, M.D. 4, Montreal, $1,017,800; Pacific Command, $820,500; Atlantic Command, $714,450; and M.D. 5, Quebec City, $450,000. Their combined total to date is $3,002,750. The five remaining divisions outside Ontario have posted $1,769,750.

Men and women of the R.C.A.F. have already subscribed to the Fourth Victory Loan a total of $4,866,250, well above the Air Force total of $4,300,000 of Victory Bonds purchased in the last loan. The main R.C.A.F. divisions in which the loan campaign is being conducted have reported totals as follows: No. 1 Air Training Command, Toronto, $1,274,150; No. 2 A.T.C., Winnipeg, $543,350; No. 3 A.T.C., Montreal, $843,000; No. 4 A.T.C., Calgary, $654,150; Eastern Air Command, $900,000; Western Air Command, $425,600; Ottawa Headquarters, $225,000.

Ottawa, May 8 (CP) — A paragraph from London reporting the death of George Kruger-Gray, 62, designer of Canada's Great Seal, reminded us we'd never paid much attention to the impression it makes when applied to official documents.

So we did some scouting around the Department of State Secretary McLarty, Keeper of the Seal, and elsewhere and got this information:

The seal bears the figure of King George, robed and crowned and seated on the throne, with orb and sceptre; the coat of arms of Canada; and the abbreviated Latin inscription: "Georgius, VI. D.G., Mag. Brit. Hib. Et. Trr. Transmar. Quae. In. Dit. Sunit. Brit. Rex. F.D. Ind. Imp."

Translated, that means: "George VI, by the Grace of God of Great Britain, Ireland, and the British Dominions beyond the seas, King, Defender of the Faith, Emperor of India."

A new seal is made on the death of a sovereign. The present one, a cumbersome affair that works like an old-fashioned letter-press, was first used January 25, 1940, by the late Rt. Hon. Ernest Lapointe, then acting State Secretary.

The seal is kept in a vault in the Secretary of State Department and Dr. E. H. Coleman, Undersecretary of State, says it is used almost every day. Each proclamation has the seal applied and it goes on all commissions of appointment, like those of Senators and Judges.

"Kiss Me Goodnight, Sergeant-Major"

Senator A. K. Hugessen (Lib. Quebec) served in the First Great War with the Canadian artillery's McGill Battery. In the Senate the other day he referred to a change in the income tax regulations making some higher-paid non-commissioned officers subject to tax.

"Those of us who served in the ranks of the army in the First Great War," he said, "will, I'm sure, greet with pleasure any imposition of taxation on sergeant-major."

Tit for Tat

Speaker James A. Glen won this round in the House . . . Hon. R. B. Hanson (Prog. Con. York-Sunbury) said he thought M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, wanted "to play the demagogue" . . . Mr. Coldwell raised a point of order, contending the word "demagogue" was unparliamentary and then commented Mr. Hanson was "implying that other people are the kind of men that he is himself."

"Well," said Speaker Glen, "it is rather hard to distinguish between the statements made by both honorable gentlemen . . . I'd suggest that both withdraw."

Both did.

Speaker Glen, by the way, is a quiet, unobtrusive man not widely known out of parliamentary circles.

He has a deep appreciation for the beauties of Ottawa and makes a custom of strolling about the imposing parliament buildings, and taking his seat on one of the benches where civil servants in the lower wage categories like to sit at noon hour.

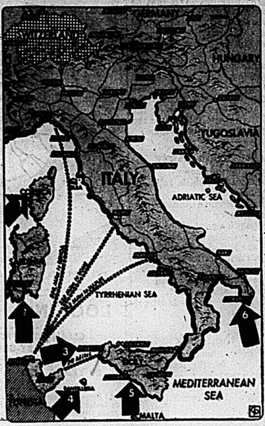
Sometimes they wonder, no doubt why the members of parliament raise their hats to the soft-spoken man who enjoys the sun.

J. F. Pouliot (Lib. Temiscouata) was discussing in the House the Mutual Aid Bill for provision of supplies to the United Nations.

He said: "Are we to aid Russia, China and other associated nations? What are those associated nations? We have a right to know."

George Cruickshank (Lib. Fraser Valley) interposed waggishly: 'Shangri-La."

AXIS FEARS ALLIED INVASION



Axis radio commentators, worrying about Allied invasion plans, are advertising to the world their jitters over where the blow is going to strike. The German radio insists that the Allies will invade before the end of the Tunisian campaign at (1) Corsica, or (2) Sardinia, or (3) Sicily from Tunisia, or (4) the Italian base on Pantellaria, or (5) Sicily from Malta or (6) the lower part of Italy's boot.

Ottawa As Meeting Place

Canada's Weekly (London).

We hear people talking sometimes in their most expansive moods of Ottawa becoming in future years the centre of the British Empire. Many things must happen before than can become a reality; for we all realize, in Lord Rosebery's words, that "Whatever happens to the British Empire, England, and especially London, will continue to hold the title-deeds of Empire".

Meanwhile it is interesting to note that Mr. Cordell Hull, the U.S. Secretary of State, has proposed to Great Britain that Ottawa should be the meeting place of an Anglo-American conference to discuss plans to alleviate the plight of political refugees and persecuted peoples.

This is a notable recognition not only of Canada's essential place in the world's foods production in future years and of its conveniently central position, but also of the ever-growing share which Canada's activities in every direction are taking in the war effort of the United Nations.

Allied Power Irresistible

Inspiring news has been coming steadily in the past few days as the Allied armies drive closer and closer to the sea with the Axis force retreating before them. Late news came Friday of the capture of the ports of both Bizerte and Tunis by the Allied troops with complete air domination by the United Nations.

Hitler has seen the end of his African force for some time but the power and speed of the Allied offensive to throw the Hun and the Italian into the sea, and to wind up Axis possession of the last piece of land of the entire continent of Africa must startle him and his associates. Little did he think when he threw his air and land legions against Poland in 1939 or when he was reaping a whirlwind harvest in France in May, 1940, that the day would come when it would be his legions and air force that would be fleeing the wrath of the armies of the democratic nations of the world. Strong as he was, girded with unusual power, the German could not have forecast the day three years later when he would still have to fight in an effort even to hold a strip of North Africa only for a time and then to lose.

Germany is getting back some of the surprises she gave the world, but the importance is that she is now waning in power while the Allies are growing in might. Complete co-ordination and timing by air and land troops, heavy artillery fire and concentration and mastery of air power have told the story, blasting Hitler's armies before them. As for Italy she shivers at the brink in fear of invasion while desperate Hitler has been forced to make mighty efforts in an attempt to protect his "fortress of Europe."

The Hun and the Italian are on their way to the sea, because they cannot withstand Allied power. They are on the way to one of the greatest debacles of all history which will have a psychological value that will reverberate around the world, the Axis hurled into the sea with not a trace of empire or a bit of ground on which to stand and with annihilation or surrender while no possibility is seen of an attempt at evacuation. The Axis end in North Africa is near.

A Pleasant Experience

Prime Minister Churchill had a thrill the other day that must have pleased the strong man of Britain viewing the most radical and revolutionary design of an airplane that may change the whole course of air development. Britain's great leader deserves many such pleasant surprises.

At this time he is having the satisfaction of knowing that the long fight he and his people so ably sustained since the dark days of 1940 is winning. He has always had the utmost faith in the spirit of the British people and in that of the Empire and of the Allied nations and of their engineering ability and craftmanship as well.

With a man of his interest in every form of human effort, the inspection of a new mechanical aeronautical wonder is an event.

Duce's Bombast Hollow

Mussolini, in a speech this week in Rome, had to hold out the threat of lead for "the traitor of no matter what rank or race." He had to admit that "millions on millions of Italians suffer from an indefinable sickness that one calls the African illness" and he had to warn them that there is only one method of cure, to return and that "we will return." He has not given any evidence of ability to come back.

Though disastrously deflated, Benito still claims that the Italians have "the ancient and incorruptible faith as well as supreme sureness, faith in fascism and certainty that the bloody sacrifices of these hard times will be repaid by effort, if it is true, as it is true, that God is just and Italy is immortal."

These words do not sound like confidence, they sound hollow with the sense and sting of defeat, for he quickly turned to the past of seven years ago when he spoke at what he called the conclusion of the Ethiopian campaign in which he said Italy had to fight in defiance of the world and in which he claims Italy "opened up new avenues to civilization." Of that he should have said that the aggressions against Ethiopia shocked the world and won the praise of not one of the honorable nations of the earth, but their condemnation.

What the future holds for Italy as the Allies are smashing the last of Axis resistance in Tunisia has caused grave concern among the Italians and the fascist head admitted this week the possibility that Italy may fall before the United Nations in the event of invasion.

The Great Eighth Army

(So named by the enemy)

Buy bonds, and watch Tunisia fall
Before the Allied Three,— Keen Eisenhower, staunch Anderson,
And bold Montgomery
Who led the longest desert chase
That Earth has ever known
And smashed the famed Afrika Korps
Through Libya's armoured zone.

'Mongst all the armies of the world
The Eighth holds deathless fame.
—Alan McLaughlin, in the Montreal Star.

One for the Book

(St. Catharines Standard)

Here is something for the landlubber to conjure over, something which the reader may have to read twice and study, to get the real gist of. It is from The New York Sun:

"As the members of the famous admiralty firm of Binnacle, Abaft and Beam stood on the pier and looked out over the water, Binnacle spoke first. "What I admire," he said, "is that 7,500-ton merchant ship lying out there." "My choice," said Abaft, "is that 10,800-ton ship." Beam, not to be outdone, insisted, "I like that 14,100-ton ship." Bystanders, who could not help overhearing the fine seagoing voices of the three, were rather puzzled by the fact that there was only one ship lying in the harbor—a brand new Liberty ship. What the bystanders did not know was that Binnacle was speaking in gross tons, Abaft in deadweight tons and Beam in displacement tons. What the bystanders could not even guess was that the members of the firm had just been discussing admission to the firm of that promising youngster, Spinnaker, who was prepared to discuss ships in terms of net tonnage and thus complete a quartet of nautical confusion."

There you have it, and the question arises that when the German U-boat commanders make out their score, if there is any time when such is not entirely fictitious, how do they make it out? In terms of gross tons, deadweight tons, displacement tons or, as Mr. Spinnaker looks at things, in terms of net tonnage?

Let the mariners of the Great Lakes debate and discuss which term is correct. No landlubber can ever settle it.

Selling Scent of England

(Manchester Guardian)

Among the old-established family businesses one may find in suiet turnings near Piccadily Circus is a shop which has for the last 200 years been selling English flower perfumes blended by successive members of the family. Many discriminating Americans and a select number of Londoners know where they may buy the scents of new-mown hay, of bluebells, and of honeysuckle blended at the back of the shop or in the home laboratory.

JUST FOLKS

BETTER THAN WAR

So much better than war are these:
Flowers of summer and singing birds;
The sweet, fresh touch of a northern breeze;
Fields devoted to flocks and herds.
Yet man will string them with cruel wire
And battle his fellows with cannon fire.

So much better than war's affairs
Are books and pictures and meeting halls
And kneeling benches for souls at prayers
And something to serve when a good friend calls.
Yet man must blast at what life could be
And ruin it all for his liberty.

Oh, there must be a way could we find it out
To cling to our best and still be free
To meet together in times of doubt
And settle all causes, whate'er they be.
To the freedoms four and the better day
Surely there must be a peaceful way.

If a man think it is a small matter to bridge his tongue, he is much mistaken; for it is a point to be silent when occasion requires and better than to speak though never so well. — Plutarch.

Leaflets on the Loan

By Stephen Leacock

Going! Going! Gone

Stephen Leacock

Next me in Jeff's Barber Shop in Mariposa there sat this morning a country feller, at a guess, from thirty-five to sixty-five years old.

"Were you out at the sale of Crittenden's yesterday?" he asked.

"No," I said, "where's Crittenden's?"

'Crittenden's," he answered in amazement, "why, right next to the Ames place."

"Where's that," I asked.

"The Ames place?" "Just beyond Lem Crowder's."

I let it go at that.

"No," I said, "I wasn't there."

"Well, sir," said the country feller, "you'd oughter been. It was a caution. I seen a sulky go for thirty dollars."

I didn't know whether that meant a lot or a little. But the audience in the barber shop did. "Gosh!" they said.

"Yes, sir, a sulky ten years old and with a broken trip, for ten dollars more than it cost ten years ago."

"There was an old lumber wagon there," said a man from across the room, "fetched a hundred and fifty dollars."

"Gosh!" said the room.

"I suppose," said the country feller to me, "you wouldn't be much interested in farm sales?"

No, not altogether. Yet, as he said it I was carried back sixty-five years in recollection and was standing in the April sunshine in the slush and snow of a barnyard —a farm auction sale—while the purchasers,—who didn't purchase (they had no money) walked up and down among the lean cattle and the broken machinery for sale. The farmer of the farm was treating them to whisky and laughing it off as best he could. He was "sold up" and was going to move, they said, to this "Manitobah."

Inside the farm house the woman,—the lady of the farm, was cutting sandwiches for the purchasers who couldn't buy but could still eat. The children were helping her. I was one. I could hear the voice of the auctioneer,—hear it still across sixty-five years of memory,—calling.

"Now, gentleman, this fine double seated cutter, as good as new,—what do I hear?—make me a bid gentlemen! Come, give me a start! Four dollars? Thank you, four dollars! Going at four dollars, going! going! gone at four dollars!"

Those were the hard times of the seventies, with no war to brighten the economic outlook, when the government had to borrow a million dollars, but couldn't find it in Canada.

But one need not look back across sixty-five years of retrospect for the remembrance of auction farm sales, the tragedy of the Canadian country side. Five years is enough. Just five years! To those stricken, hungry days when our ten million people had no one to kill and no one to feed but themselves. Right here in Mariposa every month of May brought with the Spring birds the little leaflets, the "dodgers" that fluttered pinned up to the telephone and light poles and pasted up in the window of the Mariposa Newspacket.

AUCTION FARM SALE
Lot this: Concession that
To be sold regardless of reserve price.

And then follows the list. Stand here a moment and look upon it, and reflect upon the tragedy of our economic life that knows no stimulant but death.

Item 1—Two year old gray mare—Do you get that? That's Fancy, the family driving horse. They've had her for years and years on the farm. They must have had her for eight years. There's a boy now in Tunis remembers driving her. They loved her. That's why they put her down at two years. It's not a lie. She was still two years to them.

These two "excellent milch cows," part Jersey (never mind the other part) and these "mixed poultry"—all that in the life of a family—Going! Going! Gone.

Or look at the last item,—
Household Furniture, Books—

Do you realize that those are the books that grandfather's father brought out from the old country, a hundred years ago,—look,—Walter Scott's Lady of the Lake, half of part of Macaulay's England, — nothing you read now of course . . .

And with that I came back to myself still in Jeff's Barber Shop and they were talking of the sale at old Tom Crittenden's place. They were saying that he "cleaned up" (their very phrase, taken from a fanning mill) fifteen hundred dollars. What else could he do but sell up, with both the boys, it appeared, overseas, and Sally. Tom himself is spry enough and not a day over seventy-five, but he and the old lady can't run the place alone.

And just as they were saying that in burst old Tom himself.

When I say "burst"—that is, he appeared outside the glass door, leant his stick outside the door frame, pulled the door open a little, then got his shoulder to it, took up his stick again and burst in.

So there he was, hearty and hale, and evidently so tickled with himself that he could hardly hold it in. He didn't look the least bit like the people who used to be sold up in the seventies.

There was a chorus of "How are you, Mr. Crittenden," "How are you, Tom?"

The old man nodded around. "Just come over, Jeff," he said, "to get cleaned up." Then, unable to hold it any longer, he added, "I've just put fifteen hundred dollars across the street in this Victory Loan, yes, sir, fifteen hundred dollars."

That explained, you see, the need of a shave. Farmers, of course, are people who shave regularly, never miss a Saturday except in harvest. But when a farmer "hits town" one of the things to do is to get a shave,—a real one,—with a Roman massage, and a shampoo under machine brushes,—facial massage, lilac powder and flapping towels,—the whole thing.

"You're next," said Jeff, "giving him priority" over all candidates, "sit right down." And, with that, Crittenden was draped and wrapped and pinned and whirling brushes played round his bent head. When anyone spoke to Tom the barber stopped, Tom answered and then Jeff went at him with the brushes again.

"No, indeed, I didn't sell the old place, just sold off the implements and the stock."

"Couldn't work it, eh?"

"Not now, with just the missus and me and the boys gone and Sally."

"Where are the boys now, Mr. Crittenden?"

"Both overseas. Jim's in Iceland with General Montgomery and Dick's right there in London with General MacArthur. Oh, I follow it," added old Tom.

"Too bad, to lose all your implements," said a sympathizer.

"Oh, I ain't lost them. They don't take 'em away. They're right there to work the place with."

"But you lose the use of them?"

"No, sirree, I don't lose the use of them. I can use them as much as I like any time."

"So you've just lost the livestock?" put in another customer.

"No, not entirely. The folks don't want to take them away and so the missus and I still have them on condition we milk the cows and use the milk and eggs."

There was a man in the shop waiting for a shave, a traveller (you know what that is) up from the city.

"Say, mister," he said, "I don't quite understand this. You've sold out and you've got fifteen hundred dollars and yet you still have your place and everything else you ever had. How do you explain that?"

"I don't try to," chuckled the old man, "I leave that for Mr. Ilsley—all I know is that I got fifteen hundred in this Victory Loan,—that's five hundred each for the boys and five hundred for Sally."

As the dialogue had progressed Jeff had gradually transformed old Mr. Crittenden,—shampoo'd, massaged, shaved, creamed, powdered and, at the end, splashed with lilac till he smelled like the 24th. of May itself—he was disengaged out of the chair, fit for the bees to settle on him.

"I don't have to expalin it," repeated old Tom,—"I leave that to these here economists."

I felt that was for me.

"You're right," I said, "as to the mystery of the economics of it,—this mystery of the poverty of peace and the prosperity of war. It's an economic paradox . . ."

I saw Jeff look at me apprehensively at the words "economics." He knew by instinct that economics won't go in a barber shop. What's more, there'd been some talk there one day about cutting out unnecessary industries and some one had claimed that shaving was non-essential. Jeff himself claimed it a war service,—look at all the great generals,—you've seen these pictures of MacNaughton?

So, as I say, he looked apprehensive when I began to speak.

"What Mr. Ilsley intends to do," I continued, "is to make the most of every productive industry,—like this farm of Mr. Crittenden's,—and to keep the consumer away from everything not absolutely essential."

Jeff looked across again.

"You're next," he said.

Japanese Make A New Advance

New Delhi, India, May 8 —(AP) —The Japanese have made a new advance east of the Mayu ridge in Burma and have developed "a direct threat to our positions in the Buthedaung area," 50 miles north of Akyab, the British announced in a communique today.

"The enemy have obtained a position astride the Maungdaw-Buthedaung road about four miles west of Buthedaung," the communique said. "Despite substantial casualties inflicted by our troops, the Japanese have succeeded in reinforcing their forward units."

The R. A. F. engaged in extensive attacks against Japanese troops and supply dumps in the Mayu peninsula.

The early Greeks indulged heavily in sun-baths, believing the sun would turn the hair golden.

NUGGETS OF KNOWLEDGE

The word "secretary" (SECRETary) literally means a keeper of secrets; the phrase "confidential secretary" is really a pleonasm.

Suleiman (or Solyman,) the name of a famous 16th century sultan of Turkey, signifies "sulphur eater."

The "fallow" in "fallo land" and "fallow deer" are not related in origin. Fallow land is farm land plowed and harrowed but not planted. "Fallow" in this connection is derived from an Anglo-Saxon word meaning harrows or drags. "Fallow" as applied to a species of deer is from an entirely different Anglo-Saxon word meaning "reddish-yellow."

The controversy over the proposed appointment of Mayor LaGuardia of New York City as a brigadier general in the Army of the United States, recalls the fact that Nathaniel Prentiss Banks (1816-1894) of Massachussetts, who was elected Speaker of the Federal House of Representatives in 1856 after one of the most prolonged and spirited contests in the history of that body, later became a General in the U. S. Army and served with distinction throughout the War Between the States.

Although he had never been a soldier, Banks was appointed a Major General of Volunteers by President Lincoln in 1861 and he commanded troops in the Shenandoah, at Cedar Mountain, in the defence of Washington, at New Orleans, at Port Hudson, in opening up the Mississippi, and in the ill-starred Red River expedition.

Banks served in ten different Congresses, though not continuously, and changed political affiliations five times. Originally elected as a Democrat in 1852, he was elected as an American or Know-Nothing two years later and was a member of that party when he became Speaker. After the war he served in the House as a Republican, as a Democrat and as a Republican again. Thus he was a Democrat twice, a Know-Nothing once, and a Republican three times.

American Indians generally resent the use of "squaw" when applied to their women.

Recently the MacMillan Company of New York published an interesting and valuable book entitled "A Treasury of the Familiar." The book was edited by Ralph L. Woods and contains familiar prose and poetic pieces and extracts from the Bible, Shakespeare, Milton, Longfellow and a legion of other authors, known and unknown. There is virtually nothing original in the volume except a foreward by John Kiernan and indexes, a list of authors quoted and acknowledgments. Yet the copyright notice carries this warning: "All rights reserved—no part of this book may be reproduced in any form without permission in writing from the publishers, except by a reviewer who wishes to quote brief passages in connection with a review written for inclusion in magazine or newspaper."

A Letter to Adolf Schickelgruber

Adolf Schickelgruber
c/o Wilhelmstrasse
Berlin, Germany

BY AIR MAIL
PAR AVION

Herr Schickelgruber:

I've just bought more Victory Bonds. The good wife also has bought more. That's why I'm writing you this letter.

There's a lot to these Victory Bonds, a lot that concerns you as well as ourselves.

You see, these were the BIGGEST bonds we've ever bought; just TWICE AS LARGE as the bonds we bought last time and the times before that. Buying double this time wasn't easy. It meant digging deep into our savings. It meant pledging part of my pay for the next six months. But every single cent is coming back with interest.

It's like this, Schickelgruber. Four years ago you and your gangsters caught us peaceful folks unprepared. You started blasting your way through one country after another, murdering innocent women and children by the hundreds of thousands. Truth to tell, you had us worried. It seemed that we were next on your list.

But you didn't figure it right, Nazi! What kind of people do you think we are? Remember that first Victory Loan? That should have been the tip-off to you. Remember the Second and Third Victory Loans? The way they went over should have put you wise.

And now, Schickelgruber, now we're ready. We've caught up to you and your gang. It's taken us four sweating years, but at last WE'RE READY! We've got the ships, and guns; and tanks, and planes enough to darken the skies. So look out mister. We're coming your way—and it's YOU we're after.

That's why the wife and I both bought DOUBLE SIZE Victory Bonds this time . . . why we cheerfully invested our savings and part of our earnings, too. Thousands more Canadians like us are doing the same thing . . . we're of one mind in wanting you and your kind destroyed, and if dollars will help do it, and do it QUICK, then we'll gladly invest all the dollars we've got.

So this letter is a warning to you Schickelgruber! You've been pushing us around long enough. It's our Turn Now!

Determinedly,
Jack Canuck

P.S. The chaps who will be delivering this letter Air Mail are neighbours of ours. They've promised to deliver it right to your doorstep together with a 4,000 lb. sample of the stuff that Bonds Buy. Hope you're in when they call.

Spots, Stains On Carpets Can Be Easily Eradicted

If Junior drops his sticky chocoolate bar or spills a glass of milk over the rug, the damage can be eradicated in short order with a little elbow grease. Many strains can be treated if they are not allowed to 'set", although large and neglected stains have to be taken care of by professional rug experts.

Milk, grease, and oil stains should be sponged with carbon tetrachloride.

Ink spots should be blotted with blotting paper, and then sponged with lukewarm water. Experts say that milk is very effective, but it in turn must be sponged out with carbon tetrachloride.

Spots caused by candle wax may be removed easily. The candle wax should be scraped off with the blunt edge of a knife. The spot should then be sponged with a cloth dampened in cold water.

If chewing gum has become imbedded in the rug, the spot should be rubbed with a piece of ice until the gum gathers in a ball. The remaining traces of gum may then be sponged off with carbon tetrachloride.

Mud should be allowed to dry thoroughly and then brushed out. Old stains require attention from a rug expert.

There are other methods of removing various stains from rugs, but they require careful use of chemicals and expert handling.

Care of Furs

As part of the conservation program which it is promoting with the object of making things last as long as possible under wartime conditions, the Consumer Branch of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board advances the following seasonal suggestions regarding the care of furs:

1. Keep furs clean. Dirt, dust and grime are a menace to fur. They invite moths which destroy the fur and the pelt.

2. Loosen fur coats about the body and shoulders when sitting or stooping to avoid undue strain on the leather.

3. Furs deteriorate from heat and should not be exposed to it. Undue or continual exposure to the sun will change the shade of dark furs and cause white furs to turn yellow.

4. Wet furs should be combed lightly with the flow of the fur and then brushed in the same direction. The fur should then be allowed to dry slowly, not near heat, but where there is a good circulation of cool air, after which it should be lightly shaken. If the water has soaked the leather, send the fur garment to a reliable concern for proper treatment.

5. Proper cleaning and storage increases the life of furs. Moths are an ever-present danger. To help protect furs put them in an airtight moth bag which contains a moth preventive. This is not recommended as a substitute for commercial storage but as a precautionary measure over short periods only.

6. Fur garments torn, damaged or noticeably worn should be taken to a reliable firm for repair immediately.

7. Proper shaking is good for fur, but care should be taken not to break the leather or split the seams. Fur coats should be hung on wide-end coat hangers which will not pierce the skin from the weight of the coat itself.

A Visit To the Home Fleet

By W. V. Thomas

(BBC Press Service)

Every morning a train runs from a smoky London terminus to our great Naval Bases in the North. I believe it's officially known as the "Jellicoe," but everybody you ask just calls it the Navy's Special. And that about describes it. If you want to see a cross-section of Britain's Navy, then you've only got to walk along the corridor. They're all there, from captains buried behind the "Times" in the corners of their compartments, sub-lieutenants of the Wavy Navy — yarning over the prospects of more leave — down to the newly joined young ratings — on their way to their first ship and still a shade self-conscious with their brand new ditty-boxes and bell-bottomed trousers. Yes, it's an interesting train and you meet interesting people on it. The other day I was on the Navy's Special and sitting opposite me was a lieutenant commander — the sort of man you'd call Navy Type— even if you met him dressed in "civvies" and a bowler hat. Now a long train journey in wartime Britain is no joke these days— with no meals, no sleepers and the blackout — so it wasn't long before we got talking. He'd been everywhere this war — Crete, the "Med," Arctic Convoy — he'd been on all those "parties" — as they say in the Navy.

Now, the Navy in Britain is known as "the silent service," but here was a sailor who could talk, and talk well too — gossip about the ships he'd been in before the war, yarns about how it feels to be dive-bombed, explanations about sailor-slang — the sort of talk that made me wish that I had a microphone in my pocket all set up for recording.

But one sentence of his I did remember: (he was talking about the Italians) "The 'Ities'—they've got plenty of ships — good ships too. They've got plenty of men, but they've not got a fleet. Take my word for it old boy, there are three things you've got to have to make a fleet — hitting-power (guns that really can knock out the enemy), sailors (men who've really got the sea in their blood— not people who've taken to it because their Fuehrer says so),—and tradition. You may say what you like, but a great tradition means everything when you're in a tight spot. Yes — Guns, Men, Tradition —the British Navy has got all three!"

Now that train was taking me North on a two-weeks visit to the Fleet. It was a memorable visit for me — we went to sea in destroyers, cruisers and big battleships. We went out on firing practice, on night encounter exercises, torpedo attacks, ack-ack firing — in fact there was hardly a phase of the work of the Fleet that we didn't see. And now, looking back upon that trip, I find my memories of it crystallising around those three words of my friend in the Navy's Special — Guns, Men, Tradition; he was right. From what I saw the British Navy has got all three.

* * *

We'll take the guns first. We've certainly got the guns. And I saw them in action on board one of our greatest battleships — the King George the Fifth — everybody in the Navy calls her the K.G. 5 It was dawn when we slipped out of the anchorage for the firing range. We picked up our destroyer screen as we cleared the headlands — and all the way out we were at work on board getting ready for action. When a battleship fires her big guns — all sorts of precautions have got to be taken —curious precautions some of them are too. Every scuttle has to be tightly shut, every door above the main deck has to be taken off its hinges, the cabin mirrors have to be wrapped in the bed-clothes, in the ward-room the pictures are all taken down, and aboard the K.G. 5 the ward-room stewards even removed the ship's pets — four kittens (who, by the way, must be the most privileged kittens in the world since they spend most of the time being peted by Admirals and Captains of the Fleet). Down they had to go, in a specially padded box to the safety of the sick-bay. The blast from those huge 14" guns is a very serious factor you've got to reckon with on board. After all, wherever you go on the ship you're not very far away from them. So— before they are fired — everyone (if he hasn't a job to do)—is ordered below deck. If you've got a job to do — signal markings, air defence, or on the bridge — then you've got to wear ear-plugs or cotton wool. If you don't, you run the danger of splitting your ear-drums, especially if the guns are firing on a narrow bearing.

* * *

I watched the exercise from the air defence position high up on the bridge superstructure. The whole ship was below me. I could look forward to where the bows were cutting through the tumbling sea— watch the spray come hissing in over the turrets and then watch the forward turrets slowly swing until all the six grey guns were pointing to port. They weigh over a 1,000 tons apiece those turrets, more than the weight of a small destroyer, yet they were turned under the control of one man, the Gunnery Officer. He — and his team of spotters — were sitting over their complicated instruments (some of them new and highly secret too) in the small steel globe of the Direction Control Tower— just above me — the nerve centre of the ship in action. From the D.C.T., one man, by pressing a small trigger, can fire the whole of the ship's broadside. Every one of those great guns shooting together — every shell they shoot weighing over ¾ of a ton. A staggering power concentrated in the hands of one man. Now, looking forward, I could see those guns lifting, higher, higher. They steady themselves. And then suddenly— Fire! A great searing rush of yellow flame seemed to leap out from the ship's side. I felt as if I'd received a violent punch in the chest — the air was filled with the acrid smell of burning cordite, fumes that went drifting over the fo'csle. And — as for the sound! Well, if you take the massed drums of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and mix them with the sound of a hundred-foot wall collapsing in the blitz, you might get somewhere near it. It goes rolling away over the grey waters. Then in the silence that seems doubly silent you watch for the fall of the shot. Those shells may be travelling ten, fifteen miles. And they take what seems an endless time to fall. Then, away on the very horizon, tiny fountains of water leap up. The salvo has fallen, and, when you hear some of the gunnery officers on board the K. G. 5 discussing the chase of the Bismarck —you thank your lucky stars that you're not at the receiving end of that salvo. Yes, there's no doubt about it, the Royal Navy's got the guns.

Now what about the men? I wasn't lucky enough on my trip to see them in action — but more important — I saw them in their everyday routine, and watched the newcomers settling into the way of the Navy. Early in our trip we spent several days at sea, in H.M.S. Destroyer "Service"—Captain, Lt. Comdr. Smith, R.N. Perhaps that wasn't her real name, or the name of her commander, but no matter. Although she was new and just nearing the end of her "working-up," she and her commander had already acquired a character of the Fleet. "Commander Smith?", they told us before we went aboard, "Yes, you'll find that he's seen Mr. Noel Coward's film." Indeed he had. Never was a destroyer handled in so dashing a manner. Never did a commander deliver himself of such clear cut orders to his newly joined crew. We never left harbor but we punctiliously saluted our seniors with the boatswain's pipe. We never returned to our buoy except in a dashing rush through the crowded anchorage. Commander Smith was an artist, with an artist's delight in creating a ship's company out of the miscellaneous collection of ratings drafted to him when H.M.S. "Service" was commissioned. But alas, like all great artists there were occasions when the master's hand faltered. On a particularly nasty night — with gusts of cold wind driving across the anchorage —we were approaching our buoy in our usual dashing style. Forward, on the fo'csle, the cable party was ready under the 1st lieutenant, ready to put a man over the side onto the buoy to shackle the cable. I'd recognized the rating who was waiting to be lowered over. He was a youngster of 19, a bank-clerk only a year ago, who'd never been to sea in his life before he joined up. "Hostilities Only" as they class them in the Navy. Slowly we eased our way to our allotted moorings. Ship handling in such narrow channels — when you've got to place your ship right in between two others and do it first time — is a fine art, and Commander Smith was putting up the performance of his career. With perfect judgment the bows of our destroyer came to a stop right on the buoy. Overboard went the rating onto the buoy. The cable was almost secured when there was a furious squall of wind. Slowly our bows began to swing away. Now I'm not seaman enough to tell you in technical language what occurred or indeed what action was being taken on the bridge and fo'csle, but it was obvious even to a layman that that youngster on the buoy was going to have a pretty grim time before he got the cable shackled. He did. The buoy rolled. He rolled with it. He was half buried in water, then swung up on top of a wave. The cable dragged. The shackle stuck. He struggled furiously, fighting with all his strength to get that cable on. The Captain didn't say a word. Out of the corner of his eye he could see the interested spectators on the bridges of his sister ships. It seemed to depend on that rating on the buoy whether or not he was going to lose his reputation as a handler of ships. And then, at long last, the trick was done. The cable was secured. And, after it was over, and the men of the fo'csle party came aft, ahead of them came our rating on the buoy. As he went past, he glanced up at the Captain and then gave him a broad grin. I was standing watching him when the Captain turned to me. "Yes," he said, "he'll do."

These new recruits to the Royal Navy will do all right. It didn't seem to matter where they came from or what they were before they joined — they fitted quite naturally into the pattern of the Navy.

And there I suppose you get the effect of tradition. The pattern of everyday life in the Navy — to anyone like myself looking at it for the first time — seems conditioned by Traditional Observance. I remember small instances. The Rum Call at eleven o'clock, the ritual of Pay Parades, the constant bugle calls, saluting the quarter deck, "Colours." You may say what you like, but all those little ceremonies make the sailor feel he's part and parcel of a Fleet with a glorious past. I don't suppose for a moment that the average sailor knows the meaning of some of the ceremonial he preserves. Whenever I asked I usually got the reply: "Dunno, I suppose Nelson did it." And that's a good enough answer for me.

"Guns, Men, Tradition, that's what makes a Fleet." And I felt the full force of that sentence on the last day of my visit. It was a day of rain, that cold driving rain half mixed with sleet that you get in northern waters. I was on the bridge of one of our fastest cruisers. The Captain had lent me a duffle coat and even in the warmth it provided I was starting to feel the cold. The Yeoman of Signals was cheering me up with tales of the Russian convoys, of the ice that formed everywhere on the ship, of the steel bulkheads — as he put it — "so cold that they felt hot when you touched them." When suddenly, the rain swept back, the curtain was drawn along the high snow-bound coastline. In the icy clear sky you could see for miles. The Yeoman of Signals pointed aft. I turned and saw one of the most breath-taking sights in my life. A few cables astern of us was one of our latest battleships, a towering grey castle and even in the moderate sea that was runing she was pushing her bows right into it. Slowly she lifted, green water cascading off her fo'csle. Then equally slowly, she plunged into it, sending white water foaming against her turrets. High up on the flagship, the Aldis lamp started to wink its message. We turned to join the destroyer screen away to starboard. The Fleet was at sea — and, despite anything the Nazi can do — it's still going to keep the seas. Why not? After all, "Nelson did it."

Prisoners Dazed and Shell-Shocked From Beating They Are Taking

(By GEORGE TUCKER)
Associated Press Staff Writer)

With the British Mediterranean Fleet, May 5 (Delayed)— (AP) — Admiral of the Fleet Sir Andrew Cunningham, commanding the Allied Mediterranean fleet, says that a minimum of 75 per cent of Axis troops embarking from Tunisia in an attempted Dunkirk would be blasted into the sea and drowned.

And there's not the slightest indication today that they will attempt a seaborne getaway.

There is no mass of shipping on either side of the Mediterranean which the Germans could use.

Waters between Sicily, Sardinia and the coast of North Africa are dominated by the big guns of the Allied fleet.

Capital ships of the Italian fleets have been withdrawn to points of greater security and without the full weight of the Italian fleet any evacuation attempt would be suicidal.

In the last 72 hours I have travelled from one end of the trouble area of the Mediterranean to the other by land, sea and air, and the impression is inescapable that if the Germans don't make an evacuation attempt the British Mediterranean unit will be the most disappointed outfit on the face of the earth.

During that time I accompanied patrols in seaplanes at night looking for shipping that simply isn't there.

There's not one minute of the night that wicked little torpedo-carrying midgets of the fleet aren't combing the waters between Italy and North Africa, ready to strike. The most they have been able to report in recent days have been midget units like themselves, plus E-boats, lighters and Seidel ferries—flat-bottomed, heavily armed, shallow-bottomed craft good for transporting fuel and ammunition but which would be needed by the hundreds for evacuation.

I rode all the way around Rommel's army and talked to officers with sweat and the fumes of high explosives still on them, and they told of German prisoners dazed and shell-shocked by the beating they are taking.

WINDSORS PAY VISIT TO MIAMI

Duke Says That Rumor of Estrangement is "Silly"

Miami, Fla., May 8 (AP) — The Duke and Duchess of Windsor arrived Friday from Nassau, where the Duke serves as governor of the Bahamas, for a visit in the United States.

Asked by a newsman about a rumor that he and the Duchess were estranged, the Duke replied: "that's silly."

"It was made up," said the Duchess. "It seems that if some people don't hear anything about us, they make up things about us."

London, May 8 (CP)—The Daily Mirror yesterday published a story quoting a cable from the Duke of Windsor, governor of the Bahamas, saying that both he and the Duchess were "astounded and disgusted" at a rumor that they were estranged. The newspaper, which said the story was being circulated in London's fashionable West End, apparently had cabled for the Duke's comment.

Many Germans Cut Off From Main Divisions

London, May 8 (CP).—The swiftness of the fierce Allied drives which resulted in the capture of Tunis and Bizerte probably cut off parts of two to three German divisions, plus some Italian units, between these two cities, military quarters in London reported today.

The speed of the operations left official observers without details on the number of enemy killed and captured in each area, but it was presumed that part of the Axis garrison at Tunis had succeeded in withdrawing southward toward Cape Bon.

There was no indication of why the enemy apparently was unable to take advantage of the extensive fortifications at Bizerte to delay the Allied troops in the north, although it was believed due in part to the surprise and daring of the Allied advance.

3,500 Miners In Three States Are Again Idle

Pittsburgh, May 8 (AP)—More than 3,500 coal miners in three states were idle today in the face of President Roosevelt's assertion yesterday that since miners now are government employees they are not free to strike.

At the same time a threat that thousands of other miners will resume their work stoppage of last weekend unless operators sign a contract with the United Mine Workers by the end of the 15-day truce came from U.M.W. district five in western Pennsylvania.

Two of the walkouts in Pennsylvania and Ohio were protests against attempts of coal operators to fine employees for taking part in unauthorized strikes prior to the general shutdown last Friday midnight, when the extended contracts expired.

The third, at the Kind mine near Princeton, Ind., was blamed by mine superintendent David Jones on a two-week-old wage dispute. He said 200 men on the night shift failed to report for work last night when they found themselves "docked" for time lost in an April walkout, which centred about work days lost during mechanical trouble.

The soft coal walk-outs were the first since the government took over operation of the mines last Saturday. President Roosevelt said at his Washington press conference yesterday that the miners now are definitely government employees. He remarked, that in his many years of federal service he could not recall any strike by government employees against the government.

THE CANADIAN NAVY SAVES MERCHANT SEAMEN TORPEDOED IN THE BATTLE OF THE ATLANTIC

TO torpedoed merchant seamen, wallowing, soaked and famished, on the crests and troughs of Atlantic combers, life itself depends on the appearance of a ship's boat from a Canadian warship. Branch Rickey's Shrewdness Shown by Johnny Allen Deal

Brings Hurler Back After Selling Him to the Phillies

HAS WON THREE

By ORLO ROBERTSON
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

Branch Rickey has made some mighty shrewd deals in his day but none probably ever was more timely than the one bringing Johnny Allen back to the Dodgers after Rickey disposed of him in one of his first official acts as head of the Brooklyn club.

Although the 37-year-old right hander had a 1942 record of 10 and 6, Rickey lost little time sending Allen and $30,000 to Philadelphia for the much younger Rube Melton.

Allen declined to sign with the Phillies, then, five days before the opening of the season, Rickey announced the dodgers had purchased Johnny Allen from the Phillies.

The records show how smart that deal was. When Johnny went in to yesterday's game with Boston Braves in the seventh inning with the score deadlocked it marked his third relief appearance of the season. He pitched shutout ball for three innings as his mates went on to club out a 9-7 victory and give Johnny his third success without a defeat.

In eight innings of relief hurling Allen has given up only eight hits, three to the Phils in 2 3-4 innings, two to the Giants in 2 1-3 and three yesterday.

Cincinnati Reds Second

With St. Louis Cardinals and Pittsburgh Pirates kept idle by the weather, Cincinnati Reds moved into the National League's runner-up spot, 2 1-2 games back of the Dodgers. They nosed out Chicago Cubs 5-4 as Johnny Vander Meer received help from Fireman Joe Beggs in registering his fourth pitching triumph.

The other National League game saw the Phillies go on their biggest scoring spree of the season behind the five-hit pitching of venerable Si Johnson. With Jimmy Wasdell driving in six runs with a homer, triple and single, the Phils blasted three Giant hurlers for 13 hits to win 13-3.

A pair of rookies, Charley Wensloff and Bill Johnson, paced New York Yankees to their fifth straight victory, a 6-2 decision over Philadelphia Athletics. Winsloff, who won 21 games with the Yanks' Kansas City farm club last season, pitched shutout ball for six innings.

Johnny Humphries outpointed Hal White in a 10-inning pitching duel as Chicago White Sox eked out a 1-0 decision over Detroit Tigers. Humphries, himself, brought home the only run, after leading off with a walk, and moving up to second on a sacrifice. Luke Appling produced the game-winning hit—a double to left centre.

Boston Red Sox nosed out Washington 3-2 in a night game.

Harold Carruthers Heads Ki-Y Loop

The executive of the Belleville Ki-Y softball groups met at the Y.M.C.A. yesterday to complete arrangements for the season's operation in the customary three divisions of Bantam, Midget and Juvenile.

The officers of the league are: President, Harold Carruthers; Vice-Pesident, Frank Follwell; Secretary, J. E. Shortt; Executive, Bob Pringle, Al Reynolds and Ed. Shortt.

The series operated include Bantam, under 12 years of age, Midget, under 15 years of age and Juvenile under 17 years on May 1st of the current playing season.

Registration forms and team entry blanks are now in readiness at the Y.M.C.A. office and no entry fee is being charged. The Ki-Y officials will supply softballs, playing field, umpires and supervisors and crests will be presented to the winning team in each respective section. Teams must furnish their own softball bats.

The Kiwanis-Y.M.C.A. league has functioned now for the past 12 or 14 years and has gone a long way in the provision of team sporting activities and the development of the youth of the community physically and mentally, as well as developing many fine softball players who today are playing overseas and in senior league up and down the province.

This league is open to all groups of teen aged boys who show sufficient initiative to organize themselves. Entries should be made as soon as possible as competition will commence directly following the closing of applications for affiliation one week from yesterday.

HAMLIN SCORES SECOND SHUTOUT OF THE SEASON

Pitcher Starts Leafs on Way to Victory Over Syracuse by 6-0

ROYALS BEAT ORIOLES

(By the Associated Press)

It is warm enough in Canada for night baseball but the temperature will zoom added degrees today following the pitching of Luke (Hot Potato) Hamlin.

The former Major Leaguer kept Toronto Maple Leafs securely at the top of the International League by pasting his second 1943 shut-out in the International League record book. Not only that, but he singled to open Toronto's half of the eighth inning, the frame in which the Leafs got all their runs for a 6-0 verdict over Syracuse.

In Montreal, Royals twice came from behind to defeat Baltimore, 7-4, in the only other league contest the weatherman permitted.

Even if the setting for the loop's first night game was a bit chilly, Hamlin and Tom Delacruz kept the 3,500 spectators warmed up with their shut-out pitching until the Syracuse tosser cracked in the eighth.

Toronto collected only nine hits, all singles, while Syracuse found Hamlin for only six, including two doubles and a triple.

George Washburn, who travelled from Chicago Cubs to Philadelphia Phils to Brooklyn Dodgers during the off season, started for Montreal but couldn't find the plate and Orioles counted three times in the opening frame.

Royals evened the count in their half on Jack Graham's homer with a mate on, Luiz Ortiz' double and Dixie Howell's single. With Ed. Spaulding replacing Washburn Orioles counted only once more, pulling out in front again in the third on George Staller's four-master.

Royals scored one in the fourth, two in the sixth and one in the seventh.

SHILLINGS BET TO GET CHANCE AFTER THE WAR

There May be Fewer Tracks in Britain but More Consideration for the Small Wagerer Than in the Past

By FOSTER BARCLAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, May 8 — (CP) — The little betters, those optimistic fellows who have a "sure thing" in every race, but seldom a winner, are due for a break when post-war reconstruction starts and horse-racing in Britain hits the comeback trail. There will be fewer tracks, but they will be better equipped to accommodate the general public.

The Jockey Club, that august body of stewards which rules the nation's flat-racing with a heavy, righteous hand, at last have recognized the people who risk their shillings and pence to make horse-racing a big business.

It's a sign of the times. Racing will have to make a fresh start after the war and a lot of money will be needed. It's the little fellow who is going to pay in the long run so the Jockey Club has taken steps to see that he gets some return for his money.

Public Weal

A committee appointed by the club to consider the "whole future of racing in general and in particular with reference to the encouragement of owners and the greater comfort and convenience of the public" declared in a report that race-course executives had shown little disposition in the past to cater to the individual beyond the fringe of those directly concerned with racing.

"Yet," the report said, "It is from the general public that the money will have to come if many of the improvements desired are to be carried out."

It acknowledged that post-war conditions may make it impossible for some time to carry out extensive rebuildings, but thought that it would be possible to erect artificial embankments from which those who couldn't afford the stands could obtain a clear view.

The committee proposed partial centralization of race courses within easy reach of the public, envisaging a larger revenue becoming available through such procedure. The Jockey Club, which has approved the report in principle, has taken steps to implement this suggestion and has consented to the appointment of a sub-committee which will negotiate for the acquisition of a number of small courses.

Suggested Changes.

On the technical side, the committee recommended that no horse should be allowed to run unnamed and suggested a rule, in effect in Canada, that when a horse is disqualified for interference it may be placed immediately after the horse or horses interfered with instead of last, as at present.

The committee, however, rejected the Canadian and United States track practice of giving a running commentary from loud speakers during the running of races. They suggested use of loud speakers to announce entries and jockeys, numbers of the first and second horses (for benefit of bookmakers and their clients) and tote prices for the first three. That was as far as they would go.

It is probable that a great number of other changes will be implemented when the big task of rebuilding begins. There's still racing nowadays, but it's a mere token compared to the days when throngs jammed Aintree, Goodwood and Epsom for the season's classics. Many tracks have been transformed into military establishments and the few that operate appear more like vegetable plots than a place where horses matched speed and stamina.

Baltimore, Md., May 8 — (AP) — Count Fleet attempts today to do what only seven horses before him have done — win the $50,000 added Preakness Stakes after coming home first in the Kentucky Derby.

And the crowd, which was expected to reach 35,000, was confident he could do it — so confident that in the early wagering Mrs. John D. Hertz's Brown Hurricane was 1-4, 1-5 choice to romp in ahead of three other colts likely to start against him.

An off track was in prospect for the 53rd running of Maryland's most famous race, scheduled to go to post at 2:40 p. m. E.D.T.

Named to oppose the Count—and incidentally try for $10,000 in second money — were Allen T. Simmons' Blue Swords, second in the Derby; W. L. Brann's Vincentive and H. L. Straus' New Moon, both home-breds, and Isidore Bieber's Radio Morale.

With odds on Count Fleet almost prohibitive—he appeared certain to close at the shortest Preakness price since 1889—attention centred on his time for 1 3-16 mile, particularly since he made a rather leisurely journey over the longer derby course last week.

Alsab set the present stake record at 1:57 in winning last year's renewal, and Riverland established the track standard last Saturday when he won the Dixie Handicap in 1:56 2-5. The overnight condition of the track made it improbable either record would be endangered.

Johnny Longdon of Tabar, Alta., who has been aboard the Count in every one of his previous 18 races, will ride the rangy Reigh Count son.

AIRMEN NEED ONE MORE WIN

Vancouver, May 8 — (CP) — Victoria R.C.A.F. reached out today for the Dominion men's basketball crown held last year by Victoria Dominoes and need only a win tonight to turn back the challenge of Windsor (Ont) Patricks.

The Airmen made it two straight in the three-of-five series last night with a fourth quarter display of power that sent them ahead for a 63-50 win. Patricks earlier fought back to trail by a single point — 37-36 at the three-quarter mark.

Victoria finished strong in the first contest to win 58-48 and as in that battle, AC1. Norm Baker again showed the way last night with his deadly shooting.

Baker compiled a scoring record of 37 points in the opener and while he was a marked man last night, he broke into the clear long enough to get nine field goals and three free throws for 21 points.

Five players — three from Victoria and two from Windsor—were forced from the rough and tumble game because each had collected four personal fouls.

CASUAL COMMENT by K.J.C.

A Bishop was invited to dinner. During the meal he was astonished to hear the young daughter of the house state that a person must be very brave these days to go to church.

Bishop—Why do you say that?

Child—Because I heard Daddy tell Mother last Sunday there was a big shot in the pulpit, the canon was in the vestry, the choir murdered the anthem, and the organist drowned the choir.

This and that—

Prize story of the week concerns Harold Ratliff, Associated Press sports scribe who was following that funny fellow, Bob Hope, on a combined golf and war bond selling tour of Texas . . . "Why don't you pull it down a little tighter?" asked his companion . . . "Scared to," he replied. "If I raise my hand above my hips I'm liable to discover that I've pledged myself for $15,000 worth of bonds" . . . About softball

A last fling to organize a softball team at the Reliance Aircraft will be made over the weekend, says Tilly Donihee. Freddie Vasil is back on the job and with Billie Anderson the "plane-makers" have two good moundsmen. However, their catcher, Reg Chipman returned to Toronto yesterday simply because of the housing conditions in Belleville. "Chippie" will be missed in Belleville sporting circles, especially after leading the Reliance scorers at hockey last winter. He and his family had been forced to move four times within the past year due to housing regulations and naturally "Chippie" just became fed up with the whole thing and moved back to Toronto, bag and baggage. Of course Donihee has Gene LaBonne, Spike Pryke, Ken Soden and a couple of others to form the nucleus of a team.

Clare Williamson passed his military medical test at Brockville this week and is now waiting a call to the Brockville Officers' training camp, so on the surface the future of hockey hit a dim-out at the Reliance plant of late. As we stated a few weeks ago the calibre of hockey seen at the Hume Arena next winter will be entirely of the service nature.

Baseball in the Air.

Four teams have entered the Kingston Baseball League, R. C. Signals and Ordnance will represent the army, while the Champion Locos, and the Aluminum Plant will take care of the civilian needs.

While on the subject of baseball, we see Tommy Mascaro, genial manager of the Capitol Theatre, is keeping pace with the season by showing that great baseball picture "The Pride of the Yankees" next week. This is the true life story of the late Lou Gehrig, who during his 15 years with the New York Yankees was undoubtedly the pride of the club.

In producing this great diamond classic Sam Goldwyn brought to the screen the Yankees' famed "Murderers' Row" of Babe Ruth, Bill Dickey, Bob Muesel and Mark Koenig, all team mates of the Immortal Lou. Garry Cooper portrays the part of Gehrig and baseball lovers can once again see their favourite pastime played in the "Pride of the Yankees" at the Capitol.

Both Aim Sights.

Although Whipper Billie Watson's British Empire crown hasn't been very seriously in danger of a recent date, both John Katan and Big Earl McCready are casting covetous eyes in the direction of the belt. With this in the background there is reason to believe Wednesday night's meeting between these two former titleholders should prove a back-up rasslin' go, as the winner will gain a decided edge. Then to add prowess to his show Promoter Frank Tunney is introducing "Gentleman Jack" Claybourne, the sensational colored wrestler at the Hume Arena for the first time.

Remember When—

Jimmy McLarnin was outpointed by Tony Canoneri in New York seven years ago tonight when the Vancouver boy essayed the lightweight championship. Jimmy, favourite in the betting, blasted Tony terrifically in the first round but Canoneri fought back to win the unanimous verdict in ten rounds. McLarnin was welterweight champion in 1934 and '35.

Onions Taboo for Hans.

Hans Lobert, new righthand man of Manager Bill McKechnie of the Cincinnati Reds, is—it now develops—an unworthy successor to Hank Gowdy, now an Army captain. For the past five years, it was Gowdy's custom to eat green onions in the press room at Crosley Field following each Redleg victory. If the Reds lost, Hank paid penance by denying himself the scallions. But Lobert says he cannot eat onions, regardless of whether the Reds win, lose or draw. "I'll do most anything asked of me to promote harmony and success, but I just can't eat onions," Hans declares.

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 49

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Some bridge players give you a localized pain. They think of bridge in terms of fractions. They rave and rant: "You need two and a half." It is time to put pants on their rants.

Take an opening bid of one in a suit. Horse sense hands it to you easy. No cumbersome tables. No combinations of fractions. Just plain cards that any child can count and understand.

You need five tricks; counting aces, kings, queens, short cards. You need four high cards of the ace, king, queen variety. Two of the high cards must be sure tricks. And a better-than-average suit.

Make an opening bid of one in a suit with those values. It will be as sound as any expert opening. It will have the same values as any other. Experts merely tell it in a complex way.

Some misguided microbe pops out of a rut and yells, "You should have two and a half honor tricks." Or "You need a count of over six and a half points." Or "Have not more than seven losers."

Then some perplexed parrot will squawk: "An opener should apply the principle of preparedness." Or "Have enough for a second bid if you open." Or "You need more (or less) in that position."

Experts seem to thrive on such claptrap. But all you need is five tricks, four high cards, two sure tricks, and a biddable suit. You will then have all their gibberish asks for.

If a player says Horse Sense is not like the system he uses, be tolerant. The poor thing does not know his own system. Because Horse Sense is just a primer of expert bridge.

Suppose you have this hand:

♠ A Q 9
♥ K Q 8 3
♦ 10 7 6 5
♣ J 5

It is as weak a hand as any sound player would open with one heart. It has no more than five tricks, four high cards; two sure tricks, a biddable suit.

Yet, it has at least two and a half honor tricks; six and a half points; no more than seven losers. Let that be a lesson to you.

AT THE CAPITOL

"My Heart Belongs to Daddy"
(First Belleville Showing)

Bubble dancing as it is done in burlesque is generally done with a huge rubber balloon but Cecil Kellaway, famed funny man, does it with a five gallon water jug of the type used in office water coolers in his latest comedy hit "My Heart Belongs to Daddy," which opens Sunday midnight at the Capitol theatre.

Kellaway does it with the bottle to show a group of college officials how it's done. The real bubble dancer in the piece is lovely Martha O'Driscoll. She's in love with Richard Carlson, who is a college professor and the performance is put on by Kellaway to convince the officials who frown on the romance, that there's nothing wrong with bubble dancing. He convinces 'em, too!

"Pride of the Yankees"

The added hit at the Capitol is a real chapter in sports history is that upon which Samuel Goldwyn has built the gripping dramatic structure of "The Pride of the Yankees," Gary Cooper starring vehicle. It is the colorful career of the late Lou Gehrig.

Covering the period between 1914 and 1939, the picture presents in vivid fashion the story of Gehrig's determined progress from a ragged youngster on Amsterdam Avenue, in New York, to one of the most popular players the baseball world has ever known. It is a success story of a kind that could happen only in America, and in it is woven the telling romance that spurred the famous athlete on to fight bravely against the fate that finally conquered him.

Teresa Wright has the role of the loyal Eleanor Gehrig and Babe Ruth and Walter Brennan head the featured cast, which includes such well-known screen figures as Dan Duryea, Virginia Gilmore and Elsa Janssen and such sports notables as Bill Dickey, "Bob" Meusel, Mark Koenig and Bill Stern. In a big production number the famous Veloz and Yolanda dance to the music of Ray Noble and his orchestra.

AT THE BELLE

"HAPPY GO LUCKY"

A colorful, musical fun-film, Paramount's "Happy Go Lucky", is headed this way, due to arrive today at the Belle Theatre with Mary Martin, Dick Powell, Betty Hutton, Eddie Bracken and Rudy Vallee among those present.

The five stars sing, dance and make merry to the tune of five hit songs, namely, "Happy Go Lucky", "Let's Get Lost", "Murder, He Says", "The Fuddy Duddy Watchmaker" and "Sing a Tropical Song". In the singing they are ably aided and abetted by Sir Lancelot and his Calypso Songs. If you're not yet a Calypso fan, you will be after you see "Happy Go Lucky".

The picture tells the laugh-filled story of a fortune-hunting miss (Mary Martin) who arrives at a resort island in the Caribbean on board a luxury cruiser and pretends to be the daughter of a millionaire. It's her idea that it's a lot easier to land a goldfish by using her own gold as bait. Unfortunately, her own gold doesn't last too long. Dick Powell and Eddie Bracken, a couple of happy go lucky beach boys, help her in her campaign to snaffle millionaire Rudy Vallee. By the time Vallee is safely on the hook, however, Mary is head over heels in love with Powell, and vice versa.

Filmed in gorgeous Technicolor, "Happy Go Lucky" is said to radiate good cheer and vacation fun. It's intended to take your mind off war and gloom and to that end offers you a sunny playground where laughter, song and infectious comedy add up to "Happy Go Lucky". Very active in providing all three is the vivacious blonde Betty Hutton.

Four Junior Features.

The Belle latest world news events, a Madcap Models novelty in Technicolor, "Jasper and Choo Choo", a clever novelette "Animals and Families", a color novelty "Unusual Occupations" complete the program.

Continuous shows will be presented today.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By CHARLES EDWARDS

Toronto, May 8 — (CP) — They have their season mixed in Montreal. It's only May, the baseball season is just starting. But what do they do in Montreal? Burn with football fever, no less! For years rugby has been almost a dead issue there. Last autumn when the good folk of Montreal should have had the gridiron bug, a three-team senior league caused scarcely a ripple. Yet now, before even the birds are settled for their spring egg production, Montreal is talking football in a big way.

Under the auspices of the Quebec Rugby Football Union and fostered by that rugby Diehard, Fred Porter, it was decided at a meeting this week to operate six teams next fall. The three services, Navy, Army and Air Force, will be represented along with three civilian teams, Verdun Grads, McGill University and Canadian Vickers.

And who should turn up as a prime mover in the revival but Billy Hughes, who directed Queen's University, Hamilton Tigers, Ottawa Rough Riders and Montreal in their championship days. Hughes, Porter et al are fired with zeal.

"We'll be the real missionaries for establishing Canadian football on a coast to coast basis, making it truly a national autumn game," says Billy.

"It's going to be a big thing for football in Montreal. And if those fellows from the west and from Ontario want to freeze us out of playing for the Grey Cup why we'll snub them this time and we'll take our champions down east to Halifax where Canadian football has been getting such a strong foothold and it's rapidly supplanting English rugger in public favor and support."

Because of an Ontario Hockey Association ruling that no junior "A" entry will be accepted from a city without artificial ice, Fred Cox has dropped his plan to locate an "A" team in Woodstock and, instead, will back a Galt junior "A" club. To appease Woodstock fans, he will place a junior "B" club in that city. . . . Ted Sumner, ice-maker at the Kitchener Granite Club for the past 15 years, has resigned the job because of his health. HOUSE APPROVES APPOINTMENT OF RADIO COMMITTEE

Main Duty Will be the Examination of CBC Activities

NO DIVISION

By JAMES McCOOK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, May 8 — (CP) — Having placed their views on radio broadcasting — some of them trenchant —on the House of Commons record, members on Monday will turn to further consideration of the mutual aid bill under which assistance with $1,000,000,000 may be granted other United Nations.

Yesterday's three-hour session was devoted almost exclusively to consideration of a government motion to re-establish a committee on radio broadcasting whose main duty will be the examination of Canadian Broadcasting Corporation activities.

Four opposition members — Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative House Leader, M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. Leader, Rev. E. G. Hansell (N. D. MacLeod) and D. G. Ross (Prog. Con. Toronto St. Paul's) — mingled their appreciation of some CBC accomplishments with criticism of what they said were its shortcomings.

Dr. J. J. McCann (Lib. Renfrew South), chairman of the Radio Committee last year, praised CBC developments, and said such shortcomings as there were could not be blamed on the government.

War Services Minister LaFleche, who has jurisdiction over CBC, spoke briefly at the close of the debate and assured members there had been no political interference with the corporation.

The motion setting up the committee was approved without division.

Prior to debate on the Radio Committee motion, Prime Minister Mackenzie King announced the appointment of three more parliamentary assistants to ministers, bringing the total thus named to seven.

Brooke Claxton (Lib. Montreal St. Lawrence-St. George) will be assistant to Mr. King in the premier's capacity as president of the Privy Council; Joseph Jean (Lib. Montreal Mercier) will assist Justice Minister St. Laurent and Paul Martin (Lib. Essex East) will assist Labor Minister Mitchell.

The Senate gave third reading to, and passed, bills amending the Income Tax act and Excess Profits tax act in accordance with provisions of the 1943-44 budget. First reading was given to 15 divorce bills. The Senate adjourned until May 12.

Mr. Graydon, a member of the 1942 radio committee, said in the House the minutes of the CBC Board of Governors should be made available to committee members with reservation.

He said the evidence given the committee last year had indicated "a wholly chaotic condition" had developed in the CBC in 1941. A concentration of authority which had since been achieved was welcomed.

The radio committee report last year had not gone far enough in censure of the Board of Governors. The committee should have asked for the resignation of the entire board.

Fill Vacancies Promptly Urged

The government could not be relieved of responsibility as one of the difficulties faced by the governors was that the board never had a full quota of members from Aug. 30, 1940, until 1942. Vacancies on such a board should be filled promptly. The government had failed to give agriculture representation on the board.

Mr. Coldwell supported Mr. Graydon in a contention that the government should make clear whether the CBC is an emanation of the crown, a government department, or a corporation free from political control and political influence.

He hoped the CBC would be free of politics and free from the influence of private interest or the interference in private broadcasting organizations. Private organizations sought to meet the CBC competition and rival it in influence.

Conditions existing within the CBC were due to a cause recognized by members. "Fortunately" the cause had been removed, "or, shall I say, the cause removed himself from the corporation."

Mr. Coldwell said he believed the new CBC temporary general manager, Dr. J. S. Thomson, his staff and the Board of Governors were engaged in an earnest attempt to restore confidence in the CBC.

German Raiders Are Turned Back

London, May 8—(CP)——A German raid on London in which only three planes were believed to have participated was turned back from the outskirts of the city today after Londoners had undergone a breakfast time alarm.

The capital's anti-aircraft defences brought down an enemy craft in flames at Benfleet, Essex, 25 miles from London at the mouth of the Thames, and two other Nazi machine were knocked down during night raids over Britain. Another was shot down over Northern France.

The three Nazi planes which made for the capital before being driven off by short, sharp anti-aircraft artillery bursts, unloaded their bombs on the home counties after veering off from London.

The German radio claimed targets in western and southern England were hit in night attacks.

A second daylight raider was destroyed from another group of three planes which crossed the coast during the morning.

British Planes Drop Supplies for Greeks In Guerilla Forces

London, May 8 — British planes are making regular flights over Axis-occupied Greece, dropping food and weapons for the patriot bands fighting on in the mountains, say reports from refugees who have escaped across the Mediterranean to Egypt.

Radio communication between the patriots and Greeks in Cairo and Alexandria paves the way for this regular service which helps the bands conducting sabotage against German and Italian communications. Arrangements are made for this British help to benefit the Greeks under Douras in Macedonia, under Papas and Servas in Sterea, and under the brothers Chanioti in Peloponesus. In Crete, General Emmanuel Mantakas is also being supplied.

In the Greek and Cretan guerilla bands, a number of British and New Zealand troops continue to serve. They include 300 Tommies, rescued by the Greek patriots who dynamited a train carrying the British prisoners to a German internment camp.

Little Benny's Note Book

Saturday afternoon ma was downtown shopping and pop was reading a book in his private chair, and it started to rain a little before I had a chance to go out so I'd be out, without having to ask, and I was standing at the window looking at it drizzeling and wondering if pop would be easier than ma if I asked him if I could go out anyways, and I said, Hay pop, it's hardly even raining.

By gollies you're right, pop said. Maybe the weather man wont even enter it in his diary as rain, maybe he'll just enter it as loose precipitation or some such technical evasion, he said.

Sounding kind of encouraging, and I said, Sure, pop, G willickers the street isn't even wet, so anybody that went out in this probably wouldn't get wet either.

I imagine you're quite right, pop said. I've heard it said that soldiers have been known to run right through a spray of machine gun fire without even stopping a single bullet, he said, and I said, But good night, pop, I mean G roozalem, it's hardly coming down at all, I mean it might as well not even be raining.

I agree with you, everything is comparative, and naturally that includes rain, pop said. Why, one time when I was in the semmy tropics the skies opened up and the rain came down so thick and fast that it would of been an understatement to say it was raining cats and dogs or even elefants and hoppopotamusses. There weren't any drops at all, just a solid wall of water. You may get a slight idea of what it was like when I tell you that I noticed the birds doing something peculiar in the air, and I looked closer and by gollies they were swimming, he said.

The result being I started to read my new Paul Peppy book.

PASSING DREAM

by MARGARET GORMAN NICHOLS

CHAPTER X

And Harry . . . where was he? The thought of him seemed to explode in her mind. She had all but forgotten Harry. But remembering him she saw him as a person more articulate than she who had been able to put her own beliefs into words. The light of learning and the lights in American homes . . . to preserve them he, who had his learning but no real home, had gone to fight — if necessary.

She was ashamed because only a few weeks ago the whole force of her life had centred upon her failure to finish college. And now for the first time in her life she saw herself not as the most important person in the world, standing alone and facing her own petty problems alone, but a person like her mother, willing to give more than she received.

With amazement at these strange new thoughts that came because she could not sleep she saw herself also both as a citizen with responsibilities and a woman who had hurts to bear and tolerance yet to learn. She was not merely one, but one of many and it would require all the combined voices and all the combined strength before she would have the right to function as an individual again. So much was written about sacrifice. "But sacrifice," she thought, "isn't a passive word. Will we learn all together that it isn't a passive word? Harry didn't talk about the things most of us don't understand, things like politics and trade routes and economics. He talked about learning and American homes."

x x

The next day she walked over the farm with Paula and Herman and listened to Herman's gutteral suggestions concerning the crops. He was a huge, unkempt man in overalls, with a mischievous glint in his small eyes. He glanced furtively at Paula's brown slacks when he thought she was not looking and grunted his acquiescence at her orders. He treated Temple, now windblown, her shoes muddy, as though she were not there.

As Paula and Temple were driving back to Washington late that afternoon, Temple asked, "If you like it so much in the country, why don't you live there all the time?"

Paula did not give her usual quick response. After a while she said with a chuckle, "because they won't accept me. To them I'm a freak, a middle-aged woman with red hair who smokes and wears slacks and shorts and grows only things that go well with her house. I'd be an outcast in that kind of respectability."

"I hadn't thought of that. But I've enjoyed every minute of the weekend with you."

Paula laughed. "I'm the one to be flattered, darling. Don't you know that? You have no idea how flattered older people are when young people will do things with them. Unfortunately different generations never get together. You, for instance, will tell me things you won't tell your mother."

The road to Washington was lighted by Winter moonlight.

To Paula, Temple thought, it meant modern rooms and an odd assortment of people coming and going. To her, Temple, it meant Jud.

At the door of the boarding house they parted quickly. For a minute Temple stood and watched Paula's sleek car move down the street. Suddenly she was moved by an incredible pity as the thought came that nothing thrilling would ever happen to Paula again; all the climaxes were in the past.

It was a climax to be walking down the crowded street knowing that Jud was waiting outside a certain restaurant. It was a climax to pass a convenient mirror in a shop window which permitted her to see briefly that the small black hat had been put on, though hurriedly, at the proper angle and that her black dress with the pleated skirt was still good. It would be some time before she could buy any new clothes. It was a climax to be young and not alone in a city too busy and too important to be as hospitable as it had been in quieter times.

Jud was standing outside the restaurant. Wearing the tan polo coat with the collar turned up and a casual brown hat, he was smoking his pipe and looking, not for her, but thoughtfully into space.

She wanted to run—to run, to touch him, to put her arms around him and her face against his.

When he saw her he continued to stand still. Only his eyes, shaken from deep thought, followed her warmly as his mouth broke into its crooked smile.

"Going my way, lady?" he asked.

She smiled. "I don't care if I do." She was trembling.

"I'll take you into many strange places, lady."

"I don't care if you do, mister." She placed her hand on his sleeve. "Oh, Jud . . ."

"Hello, darling."

"Hello, darling." She had never called anyone "darling" before.

"I think you're glad to see me."

"I've missed you, Jud."

"You're—you'd better get used to missing me, darling. Let's go inside."

Get used to missing him? Her heart seemed to stop. She thought "I'll give you up with sadness and pride. That's what I told myself at Paula's. That's the promise I made myself and I won't go back on it. I'm equal to it. I'm brave for it. Aren't you, Jud? You won't discuss it. You're like the doctor who won't talk about the operation he's about to perform."

They sat in the dim light looking at each other.

He said lightly, "you're beautiful, Temple. Seems to me I've said that before. Seems to me I say to myself all the time at home and in the office. 'She has dark hair that turns up on the ends and soft skin with color in it and everything she feels and thinks you can see in her eyes. They're dark, too, and clear. You don't think much about her nose because there's nothing the matter with it; and her lips give me ideas . . . not very original ones, however.' This would be very silly conversation if we weren't making it." When she smiled, she said, "Oh yes, she smiles like a wise child."

"Have I told you about Jud?"

"No. Do tell me. Who is this guy Jud you're in love with?"

"Well, he wears clothes the way other men would like to wear them . . . and his eyes think things other than the things he's talking about at the moment. Did I get that right?"

"Too right. I bother you a little, don't I? I'm not all black and white. Two and two don't make four."

"I think I know what it is. Why don't you enlist?"

"I probably shall. I've been thinking about it, too . . .I". He frowned and shook his head. "I was about to make a bad joke. I was about to say that it would let me escape from you. I'm afraid we can't joke about that. You're the most wonderful thing that ever happened to me."

"Even though I'm not the boss' daughter?"

"Yes, even though you are not."

"And even though you are not my last two years in college?"

He smiled and said, "tell me about your weekend with Paula."

When she told him, she added, "Jud, I think I've learned that just about the worst thing that can happen to you is knowing what you want—too late. Paula is like that. She'd like to live there; she'd like that kind of simplicity and respectability . . . but it's too late. She waited too long. She lived too much. She's had too many climaxes."

He looked at her soberly. "I hope that one of these days you don't take me apart like that. You may find a few parts you could do without."

"I'm not perfect. I've been selfish and petty. My thoughts were locked up in my selfishness. I think I'm free now. I'm trying to think broadly. I could have been nicer to lots of people."

"Not lots of men, I hope."

"I didn't have to slap one once. I could have been more tactful."

"He probably deserved it, the wolf . . What are we doing tonight? We reach a dead end when we leave a restaurant, don't we? I won't sit in the sitting-room however luxurious it is, at your boarding house, and you, being a nice girl, can't come up to the apartment where I live with four other men."

"It seems so strange that I have never seen where you live and you have not been to my house and met my family and had dinner."

TO MOSCOW?

Joseph E. Davies, ABOVE, former United States ambassador to Russia, may soon return to Moscow on a special mission for President Roosevelt, according to reports in Washington diplomatic circles. Purpose of such a mission, it is believed, would be to extend another invitation to Premier Josef Stalin to confer with President Roosevelt and, possibly also with British Prime Minister Winston Churchill.

Bill Hawkins, Flying Spitfire, Saves Airman

Ingersoll Boy, Grandson of Mrs. N. A. Bonisteel, 66 Highland Ave., Belleville, Meets Four Focke Wulfs Head-on and is Seriously Injured — Is Flying Again

After meeting four Focke Wulfs head-on when they were diving for the tail of an unsuspecting English pilot's Spitfire and sustaining very serious injury as a result, Flight Sergeant Bill Hawkins, of Ingersoll, grandson of Mrs. N. A. Bonisteel, 66 Highland Ave., Belleville, has recovered so completely that he is flying again.

The R.C.A.F. News Service gives the following details. Hawkins was flying his Spitfire behind his English partner at the time as a force of Focke Wulfs had been reported approaching the coast and the Spitfires had been sent up to intercept them.

Suddenly the four Nazi fighters appeared out of cloud cover high above, flying one after another, swiftly changing to line abreast formation and diving for the foremost Spitfire with the idea of dividing the two British fighters and finishing them off singly.

The English pilot did not see them until it was too late to do anything, but Hawkins in the following Spitfire had spotted them when they first broke cloud. His little fighter wheeled and shot up straight for the charging line of Focke Wulfs.

As they met, the four streams of cannon and machine gunfire converged upon the Spitfire. Hawkins had one Focke Wulf dead in his sights and was firing all his guns, but smoke got in his eyes before he could see if he had hit it. Plumes of flame and smoke were racing back out of the riddled engine.

At the last instant he did a half roll, flying almost upside down just underneath one of the on-rushing enemy planes.

The Spitfire went into an erratic dive. It was close to the shore and Hawkins wanted to "pancake" on the water.

Flames swept back to the cockpit however, and he jettisoned the hood, undid his straps, pulled off his helmet and climbed out on the wing.

As the fighter twisted and slanted down he tried to plunge off. A tremendous slipstream knocked him back against the fuselage, crawling along it hand over hand to the tail.

The Spitfire was racing crazily toward the water only about 100 feet below when he fell off. Luckily the crews of three motor torpedo boats nearby witnessed his plunge. Before he was in the water five minutes, he was hauled out and on his way to hospital.

Meanwhile the English pilot had escaped the four Focke Wulfs due to Hawkins' courageous interception which had broken their charge.

In hospital the Canadian was detained four months with serious back injuries. He is engaged in non-operational flying in Britain now.

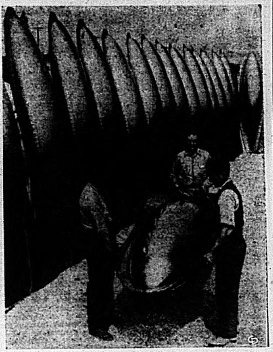
DISPOSABLE FUEL TANKS FOR PLANES



These teardrop, laminar flowdrop type fuel tanks, mated in pairs, greatly increase the range of the P-38 in its search for the enemy. Each tank weighs 90 lbs. empty and 1,000 lbs. with its 165 gallons of gas. Their use results in but a four per cent. loss of speed. Fastened to regular bomb shackles, they can be dropped at will by the pilot. They are assembled at Lockheed, Los Angeles, Calif., at the rate of one every 4½ minutes.

Cow's Tail Switch Important to Navy

Dr. D. J. McLellan, Inspector in charge of Peterboro Health of Animals Division, Dominion Department of Agriculture, in a recent address explained that while all portions of an animal killed in a packing plant are utilized only 70 per cent of a hog, 55 per cent of a very good steer and 47 per cent of lamb are meat. There is from each animal much material left to be utilized for by-products, many of which are vital to Canada's war effort. Nothing is wasted.

Cattle provide many important by-products, he said. From hides come the leather for boots for the armed forces, machinery belts in war factories, harness, and other appurtenances of war. Before the war the long hair in the switch of the cow's tail was used as a filter for the air conditioning plants in Pullman cars and for civilian upholstery. Now this hair is being used for war purposes—in corvettes, destroyers, and battleships. For the artists who paint battle scenes, the camel hair brush has been replaced by the small tuft of fine silky hair in the cow's ear which is being used in the manufacture of high grade brushes for artists. This hair has a value of $15 a pound.

The blood of cattle is also playing its part in the war today. Recently a scientist discovered that, in cases of shock and sudden drop of blood pressure, ox-blood plasma added to the human plasma has beneficial results. For the manufacture of war material particularly for aeroplanes, a good quality glue can be made from cattle blood, with a limited amount of hog's blood, and is especially satisfactory when used on plywood. Blood is now being used in plastics, used both in war, in peace, one example being seen in the useful clothes locker now on the market. Many of the glands of the animal are used for medicinal purposes which are invaluable on the field of battle. These glands could not be saved except under the rigid government inspection carried out in registered packing plants.

The brains of cattle may be used for edible purposes or otherwise. The feet produce neatsfoot oil; buttons are made from horns; glue from tendons; dog food from spleen and lungs; intestines as sausage containers, and the rumen for tripe. The contents of the paunch and small intestines are taken by gardeners and farmers who compost it for use as fertilizer in order to produce still more food for the allied nations.

THROUGH THE DIAL SIGHT

A Weekly Column Devoted to the Activities of the Members of the Armed Services at Home and Abroad

Citizens interested in "Panzer Poison" are invited to the Armouries next Monday or Wednesday night to see the latest weapon of modern warfare. In the event you don't know what the term "Panzer Poison" refers to—it is merely the nickname given the British new 25-pound howitzer gun, the deadly weapon used by General Montgomery to drive Rommel and his gang out of Libya.

Captain S. Sword, officer commanding the 34th Battery R.C.A., will have this sleek cannon on display during artillery manoeuvres at the Armouries on Monday and Wednesday night and the public is invited to inspect this modern piece of mechanized equipment.

Incidentally there is considerable enthusiasm being manifest in and about the 34th Battery orderly room these nights of training. All the boys are talking about is their two weeks at training camp early this summer. The site will be at the artillery ranges near Petawawa Training Camp.

"The entire two weeks will be definite artillery training with live ammunition against tanks and other targets," stated Captain Sword today, as he added there were only a few more vacancies left for recruits for the local reserve battery unit to take to this unique training period.

Col. Lundon, District Medical Officer and Lieut.-Col. Hamilton, District Dental Officer, from Military District Headquarters in Kingston were in Belleville this week inspecting the Armouries.

Two new sergeant instructors of the A. & T. Staff, Sgts. Charlie Holmes and C. W. Tice, reported at the Argyll Light Infantry headquarters here from the Peterborough Training Centre yesterday. Sgts. Holmes and Tice will assume their duties as basic training instructors of the Argyll unit immediately, Lieut.-Col. B. C Donnan, officer commanding the unit, stated.

L/Cpl. W. Rollins of the Royal Canadian Engineers, was in Belleville on Friday preparing for the installation of a new heating system at the Armouries. The latest type furnace and an up-to-date heating system will be installed under the directions of the R.C.E. commencing in June.

Captain K. R. Holmes, Adjutant of the Argyll Light Infantry Battalion (R), was in Kingston this week on an important military mission.

The Belleville Garrison is to be well represented at Sunday's Victory Loan parade at Trenton. The Argyll Light Infantry; 34th Battery R.C.A. (R); C.W.S.F.; Municipal Band and other kindred units of the local garrison will help swell the parade, under the command of Lieut.-Col. A. V. Yates, officer commanding the 2nd Battalion Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment. The local garrison will muster at the Armouries at 11.45 a.m. Sunday.

Captain G. H. Carver, adjutant of the Field Regiment R.C.A. headquarters at Gananoque, made an inspection tour of the local detachment of the 34th Battery on Wednesday night.

Members of the local unit of the C.W.S.F. took over the operation of the newly-installed men's canteen at the Belleville Armouries this week. Dressed in their natty khaki uniforms the lassies of the C.W.S.F. were of more interest to the soldiers than the "cokes" available.

Officers and members of the C.W.S.F. have completed the decoration of their recreation room in the Armouries. Draperies have been hung at the windows and a complete chesterfield suite installed for the comfort of the lassies in uniform to enjoy during their recreation periods. The recruiting for the unit is meeting with splendid success, Captain Marion Harden reported. Over 70 recruits have been added to the C.W.S.F. here in the past week.

And from "Wings," Log of the R.C.A.F., comes the following anecdotes:

Navygator — Fellow who gives his pilot directions which would take him below sea-level.

Splitfire — Fighter plane that's just flown through a telegraph pole.

Rum Line — A line that keeps crossing the same meridian at different angles.

Air-Flame Mechanic — A grease-ball of fire.

Link Strainer — A device for sifting out pilots.

Air Bummer — A member of air-crew who rides in . . . end of a plane.

Included among the county young men now overseas who have recently been granted their commissions is Sergeant Pilot D. W. Goodwin of Maynooth. With the R.C.A.F. Sergeant Goodwin was given his pilot officer's commission while in the field for efficency, meritorious service and leadership qualities.

H. J. Rowe, R. R. No. 1 Bonarlaw, has been accepted for enlistment in the Royal Canadian Air Force, according to information received from No. 11 R.C.A.F. recruiting centre at Toronto. The Bonarlaw lad enlisted during the past week, it was stated.

Indicative of the thrift and foresight being shown by many a bond purchaser these days is the story brought in to local Victory Loan headquarters by a canvasser. With three Victory Bonds already purchased in former campaigns, a Belleville soldier's wife has now subscribed for her fourth.

"I'm putting our money into bonds so when my husband comes home from overseas we will have enough to make a down payment on a home," she said.

First Student Aviator: "Quick! What do I do now?"

Second Student Aviator: "Do?! Aren't you the instructor?!"

He told Ahring he didn't know the film had to be developed.

Chamber Drafts Last Appeal To C.N. Railway

Peterboro, Ont., May 8 — (CP)— Apprehensive of the fact that higher freight rates would result if the Port Hope branch of the C. N. R. is abandoned the Chamber of Commerce is drafting another and last appeal to the management of the railway and to the Department of Transport at Ottawa.

The C. N. R. has already announced cancellation of train service on the line to become effective on May 23. Trains now operating between Toronto and Port Hope via Peterboro, will, commencing May 24, operate between Toronto and Peterboro only on the same schedule as at present.

At a meeting prior to the drafting of the appeal, officials attending aired the opinion that Peterboro's manufacturing interests would be decidedly impaired if the cancellation of the line actually goes into effect.

"If they take up that short haul to Port Hope they might just as well move us back another hundred miles from our markets," Fred J. Overend said. "It is up to us to get busy about it in these few days that remain until the C. N. R. closes the line," he added.

He also referred to the fact that the C. N. R. had reported a loss of $6,000 in operating the line last year and he said he would not believe that for the sake of $6,000 the heads of the railway would antagonize the whole community of Peterboro.

Plans for the closing of the line first became manifest in the spring of 191 and later, in October, the railway company was granted authority for the discontinuation of the line. Later the C. N. R. agreed to carry on operations for an indefinite period of time.

Several weeks ago a letter from R. C. Vaughan, president of the C.N.R., revealed that the line would be discontinued as soon as possible.

Giraud Proposes Joint Government To Gen. DeGaulle

London, May 8 — (CP) — The Independent French News Agency reported that Gen. Henri Giraud had proposed to Gen. Charles De Gaulle that they join forces by establishing a "provisional central power" in North Africa with themselves presiding.

The proposal, the news agency said, was contained in a letter dispatched by Gen. Giraud from Algiers on April 27.

The letter pointed out, it was added, that Giraud and De Gaulle would not form a "duumvirate," since the responsibility would be shared by members of an executive committee and other officials of the "central power," which would consist at first of the present French overseas council and later of consulting bodies.

The agency quoted Gen. Giraud as saying that when France is liberated a government must be set up on a legal basis emanating from pre-Armistice legislation. Gen. Giraud was said to have proposed a proclamation addressed to the French people announcing this.

The letter added that while recognizing the French tradition that the military commander-in-chief should be subordinate to the central power, Gen. Giraud expressed the opinion that under the present circumstances it would be necessary for the commander to share the power.

Among the chief obstacles to union between the two French factions reportedly have been De Gaulle's insistance that military authority be subordinated to the civil authority and that provision be made to include in the government underground leaders in France.

The consulative bodies suggested by Gen. Giraud, the news agency said would be a national consulative committee of 60 or 80 members as representative as possible; a supreme legislative council; a committee composed of representatives of resistance groups in France, and an information committee.

As previously announced, Gen. Giraud asked that Gen. De Gaulle meet him somewhere in North Africa other than Algiers and that they proceed to Algiers together after reaching an agreement.

Gen. De Gaulle has insisted all along that he wishes to meet Gen. Giraud in Algiers.

Bulgarian Hangmen Marked for Justice By Greek Guerillas

London, May 8—Atrocities against Greece in Bulgarian-occupied areas of Greece recently have been stepped up and in one area complete extermination of the Greeks seems to be the aim of the invaders, refugees have reported to Greek authorities here.

The district of Alexandropolis is the scene of the greatest ruthlessness, say the refugees. There, the Bulgarian Governor Theodorf and his righthand man, a Captain Piperf, have become known as the butchers and Greek guerrillas have sworn to deal with them as war criminals.

Wholesale executions, indiscriminate killings, deportations, deliberate starvation, are all being used by the Bulgarians in western Thrace and eastern Macedonia. Bodies of dead Greeks often are left lying beside the road.

More than 100,000 Bulgarians, says one report, have replaced Greeks in the occupied areas. Lately, over 800 Bulgarian families were installed in the cities of Cavalla, Tsagetzi and Alexandropolis, occupying properties of Greeks who had either been dispossessed and sent to concentration camps or who had been executed for presumed crimes against the occupation forces. The Bulgarians have decreed that any Greek who does care to remain must assume Bulgarian citizenship.

Greeks Ready To Aid Allies In Cyprus Drive

Cairo, May 8 — Greeks on the Italian-dominated islands of the Dodecanese group, off the coast of Turkey, are ready to help the Allies in the forthcoming invasion of the Balkans expected to open with the British island of Cyprus as the springboard. This information comes from Greeks who escaped recently from the Dodecanese.

Italians of late have showed signs of panic, say the refugees. Many of them have been trying to flee the islands for the occupied mainland of Greece. In Calymnos last month, not a single Italian remained.

For months and especially since Prime Minister Winston Churchill visited Turkey for the Adana conference secret radio stations operated by Greeks have been conducting a war of nerves against the Mussolini men. Italian jumpiness has been increased by German broadcasts predicting that the Allies would try to use the Dodecanese islands as stepping stones in their push for the European coasts.

NAVAL, AIR BLOCKADE CLAMPED ON CAPE BON
19 RAIL JUNCTIONS HELD BY GERMANS BLASTED

Many Small Ships Loaded With Axis Troops Are Sunk

U. S. Corps Obtains Unconditional Surrender of All Enemy Units in Territory Southeast of Bizerte—Position of Axis Troops Fighting In Tunisia Described As "Worse Than Desperate"

75,000 PRISONERS TAKEN

(By EDWARD KENNEDY)
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, North Africa, May 10 (AP) — Naval and air forces threw a blockade around Cap Bon Peninsula and sank many small ships carrying Axis soldiers desperately attempting to escape the Tunisian inferno today.

The American 2nd. Corps obtained unconditional surrender of all enemy units in its territory southeast of Bizerte.

German resistance stiffened in front of British armor smashing against the entrance to Cap Bon Peninsula.

The position of Axis troops still fighting in Tunisia was described officially as "worse than desperate" and it is certain that no important number of German and Italian soldiers will escape from Africa.

(Daniel De Luce, Associated Press correspondent, reported from the Cap Bon front that a British 1st. Army spokesman had estimated 80,000 Axis troops have been swept into the Cap Bon Peninsula trap while a smaller Axis force cornered at Porto Farina, 18 miles east of Bizerte, has been trying to evacuate in coastal boats.)

DETAILS OF SURRENDER

Details of the German surrender in the north were disclosed at headquarters as follows:

At 11 a.m. yesterday Major-General Krause, commanding artillery of the Africa corps, sent an emissary to Major-General Omar N. Bradley and requested an armistice so the surrender might be negotiated.

General Bradley's terms were as follows:

1. Unconditional surrender.
2. Prompt acceptance.

The American officer demanded that all destruction of German equipment cease immediately. Krause accepted.

The wholesale surrender of the enemy battalions then began and by early afternoon all the northern region, where the enemy had been cut off by the wedge the British 1st. Army drove through to Tunis, was cleaned up.

SIX GENERALS TAKEN

The bulk of the German armor was there and the total of prisoners was over 25,000, in addition to another 25,000 taken by British troops further south.

Five other Generals were among those who surrendered with Krause.

They were: Maj.-Gen. Boroweitz, commander of the 15th. Armored Division; Maj.-Gen. Neuffer, commander of the Air Force Artillery Division; Lt.-Gen. Buelouvius, commander of the Mannteuffel Division; Maj.-Gen. Von Vaerst, commander of the 5th. Armored Army, and Maj.-Gen. Baumseng, commander of the Bizerte Air Forces.

Trail of Sinking Ships.

Allied aerial squadrons, leaving trails of sinking or burning vessels at sea and shattered motor transport and guns aground, were without aerial opposition.

It is Dunkirk reversed. The R.A.F. maintainer local air superiority over the Channel during the historic withdrawal from France in 1940. This time the R.A.F. is making unsuccessful every enemy attempt to escape by sea.

Prisoners so far taken include 3,000 members of the German Air Force. Both the German and the Italian Air Force have abandoned the Battle of Africa.

Most high commanders and many pilots have skipped by plane.

Axis ground troops are without any air support. The Axis is receiving what it inflicted on British army as it left Greece, multiplied 20 times.

Resistance Covers Retreat.

The German resistance is apparently designed to cover the retreat into the Cap Bon Peninsula, but the most this can achieve is to delay briefly the final clean-up of the Tunisian campaign.

Among the German elements still at large are remnants of the 15th Armored Division which were not involved in the northern surrender, the 10th and 21st Armored divisions and the 90th and 164th Infantry divisions.

Almost all the prisoners taken are Germans, the bulk of the Italians apparently having left ahead of the rush.

Bullet Hits Rock Metal Fragments Injure 3 Boys

Bowmanville, Ont., May 10—(CP)—Three boys were injured yesterday when a bullet smashed into a rock where they were playing, scattering fragments of metal among them. Victor Moore, 11, and Arthur Rowe, nine, were wounded in the legs and Howard Potter, 12, suffered a gash in his index finger. Howard's brother, George, 10, escaped injury.

Pieces of hard metal, believes to be part of a steel-jacketed bullet, were taken from the boys' legs.

Police Chief Sidney Venton investigated but could find no trace of the person who fired the weapon.

HITLER ADMITS MUCH SUFFERING BY HIS SOLDIERS

Says Sacrifices On Home Front Minor To Privations of Army In the East

BROADCASTS MESSAGE

London, May 10. (CP)— Hitler was quoted by the Berlin Radio today as declaring the winter "involved the heaviest suffering and hardest burdens for our soldiers". The broadcast was recorded by Reuters.

The Berlin radio said Hitler broadcast on the occasion of the anniversary of the end of another "winter help" campaign.

By halting the Russian assault and by counter-attacking, Hitler said the German soldiers had averted a crisis "which would have broken any other army in the world".

Hitler continued:—

"All sacrifices on the home front pale before the privations and sufferings which our soldiers have had to bear for the second time in the east. Only love of their country and a desire that it shall be spared the horrors of war could have made such deeds possible".

"The home front has also learned courage. War has been brought to the towns, townships and villages".

MESSINA HARBOR HEAVILY RAIDED

Ferry Slip, Roundhouse and Other Targets Severely Damaged

Cairo, May 10. (AP)—Heavy bombers of the United States Army Air forces made a successful attack yesterday on the harbor of Messina, Sicily, scoring hits on the Ferry Slip, on a locomotive roundhouse and other targets, a Middle East Air Communique announced today.

Other aircraft, the bulletin said, attacked shipping in the Aegean Sea. Three small ships were reported bombed and damaged in an island harbor and three others were attacked at sea—one of which was listed as probably sunk. A seventh vessel was reported set afire.

On Saturday, the communique declared, a sailing vessel was sunk and another severely damaged.

All planes were reported to have returned safely.

Shower of Bank Bills on Montreal Street Wind-fall for Many Citizens

Montreal, May 10—(CP)— it's not clear yet just where it all came from but it was wonderful for those on the spot at the time. The wind was blowing bank notes of large denomination around neighboring outremont for 20 minutes this afternoon.

The financial windstorm struck Davaar Avenue, between Lajoie and Bernard Avenues with the result that.

Passing motorists stopped their cars and scooped up bills;

Children on bicycles picked up bills;

Pedestrians picked up bills;

Late-comers searched hopefully in the gutters;

Police were called, to hear stories from 363-witnesses who said they had seen $100 bills floating around in the breeze until eager hands snatched them out of the air. One rumor even went so far as to say that one passerby was $1,000 richer and that a young girl had picked up $500.

Police estimated that between $2,500 had been scattered by the wind.

And so far, nobody has complained that they lost any money.

One young lady displayed a centurp not; an eight-year-old youngster clutched a $50 bill as he canted: "it was the smallest there was. I'm going to bu ya victory bond."

Police said they had ascertained that the bills were genuine, and that some American bills were included in the wind-fall.

80,000 German Troops Trapped in Peninsula

By DANIEL DeLUCE
Associated Press Staff Writer

On the Cap Bon Front, Tunisia, May 8 — (Delayed) — (AP)— The German military debacle in Tunisia, from which Col.-Gen. Jurgen von Arnim was reported to have fled, is reaching its disastrous climax tonight on the Cap Bon peninsula which juts into the Mediterranean.

A British 1st Army spokesman estimated that 80,000 German troops, deserted by their highest commanders, have been swept into this trap.

A much smaller Axis force, cornered at Porte Farina, 18 miles east of Bizerte, has been frantically trying to evacuate in coastal boats.

(The detachments at Porto Farina mentioned in this delayed dispatch presumably were among the Axis remnants pocketed on the 2nd U. S. Corps sector which surrenered at Port Farina, 18 miles east was estimated that about 25.000 prisoners were captured on that sector alone.)

Hope for Quick Finish

Men of the 1st Army vociferously agreed to "get this bloody business finished in two days — not two weeks."

They made attacks in the northern flank of the Cap Bon front in the past 24 hours and were reported within a few miles of Soliman, centre of a network of roads into the peninsula.

Any delay, it was recognized, might enable the enemy to get his guns well established in the hilly neck of the peninsula. In all Tunisia, this Cap Bon position of approximately 25 miles width was the only section where stubborn organized resistance is still encountered by the Allies.

Short of Fuel.

The Germans are gravely short of fuel and they posted their giant Tiger tanks behind barns and farm walls as stationary forts in an attempt to hold the British thrust past Hamman Lif, nine miles southeast of Tunis on a narrow stretch of low land between the hills and the sea.

Allied bombers hunted out Axis shipping which was reported assembling overnight around Cap Bon for the enemy's effort to achieve a Dunkirk escape.

Some thirty small ships managed to flee from the Tunis area, but 12,000 prisoners had been ferreted out. Since the Allied offensive was renewed on a broad scale last Wednesday, the 1st Army and its augmented strength from the 8th Army had captured 25,000 men.

Gen. Koch Still on Bon.

Gen. Koch, of the Goering division which was smashed by British forces in the Medjerda Valley, was reported still on the Cap Bon front. However, apart from Koch, few officers above the rank of major were believed to have remained with their surviving troops.

The enemy was estimated to have 30 tanks left in the peninsula, but the majority were immobilized by lack of fuel.

The capture of Soliman, it was believed, would shatter the enemy's final stand.

"We hope it will be a matter of hours", a tank officer told me.

HOLLAND'S QUEEN CHEERS PEOPLE ON ANNIVERSARY

Disorders, Strikes Anger Huns Who Order Reign of Martial Law

THIRD ANNIVERSARY

London, May 10. (CP)—On the third anniversary of the Nazi invasion of the lowlands, where tension reached a new peak as the Germans proclaimed martial law, Queen Wilhelmina, Prince Bernhard and Premier Pieter S. Gerbrandy broadcast messages of hope for speedy liberation to their Netherlands homeland today from London.

The Queen, speaking over Radio Orange, reaffirmed her belief in "the approached victory of liberty and justice over barbarism and slavery" and declared that The Netherlands Kingdom "shall rise again, more strongly united than every before".

"Because the regime of terror of the usurper does not tolerate public tribute or visits to the resting places of your dear ones who gave their lives for our liberty, so that you all withdraw to your homes, I wish to commemorate for you and with you our struggle on the battlefield, on the seas and in the air, as well as the silent struggle of resistance waged by you", the Queen said.

"Let us all resolve this day to giv ..oof continuously in unbreakable loyalty and by our deed on this our faith".

Prince Bernhard, speaking on the same broadcast, said that "the victory of our cause, which is freedom and independence, cannot be doubted", and urged Hollanders to "persist in your opposition and your stubborn resistance".

Evidence that widespread disorders and strikes in The Netherlands preceded the martial law decree promulgated by the Nazi Commissioner, Arthur Seyzs-Inquart, was disclosed today by The Netherlands Government here.

A spokesman stated that nation-wide demonstrations were touched off by the Nazi regimentation order for all former Netherlands non-commissioned officers. The order was presumed to have been a precaution against a military uprising in case of an Allied invasion.

Strikes Forbidden.

Additional information said the Seyzs-Inquart decree authorized storm troopers and police chiefs to take extra-legal measures "to restore public order". This implied disorder prevailed, the spokesman said.

In addition to forbidding strikes, the decree prohibited employers from paying wages to strikers and gave the police authority to confiscate businesses "which do not operate in the usual way".

$350,000 LOSS IN KINGSTON SHOP CAUSED BY FIRE

Worst Blaze in 29 Years Sweeps China Store, Smoke Damages Four Others

ALL-NIGHT FIRE

Kingston, Ont., May 10—(CP)—Damage estimated at $350,000 was caused today by Kingston's worst fire in 29 years, flames sweeping the Mahood China Shop and causing smoke and water damage to adjacent buildings.

The fire started about midnight in the front section of the Mahood store, where damage to stock alone was estimated at $140,000 and quickly spread through the building. The roof, the second and third storey floors and the rear wall of the building collapsed but firemen escaped injury.

Seven lines of hose were in use all night fighting the blaze and one was still in action this morning as smoke continued to rise from the debris.

Stores adjacent to the china shop which were damaged were the Veale Shoe Store, Tip Top Tailors, Lindsay Piano Co. and the Princess Cafe.

Giraud Invites Gen. De Gaulle To Meeting

London, May 10. (CP)—The Algiers radio, in a broadcast recorded by The Associated Press, reported today that Gen. Henri Giraud had invited Gen. Charles De Gaulle to meet him either at Marrakesh or Biskra to discuss plans for unification of French forces now battling the Axis.

Giraud previously had invited De Gaulle to meet him at some point outside Algiers, but no specific site had been mentioned heretofore. De Gaulle himself has been insistent on a meeting in Algiers.

Marrakesh is situated in Morocco about 150 miles south of Casablanca, while Biskra is in the southeast corner of Algeria and about 200 miles from Algiers.

AXIS INTENSIFIES ANTI-INVASION PREPARATIONS

Enemy Not Overlooking Possibility of An Assault Across the English Channel

DECLARE MARTIAL LAW

London, May 10. (CP)—Intensive Axis preparation to ward off any Allied invasion attempt along the soft underbelly of Europe were reported underway from the south coast of France to the Black Sea today as the German-Italian debacle in North Africa entered its final phases.

Although Hitler and Mussolini seemed particularly concerned over the prospects of an allied drive through Southern Europe, reports from Holland indicated that the Axis was not overlooking the possibility of an assault across the English Channel.

All of Holland was placed under martial law last night, The Netherlands News Agency Aneta reported, and Netherlands sources were convinced the action was taken by the Germans in an effort to forestall any armeu outbreak in connection with an Allied invasion.

Palermo Raided

Heightening Axis fears, 400 Allied planes raided the Sicilian harbor of Palermo yesterday on the third anniversary of Hitler's invasion of the lowlands, leaving that important base flaming and smoking under the heaviest aerial onslaught of the Mediterranean campaign.

In the Balkans, German troops were being moved southward through Hungary at a rate comparable to that preceding the Axis attack on Greece and Yugoslavia, according to travellers from Europe arriving at Ankara. Stockholm dispatches reported Germany was sending modern weapons to bolster Bulgarian defences.

The Nazi Gestapo Chief, Heinrich Himmler, has hurried to the Balkans to demand the suppression of German opposition and the deportation of all opposition leaders, it was reported from Geneva by Tass, official Russian News Agency.

Underline Balkan Developments

A German radio commentator yesterday underlined the Balkan developments when he said "reported (Allied) troop movements to Cyprus and troop concentrations in Palestine and Syria point to a campaign against southeastern Europe, but the enemy will be repulsed at every point of our southern front." He boasted of the strengthened defences of the Dodecanese, Cyclades, Sporades, and other Aegean Islands generally.

Netherlands' Resistance to Nazis For Three Years Told in Pamphlet

By GUY RHOADES
Canadian Press Staff Writer

New York, May 10—(CP)—"Ladies and gentleman," the Netherlands Information Bureau wrote today in the preface of a small volume of clippings from Nazi papers and abstracts from speeches by Dutch-Nazis, "it is our privilege on this third anniversary of the invasion of the Netherlands to introduce to you the greatest living authority on the Dutch:-

"The enemy."

The pamphlet, "Mein Kampf in Holland"—or, "straight from the horse's mouth," tells the story of Netherlands Nazi Party, complained ocupation in the words of the Germans themselves and of those who have become their servants in Holland.

It shows that the occupation authorities and the Dutch-Nazis have been tormented in all the ways which the genius of the people has been able to devise, from minor irritations to assassinations.

Thus in September, 1941, Volk en Vaderland, official weekly of the Netherlands Nazi Party, complained about one ruse used by loyal newspaper publishers to offset Nazi propaganda in these words:-

"Unless there is an end to the practice of publishing a whole page of pictures of dogs on the main news pages when Hitler meets Mussolini or Horthy or when the German army has made sensatonal advances on the eastern front, severe action will be taken.

Melancholy Ad.

A melancholy advertisement in the agony column of the Deutche Zeitung in Den Niederlanded, German organ in Holland, asked: "Which Dutch or German comrade will correspond with the N. S. B. 'er (Dutch Nazis). . .Who, owing to his political convictions, has lost all his former friends, is wholly dependent upon congenial spirits from another town and would gladly establish connections anywhere?"

The German newspaper, Das Reich, declared on Oct. 6, 1940: "The stubborn, slow Dutchmen still refuse to face reality. The widespread stubbornnes of the Dutch stick to this day to the saying: 'The Germans have invaded our country but they have not conquered it.' "

On May 5, 1942, radio hilversum, the main German controlled Netherlands station, said 79 Netherlanders had been found guilty of "favoring the enemy, espionage, secret possession of arms and explosives. . . And have been sentenced to death. Seventy two have been shot. Only in seven cases was the death penalty changed by clemency to life imprisonment."

Russians Penetrate Outer Strongholds Of Novorossisk

Part of Well-Laid Plan to Smash Nazi Preparations for a Summer Campaign

DESTROY 903 PLANES

By EDDY GILMORE
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Moscow, May 10—(AP) — Red Army forces penetrated the outer fortifications of Novorossisk, dispatches from the front declared today and are "persistently crumbling the enemy defences and breaking into the depths of his positions.

The Soviet advance in the Kuban coincided with continued fierce fighting in the air, which the Russians said had resulted in the destruction of 930 German planes in last week, and a resurgence of activity in the Lisichansk area in the Donets basin.

The air warfare was linked with smashing Russian raids on German communications centres behind the central and Ukrainian fronts—apparently part of a well-conceived plan to smash Nazi preparations for a summer offensive.

Lose 235 Planes in Week

The midnight communique, which told of the destruction of the 903 German planes, said the Red air force lost 235 aircraft in the week ending Saturday.

The fighting near Novorossisk is close and sharp, with violent hand-to-hand clashes in the trenches following bayonet charges. Mortars pour shells upon the opposing lines at close range and long and short range artillery batter away steadily. The intense fighting is being waged under constant dive bombing and strafing.

The war upon German communications behind the Ukrainian, Central and Kalinin front brought fresh destruction upon more than 19 railway junctions.

Many Cities Bombed

Stormoviks and bombers fell upon Bryansk, Poltava, Belgorod, Smievka, Putivl, Dorogobuzh, Uspensk and other traffic centres, while another group struck directly at railway trains between Orel and Krachev, Rilsk and Vorozhba, Novosokolniki and Vitebsk, Lisdinivo and Zhizdra, Spasemyansk and Elnya.

The attacks were described as the most formidable the Soviet has ever made upon German communications and communication centres.

A dispatch from the Kuban front said the Germans, in trying to stave off the newest assaults by the Red Army, were forced to send into the battle reserves which they had planned to use in the summer campaign.

The Germans also hurried up new artillery and tank units and threw them into the fighting, which extended from the marshes of the Sea of Azov down across the mud flat of the Kuban River and from the river southward to Novorossisk.

The frontline dispatch said that large groups of Germans were still separated from each other and that hourly their position inside Novorossisk grows worse. It declared the Germans were employing many tanks and that a number had been cut off from infantry behind the Soviet lines and destroyed.

The Russians said that at least 15 small craft loaded with soldiers and one transport had been sunk within the past 24 hours in the Black Sea.

Advance Slow and Sure.

The Red Army's advance in the Kuban may not be as flashy as some of the successes of the winter campaign, but is slow and sure.

The heaviest fighting outside the Kuban area is taking place in the Lishchansk district, where there was no announced change in the situation. About a thousand Germans were reported killed there in the last 24 hours. The Russians yesterday reported they had captured "important positions" in this sector and all German attempts to win them back were reported frustrated.

There was increased activity along the Donets with sharp clashes north of Chuguev and south of Balakleya.

Artillery duels which have been under way west of Rostov for about two weeks still were in progress.

PROVES WORTHY OF NAME

Liverpool, May 10 — (CP)—Ten-year-old George Bernard Shaw was given £10 by his father to be used for changing his name — a move suggested by the original "G.B.S.," who said "No father has a right to prejudice a boy with such a name." Carried away with enthusiasm for the "Wings-for-Victory" campaign, he bought a £10 war bond.

MANY SMALL

Fought for Two Years

The British 7th Armored Division, which had come up from the south to aid the Americans, caught Boroweitz, whose 15th Armored Division they had been fighting for two years.

Meanwhile British armor striking south and southeastward from the Hammam Lif area on the Gulf of Tunis southeast of the capital found the Germans stiffening there, temporarily at least, and there was some fierce fighting which was confused today.

Armored columns pushed ahead, however, and forward patrols reached a point 12 miles south of Creteville — which placed them near the centre of the Peninsula's base — and deployed in other areas.

Some enemy troops in the peninsula were attempting to get away, sometimes in what amounted to panic, and Allied air forces were attacking them both on land and sea. They sank many small boats laden with soldiers, who clung to rafts after the vessels submerged.

The bulletin said that the enemy troops that remain are concentrated on Cap Bon peninsula.

(This suggested that the Germans and Italians on the southern front had left its defence to rear guards in a rush northeastward to the doubtful haven of the peninsula and a union with survivors of the Tunis-Bizerte campaign.)

"In Northeast Tunisia all organized fighting ended on the Second U. S. Corps front at 11 a. m. Sunday, the terms of surrender being unconditional," the communique said. "It is estimated that about 25,000 prisoners have been captured in this sector alone, including six generals, but the counting has not been completed.

"Large quantities of enemy equipment and war material have also been captured. Mopping up operations continue."

Ran Into Bitter Resistance

British armored forces ran into heavy and bitter resistance in a push southeast of Tunis to block off the entrance of the Cap Bon peninsula, but by last evening had made some progress and their advance — which previously had taken Creteville and Hamman Lif, the former 14 miles from Tunis — was continuing.

(Both the German and the Italian High Commands told of the surrender of the German and Italian troops pocketed below Bizerte, saying they fought until their ammunition was spent in a vain battle against fresh and highly-superior tank formations which operated with strong air support.

(The German communique, broadcast from Berlin and recorded by The Associated Press, said that "in the area southeast of Tunis and in the southern sector of the Tunisian front embittered defensive fighting is being continued." German heavy bombers were reported to have fired warehouses and ships in a raid on the Alberian port of Bone even as Allied squadrons rained multiple blows on Axis strong points across the Mediterranean narrows.)

French Make Local Advance

The French 19th Corps was reported to have made a local advance against strong enemy opposition in the sector of Zaghouan, 28 miles south of Tunis, in rolling up the right wing of the Axis southern lines.

Despite the fact it was weakened to reinforce the British 1st Army drive upon Tunis through the centre, the 8th Army also gained in a local attack on the southern front and took some prisoners. The communique said "all its objectives" were achieved.

The roll of prisoners was growing steadily. A special communique announced last night that 50,000 had been taken "since May 7," a distinction which indicated the toll of the offensive, begun May 5, was even higher.

(An Algiers radio broadcast reported in London said 64,000 prisoners had been taken, 42,000 Axis troops killed or wounded and 330 tanks, 500 guns and 4,000 trucks destroyed or captured.)

The Allied communique emphasized the naval blockade of the Cap Bon peninsula, which it said would be continued without remission until the peninsula "is in Allied hands and the last enemy troops in North Africa have been accounted for."

Naval and coastal forces were reported operating on both sides of the peninsula, the tip of which lies 90 miles from Sicily and the communique, without attempting to cover all the operations, said "there have been incidents in plenty."

Maintain Attacks

Allied bombers and fighters, maintaining their attacks upon sea as well as ground targets without respite, were reported to have sunk innumerable small boats loaded with troops as Axis survivors tried in panic to flee North Africa to Italian soil.

Speaking of these operations, the communique said "the tactical air force maintained its heavy and continuous attacks on the enemy in the Cap Bon peninsula."

"Troops and transport were attacked without respite and great damage was caused. Shipping around the coast of the peninsula and to the west of Bizerte was bombed. Vessels were sunk and others were damaged and considerable losses were caused to enemy personnel."

This and a previous bulletin disclosed that surface forces had destroyed two Axis merchantmen, a barge laden with troops, oil and ammunition and a ship in anchorage.

In addition, enemy positions at Kebilia, on the east side of the peninsula 20 miles south of the tip of Cap Bon and a gun battery at Sidi Daoud, on the west side, were shelled.

(A Stockholm dispatch quoted the Voelkischer Beobachter, Hitler's newspaper, as saying that both Marshal Erwin Rommel and Col.-Gen. Jurgen von Arnim, the German chieftains, had left Africa, placing the Axis command in the hands of the Italian Gen. Giovanni Messe, who led Mussolini's first expeditionary force to the Russian front.)

Airdromes Attacked

A strong force of light and medium bombers again attacked the Axis air field on Pantelleria, 45 miles east of Cap Bon, loosing explosives among grounded aircraft and starting several fires.

Referring to the Sunday attack by 400 German aircraft, the communique said "the strategic air force carried out its heaviest bombing raid of the campaign when the docks and industrial area at Palermo (Sicily) were attacked by very large formations of Flying Fortresses, medium bombers, with P-38 lightning escorts."

"Many of the targets in the area received direct hits and great fires were left burning," the bulletin said. "Thirteen enemy aircraft were shot down in the course of this raid."

Saturday night R. A. F. Wellington bombers attacked air fields of Sardinia and Beaufighters destroyed five enemy aircraft encountered during coastal patrol.

"From all these operations, five of our aircraft are missing," the communique said.

(The Italian communique said "very heavy damage" was caused in Palermo and Pantelleria. Marsala, Messina, Reggio Di Calabria and Licata were also attacked by Allied Air Forces, these including sweeps by Malta and Middle East squadrons. It said "the number of casualties has not yet been learned." It declared that 21 raiders were shot down.)

Strike Mighty Blow at Palermo

Advices from the front indicated the Axis leaders were trying desperately to withdraw the remnants of their shattered armies to Cap Bon peninsula for a final stand under a ruthless pounding from the air and on the land.

Emphasizing the hopelessness of any attempt at evacuation, the Allied air forces swept across the Sicilian straits yesterday to strike a mighty blow at Palermo, Sicily, with a force of 400 planes—the greatest single raid ever carried out in the Mediterranean theatre.

An Allied light naval force, meanwhile, stood off the east coast of Cap Bon to pour a hail of shells on the German and Italian troops crowding into the 800-square mile area jutting into the Mediterranean north and east of Tunis.

Allied planes, apparently unopposed, pounded at the retreating enemy as powerful British armored columns drove southeast of Tunis in an attempt to cut his forces in two and close the bottle-neck entrance of the peninsula.

The 50,000 Axis fighters which an Allied communique said had been captured since the clean-up of the Tunis-Bizerte sector started represented a quarter to a third of the reported German-Italian strength.

German resistance to the snapping of the trap on the mouth of the Cap Bon district apparently centred at Hammam Lif, 10 miles southeast of Tunis, where an Allied communique yesterday reported "heavy fighting continues."

Sealed on Peninsula

(The BBC without official confirmation, said their armored forces had captured Hammamet, the southern coastal hinge 28 miles below Hammam Lif, and had "sealed off all the Axis forces on the peninsula.")

Allied sources indicated the Axis forces had as yet made no attempt at evacuation, and that the large number of captives was the result of obedience to orders to stay and fight it out.

Bewildered Axis troops were reported to be astounded at the speed of the Allied advance and the collapse of their own positions. Front dispatches said one group of 5,000 Axis troops had thrown up their hands after they failed to break through surrounding Allied forces to make their way to the temporary refuge on Cap Bon.

(The German-controlled Paris radio, admitting for the first time the hopeless plight of the Axis forces in North Africa, declared "the battle for Tunisia is nearing an end." The broadcast was recorded by The Associated Press).

(The Algiers radio meantime declared that Axis losses in Tunisia were 64,000 prisoners and 42,000 killed or wounded, but did not specify the period of time covered by the report, which was not officially confirmed.)

Five Times as Great

The official announcement of the raid on Palermo said that the weight of bombs unloaded on the big Sicilian base was five times greater than the amount dropped in any previous raid in the Mediterranean theatre.

Heavy and medium bombers escorted by fighters participated in the assault, which returning pilots said had wiped out an area about one mile square around the harbor. The destruction was described as stupendous, and fires started by the raiders were reported visible 50 miles away.

Heavy four-engined bombers attacked at noon, and medium bombers 30 minutes later, hitting at such targets as the Fiat Motor Works, shipyards, steel plants, and arsenal and a chemical plant. Fires were said to have been visible for 50 miles, and reconnaissance planes were unable to make observations an hour later. The Allied desert air force, meanwhile, delivered a 100-plane raid on Pantellaria Island in the Sicilian Strait.

German generals who fell into Allied hands in the swift North African advance included Maj.-Gen. Borowitz, commander of the 75th Panzer division, one of two crack armored units of Field Marshal Rommel's desert army; Maj.-Gen. Weber, heading the 334th division; Maj.-Gen. Monteuffel, heading a division which carried his name; and Maj.-Gen. Krause of an artillery division.

Subjected to Terror

The same station broadcast last March 18 that "frequently National socialists are being assaulted and wounded, sometimes even murdered. They have been subjected to terror without precedent; terror in government, provincial and municipal offices; terror in industry at the hands of small and big bosses; terror in banks and business offices, in schools and in universities and homes."

The hilevrsum announcer on Oct. 11, 1942, was in a sorry mood over a letter written to the parents of a Dutch-Nazi who had died on the eastern front. The letter, as he read it, said:

"Sincerest congratulations on the death of your fascist son. Good thing the—is dead. . .But it was too early. He should have lived to see the Huns lose the war. Then he should have been hanged."

The Nationale Dagblad said on March 5, 1941, that a defendant at a trial had developed a system of fastening thumb tacks with insulation tape to the doorhandles of German cars and smearing the points with poison so that the German would be inoculated and die.

VICTORY LOAN CAMPAIGN ENTERS ITS FINAL WEEK

Widespread Support of Loan Urged by General Chairman

TOTAL $771,091,600

Ottawa, May 10—(CP)— National headquarters of the Fourth Victory Loan announced today that the $771,019,600 subscribed during the first two weeks of the three-week campaign for $1,100,000,000 came from 1,041,320 subscribers.

During the same period of the Third Victory Loan last Autumn, the number of subscribers was 753,652 and the two-week total was $609,281,700. However, the objective in that campaign was $750,000,000.

Saturday's business in the loan drive amounted to $63,169,600.

Heading corporate investments announced today was the largest single subscription yet received in the Fourth Victory Loan—$22,000,000 from Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, Ottawa.

Halifax again led today among cities still below quota for combined general canvass and payroll savings, with 85.9 per cent. It was followed by Quebec with 79.8 per cent and Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., with 79. Other high percentages were: Brantford 78.5; Belleville, Ont., 73.6; Waterloo 66; Owen Sound 62.2.

In commenting upon the results so far, Mr. Spinney said:

"The untiring efforts of every Canadian to purchase bonds for cash or on the instalment plan will be necessary to reach the objective. If every Canadian does his or her utmost from now until the end of the Campaign, the Fourth Victory Loan will be carried over the top on each of its several fronts, to 'Back the Attack.' The drive is far from over, and we still have a long way to go."

Cumulative total subscribed at the end of the second week of last autumn's Third Victory Loan was $609,281,800, but the objective then was $750,000,000. Loan headquarters, after weekend analysis of recorded figures, said the results from general canvass and payroll savings combined have reached 60 per cent of the $500,000,000 asked for from this source. The percentage was arrived at by close calculation, which included a certain degree of estimate.

Services Subscribe $16,000,000

Allowing for the time-lag between the moment a subscriber signs his application and the time it comes through the reporting channels to National Loan Headquarters, it was estimated that the general canvass-plus-payroll figures reached $298,550,800 as of last Saturday night.

The fighting services, with returns for the first two weeks of the campaign far from complete, reported total subscriptions so far of considerably more than $16,000,000, this amount including $2,124,900 from the Navy, $9,207,800 from the Army and more than $5,000,000 from the R.C.A.F.

For the first time, all 16 of the Army's loan districts were able to report they had passed their original objectives. M. D. 4, Montreal, continued to lead the army districts with 263 per cent of its quota attained.

The R.C.A.F. total included subscriptions at No. 1 Manning Depot, Toronto, of more than $225,000, better than 50 per cent higher than the total for the last loan. At Trenton, Ont., the R.C.A.F. subscriptions have reached $200,000, and at Camp Borden, Ont., they are more than $62,000.

The Navy's total, to noon Saturday, included $391,850 in subscriptions from civilian personnel. Halifax, with 85.9 per cent of its quota reached, leads cities striving to attain their objectives in the general canvass and payroll savings division.

Belleville Chapt. O.E.S. Entertains At 'Y' Open House

One of the best crowds of the season, men and women from every corner of Canada, from the British Isles, and from the United States, enjoyed the hospitality offered by members of the Order of the Eastern Star, Chapter 55, at the Y. M. C. A. yesterday in connection with the "Y" Open House Program. Enthusiastic thanks from the guests testified as nothing else could, their sincere appreciation of the refreshments served them at five o'clock, and again after the conclusion of the evening program. The graciousness of the ladies themselves, in no small way, helped make the day an enjoyable one for all.

During the afternoon, small games, cards, bowling ,and swimming gave the group who preferred to stay indoors all the activity they desired, while quite a number of the young people took advantage of the lovely spring sunshine to stroll for an hour or so between times.

The evening concert, arranged by the men of the Eastern Star, was greatly enjoyed by a crowd which packed the gymnasium. Opening with a singsong and a stunt which evoked peals of laughter under the direction of Mrs. Mary Plumpton, with Mrs. Grace Calvert at the piano, there was never a dull moment throughout its length. Mr. Art Snare, Worthy Patron, acted as Chairman, and introduced a well balanced program of songs, readings, piano selections, and accordion numbers, which were most enthusiastically received. Among the artists taking part were Alec Gordon, who played two of his own compositions on the piano, Art Snare, with his accordian, and Ed Shortt, whose baritone voice is not heard very frequently in concert work in Belleville, with Alec Gordon playing the accompaniments.

The devotional closing period was conducted by Rev. Russell, newly come to Belleville to take over the pastorate of Emmanuel Reformed Episcopal Church. The thanks of the Association to the members of the Eastern Star for their excellent efforts on behalf of the men and women in uniform, was expressed by Ed Shortt, Program Secretary.

Allied Submarine Shells Jap Base

New York, May 10 — (AP) — The Tokyo radio, in a broadcast recorded by The Associated Press, reported today that an Allied submarine had shelled the vicinity of Horobetsu village on the southeastern coast of Hokkaido Island—the second largest of the string of islands which constitute the Japanese homeland.

The broadcast quoted an announcement from Japanese Northern Army Headquarters as saying the shells had landed in a field and caused no casualties or damage.

The nationality of the submarine was not given.

United States submarines, however, several times have been reported in operation close off the Japanese coast.

The Tokyo radio said the attack took place just before midnight yesterday.

Peanut Vendor Proves Good Loan Prospect

That no prospect should be overlooked by salesmen when canvassing for the Fourth Victory Loan was demonstrated here last week when Jim Bennett, city salesman, reported the sale of a $50 bond for cash to a subscriber who set a splendid example for persons who are possibly in better circumstances financially.

Casually asking Andrew Kastaniotio, familiar peanut vendor seen regularly at the corner of Front Street and Victoria Ave., if he would like to purchase a bond, Mr. Bennett was given an affirmative reply. Mr. Kastaniotio dug down and paid for the bond with two five-dollar bills, a series of ones and a collection of fifty-cent pieces, quarters and dimes.

12 FATALITIES IN EAST CANADA

Five Persons Drowned, Three Die of Gunshot or Rifle Wounds

(By The Canadian Press)

There were 12 fatalities in Eastern Canada over the weekend, five persons drowning, three dying of gunshot or rifle wounds, three suffering fatal injuries in motor accidents and another dying of injuries received in a fall.

Peter Procoppio, 51-year-old resident of Dome Extension, about 12 miles east of Timmins in Northern Ontario, died yesterday of gunshot wounds police said he inflicted himself after he had shot and killed his wife as she ran from their home. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Warren, neighbors of the Procoppio's, are in hospital for treatment of wounds suffered when they attempted to assist Mrs. Procoppio. Warren's wounds are described as serious but it is expected he will recover. Mrs. Warren was slightly wounded.

Soldier Dies in Camp Sussex

Pte. D. M. Bennett of the Canadian Army died at Camp Sussex in New Brunswick Saturday night of a rifle wound he suffered during fighting among members of two army units. Bennett, a bystander during the fighting in which 17 others were wounded, died of a bullet wound in the groin.

Three of the five drowning were in Quebec. Raymond Laroche, 14, and Leonard Rondeau, 17, drowned Saturday in the Little Assomption River at Repentigny when Laroche fell from a raft and Rondeau fell into the water trying to rescue him. Cyr-Marc Desbiens, 12, drowned near Lachute when he fell into the North River from a raft he and a young companion were riding.

Drowned While Canoeing

The other two drowning deaths were in Ontario. Seventeen-year-old Jack Martin drowned in Lake Ontario while canoeing off Toronto Sunday while Mrs. Ruth Violette, 22, drowned at Welland Saturday when she fell into a ditch after suffering an epileptic fit.

William McArthur, 22, of Campbellford in Eastern Ontario was killed instantly and Pte. Francis Oliver of the Midland Regiment was fatally injured when a truck crashed into a tree on the highway south of Campbellford Saturday night. Mrs. Bruce J. Carr, 60, of Brighton Beach, near Hamilton, was killed Saturday when the automobile in which she was a passenger struck an abutment.

The victim of the fall was Mrs. Christina Jeffery of Toronto, who died in hospital Saturday from injuries received in a fall at her home Friday.

POLICE BLOTTER

After having been left parked on West Bridge St. for a period of over 60 hours, a motor car was ordered removed by police on Sunday. The vehicle was equipped with Ontario licence plates number 66 U 75. The vehicle was towed to a local garage for safe keeping.

Arthur Landry, Rossmore, told police on Saturday he was in possession of some merchandise which had been left in his parked motor car by mistake the week previous. Included in the goods were a pair of shoes. The goods had been placed in Mr. Landry's parked automobile through the mistaken identity of parked automobiles.

J. A. McCormick, North Park St., reported to Provincial Police that his grey gelding horse had escaped from the custody of his barn on Saturday and could not be found. The horse had only been purchased from a Shannonville district farmer earlier in the week.

Three inebriates ran afoul of the law over the weekend and were arrested on charges of intoxication. They will apepar in Tuesday's police court.

Trenton and District

Largest Parade Ever Held in Trenton Passes in Review Sunday Afternoon

Trenton, (Special).—By far the largest and most colorful parade ever to be staged in this district took place in Trenton on Sunday afternoon when about 2,400 men and women of all ranks marched in support of Canada's Fourth Victory Loan.

Headed by the trumpet band from the R.C.A.F., which is considered the finest band of its kind in Canada the parade got under way at one p.m. The trumpet band was followed by the Army and Navy veterans, Royal Canadian Air Force, Trenton, No. 5 I.T.S., Belleville, and the Belleville Pipe Band leading the Argyll Light Infantry. This is one of the few occasions in which the Trenton citizens have had the opportunity to witness this famous regiment in their midst. They were led by their Commanding Officer, Lieut.-Col. B. C. Donnan and were extremely smart in their khaki topped off by the black berets.

Next came the C.W.A.C.'s, who are affiliated with the Argyll's, and are already showing the results of their rigid training which has moulded them into an excellent unit.

1,000 in H. & P. Regiment

2nd Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment followed led by their genial commander, Lieut.-Col. A. v. Yates, M.C., V.D., preceded by their regimental band. Possibly somewhat over a thousand men were marching here and this is considered remarkable in that some of them came from as far away as Bancroft, Picton and Tweed. They are a fine group of men, of splendid physique showing the result of their careful training.

Belleville Sea Cadets and Belleville Air Cadets, Trenton's Air Cadets led by the commander, V. P. Carswell, and local Girl Cadets followed. These juniors received loud cheers from the spectators, as they swung along the route of march. Cubs and Boy Scouts preceded the 34th Battery, then a detachment of nurses from St. John Ambulance Corps, Belleville headed by Mrs. W. N. Ponton, followed by their field ambulances.

The rear was brought up by the armoured vehicles consisting of 25 pounders, and 75-millimetre gun carriages and their tractors, universal carriages and other motorized equipment.

Salute Taken by Gen. MacDonald.

As the troops went along Queen Street, they passed the saluting base in front of St. Peter's Church where Brigadier General Harold F. MacDonald, C.M.E., D.S.O., executive assistant to Air Minister Power, took the salute. He was supported by Group Captain McBurney, O.C., R.C.A.F., Station and Group Captain Keddie, O.C., 6 R.D. Guests of honor were Col. A. E. Bywater, Col. H. J. Smith both of Trenton, Mayor H. R. Cory, and members of the Victory Loan Committee headed by their chairman, W. H. Ireland.

Following the parade, at Governor Simcoe Park the field artillery gave an interesting demonstration and fired a few rounds which shook the down-town section of Trenton.

During the course of the entire parade squadron after squadron of planes from the R.C.A.F. gave demonstrations of formation and combat flying which thrilled the many thousands of spectators who lined the streets.

Organizer Praised.

Great credit for this spectacular parade goes to Squadron Leader J. S. Harris of the R.C.A.F. whose untiring efforts in organizing every detail made the day such a decided success, greatly enjoyed by all spectators.

Members of the Ontario Provincial Police, Belleville City Police and the Ontario Voluntary Constabulary assisted local police in directing traffic along the route of parade.

Trenton Air Station Personnel Subscribes $193,000 to Loan

Vastly exceeding the pre-campaign expectations of even the most optimistic station officials and county Victory Loan committeemen, subscriptions to the Fourth Victory Loan at Trenton R.C.A.F. Air Station up to Saturday night totalled the amazing sum of $193,000, or 154 per cent. of their objective.

Trenton Air Station personnel are justly proud of their efforts in scriptions to the Victory Loan, in scriptions to the Victory Loan, in that it represents $40,000 more than was subscribed at the station during the last campaign last autumn. The $153,000 subscribed during the last campaign was thought by Air Commodore F. S. McGill, then commanding officer, would be an all-time record for subscriptions from any air training station in Canada.

Much of the credit for the success of the Victory Loan canvass at the Trenton Air Station is due to Group Captain R. E. McBurney, officer commanding and Flight Lieut. McAlpine who have given the loan their whole-hearted support and are in charge of station canvassers.

Although their subscriptions to the loan have been surpassed by Trenton, other air stations in the county have a participation record that will defy equal in many parts of Canada. Down at No. 1 Instrument Flying Training School at Deseronto, the boys have subscribed 197 per cent of their objective, while No. 6 Repair Depot has subscribed 163 per cent. No. 5 Initial Training School early went over their objective with contributions now standing at 231 per cent.

With Two-Thirds of Loan Subscribed In County Much Work Remains To Be Done To Reach Objective

Sum Represents $40,000 More Than Total in Last Campaign — Other Stations Set Records

ALL EXCEED QUOTAS

With two-thirds of the drive completed, subscriptions to the Fourth Victory Loan in Hastings county have kept pace with the progress of the campaign it was announced here this morning by committeemen from county headquarters. Of an over-all objective of $3,300,000, a total of $2,186,850, or slightly over 66 per cent has been subscribed, it was stated.

Realization, however, that the home stretch would be the hardest and that it may be vastly more difficult to acquire subscriptions covering the final one-third of the objective, spurred county salesmen and canvassers to greater efforts. Canvassers all over the county attacked their job with renewed efforts today with the determination that the $3,300,000 objective would be reached before Saturday night

Deloro Passes Quota

Congratulations are in order today for the village of Deloro which after leading in its objective percentage throughout the campaign, on Saturday went "over the top." The northern village thus is the frist district in the county, outside the R.C.A.F. stations, to attain its objective. Residents of Deloro have now subscribed 110 per cent of their objective and lead other civilian municipalities by a substantial sum.

Stirling Forges Ahead

Stirling and district forged ahead quickly during the latter part of last week and is now in the van of districts not yet having reached their respective objectives. Up to Saturday Stirling and district had subscribed 74 per cent of their objective while Belleville had attained 73.6 per cent.

Deseronto and district now stands at 66.4 per cent; Sidney and Thurlow district, 62 per cent; Bancroft 61.5 per cent; Tweed 58 per cent; Trenton 49.8 per cent and Madoc 47 per cent.

Comparable with the overall canvass, subscriptions in both the general sales and special names divisions are keeping pace with the progress of the campaign General sales subscriptions now total $1,156,850 of the county objective of $2,800,000 representing 67.4 per cent, while special names subscriptions stand at $330,000, or 66 per cent of the $500,000 objective.

Increase of Juvenile Delinquency Blamed On Parents' Indifference

Lack of adequate home training and companionship of parents with their children has been greatly responsible for the alarming increase in juvenile delinquency throughout Canada during the past few years, it was stated by Rev. E. R. McLean, Secretary, Ontario Religious Educational Council.

Speaking on the subject "Preservation of Youth," at Holloway St. United Church Sunday evening, Mr. McLean declared in Toronto delinquency of children between the ages of 7 and 16 years had increased 45 percent and that misdemeanors of children from 7 to 12 years has seen an even greater increase.

Only a concerted educational program through the church, with the training to be passed on to children by parents in the homes, would be successful in preserving Canada's youth, which is the nation's greatest asset, said the speaker.

Homes to many children are "but a place to sleep and a place to hang their clothes,' according to Mr. McLean, who stated that lack of companionship from their parents was driving children into the streets. In direct contrast he stated that his own fondest recollection of youth was the memory of happy times he and his father had had playing games in the evenings.

Turning to the matter of sex education, the speaker asserted that churches, schools and other organizations disclaimed responsibility. The solution appeared to be education in the home under the direction from the church, he said.

Sgt. R. C. Milliken Reported Missing

Trenton — (Special) — Official word has reached his parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Milliken, Dundas St., Trenton, that their son, Sgt. Robert Clifton Milliken, is missing following air operations over enemy territory.

Twenty-seven years old, Sergeant Milliken was born at Ayr, Ont., moving to Perth with his parents in 1925, attending Perth Public School and Collegiate Institute. Prior to enlisting he was employed as trainman with the Canadian Pacific Railway.

He enlisted in September, 1940, with R.C.A.F., reporting for duty July, 1941, training at Ancienne Lorette, Montreal, and Jarvis where he received his "Wireless Air Gunner" wing on June 10th., 1942. He spent three months operational training at Pennefield Ridge and proceeded overseas in November last.

Since January he has taken part in many raids over German territory, flying in a Ventura bomber.

In a letter to his parents from his commanding officer he was reported to be an excellent Wireless Operator Air Gunner, very keen towards his duty and extremely popular with all his associates, where he will be greatly missed.

Library Report

Circulation in the boys' and girls' department of the Corby Public Library for the month of April was the highest for any month of the year, it is reported by Miss Olive Delaney, librarian. Circulation in other departments, however, was down slightly as compared to the same period last year. The complete report follows:

The month of April shows a slight increase in both circulation and membership as compared to April of last year. 9,144 books were read or consulted in the library and 86 new members enrolled.

Circulation in the boys' and girls' library totalled 2,385 books, the highest circulation this year. Saturday story hour still proves popular. We have had an average of 35 enthusiastic boys and girls every Saturday morning.

Short one assistant all month, it has meant that most of our time has had to be spent covering hours at both the adult and juvenile desks so that other jobs like filing, clipping, mending, cataloguing have piled up alarmingly. However, with the arrival of Miss MacKeracher, the 1st of May, we should be able to settle down to a workable routine again.

Ann Nicholson, one of the girls approved by the board as part-time assistant (reserve) has spent a great deal of time at the library during the month becoming acquainted with library work. I find that she has already had some experience in the Collegiate library and therefore has adapted herself very rapidly to duties here.

The second meeting of the Book Committee was held last week in April and six orders from various publishers approved. These orders were all sent in immediately as there seems such a shortage of new books in the adult library.

For donations of books this month we are grateful to Mrs. C. A. Brown for a half dozen books by popular authors to add to our shelves.

Respectfully submitted,

OLIVE DELANEY

THE "ENTRANCE" HOTEL

Kansas City, May 10 — (AP) — Alfred Arboledo, 10-year-old student from Gauyaquil, Ecuador, hasn't had time to learn English. So, when he left his hotel he took especial care to memorize the sign over the door. Just as he feared, he became lost. It took an extended tour of the business district in a police car before Arboledo spotted his destination, as no one knew of a hotel with a name like the one Arboledo gave them. Triumphantly, he pointed to the sign over the door. It said "Entrance."

Says Canadians To Lead Invasion

London, April 29.—The Canadian Army will form part of the vanguard of the invasion of Europe, Malcolm MacDonald, British High Commissioner to Canada, told a press conference here today.

When Tunis, Bizerte Fell

General Sir Harold Alexander, in his message to the troops said the other day, "The eyes of the world are on you and the hopes of all at home. Forward, then, to victory!"

General Alexander, commander in Tunisia of all the ground forces of the Allies, has taken his revenge of Germany. He, the last man to leave Dunkerque when 350,000 British and French troops were saved on the eve of the fall of France, is driving the Germans and Italians into the sea and there will be no escape for the enemy, no successful evacuation by the Axis. Three years ago next month saw Dunkerque but May, 1943, writes the end of Hun and Italian power in North Africa. Thousands surrender.

The man who wrote a heroic saga at Dunkerque by the success of the evacuation and who conducted withdrawal of British in Burma last year in the face of Japanese forces three times or more as numerous as his force was is still writing victories. As head of the Middle East command with General Montgomery in charge of the Eighth Army he saved Egypt, cleared Libya of the Axis and is now conducting the last operations in Tunisia which have been speeded up by the dramatic success of the fall of Tunis and Bizerte.

General Dwight Eisenhower, the American who is in command of all operations of the Allies in Tunisia, has shown the finest demonstration of co-ordinated land power, air power and sea power to make the success of the attacks on Bizerte and Tunis unequalled in warfare.

Victory Loan and Victory

What has been possible with the smashing might of full Allied power has been demonstrated in North Africa where with a suddenness beyond the expectation of any but the United Nations commanders the end has come to the Axis defence of the fortresses and ports of Bizerte and Tunis.

It is a proof of the importance of complete preparation. In preparation for such an event men, materials and money are absolutely essential. At this time when Canada is entering the third week of the Fourth Victory Loan, the conquest of Tunisia should be the inspiration which will sweep the loan forward to and beyond the minimum goal. This perfection of preparation which the British, American and French have shown has been the work of months, of the piling up of superior power and of the spirit of victory which is behind the men who gain the victories and this superior power has been possible only because the men have had the weapons they needed on land, in the air and on the sea. Strong financial support of the Allied armies has been behind the victories of the men.

When Mr. Churchill said to give the tools and the forces would use them he spoke a truth which is remembered at this time. Every dollar contributed to the Victory Loan makes Canada's war effort that much more effective. Every investor in war bonds realizes that he is playing a real part in the victory.

The men in the forces have done nobly. More victories over Hitlerism remain to be won and the Allied armies will win them for the world. Every civilian, too, will feel the supreme urge to do his best as the march of victory continues.

British Honors for Russians

Russian heroes of the war, numbering some 30 generals, lesser army officers and naval heroes, for courage and valor in carrying out assignments on the front and on convoy duty between Britain and Russia have been honored with decorations by His Majesty King George Sixth. Most of the men are actively fighting Germany.

Russia is near the second anniversary of war against an enemy who thought he had everything thoroughly planned. To Axis chagrin, Russia as a nation and as individuals has given so great a proof of courage, love of country, prowess and strategic and tactical skill as to be the admiration of the world and the bitter experience of Germany and Italy.

The honors His Majesty the King has conferred upon the officers and men of our great Russian ally have been well bestowed.

Ancient City

(Near Tunis Are the Ruins of Carthage)

This phantom-city by a tideless shore
Whence Dido watched her lover's long-ship fade
Was towered Carthage, terrible in war,
Potent in peace, in death a royal shade.
Drear centuries along the Middle Sea
Raven and owl have mourned her perished pride,
Her crown the thistle, and her majesty
Robed in the sand that silts her forum's side.

Now Carthage wakens to a battlecry
Wilder than any raised in Punic fight,
While far above her through a startled sky
The cloud-borne riders flash across the night,
And swift to southward leaps a fiercer fire
Than flared of old from Dido's oaken pyre.

After the War

(Providence Journal)

The United Nations are to set up an organization to take care of starving Europe when that unhappy continent is liberated. They must be set to swing into action at a moment's notice, with both supplies and ships. This is going to require the highest degree of co-operation and generous assistance from all the members that are capable of supplying foodstuffs. Already the Canadian Government, in a fine spirit of humanitarianism, is giving the Greeks thousands of tons of wheat to help them in their distress. The United States will naturally take a leading part in getting the food to Europe: that is a responsibility we are ready to assume; but we cannot do it all by ourselves: that also is understood. But it is very important that the people of the United States understand the problem that now exists and will exist when the shooting stops. This is why full and intelligent publicity should be given to the work of the conference.

Keeping But Losing

(Our Dumb Animals)

There was a man once who dreamed that he died, and quickly learned that what he had spent here on earth he had had, that what he had kept he had lost, that what he had given was still his.

Red Cross, Community Fund, Taxes! As to taxes, we have got to pay them. As to the Red Cross and Community Fund, what we gave to them we gave because we wanted to, or felt we ought to.

If giving costs us nothing—no sacrifice, no self-denial — we receive no reward from the voices that speak within us, and deserve none.

How compact the world is becoming was shown by the fact that Mr. Leonard W. Brockington had tea with General MacArthur in Australia one day and the next day was in Ottawa. In war days time is essential and the saving of time one of the greatest contributions of science to the world.

MEMORIES

These are bits from memory's pages of the years that lie before:
The bush of purple lilacs at the mother's kitchen door;
The hollyhocks she planted at the back fence of the lot;
Her rose bush, run to timber, since to prune it she forgot
My first small coop for pigeons, with its entrance through the shed,
And the joy I had in fantails and in tumblers overhead.

Was our boyhood then more crowded than is boyhood of today?
Does the modern youngster ever hitch a ride upon a sleigh?
Has he ever known the glory of a pony of his own?
Is the thrill of raising rabbits to a city boy unknown?
Have the motion pictures banished many joys I used to know
In the years when I was living every day a picture show?

It was marbles in the springtime; it was skates and kites and tops.
Then the fanciest of the candies that we had were chocolate drops.
In the days before the motor I was proud and blithe of heart
When the butcher or the grocer let me drive his horse and cart.
Looking back upon my boyhood to a man I'm sure I grew
Before boredom overtook me or just what it was I knew.

Franco Puts Out A Peace Feeler

Madrid, May 10 — (AP) — Gen. Francisco Franco, speaking at Almeira last night, said the war has reached a deadlock in which neither side has the power to destroy the other.

"Therefore," the Spanish Chief of State said, "those of us who witness the struggle serenely consider it is senseless to delay the peace."

Franco said that additional victories would cost great sacrifices, but that sooner or later the deadlock would force the belligerents to listen to voices calling for peace like those of Spain and the Vatican.

(The peace feeler speech by the Spanish leader, indebted to the Axis for help in overthrowing the Spanish Republic, was considered significant in view of the Axis defeat in Africa and the successes of the Russian winter offensive.)

Franco spoke to a demonstration organized to receive him at Almeria but the speech was not released until today. His appeal for world peace followed a similar peace appeal by Foreign Minister Count Gen. Francisco Gomez Jordana in a Barcelona speech April 16.

"Abroad, Spain demands a post which corresponds to her history in service, humanity and worth," Franco asserted.

"It is the serene policy which we have followed since the first day of our movement, without abandoning our sovereignty nor our prestige, and which, in these times when the world is a sea of blood and hate, raises its voice, united with that of the Holy Pontiff, to appeal to the conscience of peoples."

ON THE RECORD

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

Prelude to War

New York, May 10.—The creation of our great army has involved tremendous educational problems. Some thousands of young men have had to be rejected because they were illiterate, and modern armies cannot do with men unable to read orders.

The elective system of the universities, under which a student can get a degree by studying anything he wants to, leaving out basic courses in mathematics, and even English composition and expression, has made it necesary for the army to re-educate graduates of some of our leading universities.

The army has had to teach people how to add, subtract, speak and figure, how to handle complicated weapons, and even how to tie a necktie—for the great draft brought into camps thousands who had never worn one.

It has also had to educate millions about the war itself: it's causes and why we fight.

Confronted with this problem, the army has discovered and used what the school systems have largely rejected; namely, the immense possibilities in the movie. Here is an instrument through which masses of men are being taught, in the most interesting way, actually how to take apart, put together, and use a rifle; and the actual facts about geography and politics as the cause of war.

A Magnificent Production.

If, recently, I have had some harsh words to say about the film industry's war films, as created for the public, it is because other films, made for other purposes, are so magnificent.

Three million United States soldiers, in camps at home, and in barracks all over the world, have already seen a film not yet released to the public. It was made by Col. Frank Capra, of Hollywood, for the United States Army. Mr. Capra didn't have to worry about the box office. He had to solve a tremendous problem: how to present the entangled and complicated history of this war, with meticulous truth, and in such a manner that the simplest mind could grasp it, at the same time, making it so interesting that soldiers would be fascinated. He solved the problem, with a film which the most educated and informed person delights equally in seeing.

The film I refer to is one of several and is called "Prelude to War". The army will release it through the film industry to the public in the middle of this month.

But the industry is frankly concerned about its reception. It is feared that a picture which entertained and educated three million United States soldiers will not appeal to women. It is a 30-minute film; it has no love interest, no mystery plot, and no popular stars. It has, however, the greatest villains and heroes of our time — in person. And, above all, its actors are the peoples of the world. Except for about one hundred feet, every bit of it is authentic, taken from existing newsreels, some of them captured from Axis movie photographers.

Not News Reel—But Story.

But it is not a newsreel picture. It is a story—the story of a war, and of a war that did not begin at Pearl Harbor, but in May, 1931, in Manchuria. It is at the same time, an essay in geopolitics. For alternating with pictures of personalities, assemblies, armies and change of government, of public uprisings and counter-revolutions, we see on maps the spreading Axis plot of world conquest. We see that there has been a plan and a strategy, and we know why we are at war.

I have a higher opinion of United States women than the film industry does. Capra's picture—the greatest novel of our times—has the basic elements of every good film, one of which is suspense. It has an exciting unfolding plot—the plot which engulfs our lives.

Shows True Alignments.

The United States Army is to be congratulated, also on the sincerity and honesty of this film. The enemy is a real and terrifying enemy, but he is not distorted. Nor is it a film directed against whole peoples. It reveals that there were Japanese statesmen who fought against this conspiracy of conquest, and Germans and Italians who fought against it—and paid with their lives. It shows where the true alignments are in this war, and it also shows how formidable is the enemy. It is so honest that, unlike any other war film I have seen, it could be seen in any Axis country after the war.

But if we can thus teach soldiers the history of this year, why cannot we teach school children, with the same techniques, the history of America, and of the world? Why can we not unfold the history of mankind before the eyes of the child? Why can we not, through the film, breathe life into the dead bones of every branch of education? The film gives us the opportunity to bring men of genius to the remotest village and even to a New York high school.

Politics were made in ancient times by a handful of men. Today they are made by masses of people. And that implies a new sort of mass education.

CONSERVATIVES

Many Conservatives in Britain feel that the name of their party has outlived its usefulness and a new one should be adopted.

"Conservative" as the label of a political party in England dates from 1830.

In that year the name was officially adopted as the designation of what had been the Tory party since 1689.

After 1886 a portion of the Conservative party became known as Unionists.

The chief rivals of the Tories, Conservatives and Unionists during the years have been the Roundheads, Whigs, Liberals, Radicals, and Laborites.

The Tories themselves were really an outgrowth of the 17th century Royalists and Cavaliers.

In "Iolanthe" Sir William Schwenk Gilbert wrote:

I often think it's comical,
How nature always does contrive
That every boy and every gal,
That's born into the world alive,
Is either a little Liberal,
Or else a little Conservative.

It is an interesting fact that, although both terms are widely used in their political sense on this side of the Atlantic, "Conservative" and "Liberal" have never been adopted as the names of political parties in the United States.

During the American Revolution those who remained loyal to Britain were popularly known as "Tories," but the term was not perpetuated in America as the name of a political group.

Between the time of the close of the Revolutionary War and the adoption of the Federal Constitution there were no political parties in the United States in the strict sense of the terms.

The first division into anything like political parties was that into Federalists and Anti-Federalists.

Generally speaking, the Federalists were those who favored the adoption of the Constitution, centralized government and a loose construction of the constitution, while the Anti-Federalists were those who opposed adoption of the constitution, states' rights and a strict construction of the constitution.

From the Anti-Federalists evolved later the Republicans under Jefferson and the Democrats under Jackson.

The remaining Federalists ultimately joined with the Anti-Jackson Democrats to form the Whig Party which was absorbed by the second Republican Party formed in 1852.

None of these political parties was conservative or liberal in the British sense of those terms.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Should a Uniform Curb Public Lovemaking?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

It never occurred to me that public demonstration of love's young dream would prove offensive until the other night, when I happened to sit back of a sailor and a girl in uniform, at a movie. The only thing that can be said in extenuation of their behavior is that they were both young.

The girl wore the uniform of one of those women's military organizations, lately mobilized for the purpose of relieving men for combat duty. The antics of these two rivaled that of the monkeys in the Zoo. Everyone in their vicinity stopped watching the screen and gave their undivided attention to the pair.

I know that Germany encourages any sort of love-making for its own purposes, but insists the uniform should be respected to the extent of keeping raptures within bounds in public places.

P. A.

Mutual demonstrations of affection may be so interesting to the participants as to make them forget there are onlookers. Such demonstrations are boring, amusing or disgusting, according to the onlooker's own feelings about romance.

Home Is Disrupted by Drunken Father

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My problem is about my father who is a heavy drinker and accuses my mother and me of all sorts of things. I am 21, my brother is 15, and there are two little girls of 6 and 10. My father has never supported us; it has always been my mother who has bought our clothes and sent us to school.

Recently I succeeded in getting a position, and my mother has a defence job. We had a maid to take care of the younger children, but she left on account of my father. He threatened to kill us all, because my mother and I come in so late in the evening, after working hard all day.

Isn't there some way in which we can have our father put into the Army? It is getting the best of mother and me, and I'm afraid it will affect the other three a little later on.

H. L. T.

If your father is over 45 years of age, he is not subject to Selective Service. But you can have your father put under a Peace Bond which will prevent him from threatening you, your mother, or committting acts of violence at home.

Concerning Girls They Leave Behind Them.

Dear Fairfax:

We've been told so often that we are fighting for those we love back home. As I'm not married, sweethearts are the ones I have in mind. If we are willing to fight for them, why aren't they willing to make a sacrifice and be loyal to us who have gone off to fight for peace? Morale is not built by girls who leave their service man for some man who has been lucky enough to miss the draft.

I have been in the service almost two years, and as yet haven't gone overseas, but expect to leave in the near future.

The one I loved and thought would be waiting for me when I returned home, sent me a letter a few days ago, asking me to disregard anything she may have promised, as she didn't know where she would be by the time this war is over.

Fellows leaving home are cheering for the day when they will return, but a fellow loses all interest in things when his sweetheart leaves him holding the bag. Please publish this, so some of the lads may know what to expect.

M. S. (Marine.)

I can't help saying that any man—soldier or civilian—is well rid of a girl who can't find it in her heart to be loyal to him. The wrench of parting is cruelly painful, but in the long run it's comparable to the riddance of a troublesome tooth.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

This War Mother Brightens Lives of Other Mothers' Soldier Sons

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have two sons serving overseas and my husband and I very often invite some soldiers from a camp quite near our home to have Sunday dinner with us. Very often I have thought how much their families would like to have news of their sons, perhaps particularly from a mother who knows what it means not to have much news. But I hesitate to "step into their lives," feeling that they may feel that this is a presumption. If the boys themselves would only suggest it, I'd be so delighted to write to their mothers.

Do you think it would be entirely out of order for me to ask them if I may write their families, putting my request on the "mother-to-mother" basis?.

D.E.R.

Please follow your impulse to ask these soldiers if they would like to have you write their families. I am positive that they would be pleased by your thoughtfulness and kindness. They are probably hesitating to ask you for the same reason that you are hesitating to ask them . . . that is, they feel their request might be "presumptuous," that they would have no right to ask you for any favor after you and your husband have been so kind and hospitable.

No one needs to tell you how happy and reassured their families will be having your news of their sons . . . it will be a godsend to their mothers. And if possible, take snapshots of the men and enclose them in your letters!

Wedding Gift Puzzles Her

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

For a wedding present I received eight crescent-shaped white crystal dishes. I have no idea what these are to be used for . Can you tell me?

N.D.

These crescent-shaped crystal dishes are salad plates. Since they fit snugly beside the dinner plates, they are especially convenient for tables where space is limited. They used to be very popular some years ago, then disappeared, and then several years ago were revived. And appropriately too, for they adapt themselves to the serving of the salad with the main course, and they fit into small spaces. I'm sure you'll enjoy using them!

Presents Should be "Sent"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Our son, who is to be graduated as 2nd Lieutenant this month, is to be married a few days after his graduation. When my husband and I go to the wedding (which is to be held in the city where we live) should he or I hand the wedding present to our son or to our new "daughter-to-be"?

Mother.

Please, dear lady, don't take your gift to the wedding to present it. You should either send it (from the store where you buy it), or take it to the bride-to-be at her home as soon as you conveniently can before the wedding. You mustn't give the wedding present to your son. . . wedding presents are always sent or given to the prospective bride.

Sufficient Proteins a "Must" For Expectant Mothers

For a woman, there is no more important time in life that proper diet is essential than during pregnancy. Yet, studies reveal time and again that far too many women do not have an adequate diet during pregnancy. Much has been written about vitamins in the diet, but far too little has been emphasized about the need for sufficient proteins of high quality.

Dr. Rupert E. Arnell and his co-workers of New Orleans made a study of a large number of women during the period of pregnancy to determine whether or not the expectant mothers were receiving enough protein, also to ascertain the symptoms which had resulted from a deficiency of protein food. It has been recommended that the average woman during pregnancy receive about three ounces of protein daily or the amount furnished by an average serving of meat, eggs and a pint of milk a day. Most of the patients studied were receiving less than this amount. In fact many were getting only about one-half of the necessary amount.

Not only must a person get enough proteins but must also get the right kind of proteins. Proteins contain what are known as amino acids. Ten of such amino acids are necessary for body growth and tissue repair. Not all proteins supply all of them. Vegetables and cereal foods lack some of these important amino acids. For this reason, it is recommended that proteins from animal sources make up about two-thirds of the total protein eaten.

A careful questioning of the women who were receiving insufficient protein showed that this was occurring because of custom or ignorance in habits of eating, because of dislike for certain foods, or because they had received improper advice concerning diet during pregnancy.

Sometimes protein deficiency occurs not because the person does not eat enough but because the proteins are not used satisfactorily by the body. Vomiting or diarrhoea may interfere with the absorption of food. Various disorders, such as an infection, may also contribute to a protein deficiency, many women suffer from anemia, from lowered strength of the muscles, lessened resistance to disease, and inability to form enough breast milk. One of the chief symptoms of deficiency of protein is edema, a collection of fluid in the tissues. When the diet is corrected to supply sufficient protein, this condition gradually clears up. Dr. Arnell and his co-workers found that in the patients who had good nutrition and were receiving enough proteins, toxemia, or poisoning of pregnancy, was less likely to develop and, furthermore, the toxemia could be cleared up more quickly when it did occur.

Proper care during pregnancy should include a careful survey of the diet to make sure that all of the necessary food parts are supplied.

The Experts Say

(By The Canadian Press)

Ottawa, May 7. (CP)—Advice from authorities to Canadian women serving on the housewives' home front:

Ration Stretching—With Canadians shortly to be limited to a meat ration of two pounds each week, Laura Pepper, chief of the consumer section of the Dominion department of agriculture, offers this hint to home makers wondering how to stretch their meat quotas. . . . "The first and most important rule in meat cookery is to use moderate to low cooking temperature for all meats". Roasts should cook at 300 to 350 degrees Fahrenheit, and pot roasts at no more than 325 degrees, or over very low top-stove heat. There is less shrinkage when a low temperature is used, and as a result meat cooked this way goes further. It's juicier, too.

They're Good For You—Victory gardeners soon will be gathering tangy green onions, crisp radishes and tender green lettuce from their plots. These vegetables make a real vitamin contribution to meals and, while not among the richest sources of vitamin "C", do contribute useful quantities of this important vitamin, in which meals are apt to be deficient at this time of year. . . .Don't wait for your garden salad greens, advises Marion Harlow of nutrition services, but take advantage now of those which are available in local shops and markets.

Coupon Care.—The consumer branch of the Prices Board reports that some retailers are suffering losses in ration coupons, and that because of them retailers have been forced in some instances to reorder less than their fair share of rationed goods. . . .Housewives should make sure that their grocers obtain all the coupons they are entitled to collect, and make certain that the delivery boy detaches the proper number of coupons from ration books. Otherwise, grocers will be unable to replace stocks of rationed goods to meet their customers' needs.

Meat For Children.—The foods administration of the Prices Board states that all children, regardless of age, will be allowed a full ration of meat under rationing regulations, since it is impracticable to distinguish between infants, who require less meat and the 'teen-age boys who require more meat than adults. . . .The board decided that the saving of the amount of meat to be used for all infants on the rationed basis would not warrant the administrative difficulties and expense of making a differential for this group that is less than two per cent of the population. . . .Census figures for 1941 indicated that Canada had 216,000 infants under one year of age in its population.

A Shopping Creed.—The carrying of parcels wherever possible is part of the patriotic shopper's wartime creed. One department store has estimated that if women shoppers carried all parcels weighing up to five pounds, and no larger in bulk than an ordinary suit box, its deliveries would be cut in half. . . . Shoppers, wherever possible, should do their errands between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. By so doing they will miss the rush hours when busses and street cars are required for war workers.

In Spite of Problems
The Quality Remains Unchanged

NONE of the circumstances of today have been allowed to interfere with the quality of Jell-O and Jell-O Puddings.

War's necessities have limited the supply of Jell-O and Jell-O Puddings—so, if there are times when your grocer is out of stock, we are sorry, and hope that you will be patient till a further supply is available.

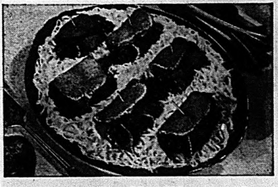
WEEKLY WARTIME NUTRITION HINTS

Martha Logan, Swift's famed home economist, whose weekly wartime cooking column is a regular feature of this page. Look for these valuable hints each Monday,



Tongue Rolls Florentine

A real party dish which is delicious, thrifty and nutritionally O.K.

This week I have a real party recipe for you, which is at the same time thrifty and tops for nutrition. For 4 people, you need 8 slices of boiled tongue (about ½ lb.), 1 lb. spinach, 1 cup top milk, butter, salt, pepper, flour and horseradish.

The tongue slices should be ⅛ of an inch thick and unbroken. Carefully wash spinach. Remove stems and cook in just the water that adheres to the leaves. Cook only till the leaves wilt. Drain well. Chop fine. Add 1 tablespoon melted butter or fine flavoured dripping, season. Place a spoonful of spinach on each slice of tongue. Roll and fasten with a wooden pick. Place in greased casserole.

Combine 1 tablespoon flour and 4 tablespoons horseradish with milk and pour over tongue. Cover. Cook in a moderately hot (400°) oven for 20 minutes.

You can serve these delicious tongue rolls directly from the casserole or on a platter with a border of snowy mashed potatoes, garnished with lightly fried parsely.

Tongue and spinach are both high in the list of protective foods and cooked this way they tempt the most difficult appetite. Of course, in addition to this serving of meat, potatoes and one leafy green vegetable—we need, in the same day, another (preferably raw) . . . ½ pint of milk for adults, more than one pint for children . . . tomatoes or citrus fruit or their juices and one other fruit with a whole grain cereal and four to six slices of Canada Approved bread. These can easily be provided at other meals, as can the minimum of three or four eggs a week recommended by Nutrition Services.

Extra-Base Hits Start Rattling Off the Fences As Lively Ball Introduced Into Major Loop

Dragons of Dugouts Also Start to Take a Cut at the Umpires

PLAYERS FINED

By JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

The connection may not be clear, but the lively ball and lively arguments returned to the major leagues together.

Then the two big leagues quit playing with bean bags this weekend and the extra-base hits started rattling off the fences, the noise aroused the dragons of the dugouts.

Manager Leo Durocher of Brooklyn Dodgers got into an argument with umpire Baze Pinelli at Boston, was ejected from Saturday's game and fined $75. The same day manager Mel Ott of Giants was bounced at Philadelphia and coach Art Fletcher of New York Yankees was tossed out by an umpire for the third time in his 17 years in the big show.

Sunday manager Frank Frisch of Pittsburgh Pirates and most of his players joined in a tirade against umpire Jocko Conlan and fans at Forbes Field threw bottles and cushions on the field in protest of a decision at the plate. And at Washington two players, Ellis Clary of Senators and catcher Johnny Peacock of Boston Red Sox, came to blows.

These antics weren't able to steal the show, however, from the revitalized Balata ball, which was introduced in the National League on Saturday and in the American League on Sunday. The 147,000 fans who turned out for the eight doubleheaders on Sunday seemed well satisfied. In 16 games there was not a single shutout and in the American League, which had produced only nine home runs before Sunday, came up with six in one day.

Three Made by Yankees

Three of them were made by Yankees in beating Philadelphia Athletics 13-1 in the first game. Spud Chandler, in addition to pitching eight-hit ball for his 3rd victory without a defeat, homered inside the park with two on. The A's won the second game, though, 4-3.

Washington beat Red Sox twice, 3-2 in 10 innings and 8-2. The scrap between Clary and Peacock occurred in the seventh inning of the first game while Clary was at bat. Both were banished.

Another result of the return of the lively ball was an injury to pitcher Bill Dietrich of Chicago White Sox. The bespectacled righthander failed to duck a liner by Rip Radcliff in the south inning of the first game with Detroit and was smashed on his pitching arm. No bones were broken, but the arm had to be put in splints. Chicago went on to win 3-1, but Tigers took the nightcap 4-1 when Rudy York hit a homer to set off a three-run rally in the 11th inning.

Indians Nose Out Browns

Cleveland Indians nosed out St. Louis Browns 6-5 in 13 innings and then were beaten 7-5 in the second game, which was halted in the 7th by darkness.

Philadelphia Phillies vaulted out of the National League cellar by sweeping a doubleheader from New York Giants 3-2 and 3-1, running up an unheard of winning streak of three games. Attendance was 24,943.

Brooklyn's pace-setters were held to a split at Boston. Dodgers won the opener 5-4 in 10 innings and then were beaten 2-1 on Jim Tobin's four-hit knuckle-balling.

St. Louis Cardinals moved back into second place by beating Pirates 8-1 and then playing a 3-3 tie game which was halted after nine innings by the Sunday curfew in Pittsburgh.

Reds Beaten Twice

Chicago Cubs, with a revamped lineup, clubbed Cincinnati Reds 13-2 and 4-3. Paul Derringer made his bow in a Chicago uniform at Crosley Field in the opener and had the help of a 15-hit attack.

In the American League Saturday Philadelphia trounced New York 9-4 while Boston paid a similar compliment to Washington with a 2-1 count. St. Louis eked out a 3-2 win over Cleveland to clean up the schedule as the Detroit-Chicago fixture was postponed.

Boston started off the National League that day by taking Brooklyn 3-2, and New York beat Philadelphia 7-5. Cincinnati trimmed Chicago 6-5 while the St. Louis at Pittsburgh game was postponed.

PICOBAC BACKS THE ATTACK

Mr. Picobac entered with the air of a man who had done his duty.

"Mrs. Picobac," announced he, "I have just committed you and me to a heavy responsibility."

"Land's sake," exclaimed Mrs. Picobac, turning back from the oven door.

"I have bought something more than I can pay for — in cash," declared Mr. Picobac.

"Bought what? What do you mean?"

"I have just pledged myself to take the best investment in the world to-day. I have pledged not only myself. I have pledged you, too. For you will have to help me. I have bought more Victory Bonds than we have the money for. But — if we live according to war-time rations and regulations — we'll pay for them in six months' time. The only question is will you help me?"

"Of course I'll help you," cried Mrs. Picobac. "There's a thousand ways a woman can help when it comes to backing the boys by Victory Bonds."

Mr. Picobac took his wife gently by the chin, kissed her heartily, and, wearing his broadest smile, proceeded to search his pockets for his handy pocket pouch of Picobac burley with a view to relaxing financial strain in a mild . . . cool . . . sweet smoke.

Quebec Hockey Loop Officials Are Re-elected

Montreal, May 10 —(CP)— In one of the shortest meetings in its history, the Quebec Hockey Association re-elected all its officers by acclamation Saturday.

Sitting at its 25th annual meeting, members made few changes in last year's policy.

A junior "B" rating was adopted to divide junior provincial teams into twin classes and provide separate playdowns at the season's end. Five additional votes in league matters were granted to minor leagues, raising their voting representation to six. Two extra votes were granted Montreal clubs, with Quebec, Three Rivers and Sherbrooke drawing one each.

Vancouver Lassies Defeat Winnipeg Altomahs in Three Straight

WIN EVERY GAME

Vancouver, May 10. (CP)—For the second straight year, Vancouver Hedlunds downed Winnipeg Altomahs to take the Dominion Women's Senior Basketball Crown.

Hedlunds made it three straight in a best-of-five series against the Manitobans, winning 41-29 here Saturday night, to end the season without suffering a single setback.

The British Columbians coasted to a 36-17 win in the first game last Wednesday night and took the second Friday night 29-24.

Capitalizing on their shooting against an opposition who failed many times on free shots, the Hedlunds managed to get an early lead in each game and then have things much their own way thereafter.

They were ahead 15-4 at the end of the first quarter Saturday night and 23-10 at the half-way mark.

Dorothy Brook of Winnipeg and Joan MacArthur of Vancouver, shared point-getting honors, notching 10 each for their team. Cathie Smith and Ruth Wilson got nine and seven, respectively, for Vancouver.

Winnipeg scored on none of their 16 four shots, their best performance of the series. Vancouver notched nine of 13 tries.

VICTORIA RCAF CAGE CHAMPIONS OF THE DOMINION

Take Title by Defeating Windsor Patricks in Three Straight Games

BAKER A HERO

Vancouver, May 10 (CP)—Victoria R.C.A.F. succeeded Victoria Dominoes as Dominion senior men's Canadian basketball champions, having turned aside the bid of Windsor Patricks three straight in the best-of-five series.

The airmen never let the Eastern Canada champions get organized Saturday night as they jumped into an early lead and kept it for a 31-22 victory. Victoria took the first two games last Wednesday and Friday 58-48 and 63-50.

A former Dominoes forward, AC1. Norman Baker, emerged hero of the series, having scored almost half of his team's total 152 points. He chalked up a Vancouver record by collecting 37 points in the opener and while he was a tagged man in the next two battles, he managed to collect 21 and 14 points, respectively.

Baker got his 14 points Saturday night with seven field goals, just half of his team's points in that department.

The game was cleaner than either of the first two and only Fred Thomas of Windsor was waved to the sidelines for four personal fouls.

ROYALS SECOND

By The Associated Press

Baseball generally is regarded as the foremost sport in the United States, but not in the International League. There the six U. S. clubs know that baseball as demonstrated by the two Canadian entries has definitely been better than their brand to date this season.

Toronto, which hasn't been scored upon for the past 33 innings, tops the league with 10 triumphs and only three losses. Five of the victories have come since the last defeat.

In second place is Montreal, which has won four in a row.

Leafs, a well rounded unit of veterans and rookies under the guidance of Burleigh Grimes, blanked Syracuse in both games of yesterday's twin bill, 1-0, and 2-0. Jim Hopper held the Chiefs to a lone single in the nightcap.

Montreal, meanwhile, swamped Jersey City, 5-2, and 7-1, to run its victory string to four.

Newark, defending champion, was mastered by Buffalo, 7-6, in 10 innings as the Bisons counted six runs in the first frame to break an eight-game losing streak. Rochester and Baltimore split, the Red Wings taking the first, 6-1, and the Orioles the second, 2-1.

Toronto has lost only twice in the last dozen contests, primarily on the strength of a pitching staff, that has allowed only 19 hits in the four games with Syracuse.

Leafs, however, haven't shown that devastating power at the plate. Their only home run of the first 14 games was struck by Ralph Kiner, rookie outfielder up from Albany, against Syracuse on Thursday.

Grimes, once an outstanding National League pitcher, has been relying on Hopper; Nick Strincevich, who hurled Sunday's opening game; Dick Conger and Luke (Hot Potato) Hamlin for the greater portion of the mound chores.

The Leafs return home today to stake their record against Baltimore in a night game while the Chiefs have the day off from competition but will be busy surveying a path around the bases.

As far as Saturday was concerned, in the one game played Montreal trimmed Baltimore 8-4.

Sports Roundup

New York, May 10 (AP)—When you talk to Jack Lavelle, eventually you talk football, and generally you come up with some fresh ideas on the subject . . . Jack, you remember is the old Notre Dame guard who coaches a New York high school team and in his spare time is about the best grid scout in the business.

Good Scout

The suggestion that "informal" football may do away with a lot of scouting brings a pained look to Lavelle's round face . . . "Scouting," he argues, "is what makes football games good. It's football's new service for the quick dissemination of information. A scout sees new defence, brings back the dope and the first thing you know all the coaches are trying it—if they have the material.

Monday Matinee

The gag about the postman's day off isn't a gag to Pete Ladislaw. He took time off from delivering the mail the other day and delivered most of the winning shots for his team in the Garden City, N.Y., Country Club best ball golf tourney . . Which brings up Mike Cestone's retort when somebody suggested that he'd regain his tennis form if he took a little more exercise. "You come over to Montclair and carry the mail bag over my route on magazine days and you'll find I get plenty of exercise."

Rastus—Cause dey add to my misery, dey subtract from my pleasure, dey divide my attention and dey multiplies like de dickens.

Count Does It Again

Mrs. John D. Hertz's hurricane speedster, Count Fleet, should have little difficulty in joining such turf greats as Sir Barton, Gallant Fox, Omaha, War Admiral and Whirlaway to make the sixth horse to win the triple racing crown of the United States. The "brown beauty" from the Hertz stables won the Preakness stakes on Saturday much easier than he took the Kentucky Derby the week before as he led practically from the barrier to the wire to win eight lengths over Blue Swords. As Jockey Wayne Wright, up on New Moon and finishing last, said: "I didn't even see the race."

Count Fleet should be a cinch for the Belmont stakes to make the sixth horse in American turfdom to win the triple racing crown for three-year-olds. The Count paid off at $2.30, the shortest price in Pimlico track's history and earned $43,190, which boosts his life's earnings up to something like $302,260 for 19 races.

Mother's Day Present

Jockey Longden, up on the Count, never wanted to win a race more in his life and after the romp he said: "I wanted to win this race particularly for my wife and two-day-old son."

Although Longden was never challenged throughout, he guided Count Fleet home only two-fifths of a second off the Preakness record set by Alsab in 1942. The Count covered the mile and three-sixteenths in 1:57 2-5.

It was the smallest Preakness field since 1899 when only two horses went to the barrier. Saturday four went out of the chutes, but there was only one horse in the race and that was Count Fleet.

A crowd of 31,000 bet $147,356, of which $66,248 was placed on the Count's velvet-like nose. The purse was $50,000. The Belmont stake is Count Fleet's next objective.

Wanted—One Catcher

If Spike Pryke or Tilly Donihee can rustle up a catcher the Reliance A. C. will be back in the Belleville softball wars another season. The boys held a conclave over the weekend, took inventory and found they weren't so bad off after all. That is with the possible exception of the receiving department.

Their pitching department has been bolstered considerably with the return of Freddie Vasil to help Bill Anderson with their mound work. Then 'tis rumored Johnnie Bawden would like to toss in his pitching lot with Reliance, while Gerald Ethier has already signified his hopes of playing with the Pryke—Donihee combination. With Ethier, Cy Barriage, Pryke and Gariepy available the Reliance infield begins to take form, but they are still searching for a catcher, now that Reg. Chipman has gone.

Still a Mystery

Although local wrestling fans are waiting anxiously to hear just who Promoter Frank Tunney is lining up to meet "Gentleman Jack Claybourne, the sensational colored wrestler, in Wednesday night's semi-final at the Hume Arena, the fact that Tunney got Claybourne's signature to a contract to come to Belleville as a prelim. in itself is sufficient evidence Marse Tunney is trying to give the bestest of the best in his shows here. This says nothing about the Katan-McCready main go when the two leading contenders for Billie Watson's Empire crown tanglee.

A win for either Messrs. McCready or Katan here will place the victor in a position to demand a bout with the pride of East York for the title.

This and That

There will be no president elected to fill the place of the late Frank Calder until after the war. In the meantime Mervin "Red" Dutton will remain as chief director of the National Hockey League. . . . The local gals' softball league will draft a schedue Tuesday night and also accept entry fees. . . . Although they finished in sixth position in the National League in 1929, the Philadelphia Phils were one of the most powerful hitting clubs in baseball history. . . . They blasted a team batting average of .309 for that season. . . . Leo Durocher was up to his old tricks Saturday. . . . As the Braves beat the Dodgers 3-2, "Leo the Lip" got the heave-to by Umpire Babe Pinelli for "excessive talking." . . . Outfielder Thurman Tucker of the White Sox bears the nickname of "Joe E." because of his resemblance to Joe E. Brown of the screen. . . . Don't be at all surprised if Dr. W. G. Hardy, of the University of Alberta faculty, is named president of the N.H.L. after the war.

LONGDEN BOOTS THE COUNT HOME IN PREAKNESS

Without Any Opposition The Count Travels Distance in Near Record Time

BLUE SWORDS SECOND

Baltimore, May 10—(CP)—Johnny Longden, of Taber, Alta., booted Count Fleet home first in the 53rd Preakness stakes here Saturday for two good reasons.

And it might be embarrassing to ask which reason came first. Of course the Canadian jockey had his mind fixed on the $3,190 that went with the win, but then there was the urgent matter of catching a train and saying hello to his new son, born last week in New York.

And the way the Fleet went over the course indicated that the canny three-year-old knew his rider was in a hurry, because he didn't waste any time.

Not that the competition called for undue speed—the Fleet sailed in eight full lengths ahead of Allen Simmon's Blue Swords, who is practically making a career out of chasing the Fleet into port this spring.

But, fresh from his Derby win, the Fleet did about the classiest job of flying on the ground he has demonstrated in a series of high class jobs since he grabbed the racing spotlight last fall. He zipped the 1 1-16 miles in the sizzling time of 1.57 2-5, despite the fact the track was rated only "good" after an overnight rain.

That was just two-fifths of a second away from the Preakness record Alsab hung up a year ago.

New Moon finished last in the race, trailing in 32 1-2 lengths behind the Fleet. Jockey Wayne Wright complained, "I didn't even see the race."
